We view the return of Millbrook to primeval isolation (fortunately bridged by satisfactory roads) with nostalgic regrets. The severance of the village from rails is not quite complete yet, but it will be accomplished. The new trucking service will undoubtedly give the company an excuse for taking off even the occasional freight trains between Peterborough and Millbrook. The whistle of an engine will no more be heard in its land.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An optimistic economist says that Canadians are saving more than ever before. Well, with money worth so little, they have to.

U.S. Labour Secretary Tobin told a convention that President Truman had led his country to "the highest moral standards ever shown by any nation." The only comment seems to be, Indeed?

"A new Army searchlight makes it possible to read a newspaper at 12 miles," we obesrve. We might not mind peeping at twelve miles, but we can't stand people who try to read your paper while sitting next to you in the bus.

Many Japanese, we read, breakfast on soup and pickles. As we breakfast on sour fruit, a cereal which has been dried to make it crisp and then moistened to make it soggy, and a narcotic notorious for its effect on the heart, we laugh happily at the barbarous diet of the men of Nippon.

Pioneer Member: Hon. H. H. Killaly

By ARTHUR R. FORD
(in London Free Press)

RECENTLY there was presented to the Library of the University of Western Ontario a picture of Hon. H. H. Killaly and his wife by a grandson, A. L. Killaly, of Peterborough, who like his grandfather, was an engineer. The story in connection with the presentation stated that Mr. Killaly was the first member for London in the Legislative Assembly. This is incorrect. The first member was Col. Mahlon Burwell, who was a representative in the Assembly from 1836 until 1840.

Mr. Killaly was, though, the second member for London, and London's first Cabinet minister, as he was Commissioner of Public Works for a number of years. Mr. Killaly was an Irishman, born in Dublin, who was educated at Trinity College and became a civil engineer. He migrated to Canada about the same time as the Blakes and the Cronyns. The Blakes settled in Adelaide Township, but Mr. Killaly located on a farm near London, which is today the corner of the Fourth Concession and Highway avenue and is still known as the Killaly Farm.

IT was in 1834 that he came to London. Engineers were scarce in Canada and when the first Welland Canal was being built in 1838 he was appointed the engineer in charge. In 1840 the two provinces of Ontario and Quebec were united and Mr. Killaly ran for the Assembly. According to old accounts it was a bitter election. His opponent was one John Douglas, a general merchant. The election was vigorously contested. Killaly was a friend of the officers of the garrison stationed here at the time. The law was loose in regard to the franchise. There was a property qualification for voting, but if a man squatted on Government land and lived there he was entitled to vote.

WITH the connivance of the officers of the garrison several shacks were erected during the election week on Government lands and occupied by soldiers, who slept there one night and the next morning presented themselves at the polls and voted for Killaly. The friends of Douglas were naturally indignant at what they called a dirty Irish trick. There was a riot and a demonstration at the residence of the commander of the regiment, one Col. Weatherall. His house was pelted with stones and windows broken. The story goes that the same treatment was accorded Mr. Givens, the legal adviser of Mr. Killaly, the great-grandfather, by the way, of John Givens, K.C., of this city. A reward was offered for the offenders, but no one was ever found.

Killaly won by a small majority and was called to the Executive Council by Lord Sydenham and was made Commissioner of Public Works. London the next year in honour of its first Cabinet minister gave him a testimonial dinner in Robinson Hall. His political opponents joined in the dinner and the regimental band provided music. Judging by old accounts it was an all night affair.

KILLALY took a great interest in the development of the district. He secured an appropriation of $400,000—a lot of money for those days—and built many of the first roads in this district. After his retirement from politics he was named assistant commissioner of public works. At the time of the Civil War when there were strained relations between Canada and Great Britain and fear of an invasion of Canada, he was named a member of a royal commission to report on the defences and fortifications of Canada.

Killaly was a great sportsman and apparently a gay figure. We have in our library an old book written by a sporting pastor, Rev. William Agar Adamson, who was the chaplain of Lord Sydenham. Published in 1860, it is called "Salmon Fishing in Canada," and describes a trip taken to the fish streams of the Lower St. Lawrence and New Brunswick. Two of his companions were Mr. Killaly and apparently Baron de Tuyle, of Goderich and Bayfield fame. Here is his description of the commissioner who must have been a character. He writes:

"THE commissioner was a curiosity. He was the most expensively and the most ill-dressed man on the wide continent of North America. One would almost be inclined to think that he studied incongruity as the model after which he arrayed himself, except that his slovenliness forbid the idea of his having ever bestowed a thought upon the subject. I have seen him at one time promenading a populous city in a dirty, powder-smeared and blood-stained shooting coat, while his nether man was encased in black dress pantaloons, silk stockings and highly varnished French-leather dancing pumps. At another, I have met him with one of Gibbs' most recherche dress coats, a ragged waistcoat, and wornout trousers, all looking as if he had slept in them for a week, and lain inside of the bed among the feathers.

"His shirts never had a button upon them, which constantly caused the brawny and hairy chest to be exposed to view, while a fringe of raveled threads from their wrists usually hung dangling over his fat, freckled and dirty hands. It was a complete puzzle to his acquaintances where he obtained all the old hats he wore. That he changed his hats frequently was evident, for none of them ever bore the same shape for two days together; their forms were multitudinous, so Protean, as to defy description; but it may be said of them generally, that their outline was that which might be expected of the hat of an Irishman, who had been so well beaten on a wet day, in a fair, as to be induced to sleep all night in a ditch."

MR. ADAMSON writes that his voice and laugh had nothing of the tremulous quaver and cackle of an old man; they came strutting out of his lungs like the crow of a cock or the blast of a clarion. He apparently liked his food and he writes that his reminiscences of good cheer seemed to bring "the savour of turkey or lobsters under one's very nostrils."

Mr. Killaly was evidently a boy in his time. He died in 1874 at the age of 74.

MISUNDERSTOOD

A young man and his girl were riding out in the country on horseback. As they stopped, for a rest, the two horses rubbed noses affectionately.

"Ah, me," said the young man, "that is what I'd like to do."

"Well, go ahead," said the girl, "it's your horse."

HIS GAMBLE IN KOREA

Democracy And Teachers In The U.S.A.

By BERTRAND RUSSELL in the Manchester Guardian

I LEARN that in a certain important state of the Union the education authorities have become impressed with the importance of defending the sacred institutions of the United States against the sinister machinations of those who are defending the sacred institutions of other countries.

I learn, from a document circulated to teachers in this state, that while in other countries education has "definitely sought to teach the young people that their particular form of government is the best" this is a proof of the inferiority of these other countries, since it is the form of government adopted by the United States that is the best, and therefore to teach the excellence of this form of government in the United States is not at all the same thing as to teach the excellence of other forms of government elsewhere.

I learn also from this document that "it now appears necessary for the schools in the United States to indoctrinate American youth for American Democracy"; that is to say, since indoctrinating the youth is an evil, and since it is practised elsewhere, it must also be practised in the United States. "We need to do this for self protection," the document continues; that is to say, we must surrender everything that makes defence worth while before the defence begins.

Boys and girls, we are told, "should discredit definitions and descriptions used by foreign Governments of such words as Social Revolution, Communism, Fascism, Totalitarianism, Police State, Dictatorship, Welfare State, Bureaucracy, Conservatives, Liberals, Capitalism, Socialism, Communal Enterprise, and Propaganda." We are not told what definitions of these words are to be substituted. Perhaps I could assist those who drew up this interesting document.

"Social Revolution, to begin with, clearly does not include what happened in America in 1776, for that was good, whereas "Social Revolution" is bad. Nor does "Social Revolution" include the overthrow of Hitler, for that also was good. It does include the failure to overthrow the Democratic Administration in the United States, and it does, of course, include the overthrow of Churchill in England in 1945. Perhaps we may define "Social Revolution" as any political movement anywhere which is displeasing to the Republican party.

"Communism' is another of these words which are used dishonestly by the effete populations of Europe. Every honest man (honest men are only to be found in America) knows that Mr. Acheson is a Communist, that Mr. Attlee is a Communist, and that Communism is so catching that anybody whose second cousin once met a Communist at a party is likely to be infected. There are sophists in England who are particularly dangerous, since they pretend that "Communism" can be distinguished from Democratic Socialism, whereas Americans know that there can be no true democracy where plutocrats are in any degree curbed, and that the Labour Government of England, although elected by popular vote, was a bureaucracy rapidly tending towards totalitarianism.

"FASCISM is a difficult word. During the late war we all knew what it meant. It meant the system of government employed in Germany and in Italy until the fall of Mussolini. But now that it is necessary to use Germans and Italians against the Russians the word "Fascism" has become one which prudent people will avoid. It is true that during the late war we thought that we were fighting to defeat "Fascism," but we now learn that "Fascism" is disliked by Moscow, and we conclude that it cannot be wholly evil.

"Totalitarianism" is another of these slippery words. At one time we thought that Franco's regime was "totalitarian," but since we have realized the strategic importance of the line of the Pyrenees we have discovered that Franco is one of the bulwarks of moral values against the rising sea of atheism and materialism.

"Police State." In Germany under Hitler, and in Russia under Stalin, nobody ventured upon a political remark without first looking behind the door to make sure that no one was listening. This used to be considered a mark of the "Police State." It is so no longer, for when I last visited America I found the same state of things there, and yet, as we all know, America is not a "Police State." It is true that Senator McCarthy's emissaries and his allies in the F.B.I. are perpetually snooping, and that if by some misfortune you were to quote with approval some remark by Jefferson you would probably lose your job and perhaps find yourself behind bars, but this, of course, is done in defence of liberty and therefore does not make America a "Police State."

"Welfare State" is a phrase against which every true American should be on his guard. We all know that England is a "Welfare State," and that this proves that England is only half-heartedly opposed to Moscow. America is not a "Welfare State." Some ill-conditioned persons might infer that it is an "Ill-fare State." Such persons must not be allowed to spread their poisonous doctrines.

Another word which, according to this document, is wrongly defined by the wicked foreigners is the word "Capitalism." Americans all know what this word means. It means allowing free play to the benevolent impulses of those great and good men who have made vast fortunes by serving the public. There are people, incredible as it may seem, who suspect that sometimes (though of course rarely) fortunes are made by conduct which does not promote the general welfare. They think that perhaps the extermination of half the population of the Belgian Congo in order to enrich that great philanthropist King Leopold II was the sort of thing which ought not to be allowed, even if it can only be prevented by an interference with free enterprise.

The last of the words which this document considers that foreigners misinterpret is the word "propaganda." I am surprised at this, for I have found throughout the world a complete and absolute unanimity in the meaning assigned to the word "propaganda"; "propaganda" means, always and everywhere, advocacy of opinions not held by the speaker. The education authorities of the state in question will, I am sure, agree that the indoctrination which they advocate is not "propaganda." It is not "propaganda" because it is teaching doctrines with which they agree. This is also the view taken in Russian schools. If one were to suggest that "propaganda," in so far as it is harmful, consists in indoctrination by other than rational means, one would be liquidated in Russia and regarded as a fellow-traveller in the United States. Perhaps on this basis these two great countries could reach an agreement.

THE document continues: "It is essential in America that we teach our young people that American democracy is the best government in the world." I know it must seem incredible, but there actually are people, not in asylums, who question this. I cannot remember any occasion in England when the leading elected representatives of the sovereign people had to be sent to prison as common thieves, as happened in Indiana some thirty years ago. Any Englishman going to America at the present time has the strange experience of a population subjected to a reign of terror, and always obliged to think twice before giving utterance to any serious conviction. English people hold the clearly subversive opinion that a teacher should not be deprived of his post merely on the ground that he has published a well-documented investigation of some fact inconvenient to certain rich men. Yet this is part of the system which in America is called "democracy." The word "democracy" was not ambiguous until recently. It used to mean government by elected representatives of the people. Now it has lost this signification. In Russia is means government by a military tyranny; in America it means government by a plutocracy, or, at any rate, government in which the plutocracy is uncurbed.

It is perhaps regrettable that Americans who have no education and no knowledge of the world should be allowed to antagonise intelligent opinion in countries as unalterably opposed to communism as the United States itself.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord. And she again bare his brother, Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.

And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering; but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell.... And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him. (Gen. 4: 1-5, 8.)

In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother.

For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning, that we should love one another. Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous. (I John 3: 10-12.)

Worker's Case To Be Reviewed

TORONTO, Nov. 7—(CP)— A Toronto paper says today in a newspage story that the case of a Toronto aircraft worker dismissed from the Avro Canada plant near here under security regulations is being reviewed.

The paper says the worker, George Robert Jackson, was fired five weeks ago with no explanation other than that the order came from Ottawa. Jackson has denied that he has ever had any link with Communist organizations.

He protested the dismissal through his union and his Member of Parliament, and later made a trip to Ottawa in person. There he was told the case would be reviewed, but no details of the reasons for his dismissal were given.

The newspaper says there have been several other dismissals from Avro Canada for security reasons but until now none of the dismissed workers had protested.

HILLBILLY JOINS UP — Peter Grainger, 26-year-old "shoeless hillbilly" who came out of the mountains to join the Army, gets the feel of his newly-issued rifle at Fort Sam Houston. Son of a New Mexico prospector, Grainger told recruiters at San Antonio, Texas, that he decided to enlist "after paw died." He rode mule and walked barefoot most of the way out of the mountains to get to civilization for the first time. The Army gave him his second shave of his life and a pair of shoes.

Northland Chickadees Invade The Lake Ontario Region This Year

TORONTO—(CP)A cheeky little stranger from the northland's evergreen forests has moved into the Lake Ontario region.

He's called the Hudsonian chickadee. In build he's about the same as the common Black-Capped chickadee. But his color is brown instead of grey, and the top of his head is dark brown instead of black.

Why did he come? L. L. Snyder, curator of the Royal Ontario Museum's division of ornithology, says it's probably a case of overpopulation in the north.

"This year's invasion by the Brown-Capped chickadee is quite unprecedented," he said today.

"There have been a few small migrations in the past—for instance—a small flight in 1937—but nothing like this.

"The little fellows are all along the north shore of Lake Ontario. They're moving west and south—probably by now into Michigan and Ohio.

"I'm not exactly fooling when I say the migration was probably caused by some psychological disturbance among the chickadees. But of course we can't be sure. Nobody knows what birds think."

Population At Peak

"Obviously the chickadees have had a good year. Chickadees of all sorts have had large families. The population is at the peak of its cycle.

"I don't mean that there's any shortage of food in the north. But when the population is high, you run into the same sort of emigration that occurs among the people of densely-populated countries.

"No one understands exactly. We call it population pressure. There have been other similar cases of invasions of new territory. The birds are just squeezed out into marginal lands.

"Next year the population likely will drop. And then we won't see any Brown-Capped chickadees in Toronto."

Mr. Snyder said the chickadee isn't alone in his southward spread. Other northern species seen in unusual numbers in the south this year include the Canada jay, and the Pine Grosbeak which is a large sparrow-like bird.

Bird-watchers in the Toronto area first reported arrival of the Brown-Capped chickadee Oct. 20. They've been seen in backyard gardens in the downtown department-store districts where even the Black-Capped, native chickadee rarely goes.

Committee To Study Defence Expenditures

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent announced in the Commons Tuesday that the government has decided to set up a house committee to study defence expenditures.

He said the committee will be established at this session so it can complete its organizational work and get down to active examination of defence spending during the spring session.

He disclosed that the setting up of the committee had been discussed at a meeting he had with Opposition party leaders last month.

George Drew, Progressive Conservtaive leader, who has urged the establishment of such a committee, with broad powers, said he hopes terms will permit an inquiry along the line his party has in mind. It should meet each session.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 7 (CP)—Twenty freighters were taking on grain here Tuesday as the annual fall rush began. Population Up

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Population of Prince Edward Island increased 2,740 in the last 10 years to 97,787 at June 1 from 95,047 at the corresponding date in 1941, but was below the peak 109,078 in 1891, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday.

PROBABLE CHIEF — Rear-Admiral E. Rollo Mainguy, O.B.E. of Shemainus, B.C., Atlantic Coast, is expected to be appointed chief of Naval Staff to succeed Vice-Admiral H. T. W. Grant, whose retirement is scheduled. Rear-Admiral Mainguy, at present Flag Officer Atlantic Coast, is author of the famous Mainguy Report on Canadianization of the Navy.

Building the body beautiful is an interesting hobby indulged in by Stan McBride. Not only his own body, mind you, but those of any young fellows who want to develop a fine physique. You've probably seen those ads of muscular men in physical culture magazine — [illegible] genial Stan goes in for enthusiastically. He conducts classes at 7.45 each Monday and Thursday night in the YMCA and invites anyone interested to drop around for a look and for full information. Weight-lifting is included in the lessons and some good hoisters have been developed here in the past decade. That chest expansion is something to brag about by Spring.

Don Smedmor, prexy of the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association, expects to have the minors' schedules ready ere [illegible] Thursday nights in Civic Arena, but this Thursday p.m. is set aside for these practises: Trojan bantams at six, St. Peter's bantams at seven, Marine juves an hour later, Olmstead's bantams at nine; then Marine midgets, and the juvenile Trojans at 11. Morning drills at seven are: SPS midgets Thursday, Lakefield juves Friday, Oddfellows juveniles next Monday, and Otonabee Wolves on Tuesday. The boys shouldn't skip any of these workouts if they want to catch places on the teams.

A House For A Dollar

With talk now of testing the ground in Morrow Park as a possible site for the oft-proposed Memorial Centre, we'd like again to suggest a scheme similar to that used a year ago in Kitchener to raise more money. They raised $200,000 in a raffle for a Dream Home. The home was worth $48,500, completely furnished and with a new car in the garage. Very latest in everything — radiant heated, deep freeze locker jammed with food, kitchen-laundry combination, etc. Lady volunteers of 12 service clubs sold tickets at a buck a throw, and these ducats were sold in many centres. The lucky winner could sell the house if he didn't want to live in it. Also a flock of consolation prizes, totalling $2,000. Well, they raised the money and have a swell arena now.

This wintry touch lends a fitting background for the opening of the OHA season this weekend in these parts. Season commences a little later than last year in Peterborough but still much earlier than it used to when local clubs had to depend upon natural ice in the Brock and later in Omemee. The Petes are off to Bella Villa on Friday to tackle the Hawks (nee Redmen) of that burg, while the same evening sees Queen's of Kingston playing the opener here with the Eagles (sponsored by D. A. McGillis Sr.) in Civic Arena at 8.30. With Coach Ned Vitarelli out of town this week, Red Creighton and Mick Magee will handle the Eagles for the opening joust. The lineup will be published tomorrow.

Re Large Les Ascott

Milt Dunnell of the Star has a piece in on Les Ascott of Argos. Says in part: "Easy-going Les Ascott, dean in point of service of the double-blue brawn department, is completing his 12th season as an Argo and is gunning for his fifth Grey Cup. Helped win three successive titles under Teddy Morris and got back in the upper crust last season under Frank Clair. But he'd have missed it all if Len Staughton hadn't talked him out of a quick kick-back to Peterborough, his home town. Les was 17 then and he didn't like Toronto. He didn't know folks here, and veteran Argos like Red Storey, Dave Ferris, Art West and others wouldn't allow rookies to use the front shower. This class distinction rankled a democratic citizen of Peterborough where Les had won local fame with the Orfuns by helping belt over Sarnia Imps one memorable day. This was an upset comparable to Windsor Rockets knocking over a Big Four club. Staughton persuaded Les to give Toronto and the Argo caste system a fair trial, and Les hasn't regretted it. Eventually, they even started paying him to play—something undreamed of with Orfuns—in addition to letting him use the front shower. So many things happened that Ascott never did get his carpetbag back to Peterborough."

Never a dull moment when Zorra, the French Tarzan, is in a wrestling ring. Nor can one of his bouts be called finished when the gong sounds. He just gets warmed up then and takes on all and sundry. He cleaned up on Athol Layton and the latter's trainer—a guy known as Lou—after hours, when the main bout wound up in a time limit draw. Referee Bunny Dunlop (one of two arbiters) was in on the extra work, also, and did okay for himself. An exciting finish for the hefty crowd which braved rough weather to see a lot of rough mat action. Unmasked Lou Newman took the semi-windup over Tim Geohagen, whilst Sonny Kurgis beat Dan O'Connor in the prelim.

Dry Ski School For Girls Opened By Club

The weekend's six-inch snowfall spurred action by the Peterborough Ski Club for its girls' dry ski school under club instructor Mrs. Mollie Craig.

Monday night the school opened for its first lesson under Mrs. Craig and will continue once a week during the first part of the ski season. Mrs. Craig is in charge of instruction for the ski club and is chairman of the women's section of the Ontario Ski Association.

Whether the school will be held inside or outdoors for the next several meetings will depend entirely upon Mother Nature. If there is snow, the sessions will be on the courthouse hill.

Reluctant Skiers

Mrs. Craig explained that the school is for girls who want to ski but are reluctant to learn on the slopes when there are crowds zooming down the hills.

"Many girls like to ski but haven't been helped, partly because thy're too shy about going out on the hills without experience."

Mrs. Craig added, "We're mostly interested in helping the girls to ski, but it would be wonderful if some would enter the competitions."

At the dry school, the girls will first do conditioning just like a football or hockey team would. This includes exercises which will strengthen the ankles and knees.

Need Condition

Mrs. Craig stated that if the skier is in condition, skiing is that much easier, and besides "it cuts down the accident rate if the skiers are well-conditioned."

After the exercises, the girls are taught to walk on their skis, "they can't go down the hill until they can walk on skis."

After they can walk, the girls will try the slight slopes and develop various phases such as the downhill position, the snowplow and parallel turns. Once they have mastered those grades they will be ready for the steeper hills.

Any girls interested in the school should contact Mollie Craig or Mary Dodds, secretary of the ski club.

Zorra An Overtime Victor As Top Bout Ends In Draw

Fussin' and feudin' after the final gong sent a large grapple crowd home happy from the Brock Arena despite the fact that the main bout between Lord Athol Layton and Zorra, the French Tarzan, went to a time limit draw. Zorra had all the best of it in the overtime inning, and Referee Bunny Dunlop got in a few licks, too.

He and Cliff Fox shared refereeing duties and had a busy enough evening. But the climax came after time was up. Layton's trainer, Lou Pitoscia, had reached in from a corner to trip up Zorra, who promptly went out of the ring after him as the gong went. He pasted Lou around and then hopped back in to kick Athol all over. Lou jumped in then and he and Layton tried to smear Dunlop, but Bunny and Zorra cooled them out, the Frenchman having a whale of a time as the big crowd cheered. Police escorted Layton out.

A Wild Round

That final bout was wild and woolly. Zorra went on the attack in speedy style but was slowed up later by slashes from the big Englishman, who scaled 258 to his 229. After taking some abuse, Zorra started slugging his nibs around and had him groggy and seeking corner advice from his wrestling trainer. Each in turn was out of the ring and they fought it out roughly along the ropes with the refs keeping a close watch. The Frenchman got in several telling kicks and had Layton in his corner when the trainer blew it up by interfering.

Zorra had won the second and equalizing fall in 16 minutes by faking injury after several slashes. Layton threw him into the ropes but Zorra ducked a slash as he came off them, bounced off the opposite strands and caught the Britisher with a hard kick to the stomach. Then he fell on his winded foe for the fall. He was faster and trickier than his heavier opponent and used his feet to retaliate for judo and half-slashes which Layton specialized in. It was a lively round.

Took Opener

Athol won the opener in 25 minutes after some fine hard mat work by two big, fast and experienced grapplers in swell shape. He took the fall with two rule-drivers — head slammed on floor from a head scissors—after chops, judo and rope roughing to soften Zorra up. Layton was frequently angry at Referee Dunlop's hair-pulling to make him break illegal grips. Zorra was more popular with the crowd and dished up a dandy demonstration of muscular control as well as speed with hands and feet. He seemed to be on powerful springs.

Lou Newman, 243-pound former Masked Marvel, captured an unpopular decision in 20 minutes of the semi-final over 228-pound Timothy Geohagen with a rolling armlock which backfired. Tim had applied it and was rolling his husky rival around for a probable fall when Lou halted him in an upside-down position. He held Tim in that position, with shoulders pinned, just long enough for the one-two-three count. Geohagen had come in from outside the ropes to knock Newman back with a shoulder bang to the midriff. It was a rough tussle with Lou, though unmasked, as villainous as in his hooded days, and having a preference for hair-pulling. Tim smacked him around some, too, and Dunlop yanked off each in turn and handed out frequent warnings at illegal tactics.

Slow But Cute

Dangerous Dan O'Connor, the 241-pound Boston strong boy, lost the prelim to Sonny Kurgis, 226, in 22 minutes via a rolling leglock. Kurgis was popular and served up a better brand of wrestling, while O'Connor was slow but cunning. He threw the book at popular Sonny at times, the latter having him once in a toughwristlock, forcing Dan to seek shelter under the ropes. The latter also pulled the old trick of using the drawstring of his trunks for a bit of fancy neckwear embroidery which was not at all to the liking of the fans, nor to Kurgis. It was a popular win.

New Player May Break Vancouver Jinx Crack Losing Streak After Hypnosis Talk

VANCOUVER, BC, Nov. 7—(CP). — Vancouver Canucks' "new player" in the Pacific Coast Hockey League may get credit for breaking a jinx.

The Canucks Tuesday night broke a 16-game losing streak and edged Victoria Cougars 4-3 for their first win of the season.

The "new player" didn't take the ice. He was Ray Munro, a former newspaper man turned hynotist.

Muhro held court in a locked dressing room with several players telling them "hypnosis will put you in condition of complete relaxation that will force you to play the finest hockey of your lives."

The sports writers weren't sure this happened, and were careful with their comment after the game, most maintaining silence on the hypnotic influence.

And there was no immediate comment from the players or owner Coley Hall.

The sports writers called it a good game, but certainly not a "miracle."

In the only other league game Tuesday night Saskatoon Quakers defeated Tacoma Rockets 6-3.

ORFU Asks $7,500 Guarantee In Final

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP)—The Ontario Rugby Football Union has asked a $7,500 guarantee for its championship club in the eastern Canada football final against the Big Four winners, it was learned Tuesday.

Harold Bailey, ORFU secretary, declined comment. However, it was learned that officials of the Union fear their team may suffer financially in the eastern final. It has to be played in mid-week due to the four-game playoff, the Big Four adopted to bring a champion out of the three teams that tied for first place in its schedule. So they asked for a guarantee.

Usually the eastern final is played on a Saturday, a week before the Grey Cup final. This season it will be on Wednesday, three days before the Nov. 24 classic.

Bruins, Red Wings Play Season's 1st Scoreless Tie

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins' second-place position behind Detroit Red Wings is understandable on the basis of their performances against the National Hockey League champions this season. The best the free-wheeling Wings can do against Lynn Patrick's stalwarts is a split in points. The two got together at Boston Tuesday night and after 60 minutes of cautious hockey, they skated off with a scoreless tie, the first of the season. In their previous 1951-52 encounters, Detroit won 1-0 and dropped a close 3-2 decision to the rejuvenated Bruins.

Tuesday night's game left the Wings with a full two-game cushion over the surprising Bruins who, with 11 points, lead Toronto Maple Leafs by one.

Tuesday night's game, played before a crowd of 7,631 at Boston Garden, was a cosy affair with both teams probably thinking ahead of this week's schedule. There were only four penalties—all to Detroit.

Tough Schedule

The Wings have a tough three games in the next four days against Rangers tonight, Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday and Montreal Canadiens Sunday. The Bruins meet Canadiens Thursday, and Toronto Sunday.

Wings and Bruins took turns in flashing offensive bursts on Tuesday night and the battle evolved into a goalkeeper's duel with sophomore Terry Sawchuk of the Wings collecting his third shutout of the campaign and Sugar Jim Henry his second. Sawchuk now has only 15 goals scored against him in 11 games and Sugar Jim has opened the gate for 16 in 10 games.

Toronto can take over second place tonight if they defeat Chicago Black Hawks at Maple Leaf Gardens. Chicago defeated the Leafs 3-1 and held them to a 1-1 draw in their previous games this season.

Red Raiders Edge Ghosts

OSHAWA, Nov. 7 (CP). — Oshawa Red Raiders edged Cobourg Galloping Ghosts 13-11 on Tuesday to capture the Eastern Conference Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate group championship.

Oshawa now meet Hamilton Panthers for the Ontario Intermediate A title.

The home-and-home total points series will probably be played Nov. 10 and 17, with the fields yet to be decided. The series winner plays at Montreal Nov. 24 in the Eastern Canada Intermediate final against the Quebec Rugby Football Union champions.

Cobourg now goes into the ORFU Intermediate B final against the second-place club in the western group. Its opponent will be determined in a sudden-death playoff Wednesday night at London between Sarnia and Kitchener. The dates for the final also are Nov. 10 and 17, with the fields still to be decided.

Brantford Records First Triumph Subdues Stratford Indians 4-2

By The Canadian Press.

Coaches in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League seem to be getting into a habit of leaving the bench, donning skates and showing the players how to win a game.

Billy Simpell handed the coaching duties over to Jack Shewchuk Tuesday night then picked up an assist to help Brantford Redmen to their first triumph of the season, a 4-2 win over Stratford Indians.

Bobby Bauer, who left the ranks of the retired Saturday night then scored a goal as his Kitchener-Waterloo team snapped a three-game losing streak, sparked the Dutchmen to their second straight win last night by scoring two goals.

His second goal of the night, with less than seven minutes left in the third period, gave Dutchmen a 5-4 win over Owen Sound Mercurys.

Good Average

In the only OHA Junior A action Tuesday night, Ed Plata's goal-a-period clip enabled Toronto St. Michael's to edge Kitchener Greenshirts 3-2. The triumph brought St. Michael's to within one point of third place, shared by Kitchener and Galt.

Joe Ingoldsby tallied the first Shirt goal and Don McCombs tied it up momentarily in the third at 2-2 before Plata scored the winner from a face-off.

Bob Schnurr matched Bauer's two-goal output and Red Mitchell clocked for the other Kitchener tally. Moe Galand, Joe Ripku, Gino Antoniazzi and Buck Forslund were the Owen Sound snipers.

Don Oberholtzer paced the Brantford squad, hitting for a pair of markers while Bob Wrightshell and Holota scored one each. Mickey Roth and Bill Walsh beat goalie Keith Woodall in the Redmen's cage.

Doesn't Like Boos

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7. — (AP)—Star end Val Jansante of the hapless National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers says he's quitting professional football because Pittsburgh fans always boo him. Coach Jimmy Michelosen, trying to get his club back on the main track after losing four, winning one and tying one, declared he was "very surprised by Jansante's announcement.

Ratterman Happy Back With Yanks

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP). — George Ratterman, professional football's nomad, is happy to be back with the New York Yanks of the National Football League and sorry about the reaction of his Montreal venture.

Ratterman reported for his first practice Tuesday and coach Jimmy Phelan greeted him with:

"Okay, go to work."

The Yanks' basic plays are about the same as last year and Ratterman may be able to play against the 49ers in San Francisco next Sunday.

Ratterman, reinstated by commissioner Bert Bell Monday and fined $2,000, will finish the season under his old contract. He also has been signed for the 1952 and 1953 seasons.

"I'm very happy to be back," Ratterman said. "I'm sorry about going to Canada only from the standpoint of some bad publicity. I don't want to be open to criticism as a trouble maker."

The former Notre Dame quarterback admitted that he made the first move in jumping the Yanks to play football with Montreal Alouettes.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

The first scoreless tie of the season in the National Hockey League Tuesday night made no changes in the individual scoring race.

Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach of Montreal still pace the league in points. Richard's nine goals and Lach's 10 assists also remained tops in those departments. Richard also has served the longest time in the penalty box—30 minutes.

Jumping Johnny Gaudes, of St. Boniface, Man., won the Canadian bantamweight boxing title 13 years ago tonight at Toronto by defeating champion Baby Yack in 10 rounds. The Manitoba fighter used a devastating right to score his third victory in a row over the Toronto fighter, the first two having been non-title affairs.

Redmen Enter Lakeshore Loop

PORT HOPE, Nov. 7.—The executive of the Port Hope Redmen Hockey Club has announced their intention of entering a team in the Lakeshore OHA Intermediate "A" League.

Coached by Doug Free, a member of the Belleville senior club last year and a former member of Sudbury Wolves Olympic squad in 1949, the team has held workouts at Oshawa and Cobourg Arenas. With the opening of the Peter Campbell memorial rink today, the team expects to get in several exhibition contests before the league opens. Lakeshore league entries are expected from Cobourg, Bowmanville, Whitby and Lindsay.

A championship contender is expected to be built around such stars as "Red" Laverne in goal, a former member of the Arnprior seniors; "Flash" Hogan, all-star mercantile defenceman from Galt; Basil Robinson, shifty centre from Campbellford, who was sought by the Peterborough Senior Petes; several of last year's junior squad which went to the provincial finals, including Birnie Flesch, Coon Medhurst, Bud Downey, Darcy Campbell, and such stalwarts as Bill Douglas, Jerry Forster, Norm Kelly, Rene Racine, Alex McKeen and Len Ashby. Manager of the team is Steve Jex.

Savoie Takes 12-Round Bout From Cantor

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP) — Hardly anybody will dispute Armand Savoie's right to the Canadian lightweight title after what happened here Tuesday night.

The dark-haired, two-fisted battler from Montreal threw everything but the ringposts and the referee at Toronto's Solly Cantor to take a unanimous 12-round decision. He won from here to there with a devastating demonstration of infighting that had Cantor back-pedalling most of the route.

It was eight rounds to two for Savoie with two even on the Canadian Press score card. And it was the most convincing victory he has scored in four bouts with the Toronto fighter.

There were no knockdowns.

Didn't Get Started

Bothered by Cantor's straight lefts in their previous meetings, Savoie didn't give him a chance to uncork this weapon, the most lethal in his repertoire. The 23-year-old champion who represented Canada in the 1948 Olympics scored repeatedly with short lefts and rights to Cantor's body and face and, at times, appeared arm weary from his trigger-type punching.

Savoie, who learned some tricks of infighting in New York recently, had Cantor's head bobbing with his six-inch chops to the chin and face. He broke occasionally to send over looping lefts and straight rights that rocked the Torontonian.

Cantor took the first and sixth rounds with the 10th and 12th even. The rest belonged to Savoie, most by wide margins.

Cantor's nose spouted blood from a cut on the bridge in the 10th round and six stitches were required to close the wound. Savoie was practically unmarked.

Canadian Legion Hopes To Sell 25,000 Poppies

To make up for a poor year last November, the Canadian Legion, Branch 52, hopes to sell 25,000 poppies and buttonettes and 150 wreaths in their annual poppy day, Saturday.

Albert Mason, poppy committee chairman, recalled today on last year's Poppy Day, Mother Nature provided several inches of snow and rain throughout the day and heavily cut poppy fund receipts.

This year to try to gain back what was lost, Branch 52 has more poppies for sale to the public than last year as well as 150 wreaths which have been bought by the manufacturers and stores.

The sale of poppies actually has a dual purpose, first the making of each poppy helps provide work for veterans of both wars who are in veterans' hospitals in Canada, and second, it provides for the families of soldiers who were killed or later died of injuries.

Financial Help

The money, collected from the sale of poppies in Peterborough, swells Branch 52's welfare fund which gives financial assistance to widows and orphans of veterans as well as to veterans and their dependents who are financially up against it.

Mr. Mason said that he is pleased that the Peterborough Legion this year increased its purchases from Vetcraft from $1,600 to $1,800.

New to the Peterborough people this year will be buttonettes which are small poppies with a maple leaf background. These buttonettes made their appearance last year in Canada but not in Peterborough.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 52 will canvass the schools on Friday while the veterans in the various factories will make the rounds at the same time.

Mr. Mason expects at least 4,000 small poppies and about 2,000 large poppies to be sold in the CGE.

25,000 POPPIES FOR SALE—Throughout the factories and schools Friday the small red poppy will be sold as part of the Branch 52, Canadian Legion's poppy day, Saturday. This year the Legion has 25,000 small poppies and 150 wreaths for sale. George Foster (left) and poppy committee chairman, Albert Mason, inspect one of the large wreaths.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Queen's Combines Bow To Brockville

KINGSTON, Nov. 7.—Brockville Magedomas ran their exhibition victory string to three when they defeated the Queen's University Combines 9-4 Monday night in Harty Arena.

The locals were only one goal in arrears entering the final period but they fell apart in that fast round when the Magedomas scored five well-earned goals.

Fourteen penalties were handed out in the chippy battle and the Combines handicapped themselves by getting 10 of the sentences.

The smooth-working Magedomas took advantage of their opportunities to wear down shorthanded opposition and in the final period they hit their fastest stride of the young season.

One Major Ball Loop By 1960–Prediction

DETROIT, Nov. 7 (AP).—The possibility of only one major baseball league by 1960 is raised today by H. G. Salsinger, sports editor of The Detroit News.

He refers to predictions that there might eventually be four or even six major leagues.

The reason, he says, is that "fewer and fewer plays of big-league calibre are being developed," and "the number has rapidly decreased in the last 15 years."

Other points made by Salsinger are:

Most minor-league clubs lost money this year, and might lose even more in the majors;

Only a few cities outside the present majors could support a big-league team from a population point of view;

There was a sharp drop in attendance last year, and a further decline is likely during the coming season.

D. Martin Leading

D. Martin rolled high single of 286 this week in the Girls' City Bowling League at Duffus', as L. McClelland had top three of 738. The Marines led teams with 3,056 pinnage, including a high single game of 1,168. The blind score of 524 was won by P. Richardson and J. Pope, each hitting 520.

Competition was keen in the lasses' circuit, with Collis having the only whitewash to take Arcos 3-0. The other counts were 2-1 wins for Marines over Cardinals, Sevenaires against Black's, Curtin's over Bassel's, and Aces against Dickson's. A number of neat individual scores marked the evening's play.

Final Tax Settlement Prepared By Louis

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP). — A final tax settlement offer based on Joe Louis' retirement from the ring is being prepared by the former heavyweight champion's accountant, Theodore Jones.

Jones said Tuesday the offer includes "moneys from all of Joe's comeback fights, including the last when he was knocked out by Rocky Marciano."

A week ago, John Jarecki, head of the Chicago internal revenue bureau, said Louis' chances were good of making a settlement with the government on back income taxes if he quit the ring.

Louis reportedly owes about $100,000 in back taxes.

Joe, who is going through with an exhibition tour of Japan, plans to announce his definite future plans when he returns next month said Truman Gibson, Louis' attorney.

Hockey In Arena At Lindsay Banned Till Vote

LINDSAY, Nov. 7 — Hockey games and practices in Lindsay arena have been banned until a vote is taken on the matter.

The ban followed the appearance before town council of the Rev. Harold B. Neal, spokesman for the Lindsay Ministerial Association.

Feeling in Lindsay at present is that there will be no vote this year. When the vote comes, informed sources say, it will not be for the single question of Sunday hockey practices, but rather for the multiple question of Sunday sport.

Defended Arena

One alderman, Vince Cote, chairman of the arena committee, defended the arena management's action in allowing the Sunday practices. But generally, the council disapproved.

Mr. Neal said the Ministerial association, which represents nine Protestant churches in Lindsay, viewed with apprehension anything that interfered with the sanctity of the Sabbath.

Hero worship of hockey players by lads of Sunday school age was another aspect of the situation. The effect of seeing and hearing hockey players practising as children went to Sunday school would be, for the children, confusing at the very least.

He reminded council that in 1950 the ministerial association had met with the arena committee after two hockey practices, and had been assured there would be no more activity at the arena on Sunday.

Association representatives departed from that meeting confident that the matter had been settled for a considerable time.

Ald. Cote recalled the meeting and said that the assurance had been given only for 1950.

Packed Time

Referring to the minister's mention of American hockey teams and others practising on Sunday at the arena, he said that the Springfield Indians had practised because of lack of time before their season opened.

Ald. Howard Williamson said he had played on some championship teams years ago, and it was never found necessary to practise on Sunday. He felt there was no Christian moral influence around a hockey practice.

Hershey Bears Hold Cleveland To Tie

HERSHEY, Pa., Nov. 7 (CP)—Hershey Bears rallied after a bad start and earned a 3-3 tie with the fast-stepping Cleveland Barons in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night. No overtime was played to allow Hershey to catch a train.

The Barons took a 3-0 lead in the opening period on goals by Fred Thurier, Ray Ceresino and Joe Lund.

In the second period goals by Norm Corcoran and Dave Creighton made it 3-2 and in the third frame, with less than three minutes to play, Corcoran got another to tie the score.

12 Inches Of Snow Postpone AHL Game

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7 (AP). — Snow—12 inches of it—caused postponement of Tuesday night's American Hockey League game between St. Louis Flyers and Buffalo Bisons.

The Flyer management however, ordered the St. Louis team to the Arena rink, just in case some fans showed up unaware of the postponement.

Sure enough, some fans put in an appearance—31 of them.

The fans were invited in and the Flyers offered a clinical practice session with coach and Mud Bruneteau explaining various plays to the "crowd."

Bruneteau later split the Flyers into two squads and ordered an exhibition contest. An hour later, the 31 fans went home, happy about the unexpected program.

The postponed game will be played here Feb. 8.

Cancel Races

CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (AP). — A majority of 40 jockeys protested the slickness of the snow-covered track at Sportsman's Park Tuesday and for the first time in Chicago horse-racing history the program was cancelled by weather conditions. Some 2,500 patrons turned up despite the snow storm. The program was cancelled after the second race. Only seven jockeys were willing to continue.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

The Ontario Racing Commission Tuesday at Toronto cleared jockey Gilbert Robillard of implication in bribe offences in connection with "fixed races" at Ontario tracks during the summer.

Robillard was suspended during the Long Branch meeting. At the rehearing of the case, two sittings were held, one in St. Catharines and one in Toronto.

The Commission recently permitted Robillard to ride pending further investigation.

At Providence, RI, jockey Richard F. Lawless, 19, of Brooklyn, NY, was acquitted Tuesday in a race-fixing case. A jury deliberated 12 minutes in reaching its verdict.

Lawless was one of the six persons indicted by a grand jury investigating reports of race fixing at both Lincoln Downs and Narragansett Park racetracks in this State a year ago.

The indictment against Lawless charged that Nov. 7, 1950, he offered jockey Wilfred Hughes money to pull a horse. Hughes has been suspended by Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Hampshire racing boards.

The State's only evidence against the defendant was the unsupported testimony of Hughes, who repudiated his own statements before the grand jury in some details and then changed his testimony on the witness stand.

For the first time in Chicago horse-racing history weather forced cancellation of a daily track program Tuesday. The Sportsman's Park card was called off because of a heavy snowstorm after the second race.

The program, witnessed by 2,500 fans despite the pelting snow, was cancelled when a majority of the 40 jockeys protested the half-mile track was too slippery to ride. Only seven jockeys were willing to continue.

Track officials also cancelled Wednesday's card, but said racing would resume Thursday, weather conditions permitting.

Name Mattingly Winner Of Rugby Trophy

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP) — Bruce Mattingly, six-foot 210-pound snap for Sernia Imperials, was announced today as the 1951 winner of the Imperial Oil trophy as the most valuable player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Harold Bailey, ORFU secretary, announced that Mattingly was the choice of the players of the four senior teams in the Union—the Imperials, Windsor Royals, Toronto Balmy Beach and McMaster University.

Bailey emphasized that it is a players' poll. Each player in the Union votes for two members of his own team and one member of another team. The votes are tabulated by the Union president and the leading choice is the winner.

The 24-year-old native of Sarnia succeeds Carl Galbreath as holder of the trophy, first donated in 1934. Galbreath, Negro halfback who came to the Balmy Beach team last season from the University of North Carolina, now is with United States forces in Korea.

Played Snap

Mattingly has played the snap position with the Imperials for six seasons and is captain of his club. Last year he was named to The Canadian Press ORFU all-star team as an inside wing although he played snap all season.

He learned his football here in this hotbed of the game, starting in public school and later with Sarnia Collegiate Blue Bombers, jumping from the high school team to senior company. Like a lot of linemen, he'd rather be a halfback. But he's been too valuable a performer at the centre of the wingline to shift to the backfield.

Bruce comes of a football family. An older brother, Ray, played on the line with the great Imperial team of the 1930s. A younger brother, Don, played with the Imperials before going west this season to join Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

CBC Act Amendments Include Massey Commission Suggestions

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Amendments to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Act, soon to be discussed by the Commons, include at least two changes recommended by the Massey Commission on Arts and Sciences.

The commission, in a majority report, recommended that the annual income of the CBC for radio broadcasting be set by statute for five years and include g[illegible] by parliament. It also recommended that membership on the CBC board of governors be increased to 11 from nine.

The recommendations are included in legislation now on the Commons order paper. The legislation would provide the CBC with a statutory grant of $4,750,000 for the current fiscal year ending March 31 next and of $6,250,000 for each of the next four fiscal years. A grant of $1,500,000 voted at the last session would bring the grant this year to $6,250,000.

The majority report of the commission said the CBC needs about $14,200,000 a year to operate and to improve services. It did not consider the amount excessive since it would work out to about $1 a year per capita of the Canadian population.

CBC

In 1950-51, the CBC had revenues of $8,301,379 and expenditures of about $9,573,253, leaving a deficit of $1,271,874.

The revenues included $5,571,991 from the annual $2.50 fee on radio receiving sets, $2,463,344 from commercial broadcasting and $266,043 from miscellaneous sources.

The commission recommended that the annual licence fee be retained and that the less desirable commercial programs be replaced by CBC-sponsored programs. It suggested that the difference between the revenues from licences and commercial programs and CBC needs be met through a parliamentary grant. That is the aim of the new legislation.

A CBC official said the change will allow the corporation to plan ahead for at least five years, assured of fairly-constant revenues. It will be engender improvements delayed by lac kof funds and also will enable use of more Canadian talent.

Only For Radio Work

The statutory grants will apply only to radio broadcasting. No provision has been made to finance CBC operations in television when stations start telecasts in Montreal and Toronto.

Another change in the act may give the CBC broader powers to check the use of live talent by privately-owned radio stations. The majority report of the commission was critical of the part played by most private stations in the development of Canadian talent.

The new act will appoint CBC chairman A. D. Dunton, or whoever happens to be chairman of the board, for a 10-year-period. He will be eligible for reappointment at the end of the term. He also will be brought under the CBC's pension fund. The three-year terms of other members of the board will not be changed.

The proposed changes likely will be studied by a 26-man all-party committee to be established to review operations of the CBC.

Canadian Troops War Cry Let 'Em Come, We're Ready

By WILLIAM BOSS.

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN KOREA, Nov. 7 (CP) — Warfare in Korea now is reaching, and occasionally exceeding, the intensity of pitched battles in Europe during the Second World War.

Red artillery recently shot up one battlefield at a rate of 3,000 shells an hour, and another at a rate of two shells a second.

UN troops are prepared to take it in their present line, wait for the enemy to launch his attack, then mow him down.

"If the Chinese were going to do this, they ought to have done it long ago—before we were ready," one high staff officer said today. "We are well prepared."

Troop morale is high.

"Let them come—we're ready," is the commonest expression along the front.

70 Lawyers Get 2-Million Fee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Seventy lawyers were awarded a $2,800,000 fee Tuesday for winning a big lawsuit for the Ute Indians of Colorado and Utah. The case resulted in a $31,938,473 judgment for the Indians for land they said was wrongfully taken from them.

About half the fee awarded by the court of claims will go to Ernest L. Wilkinson, a Washington lawyer and president of Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah. Sixty-nine lawyers will share the rest.

Wilkinson estimated he will have to return about half of his $1,400,000 fee in income taxes.

The fee, believed to be one of the largest ever awarded in American history, covered some 20 years of legal work. In July, 1950, the court of claims awarded the Utes $31,938,473 for 4,500,000 acres of land in Colorado and Utah which the Indians contended was taken away from them in violations of treaties.

Merchants Fear Anti-Price Law To Mean Ruin

OTTAWA, Nov. 7—(CP)—Justise Minister Garson told the Commons Tuesday that many independent retail merchants across Canada fear they might be put out of business by legislation prohibiting manufacturers to fix the retail prices of their products.

That, he said, was one of the reasons why the government had decided to establish a Senate-Commons committee to study a proposal that retail price-fixing by manufacturers be abolished.

Mr. Garson spoke before adoption of a resolution providing for the appointment of 26 members from the Commons and 12 from the Senate to the joint committee. Some CCF members, indicating their opposition, called "on division" when the resolution passed, but did not ask for a formal vote.

A similar resolution now must be adopted in the Senate.

Replying to opposition charges that the government has backed down from its original position, Mr. Garson said the government had decided to form a committee long before the Canadian Chamber of Commerce announced opposition to price-fixing legislation.

Reviews Events

Reviewing events that led to the government's decision he said that a year ago a Commission was established to consider amendments to the Combines Investigation Act. That Commission, headed by Mr. Justice J. H. MacQuarrie of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, had recommended abolition of resale price maintenance by manufacturers.

The government had accepted that recommendation and in the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the fall session Oct. 9 had announced that it would introduce anti-price-fixing legislation.

Once that announcement was made, the government received protests from various organizations and independent retail merchants across the country. The government felt that the legislation would be more effective if the views of all interested parties first were heard.

The government hoped the committee would work fast to permit passage at this session of any legislation recommended following a study of the issue.

Not Backing Down

The government was not backing down from its original position. It was offering an opportunity to have the price-fixing issue aired in public.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said his party had wanted a complete review of the Combines Investigation Act. Since it could not obtain that, it would support the partial inquiry as contained in the resolution.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said the government indicated a "lack of courage" in establishing a committee. It had made up its mind to bring in legislation against retail price-fixing and suddenly changed its mind. It was in "full retreat" before the pressure of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Prepare Liner

QUEBEC, Nov. 7 (CP)—Workmen Tuesday boarded the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland to ready the three-cabin suite to be used by Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip on their voyage home after their Canadian tour. The 26,300-ton passenger ship arrived Tuesday from Liverpool, and will leave Friday night for Portugal Bay, Nfld., where the Royal couple will embark for the United Kingdom Nov. 12.

Revenues Drop

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP)—The current edition of Canadian Cigar and Tobacco journal says revenue from cigarettes dropped 21 per cent between May and September. The trade magazine says the increase is the result of a drop in consumption brought about by increased excise taxes. However, officials of Montreal tobacco companies said the decrease in revenue resulted from "an adjustment in inventories" brought about by lower production.

To Make Policy Speech

PARIS, Nov. 7 (CP)—Canada's External Affairs Minister, L. B. Pearson, is expected to make a policy speech early in the general debate at the United Nations sixth general assembly, which opened Tuesday. Pearson, who heads Canada's 11-member delegation, is expected to speak after delegates from Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union have spoken.

CBC Appointments

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP)—The CBC Tuesday night announced the forthcoming appointment of Charles R. Delafield, of Montreal, as supervisor of its international service. Arthur L. Pidgeon, of Montreal, becomes assistant supervisor.

Takes Irish Baby

LONDON, Nov. 7—(AP)—Jane Russell, the Hollywood film star who has been touring Europe in search of a baby she can adopt, flew home Tuesday night with a 15-month-old Irish boy brought to the airport by his sobbing mother. Miss Russell took the baby and broke into tears.

Housing Loans For Farmers Election Promise By Frost

By The Canadian Press

Premier Frost said Tuesday night that return of his government will mean housing loans for Ontario farmers and for persons who live in small communities. In a Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign address in London, he announced a plan to make loans available in areas where National Housing Act loans are not ordinarily granted. Under the same plan, farmers' sons would be enabled to establish new farms.

Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, said in Bruce Mines that, if he is elected, he will bring in a provincial hospital share plan within a year or resign as premier at the end of that time. Later, in Espanola, he pledged his party to abolish the Ontario Lands Tax. CCF leader E. B. Jolliffe said in Ottawa that the Frost administration is so "bankrupt of talent" that the Premier himself has to administer all but one or two departments.

Mr. Frost said his housing plan is aimed primarily at helping farmers who wish to build houses in villages or who desire to improve their present homes or build separate houses on their farms for their children.

Like Urban Plan

It would make it possible for rural dwellers to build homes "upon terms similar to those who now are building in the urban communities." Its administration would be handled by a new Crown corporation to be known as the Ontario Farm and Rural Home Improvement Corporation.

"It will have the effect of bettering farm and village housing. It will fill a real need and will be another substantial step in the progress we have been making in rural betterment."

In a speech earlier in the day at Strathroy, Mr. Frost denied a CCF claim that his government has built up large, hidden supplies. He said nearly all the capital works during the last year under Progressive Conservative administration have been paid for out of revenues and taxpayers have been saved the cost of paying interest on large loans.

Mr. Frost also said he was "surprised and amazed" to find himself credited with saying in connection with the gasoline tax that Ontario should take American tourists for every cent they have. Mr. Thomson had said Toronto newspapers attributed the statement to Mr. Frost.

"What I said in Bracebridge (last Saturday) and have repeated elsewhere is that, if we lower the gasoline tax, we lower the contribution the 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 (visiting) cars pay for the use of our roads and the advantages we give them by reason of our great road system," the Premier said Tuesday. "If our visitors pay less, we have to pay more to keep up the same program."

Hospital Care Necessity

Mr. Thomson said his hospital care project is "a necessity" for the province. He promised to pay a milk subsidy and to settle milk price difficulties "so fast it will make them dizzy." He pledged removal of the lands tax, which he called a "nuisance tax" that should be removed if settlers are to be encouraged to find homes in the north.

British War Ace Visits Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—One of Britain's toughest and most colorful war aces will arrive in Canada today for a week's tour of Canadian military establishments.

He is Air Marshal Sir Basil E. Embry, who, at 49, heads the RAF fighter command. During the Second World War he probably did as much to harass the enemy as any other British pilot. His specialty was raiding Gestapo headquarters.

He was shot down four times, four times made prisoner, and four times escaped.

The first three days of his tour will be spent in Montreal visiting RCAF establishments and Canada's big aircraft plant, Canadair.

On Saturday he will arrive in Ottawa for a two-day visit to the capital. Sir Basil will be in Kingston to lecture to the Royal Military College on Nov. 13 and will leave from there for Toronto to visit the RCAF staff college.

Creen Algae Kills Eight Cattle

Worst This Year Says Veterinary In Bobcaygeon

The epidemic of cattle poisoning due to the presence of algae in the Kawarthas this year is the most serious it has ever been is the opinion of veterinary Dr. A. F. McKinnon of Bobcaygeon. A week ago Monday he and Dr. R. W. Ford of Peterborough were called to examine the carcasses of eight animals at a ranch bordering Buckhorn Lake, south-east of Lakehurst. Four cattle each were owned by Wellie Pearson of Buckhorn and Bruce Fitzgerald of Selwyn.

$2,000 Loss

Their loss was estimated at approximately $2,000. One beast was still living on the arrival of the veterinarians and they estimated that the remaining seven cattle had been dead for about two days.

Two months ago Dr. McKinnon was called to examine 13 cattle that were ill at a ranch near Tate's Bay on Nogies Creek. Five of these beasts died. Joint owners suffering loss of these animals were Richard Goodhand, Gordon Adams, Frank Nicholls, George Martin and Archie Flatt, all of Harvey township.

Four At Cameron

Another case on the west side of Sturgeon Lake between Lindsay and Fenelon Falls at Cameron involved four animals. One of them died.

In some cases the animal doctors felt that cattle died from eating waterside forage that had had algae washed on it. The majority died from drinking contaminated water that was polluted with algae in shallow bays where warm weather set up a poisonous fermentation action.

Parking Regulations

The attention of all motorists is called at this time of year to the fact that the City of Peterborough has in its traffic bylaw regulations prohibiting motor cars and other vehicles to be parked overnight on the city streets. Under these provisions no vehicle shall be permitted to park or stand on a city street for longer than six consecutive hours.

The strict enforcement of this provision by the Police will be made necessary with the first snow fall, in order that city workmen may proceed with their work of removing snow from the streets.

Snow, Rain Engulfs City, Stalls Traffic

A slippery mixture of snow, rain and ice had tow trucks busy in the city and immediate district this morning. Garage operators estimated they had answered 250 calls, and more were coming in. The temperature was higher this morning (25 above) but it didn't gladden the hearts of city motorists.

They fought their way through slush-covered driveways, and searched, sometimes vainly, for downtown parking spots.

Lowest temperature during the night was 25 above, and by 9 am the mercury had moved up to 32 degrees, just freezing. Two-and-a-quarter inches of snow fell during the night, as well as some hail and freezing rain.

Snow was expected to fall all day and part of this evening, creating a worse traffic problem. Many township roads are completely closed to traffic by drifts and deep slush.

Unless weather clears within the next 24 hours, deer hunters, slogging it through slush to the north country, will have a moist time getting their deer.

Garagemen reported as many as 50 calls to a single garage; one said his truck had already made 20 calls, 20 had been refused, and 10 were waiting. Others also reported that they were booking ahead. They expected to be busy for the rest of the morning.

Streets in the southwest end of the city hadn't seen a sign of a snow plow up to 10 am today.

Among them were Howden Ave., King George, Gillespie and McKellar Sts.

Some blocks of Monaghan Road indicated that a sidewalk plow had been along that way. Edison Ave. had easy walking in the path of a plow that also probably passed along Braidwood Ave.

Streets in a large area of that new responsibility of the city, assumed from North Monaghan, offered only heavy going under foot for citizens who had to be out early. That meant, too, those who were starting out as late at 10 o'clock.

Buses broke their own roads this morning, and the drivers going off the first shift reported sore muscles from their struggle with the heavy road conditions.

Children going to Prince of Wales School either took to the road and its traffic threat, or slugged through the snow along the west side CGE fence where no sidewalk plow had been seen.

Plows were out as early as 2.30 am, and some had not finished their routes by 10 o'clock. City Engineer E. A. Chalmers estimated it took 11 hours for a truck-plow to finish its route. Paths cleared early were partly filled up again when people started to work.

Cab companies reported that by 9 am they had fallen slightly behind in their orders, but they expected to catch up by noon. Main street driving was good, but side streets were tough navigating.

Rural hydro and Bell Telephone lines were not interrupted, except for the Belleville to Bancroft line. Cause of the trouble was not known.

No Shooting Allowed In 4 Townships

The six-day deer shooting season, Nov. 12 to 17, south of Highway 7 has been amended in two district sections according to a lands and forests bulletin.

There will be no shooting for deer in the townships of Cartwright, Clarke and Hope in Durham County and in the township of South Monaghan in Northumberland County.

A preliminary survey of waters of the Trent district by department biologists has been started during the year. Some of the problems studied are poor fishing, over-abundance of sub-legal fish, disappearance of introduced hatchery fish and excess populations of coarse and forage fish.

At the same time the waters were catalogued for pollution, success of natural spawning, and water levels for the establishment of sound restocking management plans for various waters.

Included in the survey in Peterborough County were Indian River, Big Mountain Lake, Quarry Pond, Lanes, McGinnis and Sucker Lakes. In Victoria County investigations were made in Pigeon Creek (above Foir's Mill) and Raven Lake. The headwaters of Salt Creek in Northumberland and Baxter Creek in Cavan were also studied. The largest part of the work was done in Haliburton County where 24 waterways were classified.

Fell Against Car Youngster Hurt

Five-year-old George Bloom, 960 Western Ave., was slightly injured about 4:30 Tuesday afternoon when struck by a car on Monaghan Rd., at Brown St.

Jesse E. C. Kaiser, of Victoria St., West Lorne, Ontario, told police he was driving north on Monaghan Rd., when the boy ran off the curb, tripped over a stick he was carrying and fell into the side of his car.

The boy's injuries were facial cuts and bruises and a bruised leg. Dr. Bob Young attended the boy at his home where he was taken by Mr. Kaiser.

Constable Ed Patterson investigated.

Normal Students Teaching In Rural Schools

In country schools from Kingston to the fringe of Western Ontario, from the lakeshore to Bancroft and Haliburton, Peterborough Normal School students this week are making their debuts before a rural school class.

This experience comes a month later this year than in previous years due to a change in the teachers-to-be program this term which calls for more continuous weeks of teaching in both rural and urban schools.

In previous years the Normal students usually had one, or possibly three, half-hour classes in the rural schools before they taught their first full week, usually about Christmas.

In City Schools

This year the orientation period was conducted only in the three Peterborough public schools, Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary and Prince of Wales schools, during October. Previously this period was spread over the entire term and was conducted in both the urban and rural schools.

The change in teaching time was made for two reasons. The authorities felt that with more continuous weeks of teaching on both types of schools, the students would have a better chance of learning the conditions for teaching in both. Then the half-hour weekly lessons could be eliminated, allowing the teachers-to-be to spend more time at the Normal School.

The students still have the same amount of time teaching for there will be three weeks of rural teaching and five weeks of urban teaching instead of two weeks of each.

This week is the first week of rural teaching and the first week of continuous teaching for the teachers-to-be. The other weeks will be spread out over the remainder of the term.

Teach In Pairs

For this week, where possible, the Normal students have been placed in pairs nearest their homes. They observed for the first day while the regular teachers taught, but then Tuesday took over the classrooms, alternating the lessons.

For example, at the Woodview school, Highway 7, on Tuesday Normal students, John Lynch and William Hayes, both of Peterborough, were trying their hand at teaching the various grades the three R's while the regular teacher, Ross Fleming, Madoc, kept the activities running along smoothly.

The three teachers divided the afternoon periods evenly. Before recess Mr. Lynch taught a lesson on science to grades six and seven while Mr. Hayes prepared his lesson for after recess. Children in the other classes were kept busy by Mr. Fleming.

During this week in the rural schools, the teachers-to-be whether in rural schools near Peterborough or other places in the district are learning all about rural schools, low temperatures, wood stoves, snow to shovel, long walks through deep, wet snow, and boisterous children full of mischief. But when the decision comes at the close of the term, the majority will choose the rural schools for a start.

English Mayor To Sail Friday

Mayor G. R. Chamberlain and party are leaving on the noon CPR train at 11:40 am Thursday for Montreal and are sailing Friday for their homes in Peterborough, England.

His Worship arrived here Thursday evening, Oct. 25 at the request of the council to perform the official act opening the city hall. He and Ald. E. V. Martin were accompanied by their wives.

City Clerk Outram said today there would be a little farewell tea for them in the Empress Hotel parlor tonight at 9 o'clock. Members and their wives are attending.

New Store Block To Be Built On George St.

Excavation for a four-store, two-storey business block on the west side of George St., between King and Sherbrooke Streets, was delayed this week by winter moving up into the forepart of November about a month or more ahead of its usual schedule.

This project has been planned by Dit Clapper and Dave Wilson of Clapper Sport Goods, and D. E. Foster of Foster's Grill. The contract has been let to Walter Mortlock, who intended to break ground this week on the last vacant property in that block.

Dimensions of the projected building are: 84 feet frontage by a depth of 94 feet; and of the lot. 84½ ft. by 135 ft. 10 inches.

Steel had been bought previously for the front part of the building. Elsewhere laminated timber will be used. Irwin, Godson Ltd. have been using part of the property for parking of their Ford cars and trucks.

Two of the four stores will be available for tenancy, and the second storey will be designed for office accommodation.

The property is immediately south of the Cherney building at the corner of George and King Streets.

Hunter Shoots Charging Moose

Lands and forests office in Lindsay gets all sorts of reports these busy deer-hunting days. Today came a call from a hunter who reported having killed a moose, in self defense, nine miles south of Tory Hill around Yarmouth Lake in Anstruther township. Game wardens are already on their way to the spot by jeep to bring out the carcass.

The hunter reported that the bull moose attacked him. The first shot into the ground to scare the enraged beast was not enough. A second shot brought the big fellow down.

Freeze-Up

Forestry officials say that this sudden change of weather will freeze in many hunters who have water to cross. Because they have to come back to their starting points by overland; they will leave their deer carcasses in the bush. Experts say that hunters press for a later hunting season in order to keep their meat in good condition. The situation kicks back, they say, and causes more waste than warm weather.

TOOK OFF IN SNOW

Bert McLeod and Cecil Hayes took off this morning for Toronto to see the first of the Argos-Hamilton play-offs for the final round of the Big Four football title. It was an unusual outing for both of them, and they refused to be daunted by the weather.

PARKING ON STREETS

Chief Constable John Thompson warned today that police are putting parking tickets on cars that are left on the street overnight. All night parking is forbidden by a bylaw which limits parking to six hours on city streets at any time. Snow removal operations are being hampered by car owners who leave their cars in front of their homes all night, the chief said.

2 Cars Out Of Control On Ice Patch, Collide

Two cars went out of control on Parkhill Rd., Tuesday noon and collided, causing minor damage to both vehicles.

O. M. Steer, 4 Inverlea St., told police he was driving east on Parkhill Rd., just west of Bethune St., when he struck an icy strip of pavement and his car went out of control.

Miss Loretta M. Beaudin, RR'9, Parkhill Rd., who was behind the Steer car said she applied her brakes to avoid a collision but she said her car also went out of control on the slippery street and the two cars collided.

Damage to both cars was estimated at $45.

Constable William G. Scott investigated.

Mrs. Lillian Thompson Faces Murder Trial In Shooting Of Husband

Jury Excluded While Dr. Herbert Young Tells Of Statement Given By Accused Shortly After Shooting

The murder trial of Mrs. Lillian Thompson, 35, began shortly after 10 am today in the Peterborough county court house. She is charged with shooting her husband, Roy, a scrap metal dealer and veteran of the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, after an argument on August 25 in their Howden Ave. home. Only one Crown witness was called before court recessed for lunch. He was Coroner Dr. Herbert Young who examined Thompson and questioned his wife shortly after the shooting.

The jury was excluded while he gave evidence of statements Mrs. Thompson had made after he questioned her.

Date Missing

A missing date on the indictment started a 50-minute argument.

When court opened Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, KC, applied to Justice W. F. Spence for permission to amend the indictment, charging Mrs. Thompson with murder.

The indictment presented by the Crown specified murder as the offence but gave no date. And Mr. Bradshaw asked that the date, August 25, be included.

This application was strongly opposed by T. J. Carley, KC, defence counsel. He argued for 45 minutes that the indictment had already been presented to the grand jury and they had returned a "true" bill. The insertion of the amending date at this stage would be a change of "substance" in the indictment, not one of "form".

Avoid Retrial

Mr. Carley said Mrs. Thompson was anxious to get on with the trial, but as her solicitor he felt duty bound to protect her from the possibility of a retrial.

He argued that this might happen if the case went on. Though the Crown Attorney nominally represents the Attorney-General and therefore would be responsible for applying for the amendment in the date, he might later feel that trial was invalid and order another. If Mrs. Thompson had been freed on a verdict of "not guilty" this would once more subject her to a harrowing experience and expense.

"Time is an element of substance in the Code," he said.

Mr. Bradshaw said he could agree with most of Mr. Carley's argument, but in this particular case he felt that the time of the alleged offence was not a matter of substance.

Mr. Justice Spence, presiding in the second week of the Criminal Assizes, said Mrs. Thompson

Quebec Session May Be Last Before Election

QUEBEC, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Quebec's legislature starts today what is expected to be its last session before provincial general elections.

Probably the session, after adjournment for Christmas and New Year's holidays, will wind up its business in February.

The present legislature is Quebec's 23rd since Confederation, and the session will be the fourth since voters returned the government of Premier Duplessis to power in a sweeping 1948 victory.

The Union Nationale Government's plans are a closely kept secret.

Unofficial guessing is about dates from May, when Premier Duplessis celebrates the 29th anniversary of his election as a private member, until late summer.

More than two dozen government bills will be listed on the agenda of the legislative assembly when it meets this afternoon.

Priority will be given to pensions measures — one by which Quebec will share in federal-provincial plan for old-age pensions at 65. Another will increase pensions for the blind.

The throne speech debate will be put off until after the federal-provincial pensions bill is approved.

Premier Duplessis has indicated that the Health Department will be given power to regulate the sale of horse meat, which has been put on sale in many parts of the province because of high beef prices.

Noble Wedding

LUXEMBOURG CITY, Nov. 7—(Reuters)— Princess Marie-Gabrielle of Luxembourg and Count Knud Holstein-Ledreborg, 32, a Danish nobleman, were married Tuesday in the Luxembourg village church of Colmarberg. The reigning Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg, the bride's mother, led the wedding procession of 21 princely couples.

England Forces Draw In Match

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 7—(Reuters) — Defying the Indian attack for two days, England today forced a draw in the first cricket test match.

A courageous innings of 138 not out by Alan Watkins, ably supported by Donald Carr (76) in a fourth-wicket stand of 158, helped England to score 368 for six.

Batting stubbornly for 11 hours, England turned a first-innnings deficit of 215 runs into a lead of 153 with four wickets in hand. They had started the final day's play 13 runs behind with seven wickets in hand — a situation which demanded a determined effort.

Watkins and Carr batted with great restraint and concentration and, mastering the bowling, gradually improved England's position.

This stubborn partnership which began when Carr joined Watkins before tea Tuesday, was finally broken after five hours and five minutes when Carr edged a leg-break to first slip.

But England played out time with the loss of only two more wickets.

Final scores: England 203 and 368 for six; India 418 for six declared.

Don't Believe Cost-of-Living Index Inaccurate

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP) — A Bureau of Statistics spokesman said Tuesday that there appears to be nothing in the statement by two labor unions to substantiate their claims that the bureau's cost-of-living index is inaccurate.

The spokesman was commenting on a statement made in Toronto Sunday by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers of America and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America.

The unions, ejected from the Canadian Congress of Labor because of Communist leadership, claimed that the index is inaccurate and that every point it is too low means a loss of $61,500,000 a year in real earnings of Canadian workers.

They said the index was 66 points lower than it should have been at Sept. 1 this year—166.5 instead of 210.4 and that deficiencies in the DBS food, clothing and housing index account for about 60 per cent of the understatement. Failure to include the impact of taxation accounted for another 30 per cent.

The bureau spokesman said the unions' preliminary statement did not show how the unions arrived at their conclusion. In a statement sent to the bureau the unions said detailed information on their claims would be available in about three weeks.

Until that information was received and studied, said the spokesman, the bureau could form no conclusion as to whether the unions' allegations were valid.

WHITE HOUSE TALK — President Truman and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower confer in the White House, as Eisenhower reported to the President for two days of conference.

Need Inventory-Taking Before Arms Can Be Speeded

By ELTON C. FAY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP).—New conferences by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in Europe and some inventory-taking by the western European countries will be needed before the United States is ready to translate its broad assurance of a speed-up in arms aid into specific promises.

In his Washington talks with White House, military and defence-production officials, informed sources said today, Eisenhower was assured that the flow of arms to the western European forces will be increased.

But he also was reported to have been told that he should hold an early meeting with W. Averell Harriman, head of the Mutual Security Agency, who left Washington for Paris last week. Moreover, it was noted that the defence production administrator, Manly Fleischmann, planned to start for Europe today to talk with defence chiefs of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries in Paris and London.

From the findings by Harriman and Fleischmann and the reports by Eisenhower, pieces of the problem can be fitted together—how much each NATO member now has in the way of military equipment, how much more it can produce and how fast.

Only then can the US be in a position to make specific promises on tonnages and delivery timetables to help get up to 30 divisions fully armed as quickly as possible.

Need Greater Production

Eisenhower's departure coincided with expressions from official quarters that greater production effort is needed. President Truman spoke of "much trouble." Anna Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defence, told reporters: "The formula of guns and butter is out. It is guns first—then butter, if possible."

Senator Lyndon Johnson (Dem. Tex.), head of an armed services sub-committee watchdogging the mobilization program, said deliveries to NATO forces are substantially behind schedule.

Before he came to Washington, Eisenhower was described as concerned over what seemed to him a too-small percentage in the division of equipment between continental US forces and the western European armies and air forces.

Eisenhower said NATO in Europe already is down to the "sweaty work" on budgets — "What are they producing? Can they do more?"

This meant that in getting ready for equipping another 12 or 15 divisions, the European NATO members must decide how much more of staple things they can produce themselves, then what other weapons and supplies would have to come from outside.

What's The World Coming To

Italian Grain Being Given Hotfoot Now

By LUCIANO FERRARI

MILAN, Nov. 7—(AP)—They're doing some pretty shocking things this year in Italian agriculture.

Even the seed is getting the hot-foot.

It's done in a modern laboratory at Gossolengo, near here, where grain is shocked by electricity to produce a bigg r yield.

It's sponsors say the system is working—with wheat yields increased 10 to 20 per cent and other grains showing improvement.

The shock treatments have been under way for a year in laboratories of a new "international company for electric treatment of seed" under the presidency of Count Alessandro Angulssola d'Altoe of Milan.

The company is working on a system invented by Professor Bindo Riccioni, a Rome scientist.

Riccioni doesn't claim the idea is new. As far back as 1746 a French student named Maimbrai "shocked" a myrtle tree. He claimed it made the tree bloom prematurely.

Started In 1932

Riccioni started his tests in 1932. Two years and 3,250 experiments later he began to get results.

Describing these at the first international congress of radio-electric-biology in Venice, he contended there is an essential electrict force inherent within the seed itself. His system is to create two conflicting electric fields of energy which stimulate and modify the inherent electricity in the seed.

Now, 4,000 experiments later, he has extended his tests to wheat, corn, rice, oats and rye.

He claims these results:

1. His electrically jolted grain grows a higher number of ears, a greater number of grains per ear, and larger grains;

2. The shocked seeds show greater resistance against adverse climates and some grain diseases, such as rust.

No Crop Rotation

He claims increases of 10 to 25 per cent in the crop yield of electric-shocked wheat, without the assistance of crop rotation, increased fertilization or other improvements in cultivation.

Count Anguissola says that if these same increases can be maintained by shock treatment of all wheat planted in Italy, the country could become self-supporting in wheat—now one of its major basic food shortages. Italy, he points out, now grows 7,000,000 tons of wheat a year, and needs 8,000,000.

In the shock laboratory the grain is held in large vats from which it is sucked by air pressure into big glass containers. An electric switchboard, 10 by 20 feet, contains the controls and dials by which the electric fields are regulated. Air and steam jets keep the wheat circulating at fixed temperature.

Trial Delayed By Evidence

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP) — An RCAF spokesman said Tuesday the court martial of Aircraftman John Zerk was delayed because of the difficulties of assembling necessary evidence due to great distances involved and to his arrest by United States authorities.

He was commenting on a Calgary report that Mr. Justice W. G. Egbert of the Alberta Supreme Court had criticized the RCAF for delaying Zerk's court martial.

Zerk, a former farmer at Balzac, Alta., who had been posted to No. 25 air material base, RCAF, Currie Barracks, Calgary, is accused of desertion.

Mr. Justice Egbert said he was not satisfied the air force had made a determined effort to bring Zerk to trial.

The RCAF official said in a statement that Zerk was posted from Trenton to Calgary in May but never reported. He was later listed as a deserter and on July 24 was picked up by US military police in Los Angeles who handed him over to US immigration authorities. The RCAF was notified Sept. 13 and Zerk was turned over to the Canadian army at Windsor, Sept. 13, arriving in Calgary Sept. 27.

Arrangements for a Nov. 13 court martial were completed Oct. 29, said an RCAF official.

PARK FALLS, Wis., Nov. 7 (AP)—Twenty-two cars of a 62-car ore and pulpwood train were derailed near here Tuesday on the Soo line tracks. No one was injured by torn track for a quarter of a mile halted all trains between here and Ashland.

BC Skipper Builds Huge Herring Packer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. Charlie Clarke has launched for service on the British Columbia coast what he believes is the largest herring packer in the world.

The Veta C. can turn to other duties when herring are out of season. Most of the year she will serve on northern runs as combined freighter and towboat. Her hold can take 800 tons of freight and she can pull two barges with an additional 800 tons.

As a deep-sea tug she can put her 1800-foot steel towline to work on anything up to the largest Davis rafts afloat.

This is the latest experiment of Capt. Clarke who long has been noted for his ingenuity. In 1929 he used the first wire purse line for seining. A year later he used the first power bailer; and still later he employer the electronic echo-sounder to find schools of fish.

Good-Will Tour

GLASGOW, Scotland, Nov. 7—(Reuters) —Representative Peter Mack of the United States piloted his "Friendship Flame" into Renfrew airport Tuesday night on a globe-circling good-will tour. The 35-year-old former naval pilot plans to visit 40 cities.

Recommend Divorce

CAMDEN, NJ, Nov. 7 (AP) —A superior court master Tuesday recommended a divorce for Mrs. Theresa Ingenito from her husband, Ernest, who killed five of her relatives. Ingenito, 27, is serving a life term for murdering his mother-in-law last November. The court ruled that Ingenito's violence was "quite out of proportion to the offence." Ingenito contended he was provoked into the acts by his wife's refusal to let him see the children.

End Vienna Session

VIENNA, Nov. 7 (AP) — The Communist-led World Peace Council ended its Vienna session early today with unanimous adoption of nine resolutions which it said were aimed at restoration and maintenance of peace. It also adopted an appeal to the United Nations' General Assembly asking admission of the Chinese Communist government into the U.N., unification of Germany, conclusion of a Korean armistice, and the end of foreign interference and "disguised military occupation" in the Middle East and North Africa.

Alberta Mayor Not Anxious Town Grow

EDSON, Alta. — (CP) — Mayor W. H. Kankewitt waved his arm expansively over his prosperous town.

"We're not a boom town like Edmonton," he said. "I hope we never will be."

But for all that Edson, 1,951 in population by this year's census estimate, may well turn out to be.

Half way between Edmonton and Jasper, Alta., this steadily-growing town is the only sizable settlement between those better-known places. It has added almost half to its population in 10 years—a growth inspired by no single factor.

Now industrial expansion seems likely to double Edson's population within a few years.

Where To Find Money

Where will we find the money to expand our services as the town grows?" Mayor Kankewitt asks.

Edson, soon after the turn of the century, was a staging point on the old Grande Prairie Trail from the American border to the Peace River country. The railway put it on a permanent footing.

But Edson retains its frontier flavor. Mackinaws, ski caps and Cowichan Indian sweaters or normal garb in winter. Talk of the two activities which keep Edson alice — the Canadian National Railways and the lumbering industry——is everywhere.

Even the town police pass by the drunks unless they annoy other people.

Bright Prospects

That casual approach to life may not last long. Edson district may soon have:

1. A multi-million-dollar wood pulp plant at Yates, seven miles to the northeast.

2. A reopened cement plant about 14 miles away.

3. A brick-making industry, based on nearby clay deposits which could end Medicine Hat's Alberta monopoly on buff-colored bricks.

Best estimate is that these three firms, if present plans go through, will employ at least 500 persons. All are so close that most workers could chose to live in Edson. With wives and families, they might double Edson's population within five years.

What Headaches!

"Just imagine the headaches that would bring," says Mayor Kankewitt, retired former owner of an Edson department store.

"I hope the expansion dosen't happen all at once, as it did in Edmonton. Town finances never would keep pace.

"Right now we're on top of the world. The city's power plant gives us the revenue we need to pay for our new sewer system and water extension. But where would we get the money—without crippling ourselves—to give public services to twice our present population?

"So far our progress has been steady. The town supports only three unemployables. There's work for everyone.

Railway Town

Edson, 100-odd miles west of Edmonton is mainly a railway town, divisional point on the CNR. Logging is its next industry. Only in recent years has the surrounding grey-top soil been found ideal for some forms of agriculture, particularly growing seed potatoes.

The town spreads northward from the railway yards some 14 blocks. Its low business premises mostly skirt a street ending at the railway station—hopefully numbered 50th street though the town extends less than a dozen blocks each side. In the last year new building has been mostly houses.

Edson serves a trading area of 3,000 population including the coal branch to the southwest where much of Alberta's coal production centres. It lies on the main Edmonton-to-Jasper Highway, which would be on the Yellowhead route to the Pacific coast if the trans-Canada highway should be routed by the north.

"That's where we'd like to be—on the trans-Canada highway," says Mayor Kankewitt, first elected mayor only 3½ years after he arrived in Edson. "But what headaches it would cause us."

Elizabeth's Visit To Canada Puts Extra Load On Margaret

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON, Nov. 7—(AP)—The absence abroad of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh has meant extra work for 21-year-old Princess Margaret.

No doubt her sister's return will be a happy day for the slim, vivacious younger Princess. It will lighten considerably the heavy burden of official engagements now resting on her shoulders.

As one of the five councillors of state, appointed by the King to act for him during his illness, she ranks second only to the Queen while Princess Elizabeth is away.

This entails the reading and countersigning of state documents passed by the Queen, the receiving of official visitors and other daily duties.

The Princess, it is said, takes her part of "stand-in" pretty seriously. She insists on reading each of the long documents she receives, despite their formidable phraseology. If she is in doubt of their meaning she does not hesitate to ask the department concerned.

Not Full Extent

The Princess sets aside two hours for her "papers." And that isn't the full extent of her office work. With the help of only one Lady-in-Waiting, Jenifer Bevan, she must also attend to extensive official and private correspondence.

"I told Elizabeth not to worry, that we'd look after everything until she returned," the Princess is said to have told a friend. "But I also told her I'd be counting the days until she gets home again."

The extra duties have not dimmed the spontaneous charm and love of fun of Britain's No. 1 bachelor girl. She still finds time and energy to indulge her favorite pastime, dancing.

After the recent Royal Variety Show Oct. 29, Margaret headed for the Cafe de Paris to witness Noel Coward's cabaret debut, and stayed long after midnight. The party included Prince Nicholas of Yugoslavia and a favorite escort-of-the-moment, Billy Wallace.

The Princess wore an ivory satin gown with narrow shoulder straps, embroidered in mother-of-pearl pailletes, and a white fox-cape. Next night, in a striking black cocktail dress trimmed with blue sequins and topped by a pale pink coat, she attended "Penny Plain," an intimate review starring Joyce Grenfell and Elizabeth Welch.

Writer Discovers Jungle Remedy For City Jitters

By CYNTHIA LOWRY.

NEW YORK — (AP).— Maybe you've got the civilization jitters. For such as you, Miss Helen Blanchard Post prescribes a visit to Brazil's Matto Grosso jungle.

Miss Post contends it did her a world of good. Recently returned to Manhattan's air-conditioning and $5 steak dinners after a six-month joust with jaguars, alligators, man-eating fish, bird spiders and other assorted Brazilian fauna.

Miss Post's first encounter with the primitive Matto Grosso came some 12 years ago when she accompanied a young Philadelphia friend to the jungle for a hunting trip led by Sasha Siemel, veteran hunter and guide in the sparsely populated Brazilian state. Shortly afterwards her young friend married Siemel and since has made a home for her husband and children at the edge of a Brazilian river infested with alligators and bloodthirsty fish.

Lengthy Trip

Last February Miss Post boarded a freighter for a lengthy visit with her friends. Even getting to the Siemel's home was a major project. From Saq Paulo she travelled on a century-old railroad—burning rosewood and mahogany—to the end of the line and proceeded by horseback through the dense jungle.

She lived in an open shelter thatched with palm leaves, and slept on an army cot protected by a double thickness of mosquito netting.

"Animals would wander in and out during the night," she said calmly. "But they would never approach the bed. Even the jaguars would leave you alone because they could not tell where your head was—and were afraid to attack."

Her major discomfort came from the stings of insects. She carefully shook out and inspected her clothing before donning it to avoid stings by the ever-present and huge birdspiders.

Learned Photography

She was a hard-working guest. She learned photography by trial and error and returned with hundreds of photographic plates. She fooled around with a tape-recorder and obtained some previously unrecorded animal and bird sounds.

"One of the major problems of jungle living is getting fresh food," she said. "There's no refrigeration or ice, and meat spoils in a few hours. Jaguar meat is delicious. Our basic diet was dried or salted beef, rice and Brazilian beans. Our fresh vegetables were palm hearts—which involves killing a whole palm tree for one small heart which tastes like something between celery and cauliflower."

The Siemel camp consisted of the family, three Indian families who acted as servants and assistants, and an assortment of pets, including a monkey, anteaters, and pecary pigs.

Watch Bathing

The system followed if the family elected to bathe in the river was to drop small pieces of alligator meat into the water. If a school of piranha—small, sharp-toothed fish—did not appear in a couple of minutes, the water was presumed safe enough for bathing. If they did appear, bathing was out—for piranhas have been known to consume a human body in three minutes.

In her spare time Miss Post typed a sort of diary of events. This she suplemented by talking her notes on to tape.

When Miss Post went into Matto Grosso, she was by occupation a publicist and had done some time as a newspaperwoman. Since her return, she has done some writing and her photographs have been widely published.

"It opened up a whole new field," she said. "Now, I'm going around pulling some strings so I can go to India and shoot a tiger."

Ragout Beef Dish Included On Special-Purpose Menu

Ragout of Beef (see recipe below)
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes
(see notes)
Whole Cauliflower with Parsley Cream Sauce
Celery Hearts
Velvet White Layer Cake
(see notes)
Coffee

Directions

The special part of this economical menu is that we used it as a pre-birthday party menu. We had a party for my sister a day ahead and a day after her birthday, because on her birthday she had an engagement with other friends to celebrate too. At the third party we had what she ordered: roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, broccoli and Hollandaise, lemon pie. She is so beloved by every one of us her wish is our command.

The ragout of beef may be made from shin, shank, brisket, or shoulder beef—all lower priced cuts. Two pounds lean beef, salt, and pepper, flour, fat, 1 chopped onion, 1 green pepper chopped, 1 cup chopped celery and leaves, paprika. Cut the beef into inch cubes and sprinkle with the salt, pepper and flour. Brown well in 2 or 3 tablespoons fat, and while browning add the onion, green pepper, celery. Two or three tablespoons chopped parsley are a good addition. Sprinkle very generously with paprika— using at least 1 teaspoon full. Cover with boiling water, put on lid and simmer very slowly for 3 hours or until meat is tender.

If desired, the flavor of this stew may be stepped up by addition of 2 tablespoons catsup or Worcestershire sauce, and 1 teaspoon horseradish.

Fluffy Mashed Potatoes

In the fall potatoes are usually so new and waxy it is difficult to make them fluffy when mashed. One thing that helps is to soak them in cold water for one hour before boiling. This soaks out minerals, and allows vitamins to disappear so it should only be done on rare occasions. To dry them further, shake and mash them over low heat, and when adding milk add it hot with the butter melted in it.

For a special occasion cauliflower cooked whole with some of the green ribs left on is very pretty. Boil in plenty of water, but do not overcook it. Pour parsley sauce over, and garnish very generously with parsley around edges.

Velvet White Layer Cake

One cup best quality cake shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 3 cups cake flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup milk, 5 large egg whites, 1 teaspoon almond extract. Cream the shortening until it is full of air and fluffy, then beat in the sugar gradually. Take 10 minutes to do this beating. Sift the flour and measure it, then add the salt and baking powder to it and sift three times. Sift the dry ingredients over the shortening—sugar mixture alternately with parts of the milk to which you have added the extract. Beat thoroughly after each addition. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into 3 8-inch layer cake tins which have been greased and dredged with flour. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. If desired one layer may be topped with a mixture of two-thirds cup cocoanut, 3 tablespoons melted butter and ¼ cup brown sugar. Put cake togethre with jelly or lemon filling.

For the birthday cake I used lemon filling and a boiled frosting with chopped cherries and almonds through it.

American Co-eds Busy In Toronto Offer New Ideas

TORONTO (CP).—Four women undergraduates at the University of Toronto put tongues in cheek and told the editor of The Varsity, under-graduate daily, they want the university annexed at once to the United States.

Their letter to the editor said that as the "University of Northern New York," the U. of T. could have:

1. A subsidized football team and courses which are not unreasonably difficult for it, such as knitting or needlework, so that the players could do their homework while warming the bench.
2. Professors like the ones in the American movies, i.e., unmarried, uninhibited and under 30.
3. As part of the United States, a bigger voice in the United Nations and perhaps even a university representative on the cultural committee.
4. All undesirable males on the campus drafted for active service in Korea.
5. Slacks worn to classes in winter and shorts in the summer.
6. A vote on the personalities and teaching ability of professors.

"In short," said the girls "we yearn to be a drop in the fountain and a source of North American culture."

The letter was signed by Nancy Donnell, Elizabeth Endicott, Margaret Nodder and Olga Skey.

Mrs. H. McIlmoyle Hostess To WA

SELWYN, Nov. 7.—(ENS)—A very successful WA meetting was held at the home of Mrs. Gerald McIlmoyl on Thursday, when 22 members were present. Mrs. Melville Crapp read the scripture lesson and the topic entitled "The Sheep-herder" was given by Mrs. Evans Blewett. The president, Mrs. Reginald Bell, reported on the half-yearly Presbytery executive meeting held in Peterborough.

The People's League gift of $50 to the WA which helped to pay for the installation of the hydro in the church was received with grateful thanks. The WA is now out of debt.

A hymn rack is being made for the church, a gift from the WA. On Nov. 24, a social evening will be held in the church hall in aid of the WA.

Mrs. George McIlmoyl invited the ladies to her home for the December meeting when the election of officers will be held and also an exchange of Christmas gifts.

Says Joint Beliefs Best Marriage Link

WINNIPEG, Nov. 7 (CP). — No matter how pretty she is, chances are that the girl who drifts through life with a perpetual yawn is a poor marriage bet, according to Dr. J. L. Asselstine.

The psychiatrist who directs Greater Winnipeg's child guidance clinic said here "Of course, there are always some people who are just plain bored." Such types don't fit in with his definition of marriage—a partnership based on community interests and aims.

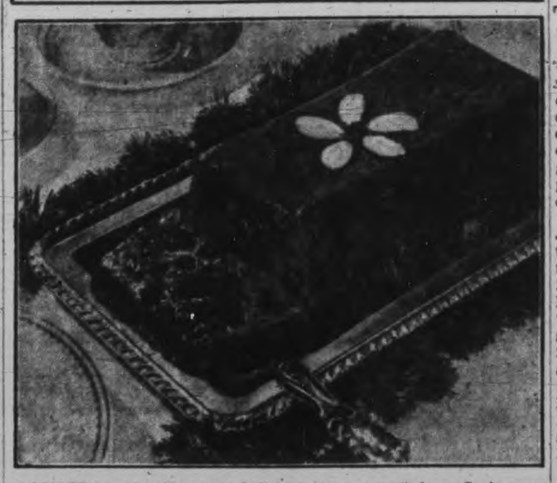
Marriage is also a matter of "take me, take my vices," he said. If the prospective hubby is a gambler, drinker or canasta fiend, you can't expect him to change overnight. "That would mean someone is taking more than giving," he said.

Dr. Asselstine said the first quality to look for in a prospective mate is maturity. Then there's independence. One mate should not be linked to another who is overly-possessive.

Responsibility is the big factor in maturity, he explained. It entails common sense and foresight.

Bright-Flint

WARKWORTH (ENS).—In the parsonage of St. Paul's United Church, Warkworth, on Saturday, the Rev. H. G. Lester solemnized the marriage of Doreen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Flint of Cobourg, to Mr. Reginald George Bright. Rings and vows were exchanged by the couple.



The bride's dress was of navy crepe and she wore grey accessories and a corsage of rose carnations. Miss Hilda Bright of Warkworth, aunt of the groom, was her attendant, wearing wine satin with black accessories and corsage of yellow carnations.

Mr. James Vansicklin, Warkworth was the groomsman.

After a reception at Miss Bright's home, where the bride's mother assisted, attired in navy with black accessories and corsage of white carnations, the couple left on a wedding trip to eastern points.

Mr. and Mrs. Bright will live in Cobourg.

Surprise Fruit Cake

ALMOST as enjoyable as the holidays ahead are the festive preparations — like making fruit cake. You've a treat in store in a new cake that calls for condensed tomato soup as liquid and mincemeat as the fruit.

A richer texture results from the use of the soup. And the cake keeps moist so long, thanks to this combination of ingredients. It's a dessert worthy of any occasion. Serve it at the holiday feast or whenever refreshments are in order.

Surprise Fruit Cake

- 2 cups sifted cake flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon soda
- ½ teaspoon powdered cloves
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 2½ cups "prepared" mincemeat or 2, 9-ounce packages "condensed". (Add 1 cup water; boil 3 minutes, cool.)
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and spices. Cream shortening and sugar; add cold mincemeat and mix thoroughly. Blend in eggs. Add flour mixture alternately with soup; stir until smooth. Mix in nuts. Pour into two greased loaf pans (8"x5"x 2½") or one 9½" tube pan; bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 80 minutes, or until done. Cool; serve with hard sauce or cover with your favorite white frosting.

SOUP SCOOPS

BUFFET SUPPER SOUP: To give guests something special in the way of soup, combine three of the favorites in the condensed line. Blend together 1 can each of condensed cream of asparagus, mushroom, and chicken soups. Stir in 2 soup-can measures of milk. Heat thoroughly but do not boil.

• • •

MEAT MAGIC: Make the most of that last bit of cooked chicken by serving it cream style. You can prepare a quick version this way: Add the diced meat (about 1 cup) to 1 can of condensed cream of chicken soup blended with ½ cup milk. A little chopped, cooked green pepper and some chopped pimiento livens the flavor. Pour this over hot buttered biscuits for luscious eating. Nice with this are buttered green beans and jellied cranberry sauce for a relish.

• • •

HEART-WARMER: On a cold night, plan a cheerful supper that features pork and beans. Top each serving with a strip of crisp bacon. And accompany the beans with steamed brown bread and generous helpings of apple-nut salad.

All Saints' WA Marks 60 Yrs. Of Missionary Service

Highlight of the 60th anniversary celebration of the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' Anglican Church Tuesday afternoon was the lighting of candles on a tiered anniversary cake, one for each of the 12 women who have served as president. Five of these were present, and for the others the honor was performed by a relative or close friend.

The cake was made by Mrs. Wm. Gray and the almond icing put on by Mrs. W. E. Metheral. The outer icing was done by Mr. Percy Hooper in memory of his mother, Mrs. T. H. Hooper, who was the second president and served for 11 years. The other presidents have been Miss Chamberlain, 16 years; Mrs. Harris, two years; Mrs. Davidson, two years; Mrs. Elliott, two years; Mrs. Tucker, two years; Mrs. McCullough, three years; Mrs. Frank Dawson, six years; Mrs. John Edgar, eight years; Mrs. Albert Hope, three years; Mrs. Francis Edgar, one year; Mrs. Cecil Thackeray, four years (still in office).

A life membership scroll and badge was presented to Mrs. Francis Edgar in recognition of her work for the auxiliary. As Mrs. S. Worsencroft presented the scroll, the membership greeting was read by Mrs. Britton Osler of Toronto, diocesan president of the Women's Auxiliary, guest speaker for the anniversary. The badge was pinned on by her mother-in-law, Mrs. John Edgar.

One minute silence was observed in memory of the WA members who have died since the 50th anniversary.

Also a guest speaker on this occasion, Miss Ruth Scott, dean of the Anglican Women's Training College, Toronto, outlined briefly the field of missionary work in Canada on which the WA can build its future and gave them the motto, from Christ's words to the disciples when they thought He was doing too much work, "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields."

Fertile fields, she mentioned, are in a Chinese church in Vancouver, among the Japanese in Canada, looking after the recreational needs of sailors off merchant ships in coastal cities, the Columbia Coast Mission, the Bishop's Messengers of Northern Canada where one ordained man covers a 6,000-mile area, and some people do not know the Lord's Prayer, the Gaspe Peninsula. Miss Scott said her college had just recently received four calls from Canada, one from California and one from Texas.—"But there was no one to send." Fourteen girls will finish the course next spring and they are slated, one to India, Japan, an Indian school, as GA supervisor, the Arctic, Oriental work, downtown mission work and five to assist as Bishop's Messengers.

"Christ has made no other provision than for us to do His work," said Miss Scott in conclusion.

A telegram of congratulation on the anniversary came from Canon and Mrs. Ashmore of Loon Lake, Saskatchewan. There were other messages from former members living out of the city now.

Mrs. Osler, in her address to the auxiliary, stressed that the future has great possibilities and urged the women to "press on." She pointed out, "Opportunity lies here just as much as in the uttermost parts of the earth."

Since the retirement of Miss Greta Clark from China there is no missionary in that country, she said, and very little is known of the work going on at present by trained Chinese. The WA has been told to make no definite enquiry for fear of exposing one of these people. Work in Japan is continued in close co-operation with the Government.

The Rev. M. P. Poole, rector, introduced Mrs. Osler, and Miss Scott was introduced by Mrs. Frank Dawson. Thanks was extended by Mrs. Howard Clark.

When the meeting had been closed with prayer by Mr. Poole, tea was served to the members and the guests from other churches of the city and from Hastings.

Mrs. Poole and Mrs. C. W. Balfour presided at the tea table. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. A. Williams, who had decorated in the WA colors with a bouquet of blue and white 'mums and blue tapers in tall silver cadelabra. Above the table was the WA motto, "The love of Christ constraineth us."

The birthday cake was cut by Mrs. John Edgar, who had been in charge of the celebration. An address of congratulation on 60 years' fine work was made by Mr. Poole.

Mrs. Cecil Thackeray, president of the afternoon branch, WA, was chairman. The Bible reading was given by Mrs. Albert Hope. A solo, "My Task," was rendered by Mrs. W. A. Beard, member of the choir. Pianist was Mrs. Percy Hooper.

Nurse's Dream Coming True

HALIFAX, Nov. 7—(CP)—For Marie Corriveau a dream and a queen's wish is coming true.

In 1939, during the visit of the King and Queen, Miss Corriveau, a native of Penetang, was nurse in charge of the Dionne quintuplets when they were presented to Their Majesties.

At that time the Queen expressed the hope that some day Miss Corriveau would have the pleasure of meeting her daughters.

Miss Corriveau, now a lieutenant nurse in the Canadian Navy, will get a chance to see at least one of the Princesses later this week.

She has been assigned as nurse aboard the cruiser Ontario, which will take Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh from Charlottetown to Sydney and then to St. John's, Nfld.

Doctor aboard the Ontario will be Lt.-Cmdr. Harvey Little, of Haileybury, Ont.

Elect WA Officers Mrs. C. Hartman Takes Presidency

BRIDGENORTH, Nov. 7 — (ENS).—Mrs. Clifford Hartman was elected president for the coming year at the meeting Tuesday evening of Bridgenorth United Church WA, held at the home of Mrs. L. M. Richardson. A good number of members were present for the special election of officers.

In charge of devotions was Mrs. J. Pettersone, who chose as her theme "Talents," and read an article on what builds characters. Lesson thoughts were read by Mrs. K. Blewett, under the title, "The Talents," and followed by scripture reading from Matthew 25 by Mrs. W. Telford. A short article, "Fallen Leaves," was read by Mrs. L. Udy, and another, "I Must Go Shopping," by Mrs. Richardson, stressed many things, such as patience, tolerance and kindness, to be shopped for.

Mrs. Hartman, who as vice-president has taken the chair for the past four months since the president moved from the village, conducted the business. Seven calls were reported by Mrs. C. Telford, and several letters and cards of thanks were read by Secretary Mrs. J. Hardill. Several methods of raising money for a new furnace for the church were suggested, but it was decided to leave the plans over until early in the new year. The Christmas meeting is to be held jointly with the WMS in the church basment, Mrs. Jack Jopling and Mrs. J. Johnston in charge.

Before retiring from the position of vice-president, Mrs. Hartman thanked all officers and members for their help during the year. The Rev. D. P. Morris then took the chair and election of new officers was held. The complete slate selected is:

President, Mrs. C. Hartman; vice-presidents, Mrs. L. M. Richardson, Mrs. W. Crookshanks; secretary, Mrs. F. Ray; treasurer, Mrs. K. Blewett; pianist, Mrs. C. Telford; lunch, Mrs. J. Pettersone; flower and card convener, Mrs. E. Blewett; visiting committee, Mrs. C. Telford, Mrs. W. Telford, Mrs. S. Forsythe, Mrs. P. Pettersone, press secretary, Mrs. E. Blewett; church decorations, Mrs. W. Nicholls; program convener, Mrs. J. Hardill, Mrs. J. Pettersone, Mrs. W. G. Ray, Mrs. J. Johnston; parsonage committee, Mrs. W. Nicholls, Mrs. J. Smith; penny collectors, Mrs. F. Ray, Mrs. K. Blewett and Mrs. C. Hartman.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and committee in charge.

Resolutions Of WI Concern Wide Range Social Problems

TORONTO, Nov. 7 — (CP).—Children under 12 years of age should not be allowed to operate tractors, the 49th annual meeting of the Central Ontario area Women's Institute decided yesterday.

Delegates said that in view of a number of recent fatal accidents involving young persons in charge of tractors, a safety campaign should be launched to draw parents' attention to the danger. It was said that shortage of help on the farm has given rise to letting children, in some cases seven or eight years of age, handle the tractors.

"Women themselves should offer to go out and run the tractors if there is nobody but small boys and girls to do it," said one delegate.

But another commented:

"Yet when tractor rodeos are staged, it's the boys who get the prizes. They can teach dad."

John Blow, executive secretary of the Community Welfare Council of Ontario, said some of the council's problems concerning elderly persons should be of concern also to the Women's Institutes.

Extension of old-age pensions to everyone over 70 would mean that more elderly persons than formerly would remain independent citizens in the community. Services they will require may include additional financial assistance, home visiting, light housekeeping facilities, libraries, and recreational opportunities.

The gathering also asked removal of taxes on household electrical equipment. It said the loss in revenue could be offset by heavily increasing the taxes on liquor.

Another resolution urged compulsory insurance for every person applying for a vehicle licence.

The meeting also went on record as favoring strict observance of Sunday and opposing Sunday sports. It asked full citizenship rights for Indians.

Other resolutions expressed opposition to women's beverage rooms, criticized the quality of sewing threads, and asked for an improved way of indicating the weight on packages of soap and cleaning powders.

J. D. Park, the Canadian Mental Health Association's director of organization, suggested that the institutes turn their attention to the problem of mental health. They should try especially to find a problem to keep children mentally and emotionally fit, he said.

A visitor from New Zealand, Emily Carpenter of Dunedin, said there is great enthusiasm among New Zealand women for institute work.

Mrs. J. Snider of Weston was re-elected president by acclamation. Other officers elected were:

Vice-chairman, Mrs. W. H. Clugston, Markdale; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. W. A. Heron, Brooklin. Conveners: Citizenship, Mrs. Emerson Knott; agriculture, Mrs. C. Marchant, Schomberg; community activities, Mrs. John Wallace, Lindsay; Historical research, Mrs. A. W. McGee, Fenelon Falls; home economics, Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, Havelock; resolutions, Mrs. Maurice Jones, Glencairn; juniors, Miss Doris Riseborough, Uxbridge; reservations, Miss Helen Atkinson, Scarboro Junction.

DOROTHY DIX

Preserving Family Unity First Duty of Parents

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a married man with two sons and two daughters. For the last three years my wife has refused to take family expeditions on Sunday although I have repeatedly asked, and often even argued with her about it. She gives as reasons for her refusal the fact that the children must have their sleep, and in their own beds. Lately she claims she has the youngsters all week and wishes to go out on Sunday without them. Her attitude has made me very cool toward her and she cannot see any reason for my actions. When I see others enjoy their children by going out as a family it makes me very downhearted. H.S.

ANSWER: Seldom do I get a problem of this nature with the mother as culprit; usually it is the father who refuses to take his family out.

When savants foregather to discuss the ills of the world, they ascribe the failings of today's youth to all sorts of sources — political, psychological, and psychiatric. Never does it occur to them that practically all tales of juvenile delinquency could be wiped off the front pages if the spirit of family unity could be revived. A suggestion that a family might gather together occasionally for an evening of games or singing would be greeted in most circles with hoots of derision. The popular idea today is for the family to scatter in as many different directions as possible as soon as dinner is finished — provided, of course, they were all together at dinner.

A famous cleric says that the family who prays together stays together. The simple act of prayer provides the nucleus for a unity that nothing in the future will ever disrupt. Play or work done together is a further bond to preserve family ties.

Mother Will Regret

In a few years, when the children of Mrs. H. S. think of home merely as a place to get away from, their mother will bewail the fact that she is left alone. Yet she does nothing to establish a family consciousness on Sunday, the one day when father's chores permit him to enjoy the youngsters. A disrupted routine is nothing compared to the benefits derived from a day spent together in mutual pleasure.

Mother should get her time out alone some other day or evening during the week and devote Sunday to the projects her husband suggests. Her attitude towards the children should not be one of patient resignation to an Irksome job. Youngsters, no matter how tiring they become at times, are a pleasure and should be enjoyed by their parents—not tolerated. The days of childhood are all too fleeting and parental regrets in later life cannot bring back one of them.

When you suggest these Sunday outings, H.S., do you offer to help with their preparation? Don't leave everything to your wife. Let her get out for an evening at the movies during the week and lend whatever assistance you can with the children. Be sure you make the expeditions a pleasure, not an extra source of work. Also, be sure the activity you plan appeals to her. With a little effort I'm sure you can make her look forward to Sunday with the family.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young girl of 24 and very much interested in joining the Marine Corp. The only thing that is stopping me right now is that I do not have a high school diploma. After I left school I went to night school. Any information you can give will be appreciated. M.M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: See the local recruiting office for the Marines in your city. Your situation probably isn't hopeless. The work you did at night school might give you the necessary credits; if not, you will be directed to the courses that will complete your education to the required minimum. The women's branches of the armed services offer a splendid career for girls. Besides the service you will be doing your country, there are personal advantages, such as the opportunity to continue your education and acquire professional training.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a daughter who has been married eleven years. Until recently I have been very friendly with her husband. Although he has often hurt my feelings, I have forgiven him. Now when I visit them in the evening he doesn't even greet me. Should I continue visiting when he is at home or go during the day? F. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By all means make your visits in the daytime, if it can be conveniently arranged. A morose man is an unreasonable creature and best left to his own devices.

Sunday Work Criticized By Archbishop

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 7 — (CP).— Sunday work and Sunday commercial sport and entertainment were condemned Tuesday by the Most Rev. John Lyons, Anglican Archbishop of Ontario, at the 10th session of the Provincial Synod of Ontario.

"Traditionally, Sunday has been observed by the Christian church as a day of worship and rest, a day of refreshment and recreation for the individual spiritually, intellectually, and physically."

Six bishops, 58 clerical and 47 lay delegates are attending the Synod, which opened here Tuesday.

Archbishop Lyons also urged that the session consider calling on the government to give consideration to implementing recommendations of the Hope report on education. He drew particular attention to proposals affecting public and separate schools.

The need for chaplains in penal institutions received more discussion, culminating with an outline by the Rev. W. J. Minto Swain, chaplain for Kingston Penitentiary, on his own personal experiences in this work.

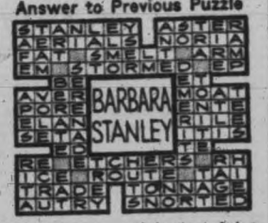
Agree To Chaplains

The Rev. E. J. G. Tucker, who presented the report on prison chaplain services, said the government had, after many years, agreed to appoint chaplains for reformatories and to provide a service to prisoners.

After reports on chaplains services were heard, the Synod decided to establish bursaries to help train men for the work.

The Rt. Rev. W. E. Bagnall, Bishop of Niagara, said the Ontario Minister of Health was sympathetic to the suggestion to establish such services. Chaplains would be provided by the church and the Ontario government would pay their salaries.

However, he added, that in a few instances where such chaplains had been tried in Ontario, they had not proved satisfactory.



The Rev. J. R. Thompson of Windsor asked whether young graduates from theological college should be used for prison chaplain work. He suggested a seasoned clergyman would be better suited, properly qualified to talk to the men, and one who might not find his religious attitudes being disturbed.

Archdeacon F. G. Lightbourn, of Stratford, was elected prolocutor of the Lower House at the session.

as his subject "Educational Foundations."

Mr. Birkin said that the foundation of a building is very important and mentioned the comparison in the Bible between the house built on the rock that withstood everything and the house built on the sand that was washed away.

Mr. Birkin first dealt with the foundation for the elementary school and here a large share of the responsibility for a good foundation he said rests on the home.

The Act, he said, states that a child may enter kindergarten at the age of five years and it was important that the physical side of the foundation should be laid in the home.

This can be done by teaching the child to look after itself by being able to put on its coat and take it off. He pointed out that if the teacher had to look after each pupil in this manner, she would not have much time left to teach the fundamentals for which she was being paid.

Turning to the academic side of the foundation, Mr. Birkin said that parents could help their children greatly by reading good stories to them for this established an understanding vocabulary because if the children understand what different words mean, learning to read would be a much easier matter for them.

The foundation for secondary schools, Mr. Birkin said, could be squeezed into the three R's. Especially is this true in mathematics for one essential is the ability to add, subtract, multiply and divide correctly. The tables he said should become a part of the child, to be quoted at any time.

Good reading material is another essential.

Mr. Birkin concluded by impressing the need of a good foundation in all educational pursuits.

Principal H. Hunter thanked Mr. Birkin.

Mrs. W. Corneil gave a very detailed report of the regional conference held recently in Peterborough. Other members who attended the conference were: Mesdames H. Anderson, H. McNeely, D. Kirk, G. Hubbel and R. Sayers.

Mrs. J. Calnan gave a splendid report of the conference in Peterborough during dental health week. She was accompanied by Mrs. B. Johnson.

Mrs. J. Wilde, health convener, spoke on the topic "Teen-age and Drug Addicts."

Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. R. Backus and Mrs. J. Beatty as accompanists. The latter also entertained with a vocal solo.

Mrs. W. Corneil gave a short talk on the Home and School publications.

The attendance shield and prize of $1 was won by Miss G. Hunter's room. Refreshments were served.

Stomach Operation Developed By Doctors

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7 (AP) —Surgeons can now take out a person's stomach and install an artificial one all in a single operation.

Three such operations were described today by Dr. Emerick Szilagyi, Dr. Thomas H. Connell, Jr., and Dr. Laurence S. Fallis of Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, in a paper for delivery to the American College of Surgeons.

The artificial stomach is made out of a middle section of the patient's own intestinal tract — The end of the small intestine and the beginning of the large intestine.

Two of the patients died, one from cancer and the other from peritonitis, but the third is doing well. In all cases the new stomachs grew into place nicely, the doctors said.

Two Escapees Seen In Cafe

DUNDAS, Nov. 7 (CP) — Two of the three men who made their escape from Toronto's Don jail were seen in a Dundas restaurant Tuesday night, police said today.

The trio, Leonard Jackson, of Toronto; Edwin Boyd, of Pickering and William Jackson, of Toronto, escaped Sunday night.

Tuesday night two men strolled into Ron's restaurant here and ordered coffee. Both waitresses on duty and the owner of the eating establishment, Maurice Beavis, said they recognized the two men from pictures in a newspaper. Both believed the two were Jackson and Boyd, who paid for their coffee with a $5 bill.

By the time the town police were notified, however, the two had left the restaurant.

Put Cold Water On Auriol Plan

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP) — The Soviet press today threw cold water on French President Vincent Auriol's suggestion for a big four leaders' conference in Paris in the quest for world peace.

All Moscow newspapers published Tass dispatches about Auriol's speech opening the United Nations general assembly Paris meeting Tuesday but the dispatches did not credit Auriol with sincerity in the suggestion that the leaders of Russia, the United States, Britain and France meet now.

The newspapers intimated that Auriol threw out the suggestion only as an attempt to placate the people's yearning for peace in France and elsewhere.

Wants Pension Plan Fully Contributory

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—Senator Thomas Reid (L — British Columbia) said Tuesday night the government should have made its new old-age pension plan a "complete contributory plan" right down to the age of 65 instead of 70 years.

He could not get enthused, he told the Senate, about handing $40 a month to everyone including the well-to-do when the new pension plan begins next January. He questioned whether, on the other hand, that amount was enough for the needy because "high prices are going to be with us for a long time to come." In fact 1951 prices might be reckoned as "not too bad."

Speaking in the Throne-Speech debate, the British Columbia senator also criticized the CBC. Canada's national radio network continued to overspend, he said. It should "cut its cloth to fit the suit and forget the extra pair of pants."

Canadian Attends Red Council In Vienna

VIENNA, Nov. 7 (AP)—World peace is not won until it is won in the United States, Bruce Mickleburgh, Toronto, Canadian delegate to the Communist-led world peace council now meeting in Vienna, said here Tuesday.

Mickleburgh is the public relations director of the Canadian Peace Council and is representing the council here as the only Canadian delegate.

Reviewing the perils of another world war for his country he said "Canada would be in the ghastly position of being an atomic no-man's-land directly between the two principal contenders."

"Our government considers that for all our mighty forests wooden coffins would be too expensive to bury the volume of corpses anticipated, and the National Research Council is developing cardboard coffins, treated to look like velvet inside, to cost five dollars each," Mr. Mickleburg said.

He especially attacked Canadian newspapers and broadcasting companies for having placed themselves at "the disposal of the propagandists of Washington's war."

Won't Go Back On Colony Promises

LONDON, Nov. 7 (Reuters).— Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton said today the Churchill administration will not go back on constitutional developments in the colonies brought in by the Labor government.

"What is already done and promised will be carried through."

Addressing his first press conference as Colonial Secretary, he said the Conservative government intends to increase colonial production to meet the world shortage of raw materials and increase colonial prosperity. Details have not been worked out.

Census Takers Out In Welland Figures

WELLAND, Nov. 7 (CP)—City assessor J. D. Paterson today reported the city's population is 15,972. Only a few months ago dominion census takers found 15,341 residents.

"The government staff didn't go about its work as assiduously as our own assessor," said Alderman John R. Joyce. He said he could name many citizens who were not checked by the dominion staff.

was represented by counsel at the preliminary trial. The alleged offence was a definite act at a definite time and the date was established at that time.

He allowed Mr. Bradshaw's amendment.

Before Mrs. Thompson made her plea, Mr. Carley went on record as asking for the quashing of the indictment. This was denied and the trial began.

Mrs. Thompson, dressed in a light grey suit, and a black coat, hat and veil, pleaded "not guilty."

Conservatives Win Second Vote In House

LONDON, Nov. 7 (Reuters).— The Conservative government won its second vote of the new parliament today by 305 to 227—a majority of 78.

Prime Minister Churchill announced Tuesday that only government business would be taken up until the Christmas recess.

This meant that the opposition would not be allowed to originate a debate before then.

Today Labor objected to this decision and forced a vote.

The first vote was last week when Labor objected to the Conservative nominee as speaker of the House of Commons.

The government majority on that occasion was 67.

"Did you think that by killing your baby you would get your freedom" coroner George Mrazek asked the mother.

"I thought it would—some time" she replied.

Move To Have Eisenhower Run Gains Quickly

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)— The draft-Eisenhower-for-President movement shifted into high gear today.

It was on the strength of the general's hands-off attitude toward volunteer political efforts on his behalf while he was here for European-defence talks.

Sideline politicians disagreed on the over-all effect of Eisenhower's avoidance of party and presidential race commitments while waving a friendly go-ahead to well-wishers who are trying to stake down for him the 1952 Republican nomination.

But Senator Howard Duff (Rep. Pa.), one of the leaders of the latter group, plunged with renewed vigor into a round of speeches and conferences plugging the general. In New York, Governor Thomas E. Dewey said he was stronger than ever for Eisenhower.

Thinks He'll Run

The general's parting shots before his return to Paris convinced Senator James E. Murray (Dem. Mont.) that Eisenhower is going to make himself available for a nomination contest.

"It looks like he is a candidate," Murray told a reporter.

Eisenhower told a press conference that no one had been authorized to boom him for President.

But he left the road open to become such a candidate when he said:

"If the time ever comes when I feel that my duty compels me to say a word of any kind, I will say it . . . positively and definitely."

Stone Elected Act As Chairman

PARIS, Nov. 7 (CP)—Thomas A. Stone, Canada's minister to Sweden, today was elected chairman by acclamation of the budgetary committee of the United Nations general assembly.

The 50-year-old diplomat from Chatham, was nominated by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary and head of the United Kingdom delegation to the UN.

Eden said no one is better fitted to preside over the committee with distinction and impartiality than Stone.

Osten Unden of Sweden, who seconded the nomination, described Stone as a distinguished diplomat.

Holding Smuggled Canadian Diamonds

ROUSES POINT, NY, Nov. 7— (AP).—United States Customs agents are holding a large quantity of diamonds they believe were smuggled into the US from Canada.

George B. Warner, deputy collector of customs at the port of Rouses Point, said the diamonds were found Tuesday by an American citizen and turned over to his office. He would not elaborate.

He said no arrests had been made, and an investigation was under way.

Snow Shovelling Blamed For Death

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 7 — (CP)— John Brewer, 75, composing room foreman of The Times-Journal for more than 40 years, died of a heart attack in his home Tuesday. The strain of shovelling snow on Sunday is believed to have been the cause.

Mr. Brewer, born here in 1876, was educated in Stratford and entered the printing trade there with The Beacon-Herald, 48 years ago. He is survived by his wife and one son, J. H. Brewer.

Churchill's Cabinet Explains Broad-Based Government Remark

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Winston Churchill's frequent references during the general election campaign to the need for a "broad-based" government may be understood more clearly after a close study of the new British cabinet.

Of the 16 members of the inner council, three of the more prominent are non-party men, and there are several others who have generally stood aloof from politics in any partisan sense. This is broadly in line with Churchill's campaign speech at Liverpool Oct. 3, in which he said the country needed a "tolerant, non-partisan, non-doctrinaire" policy.

The Liverpool speech was interpreted in some quarters as indicating that Churchill might be calling for a coalition government or party truce. Now it is clear he was thinking more in terms of a non-partisan administration than anything else.

Declines Offer

Churchill also promised that any new Conservative government returned in the Oct. 25 election would not be marred by any "dull exclusion" of Liberal and independent forces. He has already made good on that pledge by offering a government post to Clement Davies, leader of the Liberal Party. Davies declined on the ground that taking office in a Conservative regime would imperil Liberal independence.

A remarkable feature of the new government is the number of ministers recruited from the House of Lords. There are six peers in the present cabinet compared with three in the last one, and enough others of blue blood in other posts to make the representation from the Upper House greater than in any government since 1900.

Harold Wilson, a former Socialist minister, has criticized the new Churchillian team as foreshadowing "government of the people for big business, by the Lords."

One Advantage

Other commentators think there may be one advantage in the high proportion of peers. In the rarefied atmosphere of the Upper Chamber, they will be spared the necessity of appearing in the House of Commons to defend their policies.

The three prominent non-party men are Lord Leathers of Purfleet, who has the imposing title of State Secretary Co-ordinating the Work of Transport, Fuel and Power Ministries; Lord Cherwell, Paymaster-General, with general responsibility for scientific matters, particularly atomic energy; and Lord Ismay, Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations.

The work of Lord Leathers will be watched with special interest. A carpenter's son, born in the East End of London, he started work at 14 as an office boy earning seven shillings and sixpence a week.

He was practically unknown politically when, 10 years ago, Churchill appointed him Minister of Shipping and Transport. Frederick James Leathers, the ex-office boy, shed directorships in 60 companies spread across the world to take the job.

He succeeded so well that Churchill wrote in one of the volumes of his war memoirs that in Leathers' presence "difficulties seemed to disappear as if by magic."

The late President Franlin D. Roosevelt is reported to have said wistfully: "I wish I could find a Lord Leathers for Washington. Britain ought to reciprocate lease-lend by letting me have him."

Discover 100 Milky Ways Through New Sky Window

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 7 (AP)—Discovery of a new window in the Milky Way, revealing 100 Milky Ways never seen before, was announced Tuesday.

The window is a clear patch in the obscuring dust clouds or cosmic smog along the Milky Way. It lets telescopes peek through to see a new part of the universe.

The window is somewhat dirty, like a half-open window Dr. Harlow Shapley, famed astronomer of Harvard College Observatory, reported to the National Academy of Sciences, meeting here at Yale.

It's located near the Southern Cross, in the constellation Centaurus, and so isn't visible in the Northern Hemisphere. It's the third such window to be found.

Dr. Shapely showed a photograph, taken through the window, of 100 new galaxies or star families totalling billions of stars. Some are pinwheel-shaped, like out own Milky Way. Some are hundreds of millions of light years away. A light year is the distance light travels in a year at 186,000 miles per second.

Studies of stars visible through the window tell us more about the size and shape of our Milky Way, and where the sun and earth are located in the gigantic pinwheel.

The photographs showing the window were taken at the South African Harvard station, and analyzed and studied at Harvard Observatory.

To Open Hospital

DUNNVILLE, Ont., Nov. 7 (CP) The 48-bed Haldimand War Memorial Hospital opens today. It cost $400,000 and is all paid for. The 4,500 citizens of this Lake Erie town, helped by residents of the surrounding district, raised $318,000 after the hospital project was launched six years ago. The federal and provincial governments made grants of the rest of the funds required.

Believe Grafted Extra Heart May Ease Surgical Operations

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7. — (AP)—Two or three years from now it may be possible for a person to use someone else's heart for a few minutes while the doctors repair his own defective ticker.

Some day a person may live with an extra heart grafted into his abdomen. Beating along independently of the diseased heart in his chest, it would help keep his body supplied with blood.

The borrowed heart technique was worked out on dogs by seven University of California doctors. Theoretically the method should work also on humans but numerous little "bugs" have to be disposed of before it can be tried in the operating room.

One of the main arteries of the donor dog is piped to an arterial main in the recipient dog. A big vein of the recipient is piped to the veins of the donor. The heart of the recipient is in effect short circuited and drained of blood. It continues to beat but pumps nothing.

The recipient dog's heart thus is dry and can be worked on by the surgeon while the heart of the donor dog pumps blood for both animals.

When the hookup is discontinued, the recipient dog's heart takes over its own pumping job.

In the early experiments, said Dr. Orville Grimes, all the dogs died. Changes in the blood vessel hookup finally brought down the casualty rate to the point where in 14 experiments involving 28 dogs, only five died. This figure probably will be bettered soon, Dr. Grimes said.

Applied to humans, the technique might help greatly in extremely dangerous heart operations, Dr. Grimes said. Much heart surgery now is done while that organ keeps on with its work.

Urges Rainmaking Be Left Alone

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Senator Thomas Reid, Scottish-born Liberal Senator from British Columbia, told the government Tuesday night it ought to stay away from the new art of "rainmaking."

He had noted, he told the Senate, an increase in this activity during the summer droughts in the west. An RCAF experimental plane had gone to Vancouver to sow the clouds and try to produce rain.

But when the government began interfering with the weather, it was in for trouble. Some persons wanted it wet and, some wanted it dry.

There was the example of a rainmaker brought in to bring rain for grain growers in the district, who had been threatened with a suit by cherry growers if he were successful.

In the United States, there had been the spectacle of one state actually suing another because, it claimed, that state had stolen rain belonging to it.

Every Hollywood Actor Has His Own Diet Theory

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7 (AP)—Nearly everybody—from Mario Lanza to Francis—diets in Hollywood.

It's more than a matter of health in the movie capital; it means an actor's livelihood. Many actors are suspended from salary if they exceed a certain weight.

Nearly every player reduces differently.

Mario Lanza has Hollywood's biggest poundage problem. He sometimes has to take off as much as 80 pounds before he starts a picture. His method is roadwork and other exercise, plus a diet of eggs, steaks and tomatoes.

Very few players can afford the luxury of a big lunch. Lana Turner has a salad every day, no dressing or bread. Betty Hutton rips into a steak and that's all, brother. Robert Taylor's lunch usually consists of a cup of coffee. Vera-Ellen is a fruit hound and can consume two boxes of strawberries at one sitting.

Walter Pidgeon has a unique method of staying trim. One day a week he eats no solids, existing merely on liquids. Kathryn Grayson has a special slimming drink—half buttermilk and half tomato juice—ugh.

Marilyn Maxwell eats whatever she wants, but in smaller amounts. You can see Red Skelton running around the Beverly Hills streets when he's on a reducing bender, and Edmond O'Brien hits the track.

Judy Holliday has to shelve 25 pounds for her current picture. How? "I suffer," she replied. "I refrain from the thing I enjoy a great deal—anything."

And how does Jane Russell do it? "I cut out beer."

CPR Will Oppose Part Freight Law

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—The Canadian Pacific Railway Tuesday told a Commons special committee it is opposing some provision in the government's freight-rate "equalization" legislation.

The company made this known to committee, opening hearings on the legislation, after the government - owned Canadian National Railways said it has no objection in principle to the three bills before the committee.

Opening submissions before the committee, H. E. O'Donnell, CNR counsel, said that "in principle the CNR has no objection to these bills and has no representations to make concerning them at this time."

F. C. S. Evans, CPR vice-president and general counsel, then began what was expected to be a long submission before the 31-man Commons group.

THESE FOUR MEN are reportedly prisoners of war, now encamped near the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. The picture was taken by Tibor Merai, a Hungarian correspondent, who said he toured the POW camp in early October. The men were not identified.

Eskimo Carvings Finding Ready Sale In Canada

CALGARY — (CP) — The Eskimo is proving that primitive art in North America is not dead. He is literally carving himself a place in the history of North American Art with simple pieces of sculpture fashioned without benefit of modern tools or know-how.

Two Calgarians have brought some of these sculptures to the city. A. F. Key, resident director of the Coste House, and Mrs. Marguerite Rutherford of the Cottage - Craft Shop, who handle goods for the Canadian Handicrafts Guild, have each purchased several.

These primitive works of art have become excellent tourist attractions. Newspapers and magazines in the United States have drawn much attention to them during the last year and both Mrs. Rutherford and Mr. Key say many American visitors to Canada have wished to take some home.

Soapstone, bone or ivory has been used for the most part in carving the sculptures but some are fashioned in wood and dressed in skins. Soapstone is said to be the earliest geological form of jade. There are also some excellent examples of basket weaving.

Simplicity Keynote

The crudely fashioned pieces, through their simplicity, have captured the nature of a primitive people.

The stone used varies in color and shade. For instance, one carving is made of two pieces of stone, one lighter grey than the other.

James Houston, Toronto-born artist, brought some of the first of these carvings into Canada from Baffin Island. The Canadian Handicraft Guild liked them and asked for more. The government also took an interest as a means of helping the Eskimos through their sale.

Mr. Houston has since made four trips into the north seeking the art and it has been estimated that more than 20,000 pieces have been brought back by him and other Guild representatives.

The Eskimos are said to be delighted with their chance to exchange carvings for clothing, food and other essentials of every-day living.

Splendid Cough Syrup Easily Mixed at Home

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix this recipe. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water until dissolved. Anyone can do it. No cooking needed. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.)

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat irritations.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and fill up with your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, satisfying relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages and taking hold of the cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

FOR EXTRA CONVENIENCE GET NEW, READY-TO-USE, PREPARED PINEX.

Deny Iranian Charge Company Started Riot

LONDON, Nov. 7 (Reuters)—The Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. Tuesday denied Iranian charges that it had been behind recent disturbances in Tehran.

The charges were made in Washington Monday by Mohammed Mossadegh, the Iranian Prime Minister, who added: "This is not the first experiment carried out by the company to create riots and disturbances."

Anglo-Iranian's statement today repudiated these accusations as untrue. It said:

"The company wishes it to be known that at no time or place has it attempted or instigated any such action as that described in this baseless accusation."

TOUGH JOB AHEAD—US Secretary of State Dean Acheson (left), French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman (centre), and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden join in a three-way handshake at the opening of the 1951 United Nations General Assembly in Paris. Acheson today called on Russia to end the war in Korea and show signs of good will so world disarmament can begin.

Russia Calls Plan Ludicrous

PARIS, Nov. 8. (AP)—The United States presented its "fool-proof" arms count plan to the United Nations today. Russia dismissed it as "ludricrous" and called for a world conference by next June 1 to consider the whole disarmament question. State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States formally presented the western power plan along with a challenge to Russia to work sincerely for peace in Korea and to show good will. The plan, which President Truman elaborated Wednesday night in a major speech, calls for step-by-step disarmament and a count and limitation of atomic and other weapons under strict UN controls.

Following Acheson to the floor at this sixth session of the UN assembly, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky heaped ridicule on the plan, said he could "not keep from laughing."

Then he countered with a Soviet proposal whose main points were:

Cessation of hostilities in Korea within 10 days and withdrawal of troops to the 38th Parallel.

Withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea within 30 days.

Conclusion of a pact of peace by the Big Five Powers, meaning inclusion of Communist China, plus the disarmament conference by next summer.

Won't Consider Offer

There is little likelihood the West would ever consider such a plan. The "pact of peace" has been the keystone of Soviet propaganda for months.

L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister and head of the Dominion's UN delegation, said Vishinsky's speech was "the same old record as before but somewhat more scratchy this time."

Vishinsky concluded his speech with the Soviet counter-proposals. He called upon the UN to declare membership in the North Atlantic Treaty "incompatible" with membership in the United Nations.

He recalled statements of Soviet Prime Minister Stalin about "peaceful co-existence" of the Communist and non-Communist world.

The Soviet delegate then denounced the UN majority plan for control of atomic energy with provisions for international inspections as "control without prohibition." The West already has turned down Russia's atom control plan because Russia rejects the inspection clauses.

Vishinsky said the West's plan "truly seeks to prevent any sort of atomic control." Then he assailed a recent issue of Collier's Magazine which he said had "outrageous illustrations" devoted to destruction by atomic bombs. This issue was devoted to a fantasy by a group of writers, telling what might happen in a third world war against Russia.

Acheson Appeal

Addressing the Russians, Acheson declared that achievement of an armistice in Korea "could open the door to broader consultations of other aspects of the Far Eastern

RUSSIA CALLS

World Inventory Of Arms Proposed By Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. (AP)—The Kremlin was confronted with an urgent appeal from President Truman Wednesday night to accept a "foolproof" western plan for world-wide disarmament. But official Washington strongly discounted the chance of favorable Russian action. Endorsing a three-point plan which the United States, Britain and France are placing before the United Nations in Paris, the President said: "I urge the Kremlin to accept this proposal."

President Truman described it in a country-wide address as providing for:

1. An inventory of armies and armaments all over the world, including eventual disclosure of information about atomic weapons. This inventory would develop into a permanent international inspection system.

2. The negotiation of specific arrangements for reducing armed strength and determining the size and composition of forces which each nation should have. Ultimately atomic weapons would be prohibited.

3. Actually putting the reductions in effect "as soon as that can be done with full knowledge and fairness to all."

Turned Down Before

Other proposals basically the same in most respects have been put forth—and turned down by Russia—before. This is the main reason for the belief expressed here and in Paris that the Russians will say "No" in some form again.

Perhaps the sharpest departure from previous disarmament plans which the US has supported, State Department informants said, is the decision to extend the weapons and troop census to include atomic bombs.

An atomic control plan, worked out in the UN three years ago and blocked by Russia, provided for disclosure of information as controls became effective.

Would Reveal Weapons

Truman said the UN plan fits into the new three-power proposal and explained that under this proposal "atomic weapons would be revealed at the appropriate stage in the process of disclosure."

He indicated this would be late in the troop census after good faith had been shown by co-operation on less vital information.

The arms census, Truman said, would proceed by stages "disclosing the least vital information first, and then proceeding to more sensitive areas." It would be "checked and verified" by international inspectors.

This means that foreigners would have to move about freely over Russia, as well as over the US and other countries. This is something the Kremlin has long rejected.

In Paris, L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, indicated that Canada supports the proposal.

Nomination Day In Ontario

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP) — This is official nomination day in Ontario's Nov. 22 general election.

It is expected that between 275 and 280 candidates will file nomination papers with returning officers. They have until 2 pm EST today, except in the far northwestern riding of Kenora and Rainy River where the deadline is 2 pm CST.

On the eve of nomination day, an unofficial tabulation by The Canadian Press showed a total of 266 prospective candidates, but others can come forward up to the last minute. Each has been nominated by a political party convention or has announced publicly that he will run. The papers each candidate files with a returning officer must bear signatures of at least 100 voters in his own constituency. No deposit is required.

The Progressive Conservatives, led by Premier Frost, have put up candidates in each of the 90 ridings. The CCF, under leadership of E. B. Jolliffe, opposition leader in the last house, has nominated 76 but may offer others. The Liberals, led by Walter Thomson, have 88 candidates and are supporting two Liberal-Labor candidates. The Communist Labor-Progressive party has five candidates.

In addition there are three Independents, one Independent-Labor and one Independent Progressive Conservative.

Egyptians Release British Sea Captain

SUEZ, Egypt, Nov. 8 (Reuters)—A British sea captain released Wednesday night after investigation of charges that he made libellous remarks about "an eminent Egyptian personality," has been relieved of his command, the Khedivial mail line, announced today.

Capt. William Travers had been transferred from the Red Sea service to Alexandria, they added.

Khedivial mail line denied newspaper reports that Travers had been dismissed from their service and expelled from the country.

Egyptian officers and men aboad Travers' ship, the Egyptian steamer Sakara, were reported to have signed a petition complaining about the captain's alleged remarks.

Truman Denies Any Truth Eisenhower For President

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—President Truman said today there is not a word of truth to a New York Times story that he offered to support Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as a presidential candidate in 1952.

The Times article, by Arthur Krock, said Eisenhower did not accept the offer nor did he specifically reject it. Krock is The Times' Washington correspondent.

"There's not a word of truth in it—that's the only comment I've got," Truman told reporters just before leaving for a few weeks' stay at Key West, Fla.

He added:

"If Walter Winchell or Walter Trohan had written that, it was to be expected. But I'm surprised at Krock doing it."

Winchell is a columnist-commentator. Trohan is chief of the Chicago Tribune's Washington bureau and a consistent critic of the Truman administration.

Krock's story said Truman made the offer at his private luncheon with Eisenhower at Blair House last Monday.

Officers of Eisenhower's headquarters in Paris also had described The Times report as "purely fictional."

Krock wrote that "categorical and even angry denials" were likely to result from his story, but that the qualifications of his source were such as to merit publication.

Krock noted that the reported Truman offer of support "necessarily concerned only the Democratic nomination."

Two Children Die In Fire At Sudbury

Five Others Injured After Oil Burner Explodes In House

SUDBURY, Nov. 8. (CP)—Two children were burned to death and five persons sent to hospital after an oil burner exploded early today in a Peter Street house.

The children were Rita Roy, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Roy, and Leo St. Jacques, 14, son of Clovis St. Jacques. Rita did not escape from the house. Leo died in hospital today.

The injured are:

Leo Roy, 13, brother of the dead girl, burns on hands and face and lacerations;

Mrs. Melina St. Jacques, 66, extensive burns on face, head and back, fair condition;

Noella St. Jacques, 10 months, burns on face and hands;

Miss Yvonne Corbeil, 50, extensive burns on face and hands;

Don Dallaire, 18, a rescuer who suffered burns on his left hand and arm and cuts.

Rescues Two

Dallaire rescued two of the fire victims by climbing to the roof of a porch and breaking a window.

Spread of the blaze was prevented by O. Courtemanche, a neighbor, who removed two 40-gallon drums of oil which were at the rear of the house when the flames were only a few feet away.

At Brockville, six persons, including four children were left homeless today when an oil stove in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Lawson at Lansdowne exploded and burned a combined home and service station. No one was injured.

New Group Tries Find Treasure

LONDON, Nov. 8 (CP)—Seven women are among a new group of treasure-seeking Britons who still think they can find doubloons and pieces of eight in the South China Sea.

Despite what happened last Sunday to the treasure ship La Morna, which lost its mast in a gale off the Isle of Wight, another group plans to leave in December or January to hunt the treasure that Captain Kidd is said to have buried in an island cave.

Leader of this new expedition is Richard Pinney of Shrewsbury, Shropshire, who says there will be a crew of about 20 each paying £500 into a common pool. Among the women will be actress Valerie Sinclaire.

Miss Sinclaire says she and the other women will take along British frocks and fabrics which they will try to sell at ports of call on an 18-month or two-year voyage in the 75-ton motor yacht the Barra.

The La Morna, which was also after Captain Kidd's treasure, left Gosport, Hampshire, last Thursday with a 12-man party, including three Canadian university students. All hands were rescued when the schooner lost its mast, but the La Morna will not be ready to go to sea for some weeks at least.

Nominations Made Official

Candidates for the three parties in the November 22 provincial election were officially nominated today at the nomination in the Legion Hall.

District returning officer Douglas Lawrie presided over the hour-long session, and the last nomination papers—those of CCF candidate W. C. Grant—were filed at 1:35 pm.

Mr. Lawrie said that "well over 10 names" were affixed to each nomination.

Progressive Conservative candidate is Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests; and Liberal candidate is F. P. (Paddy) Burke. They had filed their papers earlier in the day with the DRO.

They named as their agents: J. C. N. Currelly (Scott), Ross McFee (Burke), and Maurice Ketcheson (Grant).

NEW NAVAL CHIEF—Rear-Admiral E. Rolo Mainguy, CBE, takes over December 1 as Canada's new Chief of Naval Staff. He succeeds Vice - Admiral Harold T. W. Grant, CBE, DSO.

Ex-Police Chief Gen. Draper Dies In Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—Brig.-Gen. Dennis Colburn Draper, former Toronto chief of police, died today in Sunnybrook Veterans' Hospital here. He was 77.

Gen. Draper entered hospital Oct. 23 and died early today. Cause of his death was not reported.

A native of Sutton, Que., Gen. Draper had no previous police experience when he was appointed chief constable in 1928. He held the post until his retirement five years ago.

His distinguished First World War record helped him get the appointment. At the end of the war he was Brigadier-General Commanding the 8th Infantry Brigade. He won the DSO and bar and the French Croix de Guerre and was made a companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Led Regiment

Gen. Draper had gone overseas as a major with the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles. When the unit's commanding officer was killed at Sanctuary Wood, Major Draper took over and led the regiment.

A year after Gen. Draper became Toronto police chief in 1928, he founded the Prisoners' Rehabilitation Society and served for some years as its president. The organization helps men and boys re-establish themselves after serving prison terms.

Born in 1874, Gen. Draper was educated at Sutton, about 65 miles southeast of Montreal. Later he took part of a law course at McGill University.

He was employed by the Canadian International Paper Company at Sutton after the First World War and until he became Toronto's police chief.

Under his leadership the Toronto police department radio-car patrol was inaugurated, the motorcycle squad was doubled and the force was increased by almost 15 per cent.

Second Diamond Cache Uncovered By Police

ROUSES POINT, NY, Nov. 8 (AP)—A second large cache of diamonds was found in a hotel toilet bowl Wednesday and federal agents pressed a search for a woman believed linked to an international smuggling ring.

A plumbing leak at the Holland hotel led to discovery of the diamonds. No official estimate of their total value was disclosed, but it was reported as "possibly" $250,000.

A woman was detained at this border point early Sunday by customs officials and registered at the hotel. After questioning, she was released and left on a train bound for New York.

The day after the woman left the first batch of diamonds was found in a plastic case, which was pulled from a toilet near her room.

The case contained about 726 stones—the largest of which weighed slightly more than a carat. The value was placed at about $100,000.

Presents Credentials

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—Dr. Werner Dankwort, newly appointed German ambassador to Canada, today presented his credentials to Viscount Alexander. He was appointed ambassador when the state of war was formally ended a few months ago. T. C. Davis is Canadian ambassador to Germany.

Pollock Died Of Exposure In Two Hours

US Hunters Work Seven Hours To Save Swain's Life

BANCROFT, Nov. 8. (Staff)—The body of William A. Pollock, Toronto hunter, was found by a search party Tuesday afternoon on a small floating bog island in Elephant Lake where he had been left by his companion, Bruce Swain, 36, Toronto, Monday afternoon.

Polock had died of exposure in water some two hours after he had scrambled to the bog island from their overturned boat, Dr. O. W. Anderson, Bancroft coroner said today.

Members of the search party, nine American hunters and seven experienced local bushmen, led by Constable Gordon Langton, were unable to get the man's body out to Bancroft until Wednesday evening.

Constable Langton first heard of the mishap about five am on Tuesday morning and quickly organized a search party.

Reached Island

Pollock and Swain, who worked together in Toronto, had overturned their boat in the icy water of the lake at the mouth of the York River. They managed to scramble to the floating island, about 60 square yards in size, about 250 feet from shore.

After a short time Swain told his companion, who was exhausted, to stay on the island while he tried to get help. Swain waded and swam to the shore, but before he could get aid, collapsed.

In the meantime, his guide, Jack Woods, Harcourt, from whom he had somehow become separated, had rounded up a party of nine American hunters from Ohio. They found Swain "so near death his face was frozen."

Saved Swain's Life

Constable Langton said it was the expert knowledge of the Americans that saved Swain's life. They built a fire and then mas-

Expect Vote Cut Majority

BARNSLEY, Yorkshire, England, Nov. 8 (CP)—A Labor party stronghold voted today in a parliamentary election that is expected to reduce the Conservative's over-all majority in the House of Commons to 17.

The Barnsley election was delayed for two weeks by the death of the original Labor candidate a few days before the general election Oct. 25.

Labor's over-all majority here in a three-cornered fight in the 1950 general election was 22,729. Candidates of the Labor, Conservative and Liberal parties are contesting today's election.

Prime Minister Churchill's Conservatives now have an over-all majority of 18 in the Commons. Six Liberal members, however, have pledged their general support to the government.

Mrs. Thompson Said "I've Shot Him," Neighbor Testifies

A Crown witness at the murder trial of Mrs. Lillian Thompson told the jury today that the hysterical woman came to his home, asked for a doctor for her fatally-injured husband, and sobbed: "I've shot him. I've shot him." The witness was William Jamieson, 584 Howden Ave., who lives diagonally across the street from the Thompson home. Mr. Jamieson was the man who traded Roy Thompson a bicycle motor and gun for an electric saw. The .22-calibre rifle is alleged to be the murder weapon.

Two other witnesses for the crown said they had heard the Thompsons arguing. Mrs. Thompson was sobbing in their presence and accused her husband of having "broken the home."

The fatal shooting is believed to have taken place within 15 minutes from the time of this argument.

These were the highlights of the morning session as the trial of Mrs. Thompson on a charge of murdering her husband entered its second day.

Most of Wednesday was taken up with evidence on statements that Mrs. Thompson is alleged to have made to Coroner Dr. Herbert Young when he arrived at 10:15 pm.

Saw Him 3 Times

Mr. Jamieson said he saw Mr. Thompson three times on the night of the shooting. The first time was when he came home from work and Mr. Thompson was talking to his son; the second time was later in the evening (6:30 pm) when Mr. Thompson was going to the home of a neighbor, Lawrence V. Dennie, 576 Howden Ave. And the third time was still later when he saw Mr. Thompson standing in the driveway arguing with Mrs. Thompson.

The Thompson car was in the laneway, said Mr. Jamieson, and he heard Mrs. Thompson say: "You're not taking the car out under any condition."

She might have said "under that condition," he conceded.

Mrs. Thompson was standing on the driver's side of the family car with her hand on the door, he said, and Mr. Thompson was standing by the left fender.

Mr. Jamieson said Mrs. Thompson was speaking loudly. He heard no reply from her husband. A few minutes later a car pulled up in

Pro-Western Premier Resigns Over Crisis

CAIRO, Nov. 8—(AP)—Syria's pro-western premier, Hassan Bey El Hakeem, was reported to have resigned in a cabinet crisis over western defence proposals for the Middle East.

Reliable Syrian sources here said they had no knowledge of the reported resignation but they believed the report to be true.

The British-owned Arab News Agency said in a dispatch from Damascus that the premier tendered his resignation to Syria's President Bey El Attassi, but will continue in office until a new government is formed.

The pro-government Cairo newspaper Al Misri said today in a bold headline: "Syrian People Force Premier To Resign."

Many Areas Still Face Snow And Rain

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP) — The major centre of Southern Ontario's second storm in four days has moved out of the province, but residents in many areas are still faced with falling snow and freezing rain.

There is a happier note in the weatherman's prediction, however, with skies "slowly clearing during the day" in some parts. A warmer front in Western Canada is not expected to affect Ontario for a few days.

Communications, traffic, plane flights and even schools and a factory were disrupted by the effects of the storm.

The weather forced Liberal leader Walter Thomson to call off a meeting in Collingwood Wednesday night when he was unable to travel over snow-blocked roads.

Workers Sent Home

Factory workers were sent home in Belleville when power supplies failed. About 2,400 school children near the Niagara Falls area were sent home and thousands of workers in Toronto were late for work as public transport became snarled.

Numerous minor accidents were reported. Roof collapses were reported in a number of towns.

The Ontario Highways Department reported that 5,000 men and 900 trucks have been at work on provincial roads since Friday.

The heaviest snowfall was at Priceville, 30 miles north of Owen Sound. Shelburne reported two feet of snow in the Georgian Bay area.

The highways department said driving was "extremely hazardous."

No New Models Under US Freeze

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—The US government today imposed a virtual "freeze," effective Feb. 1, on the introduction of new models by the automobile industry and manufacturers of other major consumer durable goods.

The action came in the form of orders reserving machine tools almost completely for military and defence-supporting production.

This would bar retooling by civilian manufacturers of cars, washing machines, refrigerators and similar appliances.

The intent, NPA's announcement said, is to insure that the entire output of the machine tool industry—a bottleneck in the aircraft, tank and other munitions programs—is channelled into defence.

US To Boost Arms Purchases In Canada

Big Expansion Under Way As Two Major Barriers Removed

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Max Mackenzie announced today that the United States is planning a big expansion in Canadian arms purchases and disclosed that two major barriers to increased arms sales to the US now have been partially overcome.

These were high tariffs on Canadian - manufactured armaments and the restrictions and confusing Buy American Act of 1934 which limited the amount of armament the US fighting forces could buy from Canada and other countries.

The Defence Production Deputy Minister, forecasting an encouraging future for Canada's arms producers, disclosed specifically:

1. An order placed by the US for 40 T36A Beechcraft planes to be produced by Canadair Ltd., of Montreal, is to be "considerably increased" when production gets under way.

2. An initial order for 100 Beaver aircraft, under production at the De Havilland in Toronto is to be doubled soon, and to be followed up with "further orders for even larger numbers."

3. Similar expansion in U.S. contracts will be developed for such equipment as the three-inch naval guns under production at Sorel Industries, Sorel, Que., and Harvard trainer aircraft at the Canadian Car and Foundry plant at Fort William.

Take Greater Part

Canada, said Mr. Mackenzie in a detailed 8,000-word speech prepared for delivery before the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association, must take a greater part in the US defence program if it is to make the fullest use of its productive capacity "and if we are to reduce the gap in our international balance of payments."

Making public figures which the department has hitherto kept secret, the tall, hard-driving production chief estimated that over a 15-month period the Canadian government placed $500,000,000 worth of contracts in the US. The The US government's orders in Canada amounted only to $95,000,000.

But there were other factors to be considered. The rate of Canada's orders in the US would taper off as Canada increased supplies of American equipment and developed her own production. Instead of tapering off, US orders in Canada would be increased substantially.

Don't Tell Story

The resiprocal procurement figures, he declared, did not tell the whole story. Extensive subcontracting was going on in Canada on behalf of US arms manufacturers. This was not included in the figures, nor were US purchases of Canadian strategic materials for stock-piling.

Work has been done both on production as well as on price stabilization, Mr. Mackenzie said, particularly on lead and zinc.

Mrs. Thompson's Statement Made To Coroner Not Permitted In Evidence

Jury Excluded From Court Three Hours .. In Murder Trial While Four Witnesses Tell Of Statements Made Night Of Death

Statements allegedly made by Mrs. Lillian Thompson in reply to questions by Coroner Dr. Herbert Young, shortly after her husband was fatally-shot last August 25, were ruled inadmissible Wednesday afternoon by Justice W. F. Spence. Mrs. Thompson, 35-year-old mother of five children, is standing trial on a charge of murder. She is alleged to have shot her husband Roy with a .22-calibre rifle after a family argument. Ironically, August 25 was Mr. Thompson's birthday.

The 12-man jury were sent from the courtroom while evidence was given by four Crown witnesses. The trial within a trial —to determine if statements allegedly made by Mrs. Thompson to Dr. Young were admissible— lasted just over three hours.

Constable W. G. Scott said he wrote down in his notebook the substance of Mrs. Thompson's replies. Dr. Young warned the accused who was "very upset emotionally; crying and sobbing, and at times talking to herself."

Dr. Young asked her if she understood the warning, said Constable Scott, and she said she did.

"What led up to this?" asked Dr. Young.

Mrs. Thompson did not reply.

"Did he shoot himself or did you do it?"

"I did."

"Why?" asked Dr. Young.

"I was going to shoot myself but I couldn't load it (i.e. the gun); he loaded it for me."

"Were there any words after that?"

"He told me I was yellow when I didn't pull the trigger," she said. "He stood in front of me."

Constable Scott's record of Mrs. Thompson's statements to Dr. Young continued: "I thought he was only fooling until I saw the blood. I knew he was so close I couldn't help hitting him."

Cross questioned by Defence Counsel T. J. Carley, KC, Constable Scott said he remembered two voluntary statements made by Mrs. Thompson, just after she had been asked by Dr. Young if she understood the official warning.

Mrs. Thompson was quoted as replying: "Yes (long pause) . I thought he was only acting. I thought it hadn't hit him."

At that time she had not been informed that any charges would likely be laid or that she was under arrest, said Constable Scott.

Dr. Young, who preceded Constable Scott in the witness box, said he went to the Thompson home at 10.15 pm after a call from the police. Constables Scott and Cecil Bowyer, Mrs. Thompson and her dead husband were the only ones in the house.

"Mrs. Thompson was in an hysterical state," said Dr. Young. "She was crying, nervous and upset."

Gave Official Warning

Dr. Young said he waited a few minutes to let her compose herself and realize that he was attending in his official capacity as coroner, not as her personal physician. Then he gave her the official warning and asked her if she understood it.

Constable Scott took notes of the conversation on his own initiative, but first asked Dr. Young if he should do so.

Dr. Young had no record of his questions and answers and had to rely on memory.

He said Mrs. Thompson told him she and her husband had had an argument. She told her husband that if she knew the gun was loaded she would shoot herself. He loaded the gun and handed it to her.

"Why shoot yourself, why don't you shoot me?" Roy Thompson is alleged to have asked. And he added that she was afraid: "too yellow."

In answer to another question by Dr. Young: "I thought at first he was fooling but when I saw the blood I knew he wasn't. . . . I don't know why I thought so because I couldn't help but hit him."

The questioning by Dr. Young went on in the kitchen with only two constables and Mrs. Thompson present. Roy Thompson's body was lying in a pool of blood in a nearby bedroom.

"Wasn't Mrs. Thompson at times incoherent?" asked Mr. Carley in cross-examination.

"Yes," said Dr. Young.

Had Been Attending Woman

He also said that he didn't recall telling her specifically that he was acting as coroner, not as her personal physician. He had been attending Mrs. Thompson during the seven months of her pregnancy.

As he recalled it, his warning to Mrs. Thompson was: "You are not forced to say anything at all, but if you do say anything it will be taken down and used against you."

"You didn't tell Mrs. Thompson that she was charged or likely to be charged with any offence?" asked Mr. Carley.

Dr. Young said he didn't and he didn't hear either of the constables or anybody else do so. And Mrs. Thompson was not asked to sign the statements as taken down by Constable Scott.

"There is a great emotional strain on a woman during pregnancy, isn't there?" asked Mr. Carley.

"Usually," replied Dr. Young.

William D. Jamieson, a neighbor at 584 Howden Ave., was the fourth witness called at the trial within a trial.

He said that he was working in the basement of his home when he heard a commotion upstairs. He went up and Mrs. Thompson was standing in the front hall with his wife.

"Mrs. Thompson told us to call a doctor," he related. "She was crying and hysterical. She said: 'I've shot him, I've shot him'."

Mr Jamieson said the distraught woman then ran down the front steps of his home, across the road to her home. He followed her into the house.

Took Gun Away

He said Mrs. Thompson stopped at the kitchen table, picked up a gun and he took it from her.

"I asked her where Roy was and she pointed to the back bedroom."

"Did you have any difficulty getting it away from her?" asked Crown Attorney Bradshaw.

"No," said Mr. Jamieson. He added that he heard no threats or promises made to the accused.

Mr. Carley suggested that the gun was lying on the table when Jamieson came in. Jamieson walked over, picked it up and said "I'm taking it."

Mr. Jamieson said no. Mrs. Thompson picked it up, but there was no resistance or argument when he took it.

He recalled one remark Mrs. Thompson made while he was talking to her: "He said I was yellow and afraid to fire."

Judge's Ruling

Justice Spence said there were three main points for not allowing the jury to hear Mrs. Thompson't statements to Dr. Young.

Most important was the possibility that the jury would be prejudiced against her if they heard what she said in her highly emotional state.

"The statement might be voluntary but still prejudicial," he said.

Justice Spence also found that the statements as taken down by Constable Scott were incomplete. Mrs. Thompson made other remarks that were incoherent and he thought the favorable as well as the unfavorable testimony should be included.

In the warning the words "taken down in writing and used against you" were substituted for the correct warning "taken down in writing and used in evidence."

As soon as Justice Spence ruled out the statements the jury were brought in and the trial proper began.

Four Witnesses

Only four witnesses were called before court adjourned for the day.

Dr. Young repeated his testimony about being called to the Thompson home, finding the body of Roy Thompson in the bedroom, and seeing Mrs. Thompson in the kitchen in an hysterical condition.

He made no mention of his conversation which the jury were not permitted to hear.

Mrs. Thompson lowered her head and cried softly when the .22-calibre repeating rifle — was brought into the courtroom for an exhibit. It was the only time during the day-long trial that she lost her composure.

Staff Sgt. William W. Sutherland, RCMP crime detection laboratory, said that he had tested the rifle. He believed the bullet and cartridge case given him for examination were fired from the .22 calibre rifle.

Identification Sgt. Bill Aggas, city police, said he had handed the rifle, bullet, and a box of .22 calibre cartridges over to the RCMP. And he also identified photographs he had taken at the scene of the fatal shooting.

The murder trial enters its second day today. Sixteen Crown witnesses have been subpeonaed.

UN Rejects Zone Proposal

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 8 (AP) —United Nations' truce negotiators today "completely rejected" the latest Communist proposal for a Korean buffer zone.

The final turndown came at the end of a four-hour and 35-minute session in Panmunjom. Most of it was spent finding out just what the red plan meant.

UN negotiators said it could create a de facto cease-fire in Korea, freeing the Reds from settling other armistice questions.

"We completely rejected the proposal," said Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, chairman of the UN armistice sub-committee.

Pollock Died

saged him, slapped his face to keep him awake and gave him stimulants as well as penicillin. One of the Americans was a druggist.

After the fire had been going they pushed it aside and lay Swain down where the fire had been. They stripped him and built fires on either side of him. They worked over him from eight pm Monday to three am before they decided he was going to recover. Swain later walked out of the bush some four miles to the nearest road that could be used.

Constable Langton had reached the rescue party and he went out to Bancroft with Swain. He then returned to the area and the search for Pollock began.

Everett Yateman, of Harcourt, an expert woodsman, directed the operation that actually located Pollock. He decided what island Pollock would likely be on and two or three men slithered across the 250 feet of half inch thick ice to the bog. Pollock was dead.

They managed to get him back to the main shore and then began the task of getting the body out of the bush.

He was a big man and the bush was so thick in spots that he couldn't be dragged on a toboggan. He had to be carried a good deal of the way.

Constable Langton said much credit should be given to the men from Ohio and the bushmen. The names of some of the US hunters were O. W. Carpenter, Columbus, Ohio; Bradford Case, Obetz, Ohio, and Gilbert Smith, Canalwinchester, Ohio.

They had to cut a road through some four miles of the bush with axes and the snow was 20 inches deep. This was an old unused logging road that was little more than a path through the bush. They finally reached a township road about seven miles from where they had started with the body.

Says Quebec Youth Degraded By Alcohol

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L. Portneuf) said Wednesday in the Commons that the young people of Quebec are being corrupted and degraded by an excessive use of alcohol.

Dr. Gauthier said liquor laws are flouted throughout the province. Infractions are permitted by the provincial governments, anxious to increase election funds.

He said he could not understand why the people of Quebec do not protest against a system that allows young people to be corrupted through the use of alcohol.

Base metals regained most early losses. International Nickel and United Keno Hill climbed fractions while East Sullivan, Golden Manitou, Quebec Copper and New Calumet showed advances to 25 cents. Consolidated Smelters lost $3 while Noranda and Quemont slipped fractions.

Senior golds weakened as five of seven issues traded showed losses ranging to 50 cents. Juniors were mixed while prospects and holding companies dipped sharply.

Philip Enjoys Visiting Naval Centres

HALIFAX, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Prince Philip, wearing the uniform of a Royal Navy lieutenant-commander, was in his element today when the Royal couple visited HMCS Dockyard, headquarters of Canada's Atlantic Command.

The visit was under far different circumstances than the last time he was in Halifax. As a midshipman on the troopship Empress of Russia in 1941, his main chore was shovelling coal in the engine room.

Princess Elizabeth and Philip spent nearly two hours at the station where men-of-war loaded grapeshot and powder during the American War of Independence. Today the base was filled with some 25,000 naval personnel and civilians.

Elizabeth wore a red crepe dress, long robin red wool coat with black velevet buttons, black velvet hat, and black handbag, gloves and shoes.

As she left a plastic-topped convertible, Rear-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, Flag Officer of the Atlantic Coast, offered to hold her plaid umbrella to shield her from the Scotch mist. Elizabeth smilingly declined. Then she and Philip reviewed the parade of the King's colors and an honor guard.

Enjoy Museum

At the Maritime Museum, which has a vast collection of marine and naval equipment, Elizabeth was hesitant in signing the guest book.

Admiral Mainguy reassured her, "There's really nothing to it."

The Princess showed interest in the man-traps used to keep off boarding parties in Nelson's time. While looking at a souvenir brought back from Korea by the destroyer Nootka, a photographer's flash bulb exploded. Elizabeth, startled momentarily, turned and smiled broadly at the embarrassed photographer.

The snorkel off a captured German submarine also held her attention, and Admiral Mainguy explained its use.

On the east wall were five plaques commemorating the names of the Nova Scotians who became admirals in the British navy. Here the Princess paused for several minutes to read each plaque.

The Royal visitors then left for Stadacona naval base, one of Canada's largest naval establishments. Lining the cobblestone streets were 75,000 cheering residents.

Acknowledges Cheers

Princess Elizabeth acknowledged the cheers of thousands of sailors with a smile and a wave.

High-ranking officers of the three services and RCMP were presented to the Royal couple in the anteroom of Admiralty House built in 1814.

Elizabeth and Philip chatted with Lt.-Cmdr. W. H. Esworthy of the United States Navy, commander of the visiting submarine Dace.

Elizabeth asked the commander: "How do you like working with our Navy?" He said: "I like it fine."

On their arrival at Admiralty House in a rainstorm the first man at the Royal car was Colin P. Evans, veteran of the Royal Navy of which he was at one time heavyweight boxing champion.

Despte the heavy rain which brough many Haligonians to the verge of heartbreak from shame, the crowds turned out in thousands and tendered an enthusiastic but restrained welcome.

Philip expressed his condolences after dodging through a gale to official greetings Wednesday. He had seen the city in sunny July when he made a wartime Royal Navy stop here.

Today's program called for a King's color parade and Royal guard drill at HM dockyard parade ground, a service cadet review a musical ride by the Halifax Junior Bengal Lancers and the Girls' Pipe Band performance —all in the open and all depending on the weather. There were also a luncheon, dinner, stops at a veterans' hospital and several schools and Dalhousie University.

Fifty thousand persons got drenched to the skin as they stood and cheered the Royal couple through the streets on the opening of their visit. It was an umbrella arrival but even this protection was discarded by hardy onlookers who found themselves hampered in looking at the handsome pair.

Expresses Sympathy

"I spent better days than this in Halifax," consoled the Duke as he talked to the wife of a city official. "I feel sorry for you."

Princess Elizabeth, greeting the thousands who stood in the gale-lashed rain and waited for her return for a second glimpse, nodded sympathetically to another official and said "It's a miserable day isn't it?"

The Royal pair were quick to sense the keen blow to civic pride. Here was a city that had entertained a dozen members of the Royal family over the last 200 years and felt, with some justice, it knew more about how to do it right than the rest of Canada.

It had been a beautiful late autumn day until an hour before the Royal train pulled into the station. Stops at Moncton and Sackville, NB, and Amherst and Truro, NS, had been favored with sunshine. Then the gale swept in from the churning grey Atlantic, ripped flags and bunting from moorings, streaked ladies' makeup and made pipe clay run down uniforms of the guard.

MORE ABOUT—

Mrs. Thompson

front of their house and a man and a woman went into the house with the Thompsons.

He noticed nothing unusual about the condition of either of them.

About 9:45 he said he was working in the basement with the electric saw he got from Thompson in a swap for the gun. He heard a commotion at the front door and ran upstairs.

Mrs. Thompson was there and so was his wife.

"Call a doctor," said Mrs. Thompson. "I've shot him. I've shot him."

Went Across Road

While his wife called a doctor Mr. Jamieson followed Mrs. Thompson across the road to her home. She was "very hysterical."

She picked up a gun from the kitchen table and he took it from her. Then he inquired where Roy was. She pointed to the back bedroom.

Taking the gun along with him he looked into the bedroom and found Roy Thompson sprawled on the floor by a pool of blood. Mr. Jamieson felt Mr. Thompson's pulse but the man was already dead.

He took the gun back to his own home and handed it over to PC William G. Scott when he arrived with PC Cecil Bowyer to investigate.

On the kitchen table he saw a bottle of rye whisky with a couple of shots out of it.

Drinks On Hand

Constable Scott said he found a bottle of rye whisky in the kitchen with about three ounces missing, a bottle of gin with four or five ounces missing, a number of empty liquor and beer bottles, four pints of beer in the refrigerator, and 12 pints of beer in the basement.

There was still some froth in two of the empty beer bottles, he said.

Constable Scott said he arrived at 9:50 pm and was met by Mr. Jamieson who handed him the gun.

Mrs. Thompson was sitting at the kitchen table, with her back to the front door. She eversed seats before Dr. Young arrived shortly afterwards.

Thomas Gardner, 563 Howden Ave., said he knew the Thompsons for about two months and had met them socially about five times.

He first saw Roy Thompson about 6 pm as Thompson was going to the Dennie home. A few minutes later Mr. Dennie invited Mr. Gardner over to his place where he had a beer.

Not Together

Mr. Gardner didn't see Mr. Thompson take a drink but he said they were in separate rooms so he couldn't be sure.

Later Mr. Thompson went home.

Mr. Gardner saw him again at 9 pm at the Dennie home, and again he didn't notice Mr. Thompson take a drink.

Half an hour later the Dennies and Gardners were about to drive away to a party when Mr. Thompson came over and got in the front seat of the car. They saw that he was carrying a bottle, but didn't know whether it was beer or liquor.

Mrs. Thompson was following her husband, said Mr. Gardner, and she said something to this effect:

"You've broken the home." Then she added: "You're going no place."

No Invitation

Mr. Gardner didn't hear anybody invite Mr. Thompson into the car and he didn't think that the latter knew where the four of them were going.

In a calm voice Mr. Thompson replied to his wife: "If I can't go in this car then I'll go in my own." He then got out of the Dennie car and walked home.

Mr. Gardner said he had told Mr. Thompson that he was sorry but he couldn't take him along to the party.

"I suggest you heard Mrs. Thompson say 'You have smashed the home'," said Mr. Carley in cross-examination.

"No," replied Mr. Gardner, "it was either broken or broke."

Mrs. Gardner corroborated her husband's testimony.

Saw Nothing Unusual

She said she noticed nothing unusual about Mr. Thompson's speech and walk.

When on her way to the Dennie home at 9 pm, Mrs. Thompson called out to her and said: "Tell Roy to come home, I want to see him."

Dr. C. B. Waite, provincial pathologist, said Mr. Thompson's death was caused through hemhorrage and shock, caused by a bullet wound. The .22 calibre bullet entered the right side of the chest, missed the heart and imbedded itself in the back after going through the seventh and eighth ribs.

There were no powder burns on the shirt or on the flesh.

The trial is continuing.

situation." In addition he challenged Russia to: agree to impartial investigation of conditions for a free election in all Germany, agree on a peace settlement with Austria, withdraw objections to Italy as a UN member, and grant basic human rights to areas the USSR controls.

Vishinsky had stock answers to most of these points, and as for the whole Western peace appeal, he had this to say:

"I could hardly sleep all night last night because I could not keep from laughing. Even from this rostrum I cannot hold back my laughter."

Vishinsky called the Acheson speech "the same brand of ludicrous argument which will never fool the people of the world."

House Defeats CCF Motion On Controls

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP) — All three opposition parties now have moved motions of non-confidence in the government, each hinging on the cost of living.

The three motions have been moved, two Wednesday, in the Commons during the traditional debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. The Progressive Conservative motion —moved some weeks ago—and the Social Credit motion are still to be voted on, probably some time next week.

The Commons Wednesday voted 160 to 19 against the CCF motion which called for use of price controls and subsidies to reduce living costs and to "equalize the sacrifices which the people are asked to make at this time."

Only the Social Credit party supported the CCF. The motion was opposed by the Liberals, Progressive Conservatives, J. L. Gibson (Ind.—Comox-Alberni), P. E. Gagnon (Ind—Chicoutimi) and Dr. R. Poulin (Ind.—Beauce).

Second Motion

Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia), shortly after the division, moved the other non-confidence motion, charging the government with "failing" to increase war veterans allowances to keep them in line with the increase in the cost of living.

Mr. Quelch supported a Canadian Legion request that the basic rate of war veterans allowances be increased to $50 from $40 for single veterans and to $100 from $70 for married veterans. He was supported by Percy Wright (CCF —Melfort).

The cost of living was also touched on by other speakers in the debate.

C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River) said a lowering of tariffs might effect a reduction in the cost of living.

Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L—Portneuf) said price controls at this time would only increase the tax burden. Charles Cannon (L—Magdalen Islands) also thought price controls offered no solution although he said something must be done to halt the inflation.

US Jet Shoots Down Communist Plane

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 8 (AP) —United States Sabre jets shot down one Comunist jet and damaged two on the anniversary of the first jet kill in the Korean war. The Red losses were reported by the Far East air forces.

Outnumbered Sabres clashed twice with MIG-15s over Northeast Korea exactly one year after the first MIG was destroyed in jet warfare.

MIGs in force swept across the Yalu River from Manchuria as Red ground troops fought see-saw battles with United Nations' infantrymen. On the western front one hill changed hands for the seventh and eighth times in two weeks, with the Allies winding up on top. Sharp Red probes along the central and eastern fronts were pushed back.

Mrs. Jamieson was a daughter of the late John D. Hayden and Mrs. Hayden, she carried on her fathers' interest in the Cobourg General Hospital, and for several years past has been the president of the Women's Auxiliary and a zealous member of the hospital board.

Allied with this interest was a similar zeal for the Cobourg branch of the Red Cross and the Cobourg and West Northumberland unit of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Because her father was one of the founders of the Cobourg Horse Show, Mrs. Jamieson was author of the article, "Cobourg Horse Show," which appears in the history of Cobourg, 1798-1948, published by the Busines sand Professional Women's Club. Mrs. Jamieson was one of the leaders in establishing the Girl Guides in Cobourg and served as captain of the Trinity Church Guides for many years. COBOURG, Nov. 8 — (ENS) — Figures released by the local assessor reveal that the assessment for the town of Cobourg is now $7,442,571. This is $251,256 more than last year. Industrial construction and new homes are responsible for the boost in the assessment total.

NAVIGATION SEASON closed recently when the pontoons of the lift lock were both lowered to just above ground level for the winter. The annual operation was just completed when the first snowfall came and the canal froze over. But a warning to skaters and hockey players, be careful, there may be air holes under the snow in the thin layer of ice. In winter or summer the lift lock remains picturesque.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Puppet's Antics Please Audience

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 8 — (ENS).—A large audience was treated to a different form of entertainment in St. John's Sunday school room Tuesday evening, when they saw the story of Cinderella presented in a puppet show. Girls of Mrs. Bright's class put on the show, and both young and old were fascinated by the antics of the puppet dolls.

The girls of the class made the puppets themselves under the supervision of Mrs. Bright. The puppets Daisy and Charlotte (the ugly sisters), were handled by Dorothy Ann Ferris and Gwen Stephens; Cinderella by Jane Cairns; the Page Shirley Wright; Stepmother by Margaret Nelson; Fairy Godmother by Gwen Jacobs; Prince by Barbara Fox; Nero by Joan Jeggs. Barbara Smith acted as narrator and did an excellent job of reading the script.

The audience enjoyed the show so much that it was done the second time. During the intermission between the two showings, tea was served and candy was sold.

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week — one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Questions About The Market

The wet, cold blanket over Peterborough's market now makes people sharply conscious that the market is not what it should be. But it never has been as good as it might be, and probably never will. There is no virtue in going into an angry skid about it because the weather has been abnormally bad this week. The whole matter of Peterborough's market must be examined calmly. Improvement is needed, but it is well to know what we want to improve, how, for what reason, and for and by whom, before public money is laid out.

* * *

What is Peterborough's market? It is two, physically: an upstair hall beside the town clock and a big flat open lot a quarter of a mile away, beside Little Lake. The upstair market has been unpopular for years. Customers do not like lugging their goods up. However, it is a port in time of storm. The open market is naked to the skies and winds, which are very unfriendly in winter. In summer it is a delightful spot, as the first season at this site showed this summer and autumn. The place is level and gravelled. It is hard on the feet. There is ample parking space, for cars and trucks of the vendors, and for customers. It is central and beside the main shopping street. This dual market operates only one morning each week.

* * *

Is it ridiculous to have separate markets? Probably. The business is scattered between the two; or rather, there is little commerce between them. They are too far apart. Is it better to have one market; either open, or closed? Is a combination of open and covered markets, on one site, as formerly, desirable, useful or practicable? Should there be an outside market only in summer; an indoor market only in winter? Indoor markets are not popular in good weather; outdoor markets are not popular in bad. If a combination of the two were desired, what sort of combination?—a series of stall-stores with windows that could be opened (as in some major cities with permanent daily markets); or merely some protecting roof, without walls, and therefore with no possibility of heating? One of the most convenient combined outdoor-indoor markets Peterborough ever had was a big tent set up in the market square in the thirties, after a fire in the Market Hall.

* * *

Who wants the market? Who actually uses it? Whom does it serve: the city people who buy farm produce or the people who use the market as a retail outlet? Who are the vendors: farmers of this district, local market gardeners, or jobbers and out-of-town dealers from Brighton, Durham, Newcastle and the Niagara Peninsula? Do enough people go to market even if there is a fully-developed one? Has a municipality any right to be spending public money on a market which is a cheap convenience to out-of-town sellers using it for profit and in competition with stores which pay heavy rents and business taxes? On the other hand, has a city any right to deny farm producers a convenient opportunity and central location to offer their goods for sale? A market is a traditional thing; the freedom to buy and sell is part of civilization's inheritance. Peterborough is a County Town; should it not also be a good Market Town? Who wants the market? If rural people do, why do they not put pressure on the County Council to take adequate action? If city folk do, why do they not urge the City Council to take further steps?

* * *

Who should pay for improving the market? The city provides the site. If anything more is required, who should pay for it: the persons who sell on the market, the County (since the market is presumed to be a Farmers' Market), or the city, whose taxpayers are the customers of the market? All three seem to have a degree of financial responsibility, but what is the proper proportion? Who should pay the most? Whose responsibility is the market, anyway?

* * *

What kind of market do people want—if they want one at all? Do they want an enclosed civic super-market such as Arvida has (it is really a big store); do they want an indoor market like Hamilton's? A market of interest, for comparison, is Kingston's. It was, like Peterborough's, both indoor (in a wing of the City Hall) and outdoor, in the square beside the hall. Now the indoor market is being converted into offices, only the outdoor market remains, although there is a possibility that part of the basement of the city building will be made available for marketing. However, Kingston's outdoor market flourishes and in all but the foulest weather is quite large. Moreover, it operates three days a week (Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday). An indoor market is a device of our steam-heated age; in all ages and all countries markets have been outdoors, and about as free as the air. In this regard, Peterborough's present market is a real market.

* * *

If Peterborough and district people are serious in a desire to have an improved market, answers will have to be given to the questions we have asked above. And if Peterborough is going to have a good market, it must have a permanence it now lacks; in its physical establishment, in the methods of operation (in Kingston, vendors rent ground space; often the same family has the same space for fifty years); and it must be permanent in the use made of it. No sizable sum should be spent on a market which operates only four hours a week.

'A Douglas To The Fray'

The old clan battle-cry 'A Douglas to the fray' has been heard during the past fortnight in Ontario; Premier Thomas Douglas of Saskatchewan has intervened in the Ontario election campaign. Premier Frost has declared that such action on the part of the premier of another province is "simply unheard of"; he takes the stand that Premier Douglas is campaigning for the C.C.F. in Ontario. Premier Douglas, on the contrary, says that he has intervened only to correct misrepresentations of the Saskatchewan hospital plan. Premier Douglas might also have said that interference in provincial elections by leaders outside the province is no new thing in the West.

We do not feel strongly on this point, nor do we think that many other people in Ontario do so. But we might feel very strongly indeed if it became usual for politicians outside Ontario to intrude themselves into Ontario disputes. Nothing but confusion can come of such interference. The contest must be among those who will, after the election, carry on the business of the Legislature either as government or opposition. Outsiders should interfere only under great provocation. Mr. Douglas may feel that such provocation has been offered in the present instance.

It has been observable, however, that during the past ten or fifteen years, provincial politicians have been chafing against the restraint of purely provincial affairs. They hanker for larger fields of action; they lift up their heads and sniff the intoxicating air which blows from Ottawa; they paw the ground and yearn to display themselves in a national manner. We enjoin them to self-denial; they have plenty to do at home.

To Examine Defence Spending

Canada is spending about two billion dollars a year on defence: for all sorts of things from equipment for squadrons of tanks and planes, to door-mats for colonel's caravans. Spending on such a huge scale and in so many diversified ways should be carefully examined by people other than the spenders. Public accounts of the Dominion of Canada are open to public scrutiny (except, presumably, the monies spent on atomic energy developments), and all accounts are audited. But Members of Parliament in general have little time and less capacity to examine the details of accounts; and accountants are concerned chiefly with ensuring that goods have been delivered which have been paid for, and not with how much has been delivered by whom and for what purposes. We have several times urged that a special all-party House of Commons Committee be set up to scrutinize defence spending. We greet with approval and relief Prime Minister St. Laurent's statement that such a committee will be established.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We read that prisoners in Toronto's Don jail had "a glimpse of the Royal Party as it went by." That's more than most of us had!

A Camp Borden major has won a sweepstake of $140,000 on a horse called Fleeting Moment. What a wonderful example for teachers to use in instructing their pupils, irrefutable proof that time is precious and every fleeting second golden.

When a gangster was buried recently in New Jersey, eleven large cars were needed to haul the flowers to the cemetery. Odd that none of those who loved him well enough to send him wreaths were on hand when somebody hated him enough to let daylight into him.

Princess Elizabeth has laid a wreath on the tomb of another exalted English subject whose body is at Arlington national cemetery. Did she regret that George Washington had never got around to affirming, as Sir John A. Macdonald did, "A British subject I was born, a British subject I will die"?

Fortitude In Pakistan

By RAWLE KNOX
(In Karachi)

IT may well be that Pakistan reached maturity overnight with the death of her first Prime Minister, Liaquat Ali Khan. The shock of his assassination might have set off incalculable detonations. A local newspaper jibed, with some justice, that foreign correspondents came rushing to Karachi in expectation of fresh stories about Islamic fanaticism; they found a city sorrowful and sobered.

When news of the murder flashed from Rawalpindi on October 16th, no significant details were known. Pakistan has had her troubles (the officers concerned in the "Rawalpindi plot" of last March are still on trial), and it was just possible that a revolution was budding. Without hesitation, the Cabinet made the then Governor-General, Khwaja Nazimuddin, Prime Minister. It acted so swiftly that when the Foreign Minister, Zafrullah Khan, arrived back on the first available plane from New York, he let his colleagues understand that the shuffle was extra-constitutional. (For if the Governor-General had resigned, who could rightly call the new Prime Minister?)

BUT what may have been constitutionally wrong was certainly in practice right. Pakistan needed, and needed instantly, a man of firmness, moderation and experience at the helm. And Nazimuddin admirably filled the bill.

The change was welcomed by the country with discipline beyond praise. There have been provincial squabbles in Pakistan before now, especially between the West and the radically distinct East (Bengal). Nazimuddin is a Bengali, but no murmur of dissent came from the Punjabis of Lahore or the Pathans in Peshawar.

THE general air of restraint was striking. Even when it was announced that Liaquat's assassin was a national Afghanistan, a country with whom Pakistan's relations are notoriously poor, only a very few violent voices were raised in a cry for revenge.

Certainly there were spurts of provincial bickering when Nazimuddin began to cast round for his new Cabinet: the Sindhis, who had before only one member, demanded another; the refugees from Indian provinces (of whom Liaquat was one) wanted representation. But no one seriously questioned Nazimuddin's choices when, within a week of Liaquat's death, he announced his new team with only two fresh names.

MOHAMED ALI, Pakistan's brilliant Secretary-General, had with difficulty been persuaded to resign from the civil service and become Finance Minister. And Sardar Abdur Rab Nishtar, formerly Communications Minister and since then an admirably decisive Governor in the politically immature Punjab, took over the important Industries Ministry.

Mohamed Ali enters office to be greeted by the certainty of another surplus budget; Pakistan's ten per cent sales tax is rolling in the revenue. And though raw material prices have not yet entirely recovered from the merchant world's fear of peace in Korea, Pakistan's exports of cotton, wheat and jute ensure another year's favourable balance of trade.

NO country is perfect. Unemployment and lack of education are Pakistan's two most dangerous failings. Recently in Karachi a single vacancy for a clerk—at 60 rupees a month—attracted 1,200 applicants, including a fully qualified engineer and 60 M.A.'s. This is an appalling state of affairs and cannot by remedied unless Pakistan's many proposed new industries are quickly built up.

There is evidence that local capital, which in the past has been extremely shy, is now seeking the great opportunities open—especially in milling Pakistan's raw products. A traveller from the Punjab told me recently that he had met a "parvenu" miller in Multan who complacently expected to recover his capital outlay in five years.

BOTH local and foreign capital however is deterred by the unconscionable governmental delay in giving permits for capital issue. Pakistan's National Plan, which is intergrated with the Colombo Plan, aims at raising the standard of living by roughly 30 per cent in six years but of the 2,600 million rupees needed to finance the plan, about half is to be provided by foreign capital. Foreign capital is being particularly discouraged by the permit blockage.

Pakistan's top administrative men have to be spread thinly and carefully among the many onerous offices claiming them. Muslim education always lagged behind Hindu in undivided India, and the effect is now heavily felt in Muslim Pakistan. Not only are the top men too few, there are not enough good newcomers entering the administrative service. Though educated men clamour for jobs Pakistan's Public Services Commission, examining candidates for all types of administration cannot find enough entrants of good calibre. For education in Pakistan is hamstrung by tightness of money. The central Ministry of Education frequently reiterates that education is the job of the provincial governments, and the latter as often retort that they cannot afford the job while the centre appropriates the yield from all the important taxes.

THE provinces are not apathetic. The budget for education in West Punjab this year amounts to considerably more than the last similar budget for the whole of undivided Punjab. But the problem is so immense. "Before the birth of Pakistan" (according to an official handbook) "there were only five Government secondary schools for boys and none for girls in the whole province of Sind." Today the comparative figures are sixteen and five. But the province of Sind contains a population of over four and a half million in an area of 48,000 square miles.

But with all her difficulties and her racial divisions (there is little in common save Islam among Punjabis, Pathans and Bangalis), Pakistan, by her fortitude at the loss of her outstanding Prime Minister, has given an unforgettable demonstration of her national solidarity. Given five years of peace and untroubled political development, she will become a power. It does not need the cry of "jehad (holy war) for Kashmir" to unite Pakistanis, and both Pakistani and Indian politicians would do well to make this discovery.

Letters To The Editor

COMPLAINS OF BUS SERVICE

Sir: I am of the opinion that the Peterborough Bus Lines work buses, as a service in the morning, are a disgrace. These buses during the winter months are extremely overcrowded and there appears to be no consideration for the people that patronize them. On various occasions, (not infrequent) these vehicles are so crowded that the driver must ask passengers at each stop if the doors are clear. I would say these conditions on slippery roads greatly impair the driver's efficiency. If a private car were operated under similar conditions regularly, the driver would likely wind up in police court.

It is not uncommon to hear the driver say, "Move back in the aisle please", when there is absolutely no room, and one or two more passengers are packed in. There is much comment regarding this condition, and I feel safe in saying that most workers are very unsatisfied with the services rendered by the bus lines. I do not expect to find a seat on a crowded bus at 7 a.m., as the seating capacity is limited; but if I must stand, I would very much appreciate room to breathe. In many cities, standees on a bus are limited, and I think this policy should be adopted by Peterborough.

I do not in any way condemn the drivers for these conditions. In closing I would like to ask if the expense incurred to supply one or two extra buses for this one trip, would be too costly for the P.B.L. to shoulder?

I am quite certain that my feelings in this regard are shared by others.

Sincerely,
BRUCE L. CAMPBELL.

A NOMINEE FOR UTILITIES?

Sir: Monday, December the third has been selected as nomination day for municipal elections.

One member of the board of the Utilities Commission is up for election.

May I suggest through your paper that consideration be given as a candidate for this position to the name of Gordon Langley, recently retired from a most responsible position with the Canadian General Electric Co.?

Electrical equipment and its operation enter into the administration of this very important public service and Mr. Langley is eminently qualified to serve. I do not know that he would care to run but if sufficient pressure were brought to bear by the electors I feel that he would offer his services.

Peterborough is rapidly approaching a very important position as a progressive and stable industrial city in Canada and to maintain and improve that position it must be obvious to the electors that the services of men having the qualifications of Mr. Langley should be obtained.

It would be interesting to hear the views of other ratepayers and electors of Peterborough at this time on this important matter.

This letter is written in what the writer considers to be in the best interests of Peterborough and it is trusted that your invaluable paper will give this letter publication.

I am,
Yours sincerely,
C. H. ACKERMAN.

NATIONAL RESEARCH FELLOWS

Sir: In your well documented editorial of 29 September, entitled "Projecting Canada Abroad" you were kind enough to give "honourable mention" to the National Research Council. You state: "The Canadian Government has no comparable scholarships either to send Canadians abroad or to bring foreign students here, although the National Research Council sends young scientists to the United Kingdom."

While this statement is correct, as far as it goes, I think you might be interested to know that it covers only half the story; for, in the last few years, the National Research Council has also developed a scheme whereby some fifty young foreign scientists are being brought to Canada annually to work in the National Research Laboratories on a postdoctorate fellowship basis.

This "Postdoctorate Fellowship" program has worked out so well in fostering international relations that it might give you a lead to quite a good story in itself. Some background material is therefore enclosed. You will note, of course, that Canadians themselves and scientists from the United States may be among the successful candidates in these world-wide competitions.

Also, scholarships or leaves of absence granted to Canadian scientists for study abroad are not confined to the United Kingdom as your editorial seems to imply, but may be held in other countries, such as the United Sates or France. The point is not that the scientist is sent to a particular country but to a particular institution known for its exceptional research facilities in the field the candidate has chosen.

Yours faithfully,
S. J. COOK.
Officer-in-Charge, Public Relations,
Ottawa National Research Council

(Ed. Note: The two enclosed issues of the staff magazine note names, subjects and technical training of National Research postdoctorate Fellows. The March 1951 issue shows 35 Fellows, all doctors in science (Ph. D) in their first year, and 27 Fellows in their second with the National Research Council in Canada. They are engaged in laboratory research in special fields of atomic energy, chemistry, physics, radio and electrical engineering and biology, and come from India, South Africa, New Zealand, China, Switzerland, Ireland, Scotland, England, and Canadian provinces. Many are postgraduates of Oxford, Cambridge and London. The majority are from overseas.)

CIVIC FORGETFULNESS

Sir: How could the mayor forget to wear his golden chain of office. If it were cheap and made of paste; then perhaps we could forgive his haste.

It was sent from England; with all dispatch and haste a fully jewelled chain it was and not a thing of paste. But gloomy are my thoughts this day! My heart is filled with pain. How could the mayor of Peterborough forget to wear his chain.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

When Emphraim spake trembling, he exalted himself in Israel; but when he offended in Baal, he died. And now they sin more and more, and have made them molten images of their silver, and idols according to their own understanding, all of it the work of the craftsmen: they say of them, Let the men that sacrifice kiss the calves. Therefore they shall be as the morning cloud, and as the early dew that passeth away, as the chaff that is driven with the whirlwind out of the floor, and as the smoke out of the chimney.

Yet I am the Lord thy God from the land of Egypt, and thou shalt know no God but me; for there is no saviour beside me.... O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself; but in me is thine help. (Hos. 13: 1-4, 9.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Therefore also now, saith the Lord, turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning: and rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God. (Joel 2: 12, 13.)

Friends With Reds

(TORONTO SATURDAY NIGHT

A GREAT many people in Canada and indeed all over the free world must be sharing the puzzlement of Scott Young, which he describes in an article this issue, [an extract from the Saturday Night article is printed on our Second Front Page today.] about how he should behave towards an old friend who is a Communist. Mr. Young does not feel any desire to supply this old friend with any information that would contravene the Official Secrets Act; but then his friend hasn't asked him to, and he knows no official secrets anyhow. But he is reluctant to cease all communication with his friend, and to tell his friend that all communication both ways must cease—unless the Government will tell him that that is what he ought to do, thus taking the responsibility off his shoulders. For the trouble is that he still likes his friend, as a person and in spite of his being a Communist, and he cannot believe that merely being a Communist is a compelling reason why a person should not be liked by a non-Communist.

Mr. Young seems to us to be putting an awful lot on the shoulders of the Government, but then that is a tendency of the time. If his friend should ever succeed in establishing a Communist government in Canada, that government would not have the slightest hesitation about telling us that we must not associate with any opponent of Communism. (That is an argument which we think Mr. Young might use if he dislikes to tell his friend not to come around any more.) But meanwhile that fact remains that that is a rather totalitarian procedure, that we are not totalitarians, and that many Communists, apart from their tolerance of totalitarianism, are very charming and intelligent and even sincere persons. They are all, of course, if they are real Communists, prepared to betray the existing government and constitution of Canada but that is because they are more loyal to the Communist religion than they are to a capitalist Canada, and they are sincerely convinced that that loyalty to the Communist religion is right and moral and, for them, obligatory.

If there were any grave danger of the Communist party taking over the government of Canada, we suspect that Mr. Young would find little difficulty in abandoning this friendship. We wonder how many degrees less than grave that danger has to be for the friendship to remain possible.

Indians In High-Heel Shoes

(Victoria Times)

Now that the Prince and Princess have departed the shores of Vancouver Island, the time has come to ask ourselves:

Did we do a job? Did Their Royal Highnesses get a broad, representative look at our city and our people? Was the Victoria reception worthy of a city which prides itself on being one of the most unique, in personality and setting, of all the cities in Canada?

The answer, to any honest and fair-minded citizen, must certainly be: "No". The word for our reception was pedestrian, if not parochial. It was unimaginative: the same stiff formalities at City Hall, the Parliament Buildings, the state luncheon. The Indian dances, which might have offered some relief from this drab processional, were rendered comic, if not ludicrous, by the appearance of performers in high-heeled shoes and store-bought clothes.

Anxious To Begin Committee Study

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Senator A. K. Hugessen, Acting Government Leader, said Wednesday the government is anxious to get going on a committee study of resale price maintenance so as to be able to propose legislation before the end of the current session.

Senator Hugessen made the statement to the Senate as he proposed a resolution to appoint 12 Senators to serve on a joint Senate-Commons committee. The Commons will appoint 26 members.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative Leader, adjourned debate on the question.

The joint committee will base its studies on recommendations made in the MacQuarrie Royal Commission report on combines. Among them were recommendations to make it illegal for manufacturers to set the resale price on their articles or to refuse sale or withdraw franchises to enforce such set prices by the retailer.

Want To Exchange With Russ Students

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 — (CP).— McGill University Students Society Wednesday passed a resolution expressing "profound regret" that the National Federation of Canadian University Students turned down a plan for an exchange tour between Russian and Canadian students. Some 60 members of the McGill Society voted overwhelmingly to ask the NFCUS to call for a referendum on all Canadian campuses on the matter.

The Federation recently turned down the proposal for exchange visits of 15 Russian and 15 Canadian students because such a plan might bring bad publicity.

The McGill resolution expressed "total opposition to the aims and methods of Soviet Communism."

Urge Ottawa Boost Veteran Allowances

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Two veterans of the First World War Wednesdey urged the Federal Government to act at this session to increase war veterans' allowances.

J. N. Corry (L-Perth) commended the Immigration Department on its immigration policy, but said he was disappointed in the number of new immigrants coming from Britain.

He believed thousands of Britons would like to come to Canada but were prevented from doing so by financial difficulties.

(In London, the British Government announced Wednesday that as part of its austerity program, the amount of money Britons will be allowed to take out of the country will be reduced from £100 to £50.)

Mr. Corry also regretted that new immigrants, sent to Canadian farms, were leaving the farms too quickly for city life. Many of them come to Canada under contract to spend a year on farm work. He suggested the term should be extended beyond the one-year period.

Hornets Trim Cleveland 5-2

By The Canadian Press.

Pittsburgh Hornets retained their winning ways handing Cleveland Barons a 5-2 defeat Wednesday night to stretch their victory streak to 10 straight. They have only lost one game.

Dannie Lewicki and Gordie Hannigan scored two goals apiece to pace Frank (King) Clancy's squad to victory. This puts the Hornets safely atop the western division standing with 20 points.

Lewicki arrived from the parent Toronto Maple Leafs to reinforce Hornet scoring ability. He shot the puck home twice in a little over six minutes in the final period. Ray Hannigan got the other Hornet goal in the first period.

At Syracuse Real Chevrefils tied an individual scoring secord for the current American Hockey League season as he blasted home four goals to lead Hershey Bears to a 8-4 victory over Syracuse Warriors at War Memorial Auditorium.

At Cincinnati, the home team battled desperately back from a 4-1 deficit but couldn't overtake Buffalo Bisons last night and tumbled to a 4-3 loss. The defeat, before 2,545 fans, ended a four-game Mohawk winning streak.

Kid Gavilan Floors Janiro

DETROIT, Nov. 8 (AP).—The "Keed" from Cuba, welterweight champion Kid Gavilan, traded his famed bolo punch for left hooks here Wednesday night, and belted Tony Janiro way back down into the middleweight ranks.

Gavilan floored the Youngstown veteran three times in the fourth round of their 10-round non-title bout, and was awarded a technical knockout. It promised him a January date with England's Randy Turpin, one-time conqueror of Sugar Ray Robinson.

The grinning Gavilan explained later: "I knew Tony dropped his right every time he led with his left. I was waiting for him to do it, then I hit him with a left hook every time."

Janiro now has lost his last two bouts, the other being a 10-round TKO to Rocky Graziano here in October. Gavilan also took a split decision in a meeting last December.

Gavilan weighed 149¾ to Janiro's 154½.

Hockey of the OHA senior "B" variety returns to this borough tomorrow (Friday) eve at 8.30 in Civic Arena. It's Queen's University of Kingston against the Peterborough Eagles to start the 1951-52 schedule. Meantime, Petes are playing the Hawks in Belleville. On Monday, the Petes trek to the Harty Arena of the Limestone City to take on Queen's, and the next home game here then will be Wednesday with Kingston ex-Nylons meeting Eagles. Schedule which opens on the morrow runs through till nearly the end of February, followed by semi-final and final group playoffs. So, it's puck-playing time here once more.

* * * * * *

Ross Nicholls will be back in goal Friday pm for Eagles, with Keith Montgomery and Jim Munroe forming one defence pair, as Doug Mortimer and Moon Wooton team up on the other. First front line has Joe Rochetta flanked by Bill Crowley and George Brabin; second one has Bert Hill in centre with Buck Legrow and Dootch Vitarelli on the wings; and third has Freddy Mortimer betwixt Reg Stewart and Jim Wilson, an import from Toronto. Eagles have several more who will see action shortly, but this is the squad selected to open the campaign. Wootton, of course, is well-known as the star senior lacrosse goalie, while Brabin came here last spring to play senior ball and led the league in hitting.

* * * * * *

Keeping It In Family

The others are former Eagles, except for Legrow, a one-time Petes' player who performed for Port Hope last winter. Honey Tompkins hasn't a release yet from the Petes. Incidentally, there are quite a few brother acts on the two local clubs this semester. Red and Dean Wasson, up from junior; three Mortimers, Doug, Freddy and Jack—latter with the Petes—Gus and Earl Leonard; Junior and Dean West; as well as Dootch and Ned Vitarelli, latter being Eagles' coach. Jim Ellis handles the Petes. Andy Milne quit his job to play for Sudbury but hasn't got his release from Eagles, who want an OHA import replacement for him, claiming he quit without giving sufficient notice for them to get another player in.

* * * * * *

Quite a few of the senior lacrosse champs are going in for hockey this winter, apart from pros like Ike Hildebrand, Don Ashbee and Nit O'Hearn—though Bob Thorpe has hung up his skates for this season. Curly Mason and Arn Dugan are with the Petes, while Dootch Vitarelli and Moon Wootton play for the Eagles. Russ Slater and Lally Lalonde (who was in the gutted-stick game for a spell here last summer) have been out with Eagles, also, and may be seeing puck action ere long. Mick Magee is on that club's executive, and Red Creighton—no longer an active lacrosser—is team manager. Some of the junior OLA-ers probably chase pucks, too, in the cold spell.

Petes Guests Of Glenns

Speaking of lacrosse, the Mann Cup champions were guests at the Armouries last evening of the local branch of the S D & G Highlanders, holding their monthly meeting and get-together. Prexy Eric May welcomed the players and several club officials on their achievement in capturing a Canadian senior championship for this city. Ken Kingston, a past president of the branch, introduced the lacrossers, who later sat down to a fine luncheon prepared by Secretary Mike Caravaggie. Films included in the program, and a swell time enjoyed by the athletes as guests of a good outfit.

Orfuns' exhibition benefit football game with Panthers in Hamilton was postponed for the second time last eve, owing to inclement weather. No use staging a benefit when no crowd is expected out. It probably won't be played at all. However, tickets were sent out to all grid squads in the province to sell and returns were reported excellent, so a sizeable sum will be realized in any case. The money goes to the family of Angelo Cicero, Panther lineman, who died from a football injury suffered in Weston on Thanksgiving Day. Two former Hamilton senior coaches had arranged for this game, Merl Hapes of Panthers, and Frank Gnup of the Panthers.

Bruce Cummings Awarded Russel Trophy

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP). — Ottawa Rough Riders awaiting a shot at either Hamilton Tiger-Cats or Toronto Argonauts in the Big Four football final, have carried off the year's eastern individual gridiron honors.

Handsome Bruce Cummings, 25-year-old kicker playing his second year with the Riders, has been awarded the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy and Bruno Bitkowski, former Windsor high school player, has been named the league's outstanding rookie.

Their selection—from the votes of 11 Big Four referees and five league governors—was announced Wednesday night by Wes Brown, Big Four secretary-treasurer.

Cummings, five - foot - eleven halfback who in addition to his brilliant kicking has been outstanding in running back punts, is the eighth Rider to win the Jeff Russel Trophy since it was first presented in 1928.

To commemorate a young Montreal player who lost his life in an accident, the trophy goes to the player the judges consider best who combines sportsmanship with ability. The Riders' snap, Don Loney, won it last year.

Great Year

"What a year this'll be if we can grab the Grey Cup," said Cummings when told of his selection.

The graduate civil engineer from the University of Toronto—where he played with the Blues three years—had just come off the practice field.

"That's about all a fellow needs," added Bitkowski, 21-year-old giant who had his nose broken in the first game of the season.

Candidates for the Jeff Russel Trophy this year were: Billy Bass and Buckets Hirsch, Toronto; Bob Coulter and Bill Chambers, Montreal; Bernie Custis and Vince Mazza, Hamilton, and Bill Stanton and Cummings, Ottawa.

Candidates for the rookie award were: Phi Adrian and Mario Pacenti, Montreal; Peter Neuman, Hamilton, and Bitkowski.

Ball Attendance Down 7%

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 — (AP) — Major league baseball attendance dipped about seven per cent to 16,213,626 in unofficial figures for the 1951 season.

Ten of the 16 clubs showed a decline, the most startling being Boston Braves' 48-per-cent drop to 487,481 and Detroit Tigers' 42-per-cent decrease to 1,132,647.

Reflecting the improvement under manager Paul Richards, Chicago White Sox improved their 1950 attendance by a dazzling 70 per cent with a draw of 1,328,000. The Philadelphia A's also showed a marked gain on their sorry '50 figures, moving up 51 per cent with a paid total of 465,469.

Both the disappointing Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs dropped off 23 per cent to fall below the 1,000,000-mark.

The world champion New York Yankees led both leagues with 1,951, 464, about six per cent below their 1950 attendance. Cleveland was next with 1,704,984.

Brooklyn topped the National with 1,329,431, followed by New York Giants with 1,133,867. Each indicates a 12-per-cent increase. Attendance at the three-game tie playoff is included in the Dodger and Giant total.

Whether it was Bill Veeck, free orchids or grandstand managing, St. Louis Browns picked up a few customers, moving from 247,131 to 293,770, low for the majors. Still, the 46,639 increase represented a gain of 19 per cent.

Boros Nurses 2-Stroke Lead

PINEHURST, NC, Nov. 8 (AP) —Soft-spoken Julius Boros, rated as one of the comers among golf's young professionals, today nursed a two-stroke lead as the North and South Open Golf Tournament swung into the second round.

Boros, playing out of Southern Pines, NC, shot a steady 34-34—68 over the rugged 7,007-yard No. 2 championship course of the Pinehurst country club to lead Henry Picard of Cleveland and Tommy Wright of Kingsport, Tenn., by two strokes in yesterday's first round.

Sharing third place at 71, one under par, were: Tommy Bolt of Durham, NC, Francis (Bo) Winfinger, amateur from Pleasantville, NJ, and Manuel De La Torre, Milwaukee, Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Five more including defending champ Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., were bracketed at 72.

Tigers Wallop Sarnia 5-2, Dutchmen Win

By The Canadian Press.

Leaders in both Ontario Hockey Association Senior A and Junior A series maintained their position by turning in wins Wednesday night.

A four-goal splurge in the second period gave Hamilton Tigers a 5-2 triumph over Sarnia Sailors. The winners maintained their one point edge over Stratford Indians in the senior league.

Stratford edged Brantford Redmen 3-2 and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen took their third straight game, nipping Owen Sound Mercurys 5-4 on the strength of centre Bobby Schnurr's brilliant performance.

Meanwhile, Toronto Marlboros took a three point lead over the idle Guelph Biltmores, downing Barrie Flyers 6-3 in a junior loop clash at Barrie. Oshawa Generals and Windsor Spitfires tied, 4-4, in Windsor and Galt Black Hawks outgunned Waterloo Hurricanes 11-7. All other junior teams were idle.

Builds Up Lead

Hamilton built up a 5-0 lead in the first two frames before Ted Garvin clicked for both Sarnia goals in the last stanza. Fred Pankowski paced the Tigers with two goals while singletons went to Ron Kemp, Gord Peebles and Harold Hursley.

Schnurr stole the show as the Dutchmen came from behind to edge last year's Allan Cup winners. He scored the first four goals and then slipped a pass to Maurice Leveque who fired the winner. Mike Buchacheski Doug Gillespie, Ray McCallum and Andy Grant were Mercury marksmen.

The win enabled Kitchener-Waterloo to take over third place one point ahead of Sarnia and Owen Sound. Brantford remains in the cellar.

A goal by Larry Lemenchick, early in the last period, gave Stratford their triumph over the hapless Redmen. Mickey Roth and George Aitken accounted for the other goals with Linn and Olinski scoring for the losers.

Lead Dukes

Marlboros' top scorer, Eric Nesterenko led the Dukes, pumping two goals past Barrie goalie Lorne Howes. Ron Ingram, Wally Maxwell, Ted Reid and Karrys added others. Hitting the scoresheet for the sixth-place Flyers were Doug Mohns, with two, and Don McKenny.

There was little to choose in the battle between last place Spits, still without a win, and ninth-place Oshawa. Two by Bob Attersley and one apiece by George Nicholson and Bill Penn accounted for Oshawa's goals.

Ron Craven, last year with Medicine Hat Tigers, scored the tying goal for Windsor. Dick Gioia, Rod McElroy and Larry Tomi divided the early Spitfire scoring.

It was a big night for Galt sharpshooters as Pete Conacher set the pace with four goals. Tommy Fyles and Jack Price checked in with a pair. Others went to Ken Wharram, Bill McIntosh and Jim McBurney.

Third Period Brawl

Roger Maissoneuve, Chuck Wood and Paul Oliver potted a pair for Waterloo with Mader adding the seventh tally.

The game was highlighted by a third period brawl which saw officials hand out six majors.

Detroit Ties Rangers 4-4 As Leafs Fumble To 1-0 Win

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit's Red Wings came from behind to tie New York Rangers 4-4 in a National Hockey League game at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. That should take care of professional hockey's doings for the evening but in Toronto, two clubs known as the Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks (they're in the same league) fumbled around the well-manicured blue, white and red ice of Maple Leaf Gardens for 60 minutes. The result: 12,434 bored paying customers (plus the fortunate ones who don't have to pay) one goal for Toronto, none for Hawks.

Other essentials, but not necessarily pertinent to the whatwas-it: Max Bentley got his third goal of the season for Toronto at 9:43 of the second period. There were four penalties—three to Chicago—and a few gaps in the pews where customers had long departed before the gong charitably ended the thing.

The victory gave Toronto a second-place tie with Boston Bruins.

Not Much Comparison

From reports, anything resembling the type of hockey played in New York with the brand in Toronto was entirely misleading.

The league-leading Red Wings undefeated on the road in their current NHL safari, staged a rip-snorting third-period power drive to overcome a 4-1 deficit and earn the split in points. It left Detroit with 17 points, five more than the Leafs and Boston.

The blue-shirted Rangers bumped into the same difficulties they experienced most of last season. They can't stand prosperity.

They steamed ahead to a 2-0 lead at the end of the second period, gave up one goal early in the third and appeared well on the way to a win with another two fast counters.

And that's when they fell apart. Red Wings stormed in, tied it up on Gordie Howe's fifth goal of the season at 12:06 following markers by Glen Skov and rookie Alex Delvecchio, and skated off with the point.

Delvecchio led Red Wing marksmen with two goals, duplicating the performance of New York's freshman, Wally Hergesheimer. Steve Kraftcheck and the veteran Edgar Laprade looked after the other New York markers.

Stamford Defeats Welland In Playoff

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 8 — Stamford Hornets won the Central Ontario Secondary School Association Niagara district senior football championship on Wednesday when they defeated Welland High School 2-0 in a sudden-death playoff game.

Despite freezing temperatures and ice and snow underfoot on the field few fumbles occurred. Stamford's victory puts the team in line to meet Orillia in the COSSA provincial semi-finals.

Tiger-Cats "Discover" Star In 24-7 Victory Over Hard Slugging Argos

By JACK SULLIVAN

TORONTO, Nov. 8. (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats are probably counting their blessings today. Out of the bleak mud and slush, ice undercoating and water puddles of Varsity Stadium, they have "discovered" a star who should help them materially along the glory road to the Grey Cup. The name: Cam Fraser, 21-year-old fuzzy-chinned freshman who made his big-league debut in yesterday's frolic and fired his team-mates to a 24-7 walloping over Toronto Argonauts in the first of the two-game total-points Big Four Football Union semi-final. The 17-point cushion should be enough to send the Cats against Ottawa in the finals next week.

Ironically enough, the well-beaten Argonauts can claim some share in the find. If they had heeded Hamilton's pleas to use the Canadian Rugby Union's new $12,000 tarpaulin in an effort to make Varsity a reasonable facsimile of a football field, Fraser might still be waiting around for his chance.

Desperate Try

The youngster, out of Hamilton's junior ranks, was sent in by coach Carl Voyles in the second half after Tom Worthington finished a poor second in the first-half kicking duel with Argonaut's cool Joe (King) Krol. Worthington couldn't make the soggy ball behave on his punts and Voyles, who "didn't have the nerve" to dress Fraser in league games, gave him the go-ahead.

The lean, long-legged kid in his bright new uniform stunned the 12,200 brave customers in the stands with as brilliant a performance as they've seen all season. He out-kicked the great Krol, sent the Blue Backs scurrying for his towering 45 and 55-yard spirals and the Cats took over from there.

Behind 7-6 going into the last two quarters, the big Bengals who spent most of the first half trying to get out of their own zone due to Worthington's ineffective kicking, found themselves roaming in Argo territory. And they made it pay off.

Line Tightens

The line tightened against the desperate Argonauts, proven muddiers as demonstrated by their 13-0 Grey Cup victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers last year. The front wall also bored holes in the Argo line for fast-charging backs, and that was the ball game.

The Tigers powered for three touchdowns—two of them converted—and a single, and at the final whistle the 1950 champions were still groping around deep in their own area.

Hal Waggoner carried the explosive, point-scoring power in his 170-pound frame with two spectacular touchdowns. Early in the first quarter he burst through the middle in the clear and outpaced fleet Argo backs for a 72-yard major. In the third he snaked around a flock of would-be Argo tacklers on a 22-yard gallop around the left end for his other touchdown.

Make Mistakes Pay

Tiger-Cats, on the prowl and ever alert, converted Argo mistakes and a freak play, a direct result of the field conditions, to their advantage.

Eddie Bevan pounced on a Doug Smylie fumble behind the Toronto line for a fourth-quarter touchdown and minutes later an Argo third-down snapback from a puddle of water floated in the small-sized river before reaching Krol, giving Hamilton possession on the Toronto 12. From there quarter Bernie Custis ghosted around the end for the fourth and final touchdown.

Toronto's lone touch in the second quarter probably hurried Fraser on the scene to handle the kicking chore. Worthington fumbled a first-down snap behind the Hamilton line and Art Scullion picked it up about five yards out and walked across.

Krol accounted for two Argo singles and Tip Logan, classy convert and placement kicker, contributed three converts and a single to the Hamilton cause.

Argonauts will be sadly weakened for the final Saturday. Back Ted Toogood is out with a shoulder separation and linemen Lorne Parkin and Fred Black suffered leg injuries.

REFLECTIONS IN WATER—Ice, snow, slush and deep puddles covered Varsity Stadium at Toronto when Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts played the first of a home and home total-point playoff series in the Big Four. Ulysses Curtis, giant Argo halfback, plows through the mire for four yards in the second quarter. Also seen are Stretch Whaley, Argo outside wing; Woolley, Tiger Cat lineman, and Al Pfeifer, Argo outside. Some 12,200 braved the wintry weather to see the game. The winner plays Ottawa Rough Riders for the title. The extra series was made necessary when the three teams deadlocked for first place in regular season. Tiger Cats won the first game 24-7.

Berra Voted Most Valuable League Player

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 — (AP) — Yogi Berra, squat New York Yankee catcher, today was voted most valuable player in the American League for 1951 in an astonishing finish to a wide-open race.

Tabulation of votes from the 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America showed Berra, Ned Garver of St. Louis and Allie Reynolds of the Yanks each with six first-place ballots.

The result was sure to start tongues wagging around the circuit, for Berra slumped badly in September and finished with a .294 average. The 26-year-old Berra led the Yanks in runs batted in with 88 and hit 27 home runs.

Berra won on points with a total of 184 on the basis of 14 for a first-place vote, nine for second and so on down to one for 10th. Garver, baby-faced 20-game winner for the last-place Brownies, was a close second with 157. Reynolds, who threw two no-hitters for the world champs, was third with 125.

Voting was distributed among 33 players with another 15 receiving honorable mention in the closest finish in years.

With Berra in the American and Brooklyn's Roy Campanella in the National this was the first time two catchers ever were named most valuable.

Eight men drew first-place votes. Berra won on the strength of five seconds, four fourths, a fifth, two sixths, a seventh, an eighth and two ninths. He was mentioned on 22 ballots, more than any other player.

Garver (20-12) pitched the most complete games — 24 — and accounted for about 40 per cent of the Brown's total victories.

Reynolds' second no hitter clinched at least a tie for the Yankees in the last week of the season. Teammates Ed Lopat and Vic Raschi topped him in wins but his 17-8 record included seven shutouts.

Orestes (Minnie) Minoso, Chicago White Sox rookie, was fourth in the voting with 120 points. Bobby Feller of Cleveland was fifth with 118 points and Ferris Fain of Philadelphia, the league batting champion, at .344, was sixth with 103.

CHINA CLIPPER GOES DOWN—Edmonton's powerful halfback Normie (China Clipper) Kwong is pulled down from behind by Mickey Maguire of Saskatchewan Roughriders early in the first quarter of Saturday's Western Football Conference playoff game. Eskimos won the first of the best-of-three series 15-11. Roy Wright (3) is close by to help Maguire. Kwong is wearing the rubber-bottomed felt "weather boots" created by Edmonton coach Annis Stukus as a big factor in the victory. An inch of snow covered the Edmonton field by the end of the game.

Bowmanville Tries To Preserve Team

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 8 — Plans were formed at a meeting of the Bowmanville Recreation Commission to keep intermediate hockey alive here.

Mike Osborne, former sponsor of the Bowmanville Imperials, winners of their OHA group the past two seasons, announced two weeks ago that he would not sponsor a team this season.

An executive was elected and it is planned to sell "booster tickets" at $1 each to raise the money necessary for the maintenance of the team.

Named coach was Don Gilhooley, one of the district's best players and one of the Imperials for the past two seasons. The new executive: President, George Moodey; vice-president, Frank Jamieson; secretary - treasurer, Nels Osborne; manager, Bob Watt.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series have asked the OHA to suspend right winger Jack McKenzie of Toronto, business manager Walter Scherer said Wednesday.

Scherer said McKenzie, a Brandon, Man., junior star, failed to fulfill his obligations to play for the Dutchmen. A University of Toronto student in his final year in a physical education course, he signed to play with the local team some weeks ago but has not been out with them since.

Big Don Newcombe, one of the mainstays of the Brooklyn Dodgers pitching staff, was ordered to report to Fort Jay, NY, for further tests after a preliminary pre-induction physical at selective service headquarters Wednesday. There was no word on whether he will be accepted or rejected for the armed services.

Coach Annis Stukus of the Edmonton Eskimos Wednesday nixed the suggestion that he would coach a football team in Vancouver next year. In an interview the genial coach said:

"What, start all over again from nothing? Do you want to kill me? I'm getting out of football."

His comments were prompted by a Vancouver story that Stukus wants to go back to Toronto and write sports but Mrs. Stukus wants to go to the coast.

Tracy Hammond Lewis, 60, well-known outdoor writer and sportsman, died Wednesday at Richmond, Va., after a brief illness. Lewis was an internationally famous gunner. He won the American national trapshooting championship in 1931 and again in 1934, in both singles and doubles.

Wally Hergesheimer, high-scoring right winger with Cleveland Barons last year and this season with New York Rangers, was presented Wednesday night with the Dudley (Red) Garrett Memorial Trophy, emblematic of the rookie-of-the-year award in the American Hockey League.

Kid Gavilan and his bolo punch stopped Tony Janiro of Youngstown after 2:41 minutes of the fourth round of their 10-round non-title fight at Detroit Wednesday night. Janiro held a 4¾-pound edge over 149¾-pound Gavilan.

Referee Clarence Rosen rushed in and halted the nationally-televised and broadcast battle after Gavilan's roundhouse rights had floored Janiro twice in the round.

Gavilan, world welterweight champion from Cuba, is scheduled to get a fight with Randy Turpin of England as a result of this victory.

Brockton, Mass., police disclosed Wednesday night that two postcards had been received in Brockton warning that an attempt would be made on the life of Rocky Marciano, knockout conqueror of Joe Louis, when he appears at a public reception Saturday.

One of the cards received at police headquarters said: "Don't take chances. Watch Rocky. He will be hurt, better watch. He will pay."

Police said that although the cards appear to be the work of a crank a large detail of police will be assigned to protect the boxer.

Many People Feel Liberal Party On Last Legs In Great Britain

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 8 (CP)—Everybody but the alleged corpse appears to feel that this is the time for sad farewells to Britain's proud old Liberal party.

Words like "demise" and "Liberal sunset" are softly spoken in discussions on the recent general election. For the Liberals, "election inquest" has a shudderingly real meaning.

Yet there is a strong feeling that the party still comes closer than any other to reflecting the ideals and spirit of the British. How many times, in pubs and parlors, does a man shake his head ruefully and say:

"Well, I'm a Liberal in politics myself, but I guess I'll have to vote for one of the other parties this time."

Big Battalions

That is the dilemma. There is simply no room for the Liberals under an electoral set-up rapidly fossilizing into a two-party system, Socialists and Conservatives are the big battalions and in a sense they are self-supporting. An elector frightened of either of the big parties tends to vote for the other, knowing his vote will not be wasted.

The solution seems to be electoral reform. But there is no great support here for proportional representation or the alternative vote, the argument being that these would encourage a multiplicity of parties and lead to the indiscipline that marks politics in some continental countries.

In last month's election, the Liberals ran 109 candidates and elected only six of them, suffering a one-thrid cut in their parliamentary representation. Their popular vote was slightly less than three per cent of the total, compared with 9.15 per cent in 1950.

Since the First World War, the party, in its zenith under William Ewart Gladstone, has made four heroic attempts to regain its position. But it has lost ground steadily. In 1929 it polled more than 5,000,000 votes with 512 candidates. In 1945 its 307 candidates polled slightly more than 2,000,000, and in 1950 there were 2,600,000 votes for 475 candidates.

The party has hoped at least to become an effective "third force" exerting a moderating influence on the two big teams. The half-dozen members it actually elected may be too small in numbers to perform that function. Thus the big Liberal fear is that one small error by the ruling Conservatives may alienate opinion and bring back the socialists with a large majority.

Thomson Gives Breakdown Of Fees From VLA

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—Liberal leader Walter Thomson said Wednesday the fees he received as Ontario solicitor for the director of the Veterans' Land Act were one-third of the minimum fee set by the County of York Law Association for that sort of work.

He said he received from the federal government over a five-year period $345,427.95 for fees and out-of-pocket disbursements. He said this averages $22.50 a title and the average value of properties involved was $6,000.

Mr. Thomson said the Law Association set a minimum fee of $75 on a $6,000 transaction. He said one-third of the federal money he received was spent on legal fees and expenses not including wages, office overhead or travelling expenses. From the balance he had to pay his staff, comprising 35 persons; maintain offices in Toronto, Hamilton and London; and pay staff travelling expenses.

At Bradford Tuesday night Attorney-General Dana Porter criticized the amount Mr. Thomson received in VLA fees.

Mr. Thomson said he had hoped for a "clean campaign" and regrets that his Conservative opponents "by inference and half-truths, . . . are trying to suggest there is something improper about the fees paid me by the federal government. . ."

DEPARTING PRINCESS—Princess Elizabeth, a bouquet of roses clasped in her arms, and the Duke of Edinburgh left Quebec Monday for the Maritimes and their journey back to Britain. They are shown at St. Hyacinthe as they began their last day in the province.

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 (CP)—Icy conditions on the Transatlantic runway at Dorval Airport Wednesday caused a KLM airliner, taking off for Amsterdam, to overshoot the runway and tilt on one wing. None of the 40 passengers was injured.

New Canadians To Display Art

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Artists who have come to Canada from other countries since the Second World War will be given an opportunity this winter to prove that their contributions have an integral place in Canadian culture.

The London Public Library and Art Museum is sponsoring an exhibition of paintings by New Canadians to be held from Nov. 23 to Dec. 30. The exhibition will have a two-purpose theme:

To give new Canadians a chance to exhibit their work and to show other Canadians the cultural influences that these recent arrivals have brought to Canada.

After the art show has been seen here it will move on tour to other Canadian cities.

Artists will be permitted to submit up to four paintings and these will be judged locally for hanging in the London gallery at art centres in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Sackville, NB, Winnipeg and Calgary.

Campbellford Hunter Gets Appendicitis

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 8—(ENS)—H. J. Taylor, Campbellford frozen food locker proprietor was rushed to a Red Cross outpost hospital near Bancroft early Tuesday, when he was stricken with an attack of appendicitis while deer hunting in the area.

Mr. Taylor suffered the attack while hunting at a camp about twenty miles north of Bancroft. He is reported to be progressing favorably but his deer hunt has been spoiled, at least for this year.

Crown Asks $1,000 Bail In Liquor Case

Bail of $1,000 was asked by assistant crown attorney Walter Howell when Alvin Johnson, 25, of 265 Hunter St., west appeared in police court today on a charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

Mr. Howell also asked that the charge be changed from a summary matter as it was recorded on November 1 when Johnson first appeared, to an indictable offence. Magistrate W. R. Philp granted both of the crown's requests. Johnson was remanded on $1,000 bail until November 21 for preliminary hearing.

The charge was laid November 1 after Roy Bryan, 30, of 253 Dalhousie St., was found lying injured and unconscious on Lake St., near George St., shortly after midnight. Johnson is said to have told police he and Bryan both fell from a moving car as Byran swung the car sharply on to Lake St., from George St.

Witness

A witness told police he saw a man get in the car and drive away from the scene after the accident.

Johnson is also charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

A plea of not guilty on the charge was entered for Johnson after he pleaded not guilty on November 1, to the charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Both charges were adjourned until today.

Bryan is still in hospital with a fractured skull and concussion. Hospital authorities said this morning his condition is improving but it is understood he will not be out of hospital for another two weeks.

The charge of leaving the scene of an acident was adjourned until the preliminary hearing on the impaired charge on November 21.

Nip Profitable Business

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 8 (AP). — Egg production at the Oregon prison's unwalled farm annex has risen 20 dozen a day since Warden Virgil J. O'Malley increased the number of guards there. "You can't tell me the hens started laying more eggs just because more guards were around," O'Malley said. "What happened was that the convicts had to quit selling eggs to the neighbors."

Fined $10

Charged with creating a disturbance in a public place, Harry Yeotes, 446 Gordon Ave., pleaded guilty in police court Wednesday and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Drives Thief Away

PORTSMOUTH, NH, Nov. 8 (AP).—A young would-be holdup man Wednesday night entered Mrs. Anthony Krisuk's grocery store and demanded money. Said Mrs. Krisuk: "You get out and earn your money the hard way. The way I do." He left.

Ability To Drive Impaired Man Fined $50

A charge of drunk driving against Kenneth Waugh, 30, 56 River Rd., was withdrawn at the request of Assistant Crown Attorney Walter Howell in police court Wednesday, after Waugh pleaded guilty to driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

On October 8, Waugh pleaded not guilty to both charges.

Magistrate W. R. Philp ordered Waugh to pay a fine of $50 and $2.50 costs, or in default one month in county jail.

Constable Arthur Beardsmore testified that Waugh's speech was "thick, he was staggering and smelled strongly of liquor" when he was arrested.

After forcing a car into the curb at Dalhousie and George Streets, and damaging its bumper, Constable Beardsmore said Waugh did not stop but continued west on Dalhousie St.

With Constable Beardsmore in pursuit, the chase continued west on Dalhousie St., and north on George until the police cruiser overtook him at the CPR tracks.

When he left the car momentarily to get his notebook in the police cruiser, Constable Beardsmore said Waugh had disappeared when he returned and was later arrested at the CPR station.

Would Permit Elderly Men Church Deacons

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 8 (CP) —Retired business men yesterday were recommended to the 10th session of the Anglican Synod of Ontario to serve as Deacons and generally help meet the current shortage of clergy.

Dean R. C. Brown of London said at a final session of the two-day meeting that many elderly men, active in church work would be able to help more effectively than lay readers who are not permitted to perform baptisms. The church might consider permitting such persons to celebrate holy communion in the absence of the regular priest.

Rt. Rev. W. L. Wright, Bishop of Algoma said if the work of the church were to continue, there must be a "steady stream" of new clerymen from each diocese.

Delegates passed a resolution suggesting that, in revision of the prayer-book, a rubric be included in the marriage ceremony to provide for advance notice of intent to marry. In addition, before the wedding, the rector should instruct the couple in the fundamentals of Christian marriage.

At another session the Synod urged observance of Sunday as a day of worship and asked Canadians not to participate in activities alien to such observance.

Otonabee Assessor Reports Assessment Of $2,199,750

KEENE, Nov. 7 (ENS).—Total land and building assessment of $2199,720 for Otonabee Township for 1951 was reported at the township council meeting by assessor Granet Shields.

Mr. Shields explained that this was an increase in assessment of $155,768. Building assessment increased from $10,050 to $19,475.

He reported that there were 25 houses under construction in the township and these will be assessed at a later date.

Building permits issued up to Oct. 31 totalled $226,640—$126,850 for new residences and $99,790 for new commercial buildings.

It was announced that court of revision for appeals from 1951 assessments will begin Nov. 19.

Arnold Nelson was appointed to the Otonabee Memorial rink committee for a two year term.

The 1951-52 snow plowing contract was given to Fred Nelson.

Accounts of $8,190.23 were passed for payment.

SANTA CLARA, Calif., Nov. 8 (AP). — Thoughts of Christmas started Jackie Cambra, 6, on a test run. He climbed the trellis of his home, crossed the roof, clambered into the fireplace chimney, and started down. He got stuck. Stop Building New Schools Thomson Economic Aid Plan

By The Canadian Press

Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, says the province should call a temporary halt to school construction and, for the sake of economy, make the old red schoolhouse do a little longer. "I'm not averse to good schools, but we must build and train our staffs and pay them enough that they do not skip into some other walk of life," he told a Simcoe East gathering at Midland Wednesday night in a Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign address in support of candidate John MacIsaacs. "We must spend according to our ability to earn and to tax."

E. B. Jolliffe, CCF leader, spoke at Belleville, while Premier Frost, touring Bruce and Huron ridings, addressed meetings at Walkerton and Goderich.

Mr. Thomson said a breather from building "these magnificent schools" would reduce expenditures on education and thereby cut down the cost of living. He said his party, if elected, will improve teacher training and raise teachers' salaries, but will take no action on changes recommended in the Hope Royal Commission report on education.

Stealing Thunder

Mr. Jolliffe, speaking in support of Arthur Whitehead and Ernest Gibbs, CCF candidates for Hastings East and Hastings West, said five pieces of social legislation passed by the government are "cheap and shoddy" imitations of measures advocated by the CCF. He mentioned the Planning Act, the hours of work and vacations with pay Act, the Workmen's Compensation Act, the fair Employment Practices Act and the Female Employees' Remuneration Act.

All were passed in response to CCF representations, he said. But in the form the government enacted them, they were all "so full of loopholes" as to be almost inoperative.

Premier Frost, campaigning for return of his government on its record, said at Goderich that his administration has co-operated with the federal government and with the governments of other provinces. Such co-operation was needed for the success of the St. Lawrence seaway project.

10 Hydro Developments

Te told his Walkerton audience that 10 hydro developments have been brought into production since the Progressive Conservatives took office in 1943. He said that during nine years in office prior to 1943, Liberal governments built no new generating plants, although costs were low at that time, and actually turned away power which could have been made available.

The Premier also took part in a round-table broadcast with five of his cabinet ministers.

HISTORICAL CANAL

The Erie canal was opened in 1825 when the first boat travelled through it from Buffalo to New York City.

STRIKE CALL—S. C. Phillips, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, makes a call from the union's regional strike headquarters in Cincinnati, as they prepare for a nationwide strike. The railroads affected are the Baltimore and Ohio; Louisville and Nashville; Chicago and Northwestern; and the Terminal Railroad of St. Louis.

UK Mayor Grateful For Visit

Greatly Impressed With City Says Alderman

Mayor G. R. Chamberlain and Alderman E. V. Martin of Peterborough, England, said this morning they were leaving for home with deeply grateful memories of the hospitality they had received during their two weeks here.

Mayor Chamberlain came to Peterborough on the invitation of the city council to perform the function of officially opening the city hall.

"We have been greatly impressed with your city," said Ald. Martin. "It has all the evidence of having been well planned, and compares most favorably with our own Peterborough. We have been overwhelmed with kindness since our arrival in Montreal, and we are sorry to have to leave earlier than we expected.

"But, the weather has compelled us to forego any longer stay, and I understand that this early winter has been most unusual. There are so many people we would like to thank personally for their kindness to us, but we cannot see them individually, and we hope they will accept our thanks as conveyed through The Examiner.

"But I would like to express our gratitude to Mr. J. K. Hughes and General Motors Company for placing an automobile at our use. It was a great convenience. We would like to mention, also, Mr. Carl Graham, who was our chauffeur, and most helpful to us. To Mr. Ford Warren, local manager of the Bank of Montreal, and to the Montreal officers up to the president; we are also grateful for their most cordial welcome.

"We have been most impressed by all the reports we have read of the wonderful reception of the people of Canada to Princess Elizabeth. It has been deeply moving and we are glad we were here at this time to feel that sentiment of affection for the Princess and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh and to know also that Canadians have warm and loyal hearts for Their Majesties the King and Queen.

"If I were a younger man," Ald. Martin said, "I would very seriously consider coming out here, because I can see that there are great possibilities in Canada."

Great Possibilities

Mayor Chamberlain expressed the hope that, if any local people visit England, they would make a special trip to Peterborough, "and we shall try to make them welcome."

"I may say," His Worship continued, "that your people are much better off than we are. Your rents are higher than ours, but your wages and salaries are also very substantially more. I have been impressed by the number of automobiles in your cities, and about your factories.

"The number of telephones, refrigerators, furnaces and especially automatic oil heating, and the general amenities of your homes are more widely spread than in England. You have so many material advantages that are not so common to us.

"We wish for Peterborough successful administration in its new city hall and also in your industries."

Said Ald. Martin: "We sincerely hope that you will retain for us over there the goodwill that you have shown to us personally. Our time of austerity is not ended, as Mr. Churchill intimated and quite evidently we shall have to work harder than ever."

Own Back Yard

In its efforts to get downtown streets cleared, the city enginering department must have forgotten to clean off its own back door parking lot behind the city hall. At noon today, cars were still slithering in and out through six inches of snow and slush. None of the snow which has fallen during the last few days has been shovelled or plowed off the recently paved parking lot. Several civic employees complained this morning as they jockeyed their cars into parking positions and sloshed through ankle deep snow and slush to their offices.

G. N. Moncrief Apple Grower Dies At Home

The only large scale apple grower in Peterborough county, Gordon Norman Moncrief, 58, died today at his home on Highway 28 on the watering trough hill.

Mr. Moncrief, a familiar figure on the Peterborough market was badly injured in a highway accident several years ago, and his health had never been good since.

For more than 25 years he was a member of the official board of Trinity United church, and for several years a councillor for North Monaghan township. In that same township, he was for years a leader of the Conservative party.

Before he started his fruit orchard, Mr. Moncrief was a market gardener. Recently he built an apple packing and storage plant, one of the few in the district, and he was always considered one of the more progressive apple growers of central Ontario.

At one time he kept a dairy herd, and was a member of the Milk Producers' Board for Peterborough, but his main interest was in fruit growing.

Mr. Moncrief was born in Smith township, a son of the late John Moncrief and Elizabeth Rutherford. He spent his lifetime in the Peterborough district. A brother, Sidney Earl Moncrief, who was a dairyman, died in 1950.

Surviving are his widow, the former Sophie A. Elliott, two daughters, Jean Eleanor of Oshawa, and Doris Ruth at home, and one sister, Mrs. Archie Beatty of Peterborough.

Funeral service will be on Saturday at 2 pm at the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon will officiate and burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Omemee Man Says Has Red Friend Working In Unions

"Should I keep my Commie friend?" asks the magazine and short-story writer Scott Young, in a featured article in the weekly "Saturday Night." The article is especially interesting to people in Peterborough because writer Scott Young's buddy since boyhood days, his Commu[illegible]s friend came to Peterborough to help UE in its campaign to gain power in the CGE plant. The article is in the issue of "Saturday Night" published today. Mr. Young has been living in Omemee for more than a year.

Scott Young tells of his perplexity in remaining friends with this man (whom he does not name) with whom he has been on intimate terms since their school days in Winnipeg. He tells how some people in Omemee are aghast that he, their neighbor, is associating with a Red.

He tells how this Communist has been working: "When there's a hot strike on, or a dispute over Communism within a union, he's almost always part of the fight. One summer when the UE outwardly at least was at peace with the world but the Canadian Seamen's Union was playing hell up and down the coasts, he turned up in the Maritimes working for the CSU."

Here are excerpts from the middle of the article. There is not space to print Mr. Young's full development of his question, 'Can or should a patriotic Canadian continue a friendly association with a known Communist?' He is worried lest a Communist witch-hunt develop in Canada, and whether the finger of suspicion will be pointed at people like him who continue to be friendly with Reds. Examiner readers should consult 'Saturday Night' for the complete article.

"I would sound ridiculous if I told you the details of the things I shared as a youth with this man who now is a sinister figure to many people. So let's pick it up when we were adults. He was in the Army long before I joined the Navy. He didn't get overseas, because he was so good a writer that a government department got him on a loan from the army to write plays and films which were part of the wartime propaganda effort. He was in Ottawa just after New Year's of 1945 when I returned from overseas and we spent a lot of time together. He was on such good terms with the cabinet minister of his department that the cabinet minister one night invited both of us to the Rideau Club.

At Home Together

"Perhaps he was a Communist then. I don't know. In 1946 he quit in Ottawa and went to Toronto, then my home. In the month or so it took him to find an apartment, his mother stayed in my home; he and his wife visited us often. About a year after that he resigned from the small company of which he was president and went to work for the reddest union in the country, the

Farmers Neglect To Clear Snow At Mail Boxes

Rural mail delivery men said at the post office this morning that farmers were neglecting to keep clear of snow the approaches to their mail boxes.

"In the thirty miles on my route," said one of the delivery men, "only one box had been shovelled."

"Three farmers in another route of 40 miles had complied with the requirement of the post office department.

"When you have to call at 175 boxes on one route, you just haven't time to stop the car, shut off ignition, walk through the snow and back again," one of the R-R men said.

"The average farmer probably thinks of only his own box, and does not use his imagination to see that we have so many others in the round of calls. We want to deliver the mail. We don't want all the trouble of having to bring it back to the post office."

Snow Regulations

The men say that regulations call for clearance at the boxes to enable them to deposit mail directly from the automobile.

"That is the way the work can be done on time, and the co-operation of farmers is very important."

The comments expressed the attitude of all the rural mail men. Regulations require sufficient clearance of snow at the mail boxes, they say. The alternative is suspension of deliveries until the requirements are carried out.

Grant Accuses PC Gov't Of Standing Pat

"Our present government is a conservative, stand pat government. To stand pat in this age is to retreat."

This statement was made Wednesday night by William Grant, CCF candidate in the Nov. 22 provincial election. Mr. Grant gave a short address in the CCF committee room.

Mr. Grant said the present government had carefully avoided making "its usual long list of rash pre-election promises which it never intends to keep." He said that these promises "would contrast strangely with the past record of the government."

Claim Credit

He accused the Conservative party of claiming credit for achievements for which it was not actively responsible. He named two—old age pensions and new hospital construction.

"The first stands to the credit of the federal government, relentlessly pushed by the CCF over the years," he said. "The second is principally the work of local municipalities niggardly assisted by both provincial and federal governments."

Mr. Grant called for a quick overhauling of the most advanced labor laws to achieve the purpose for which they exist—speedy and just settlement of labor disputes.

He said that "the CCF since its formation in 1932 has consistently pressed for enactment of social welfare legislation such as old age security, socialized hospitalization and medical care."

He explained the Conservative role as a government was one of only being agreeable.

"If you want action, not standpatish good fellowism, vote CCF," Mr. Grant concluded.

Campaign Manager Serving On Jury Duty

The long arm of the law and order has thrown a monkey wrench into the plans of the local Liberal party. Campaign manager Eldon Purvis is serving on the jury hearing the murder charge against Mrs. Lillian Thompson, charged with shooting her husband. And so, the itinerary for F. P. (Paddy) Burke, Liberal candidate, has not yet been made up, although others of the party are laying the groundwork for it this week.

Engineers Must Realize Responsibilities—Macnab

Engineers are playing such a vital role in the world today that they must realize their responsibilities to society. This was the theme of Dr. Ira P. Macnab's address to the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at the Kawartha Club Wednesday evening.

A native of Halifax, Dr. Macnab is president of the Engineering Institute of Canada. He paid his official visit to the local branch Wednesday and spoke to the members following the baked ham dinner which has become a traditional feature of the president's annual visit.

No Visitors

Bad weather and icy roads prevented members of the Belleville branch from attending the dinner meeting which had been planned as a joint affair between the two branches. They were represented by Charles Lusk who expressed his regrets that the weather had discouraged his group from making the trip.

Introduced by F. R. Pope as "one of Nova Scotia's most distinguished citizens, Dr. Macnab has been in the engineering profession for half a century. He told the meeting he had been here once before 30 years ago.

After travelling around the country in the course of his duties, Dr. Macnab said he had found the development that is going on in this country "almost beyond belief. It is hard to conceive a country of 14,000,000 doing what we are doing," he continued, "and we have only scratched our potentialities."

"Seeing so many industries makes one proud to be an engineer and makes one realize the great part the engineer is playing in our present economic life."

Must Have Engineers

Dr. Macnab said that the engineering profession which was born in the earliest days of the industrial revolution had developed to a point where the world could hardly continue without the services of engineers.

This means that we also have tremendous responsibilities. Up to now, we have been so busy with the technical end that we have more or less forgotten the spiritual values of the world. If we don't consider them, it is difficult to say where we will land, he said.

Tracing the "staggering developments" he has seen take place during the last 50 years in the fields of communications, machinery and electronics, Dr. Macnab said that he did not think that engineers appreciate what they have done and the responsibilities resulting from those accomplishments.

"If we don't accept these responsibilities, not only as technical men but as citizens, we may well blow up the world," the speaker warned.

Helped By Public

Dr. Macnab said that over 50 per cent of the cost of an engineer's education is paid for by public funds or scholarships to assist them in paying for their education. Consequently he said, "We owe our society a very great debt and society is entitled to expect a reasonable return for what they have done. We must apply our brains and training to solving the problems of the world."

Dr. Macnab was thanked by A. J. Bonney, chairman of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Following the dinner meeting at the Kawartha club, the members attended a mixed reception at the home of H. R. Sills, 542 Gilmour St. The members' wives attended a dinner with Mrs. Macnab at the Empress Hotel.

Snowfall Sends Cattle To Barns

Most of Ontario's cattle are now under cover since snow at the weekend brought an overnight switch from autumn to winter. Several section of the western corner of the province appear to be outside the present snow scene, as reported in the Ontario Department of Agriculture's weekly review.

Bruce County: "Recent snowfall necessitated the stabling of most of the cattle"; then coming to Welland: "Winter weather has forced the stabling of stock, and a six-inch snowfall has put a stop to the season's work—for the time being"; then on to the eastern frontier—Lanark: "6 to 8 inches of snow fell during the night of Nov. 2 . . ."

At Walkerton Christmas Fair in Bruce, 93 head of prize beef averaged 38.8 cents a pound.

A soil survey in Waterloo county showed: organic matter slightly low and phosphates the main deficiency. Wellington reports a keen demand for stockers of 400 to 700 pounds.

In St. Catharines area "there will be ample supply of turkeys and chickens this year." From Middlesex: "Heavy shipments of feeding cattle continue to come in from Western Canada. In Peterborough the acreage of fall wheat is about the same as last year. Victoria says the snow caught some farmers "with a considerable area of plowing still to be done."

King Will Spend Winter In UK

LONDON, Nov. 8—(AP)—The King, recuperating after his serious lung operation Sept. 23, was said today to be determined to endure with his subjects the fog, chill and gloom of an English winter.

Many of his friends have suggested that he seek sunshine in Southern France, Malta or North Africa for the duration of what is expected to be a long convalescence. They recall that the King's father, who also suffered from a respiratory affliction, insisted on wintering in England and died at Sandringham on a gloomy day in January, 1936.

The present King has his father's attachment to English soil.

"There is a debate about it going on now at Buckingham Palace, and it isn't settled," said an informant who moves in court circles. "Some of us get an impression that the King would prefer to go to the Royal lodge at Windsor, probably his favorite residence. But that's down on the river, almost in a depression, where we get some fine samples of English fog and chill. Some of the doctors are holding out against it.

"But the King, once he has made up his mind, can be a very determined person, and perhaps the best that can be done is to persuade him to go to Sandringham, which is higher and drier."

It was emphasized that the King's progress, after an operation in which a part or the whole of one lung was removed, is altogether satisfactory. The informant said there is no basis for rumors that a second operation is contemplated.

Plan To Maintain Forests Forever H. R. Scott Says

The Hon. Harold Scott, minister of Lands and Forests, said Wednesday night in a CBC network program that the Progressive-Conservative government is determined, every year, to balance the annual cut in Ontario forests with the annual crop, and "so to maintain, and in fact increase, our forest yield in perpetuity."

Mr. Scott added that the lands and forests department is bringing this object about in two ways.

"To give protection to our forests, we have the largest state-operated air service in the world, the greatest tower and short-wave radio hookup, and the finest staff of rangers and experts in the world."

He added that to assure the resources are "wisely and fully used," the department insists that every woods industry prepare and file with the department a forest management plan. It shows what, where, when, why and how the companies plan to cut the concessions on which they operate.

Must Approve

"If the plans are approved by my department, the companies may go ahead; if not, the plans must be revised to meet our approval. With this policy already in effect, we should never again have ghost towns in Northern Ontario."

Mr. Scott explained that to improve the forests, the department operates the "finest" research division in North America, maintains a research station at Maple, and "the world's most up-to-date forest insect laboratory at Sault Ste. Marie."

"To replace what we have lost, we have built two new nurseries in addition to those formerly existing, and we have greatly stepped up production."

Other speakers on behalf of the Progressive-Conservative party were: Premier Leslie Frost; ministers, George Doucett, George Challies, Fletcher Thomas and Charles Daley.

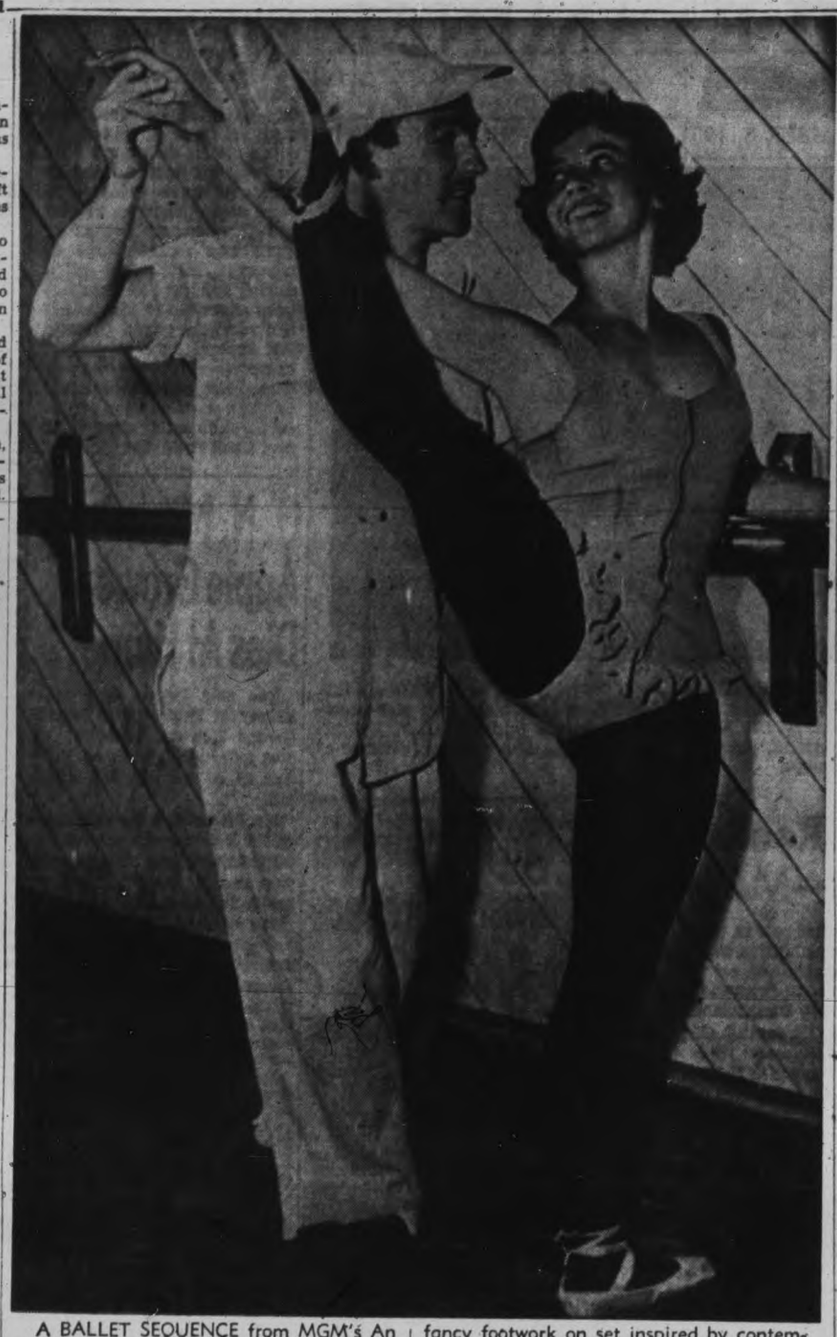
Civil Marriage Service Studied

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 8 — The question of civil marriages and church ceremonies for those already married before a magistrate was discussed on Wednesday at the Ontario Synod of the Anglican Church.

In a report presented by the Rt. Rev. G. M. Luxton, Bishop of Huron, a form of ceremony to be suggested to the Ontario Government for magistrates to use in performing civil marriages was outlined.



Bishop Luxton said that at present, the ceremony is largely left to the magistrate to carry out as he sees fit.

Canon G. H. Dowker of Toronto asked if the province had requested the church's advice. He said the province perhaps intended to leave civil vows vague in form and not too binding.

A resolution also was passed assuring the United Church of Canada that efforts to bring about a union of the two churches still received the support of the Ontario Synod.

Discussion of the resolution, however, showed that any agreement between the two churches should be made at the local level.

Too Much Spending

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP) — Stuart Armour, economic adviser to the Steel Company of Canada, Wednesday called for a drastic curtailment of social service spending by governments as one part of a remedy for inflation. He told the first annual convention of the Packaging Association of Canada that economists were apprehensive that the Canadian dollar would be worth only 20 cents within an alarmingly short time.

Maltese Immigrants Split Up At Lakehead

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 8 (CP) —A group of 11 Maltese immigrants, at the Lakehead without work or money for two weeks, has split up. Some have gone back to Malta, some to other parts of Canada. The group talked almost daily with Labor Department and civic officials, trying to get jobs they liked.

It was learned Wednesday two have taken passage back to Malta, using money sent by relatives. Two are believed to be working in this district, planning to return home next spring. At one time the Maltese started a "hunger strike," trying to force the Labor Department to send them home.

Three Witnesses Tell Stories That Conflict

GORE BAY, Ont., Nov. 8 (CP) — Three witnesses closely concerned with Levi Bob, killed June 21, told contradictory stories Wednesday in the trial of Frank Debassige, 39, charged with murdering the 59-year-old Bob.

Debassige said that Bob was killed accidentally in a scuffle over two pistols in the Debassige home after a drinking party. He said that Bob pulled a gun and shouted that Debassige's mother and sister were witches who had killed his brother, Peter Bob, several years ago.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fournier, who had lived with the accused man for 21 months, denied that Bob was shot in their home or that there had been a scuffle.

Police charge that Debassige killed Bob while the two walked the streets of Little Current. Bob was found in a ditch at noon the next day near the home of Police Chief Wesley Taylor. He died that afternoon from a bullet wound in the chest.

Sought Liquor

Mrs. Fournier testified that Debassige, with Mr. and Mrs. Bob, left her home late at night in search of liquor. Mrs. Bob said the men left her at a corner and she went home alone.

Debassige said that after the shooting he went in search of the police chief but could not find him. When he returned home Mrs. Bob was in his bedroom asleep. In the morning he awoke to find her and Bob's gun gone.

Mrs. Bob said her husband had never owned a gun of any sort.

Debassige said Mrs. Fournier told him she had pushed Bob outside and told him to tell the police nothing.

Mother Of Six Shot In Money Quarrel

VAL D'OR, Que., Nov. 8 (CP)—Provincial police Wednesday night reported Mike Karluchuk, 55, pumped four shots from a revolver into the 45-year-old mother of six children then turned the gun on himself after the woman died.

Police said it was a clear case of murder and suicide.

They said Karlachuk, a taxi driver, shot Mrs. Nelson Conroy, wife of a construction workman, in her home. Karluchuk lived in a shack at the rear of the Conroy's home here. Lieut. Roger Gauthier, head of the provincial police detachment at Amos, Que., about 50 miles north of here, said Karluchuk quarreled with Mrs. Conroy over money.

In Service For Men Women Who Served

Comrades:

The annual church parade of the Legion was held on Sunday, and despite the weather a good tur out was on hand. The parade was made up of members from Branch 52, Branch 452 (Elizabeth Smellie) and the women from the auxiliary to the Canadian Legion.

The service was in George St. United Church and the thanks of the Legion branches and the Ladies' Auxiliary go out to the Rev. Arnold Mathews and the congregation for their invitation to worship with them. It was an inspiring service both in music and sermon and once again thank you, and we trust that we will be able to return very soon.

Well, Comrades, November 11 is upon us and plans for this day are completed. We are departing from the usual procedure this year in that the laying of wreaths will take place before the service at the war memorial This is, of course, due to the fact that Memorial Day falls on Sunday, and by following this course anybody present will be able to attend the services in their respective churches. The service at the memorial will be over at 11.02. The churches have obliged by delaying their own services a sufficient time to give any of their members time to attend the memorial service and also their own church.

Under Parade Marshal Weyer, the parade will fall in at 0945 hours and move off at 1000 hours. Three bands will be present: the 50 HAA, RCA Band, the Citizens Band and the CGE Pipe Band.

The route of march and position of markers for the parade will be found in the Examiner this week and to save confusion may we suggest that you locate your marker on the map then be here good and early next Sunday to take up your position. A good turnout is requested and we know that we can count on you to attend.

Directly after the parade and services the Remembrance Day dinner will be held at the Legion Hall. Tickets for this dinner are now on sale and you may obtain yours from the secretary or any member of the executive. The speaker will be Mayor Burnet, of Cobourg, District F Commander, and we are sure that you will find him well worth hearing. Plan to attend this dinner.

November 11 and all that it means to us brings to light another aspect of Canadian Legion Work. That, of course, you know is our annual Poppy Day. To the Legion and those that work on the poppy fund, this is the day we sell poppies to bring in the money to carry on our great welfare work among veterans and the dependents of those who failed to return. This is indeed a challenge and you can help us carry on by being generous when you are approached to buy a poppy on November 10. Remember this also, when you buy a poppy you are also helping some disabled veteran make a living for all these popies and wreaths are made by the Vet Craft.

There is hardly a day goes by that some one does not call for help from the Canadian Legion. All these cases are given full consideration by the welfare committee, and the members of this group received a great deal of satisfaction in being able to help out. Any veteran who has not made plans for Saturday can be of great help to the Legion. The poppy committee is in dire need of adult taggers and they would certainly appreciate your help on this day. So how about it, fellows? Try and find some spare time on Saturday, to help the sale of poppies to be the highest yet.

That just about winds things up for this time so till next week so-long, and please remember to buy a poppy and give generously.

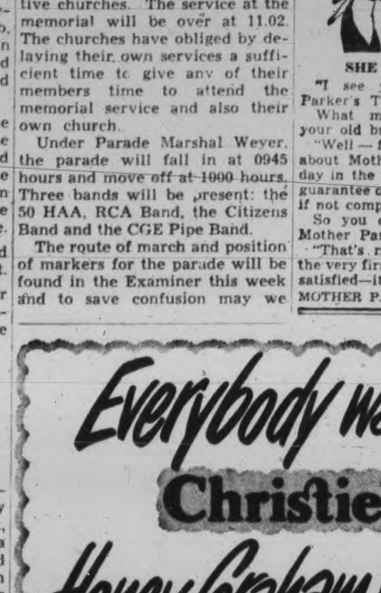
"I see you are using Mother Parker's Tea!

What made you change from your old brand?"



"Well — firstly, I'd heard a lot about Mother Parker's — then one day in the store I read the printed guarantee on the label: 'Money back if not completely satisfied'.

So you couldn't lose by trying Mother Parker's!"

"That's right—and I tell you at the very first taste, I was more than satisfied—it's truly delicious."

Doucette Speaks At Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Nov. 8 (ENS).—The Progressive Conservative meeting held in Millbrook town hall on Tuesday evening drew a good crowd in spite of unfavorable road and weather conditions.

In the absence of both president Dr. J. W. Wright, and vice-president Mrs. Ira Lowe, Louis H. Winslow acted as chairman.

The Hon. George Doucette, Minister of Highways, was the guest speaker. He reviewed the fine record of the Hon. John Foote VC, Minister of Reform Institutions, the present member, and asked for continued support for him, and for the Frost administration which had accomplished so much.

Major Foote also spoke in his own behalf and in behalf of the government.

At the close of the meeting many took advantage of the opportunity to speak personally to both ministers.

Held In Death

EAGLE ROCK, Calif., Nov. 8—(AP)—A few minutes after a young mother screamed that she had killed her baby, police Wednesday found the body of four-month-old John Lawrence Walton in the bathtub of the family home. Mrs. Arline Fay Walton, 26, came out of the surf at Santa Monica and screamed: "I want to kill myself. I just killed my baby." Taken to a police station, she said she had tried to stab the baby then had drowned him in the tub.

They were not seen again until Monday.

DOROTHY DIX

Teen-Age Girl Resents Being Treated As Child

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 15 years old and my parents still think I'm a baby. They won't let me go anywhere or do anything with my friends. I feel badly because I can't do things that girls my age do. I have tried talking to my parents, but they always insist I'm still a little girl. I have lost many friends because my parents won't let me grow up.

K. S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is a most difficult time when children begin to grow up and parents cling to the thought that "she's still a baby." The youngster is straining at the reins to push into adulthood, while mom and dad try to tighten them, reluctant to admit that children don't remain babies forever. But facts must be faced; son or daughter has left childhood, and the transition into a grown-up world should be made easier through the parents' co-operation.

Dorothy Dix

Judging the exact moment at which daughter is ready to have dates, wear lipstick or stay out until midnight are questions that require careful deliberation. A decision considered unfair by the teen-ager will create howls of injustice and cruel treatment. Too much liberty, too little parental restraint, can lead to many troubles. Where to draw the line? Ah, that is the question.

Difficult Age

Fifteen seems to be the age at which most difficulties arise, according to my mail. It is the age when dating first becomes a problem with most girls. If the daughter's friends are well-brought-up youngsters — as they should be—school dates should come along and be taken in stride. If the rest of the class goes to a dance, the girl who is kept home is bound to feel resentment against the parents who are really only seeking her welfare. This sensible conclusion is, of course, entirely beyond the comprehension of an adolescent.

So. K. S., I'm entirely on your side, but advising you how to convince mom is another problem. It takes time for parents to realize that their children grow up. Just be patient with yours. And don't try to be more grown-up than you really are. Remember, 15 is just over the "little girl" [illegible] still quite a way from completely "grown up." No matter how much you disagree with the edicts of mother and dad, obey them. Disobedience will bring you nothing but trouble.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have gone out with a boy a few times and like him very much. When I see him on the street he always seems to be glad to meet me. Is there any possible way to make him call me? Would it be proper for me to ask him to an outing with a large group? Please don't tell me to sit and wait, as I've done that for two months.

JEANIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Of course you shouldn't sit and wait, Jeanie! You have the perfect solution in asking this young man to go with you to a picnic. Boys are often very shy about advancing a friendship. If a girl wants to make the first move, extending an invitation to a group affair is the best method. Sometimes, of course, the affair can be planned solely for the purose of providing an excuse for a particular invitation—and who has to be the wiser?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband left me with four children about three years ago. A year ago I met a nice boy of 25 whom I love very much. He is five years younger than I, yet has much older ways. His parents think a lot of me and the children. However, he never mentions marrying me or speaks of the future.

ROSALIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You expect a lot, Rosalie, when you think a young man of 25 is ready to accept the responsibility of a good-sized family after only a year's acquaintance. Aren't you rushing things a bit? In your anxiety to acquire a man around the house, you're likely to scare the poor boy away. You must exercise a little judgement, too, and make sure he will be a good father to your brood.

Actor Enjoys Walking On Boulevard

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8 (AP)—For years tourists have expected to find movie stars strolling along Hollywood Boulevard and for years they have been disappointed. But now the famed street has its dream boy and his name is Percy Kilbride.

The eagle-nosed, wry-voiced actor can be seen ankling up the Boulevard every evening. It's a ritual with him. A bachelor, he lives nearby and walking down the big street is his prime exercise, hobby and entertainment.

"I guess I know every cobblestone," he remarked. He also knows every store front, newsboy and orange juice stand. And habituees of the Boulevard have grown accustomed to seeing his familiar face.

Secure, But

Kilbride views his success as Pa Kettle in the Kettle series with mixed feelings. He enjoys the security of a sure job once or twice a year. But he has found that the endless characterization has limited his career.

"On the stage I did all kinds of parts, including eccentric comedians," he said. "But the role that brought me out to Hollywood was that of a rural sort of a fellow in 'George Washington Slept Here.' I repeated the role in the movie and I've been doing the same sort of thing since."

Would he like to do a dramatic role?

"You bet I would. But I'm afraid I can't convince the producers. They probably think the audience would laugh as soon as it sees my face. And they could be right."

What's Right?

You ask a newly made acquaintance from a city where you know an influential family if she knows them and she says she does not.

WRONG: Say: "You must have heard of them. They are a very old and very influential family."

RIGHT: Drop the subject before you get around to telling how important and prominent your friends are.

Bringing people into the spirit of fun and entertainment St. James' Young People presented a variety show Wednesday evening in Wesley Hall. Also there was Ron Davis, Art Dixon, Ted Young, Bob Pulleyblank, Terry Chapman, Orville Clarke, Wib Cuningham, Bill Piercy, Bob Tamblin, Bob Clarke, Fred Huffman and others.

The tea table was laid with a Scotch lace cloth and centred with a miniature garden cart filled with poms, pointed daisies and rosebuds and silver candelabra held rainbow candles.

The refreshments were served by Mrs. Wm. Graff, Mrs. Adam Sands, Mrs. Wm. Garner, Mrs. Percy Martyn, Mrs. H. Pulley, Mrs. J. Chambers, Mrs. R. B. McWilliams, Mrs. W. G. Hall, Mrs. W. Seibert, Mrs. David Addyman, Miss Mary Addyman and Mrs. Garfield Thompson. Miss Linda Addyman and Miss Jacqueline Smith attended the door.

RIFLE RANGE SCHOOL

Rifle Range Home and School Association met in the school Monday evening with a good attendance. Mrs. E. Davis presided, and Mrs. S. Wood was pianist for the opening anthem.

Devotional period was taken by Mrs. B. Neely, followed by a solo "Bless this House", sung by Mr. McLeod, teacher of the senior school, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. N. Andrew. Minutes were read by Mrs. W. Muir, who also gave an encouraging financial report.

The president announced a paper drive for this week, and urged every member to co-operate.

Guest speaker, Mr. Alex Sinclair, director of recreation, spoke on the topic "Recreation for the school-age child", and the excellent way in which he handled his subject held the interest of his listeners throughout. He pointed out that recreation can be used to develop people so that they will grow in wisdom and in stature. "In children, play creates, and in adults, it recreates."

"One of the most important things to consider in a recreation program is the necessity to provide good leadership" said Mr. Sinclair.

"Without that, young children are more likely to develop bad habits than good habits." To further illustrate the point on how play recreates in adults, Mr. Sinclair gave as example the mass activity of young men while undergoing military training and told how much benefit and pleasure they derived from their recreation program. For younger children, the church as well as the school can play an important part in carrying out such a programe, and through it develop not only sound and healthy bodies but also sound and healthy minds, he said.

Mr. Sinclair touched upon the recreational advantages enjoyed by rural communities, stating that while they are different from the programs carried out in the city, they are nevertheless beneficial to the child from the standpoint of health and character training.

Lunch was served by Mrs. J. Quinn and Mrs. R. Brinson, assisted by Mrs. F. Pammett, Mrs. M. Humphries, Mrs. L. Welch, Mrs. W. Amos, and Mr. J. Quinn.

Christmas Bazaar And Tea At St. Luke's Goes Well

Little, if any effect was made on the Christmas bazaar and tea at St. Luke's Church Wednesday by the advance winter weather and bad walking conditions. All workers were of course on hand before the opening hour, anticipating they perhaps would not have many guests, but the tea room was filled to overflowing within the first half hour.

Mrs. W. J. Gilling, the rector's wife, and Mrs. R. G. Maniece extended welcome at the door and visitors then went into the guild room and the hall where tables were laden with goods for sale.

The anniversary committee had a table offering knitted and crocheted goods, fancywork, quilts, dolls' clothes and dolls, stuffed toys, etc., and Mrs. W. Wiltshire, Mrs. H. Choate and Mrs. Wm. King were in charge. The Cub and Scout Auxiliary had an assortment of things from felt shopping bags to patty tins. Mrs. Don Walker and Mrs. John Watson were in attendance. On display were the babies' clothes and crib quilts made for WA distribution by the Evening Branch and Mrs. Harvey Stark was in charge.

Demand High

Ladies of the Afternoon Branch WA had a very busy time with customers for the Christmas cakes and puddings and the mincemeat all of which was prepared and baked in the new kitchen put in early this year by the 75th anniversary committee. Mrs. Heber Rogers, Mrs. A. Hood and Mrs. D. Wyatt were in charge.

Evening Branch had the home cooking table and Mrs. Roy Sanderson, Mrs. Donald Menzies, Mrs. Cecil Campbell, Mrs. Jack Rogers, and Mrs. Hugh Morrison were in charge. The Chancel Guild had a "country store" booth which offered canned goods, flowers and plants and candy and baking. Mrs. C. H. Hamilton and Mrs. H. Nokes were saleladies.

"White elephants" were offered for sale at the choir table where Mrs. F. Legon, Mrs. C. Pammett and Mrs. S. Palmer were in charge.

The Junior Auxiliary was represented by Mrs. Samuel Vint who sold Christmas cards and gift wrappings and the Girls' Auxiliary had a candy table attended by Mrs. A. Pollock and Mrs. F. Biddle.

Mrs. Alice Leach was selling church calendars.

Tea Served

The tea room was convened by Mrs. Fraser Watson with assistance of Mrs. E. Macdonald and guests enjoyed seating accommodation at tables.

A novel centrepiece for the serving table was a pumpkin used as a vase for the arrangement of 'mums, deep brown leaves, cattails and poms and it was highlighted with yellow tapers in tall silver candelabra. A hand-crocheted lace cloth was used. The quartette tables each had an apple as the holder for bright yellow poms.

Tea pourers were Mrs. A. E. Tivey, Mrs. R. H. Turner, Mrs. Roy Parsons and Mrs. G. R. Langley, and Mrs. Harry Laing and Mrs. Arthur Long replenished the plates and tea pots. Hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. Mark Burnham and Miss Elizabeth Stewart, and Mrs. E. Croft as treasurer.

Servers were Mrs. A. Simmons, Mrs. J. J. Turner, Mrs. S. Mason, Mrs. Davies, Mrs. James Miller, Mrs. E. Lipsett, Mrs. R. Tuck and Mrs. Chris Hughes. Helping in the kitchen were Miss Muriel Curtis, Mrs. E. Ferguson, Mrs. A. Northcott and Mrs. E. Lee.

Guild Tea, Sale, At St. George's Hit By Weather

Mrs. H. J. Skuce, wife of the new rector, officially opened the tea and bazaar of the Afternoon Guild at St. George's Church on Wednesday afternoon. The event coincided with the worst weather of the season and was not as largely attended as usual, though successful.

Money was taken in on the club cards, which is a paying project of this organization. There was a good quantity of home cooking and candy sold, as well as aprons, towels and fancy work. Christmas cards were sold and the "travelling aprons" displayed. A fish pond attracted the children.

Mrs. Gordon Rutherford was selling the church calendars.

Individual tea tables were set under a canopy of autumn colored streamers and each had an apple with pickles as a centrepiece. Mrs. E. McIlwain convened the refreshments and the tea was made by Mrs. E. Cook. Serving were Mrs. S. Parkes, Mrs. S. Robertson, Mrs. D. McIntosh, Mrs. C. Blackburn, Mrs. F. Hines and Mrs. W. McWilliams.

ST. PETER'S

P.T.A. of St. Peter's parish met Tuesday evening in the K. of C. hall with an encouraging attendance. President J. J. Legris was in the chair. The Rev. John Hickey opened the meeting with prayer. A short business session followed.

Miss Mary Crilly then delighted with two piano selections.

Guest speaker for the evening was Father Hickey from St. Peter's Cathedral staff. He spoke on the need and value of spiritual reading "which is more necessary now than ever to counteract the many materialistic writings of some newspapers and magazines which seem to be trying to break down the sanctity and stability of the home." He quoted St. Paul's Epistle to St. Timothy "Be diligent in reading." He urged the parents to build up their spiritual life that they may have the graces necessary to fulfil their station in life.

Door prize was won by Mr. H. Powderly. The attendance prize was won by Grade 8 of St. Mary's School, Sister St. Louis teacher, and by Grades 3 and 4 of St. Peter's School, Sister Anna Grace teacher. The meeting closed with the singing of O Canada.

Lunch was served under the convenership of Mrs. S. J. Houlihan and her assistants, Mrs. T. Buckley and Mrs. E. O'Brien.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Mass-Produced Sandwiches For Serving of 200 Persons

This camel's back was saved from breaking by an assist from an unexpected source.

A neighbor—a helping-hand kind of neighbor—knew I was making 750-plus sandwiches to serve two hundred people for a bridge party the Press Club was holding. So, she offered to be a strong cog in the sandwich-making-production-line.

Time required: three hours.
Loaves required: nine.

To start the wheels rolling I ordered two each of whole wheat, pink, green and white sandwich bread, and one yellow—all sliced lengthwise.

Fillings

1. 12-oz. tin corned beef: 3-ounces chopped green relish; 1 tablespoon French mustard; one-third cup mayonnaise; ⅛ pound softened butter or margarine.

2. Two 7-ounce tins lobster; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; nearly ½ cup mayonnaise; ¼ pound softened butter or margarine.

3. ½-pound medium-old cheddar cheese (sliced, then softened over hot water); 1 4-ounce can pimientoes drained; ⅛ pound butter or margarine, ¼ cup mayonnaise.

4. ½-pound medium old cheddar cheese (sliced, then softened over hot water), ¼-pound chopped blanched almonds; ⅛ pound butter or margarine, ¼ cup mayonnaise.

5. 1 1-pound can of red salmon, well-drained; 3 tablespoons sweet-pickle vinegar; ⅛ pound butter or margarine; one-third cup mayonnaise.

6. 1 7-ounce can flaked tuna; 2 tablespoons sweet-pickle vinegar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice; 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ cup mayonnaise.

7. 1 pound sliced cooked ham on bread spread on one side with French mustard—on the other side with softened butter.

8. Open-Face: Small rounds of bread cut out with small cookie cutter; covered with slice of pared cucumber spread on both sides with mayonnaise thinned with a little cream and topped with one whole shrimp.

9. ½-pound peanut-crush moistened with 1 tablespoon lemon juice and ¼ cup mayonnaise, then mixed with 1 cup fried, minced bacon.

✧ ✧ ✧

To give the sandwiches as much variety as possible you will notice I used five different colors or types of bread.

To vary the shapes one-half of each loaf was made up into flat sandwiches which we cut into triangles and small oblongs; the other half was spread thinner with the spread-fillings and rolled up, jelly-roll fashion, to be cut into pinwheel sandwiches at the last minute.

When the plates were arranged we used two paper doilies on each, pinching them together at the centre to form a partition. On one side we arranged the cookies (described last week); on the other side the sandwiches were piled with triangles and oblongs on the bottom layer, pinwheels on top of them, and to give them an attractive finish one open-face shrimp-and-cucumber canape topped them off.

'Phone Lines Downed By Wednesday Storm

COBOURG, Nov. 8 — (ENS) — Considerable damage was done to rural telephone lines in Wednesday's sleet storm. The snow turned to sleet early in the morning and the accompanying wind was to much for several ice-coated lines.

The snow was not particularly deep on rural roads but when it started to melt in the afternoon it softened the roads into muddy bogs that made transportation difficult. In Cobourg the grader was at work first thing in the morning and the main business section was cleared of snow in a few hours.

Bushman Missing

TIMMINS, Nov. 8 (CP). —A 45-hour search by Ontario provincial police, forest rangers and bushmen has failed to locate bush worker Adam Brisson, 42, who disappeared on the Kapuskasing river Tuesday afternoon.

Friends said Brisson has been subject to spells of depression.

Police said Brisson quit work with a paper company and left its bush camp for Kapuskasing, 30 miles north with a fellow worker. The men were following the frozen river. Twenty-three miles north of the camp Brisson told his companion, J. Pelletier, that he had lost a glove and turned back. He has not been seen since.

Brisson was said to be warmly dressed and an expert bushman.

Omemee Man

United Electrical Workers, expelled from the CCL.

"Since then, it has been rather amusing for me, in a macabre sort of way, to watch his progress. When there's a hot strike on, or a dispute over Communism within a union, he's almost always part of the fight. One summer when the UE outwardly at least was at peace with the world but the Canadian Seamen's Union was playing hell up and down the coasts, he turned up in the Maritimes working for the CSU. When there were no labor battles within his scope, he was busy fighting along the Communist party line in civil-rights disputes. I saw him seldom as I had left Toronto by then.

In Peterborough

But last year when a new anti-Communist union of electrical workers (IUE) was trying to get control of the electrical workers in Peterborough from the Communist-led UE, he was sent to Peterborough. That is about 15 miles from where I live now. He phoned me one night and a few days later came out for a rabbit hunt with a UE shop steward who, like most rank and file in UE, is not a Communist. After the hunt we had a drink. It was the only time Communism was mentioned. The subject came up when the UE shop steward was talking about what he considered to be unfair smear tactics used by the IUE.

"'The lies they tell!' the shop steward said 'Why, they even call this man a Commie!' And he pointed to my friend, with the air of a man who has produced the final incontrovertible evidence of dishonesty in the opposition. My friend glanced at me. I was sure he was deeply embarrassed at having me see how this other man had been duped.

Went Fishing

"Later, we were fishing several times together. He loves fishing with a love as deep an any democrat's. Not once was politics mentioned. I remembered that years ago he used to take any opportunity to revile George Drew, but apparently now in his capacity as a non-confessed Communist he was denied even that luxury. Then less than a year ago the inter-union battle ended in Peterborough. The UE won. No longer needed, he went back to Toronto.

"You will remember that I am telling this for a purpose to illustrate something. I know—that if there were a rash of public denunciations, I would be denounced. I had known that some people in Omemee, the village in which I live, knew my friend's connection with the UE. In the easy and often true concept of this branch of public reasoning, he was undoubtedly a Communist. He also drove a green Austin.

The Green Austin

"A few months ago another friend of mine with a green Austin called to visit. This man is the ultimate in respectability, being a magazine editor. I heard later that minutes after he climbed out of his car one of my neighbors ran across the street in her apron and exclaimed to another neighbor meaningfully, 'The last time that man was here he didn't have red hair!'

"And I guess anybody who stops a green Austin at my place from now on will be considered the same Communist in a new disguise, fresh evidence to be remembered in case it ever is needed.

"I think anyone who has read this so far will say, 'You obviously are conscious that by associating with a Communist you're endangering your future. Why don't you cut it out?'

"And this is where I have to contradict myself, for reasons buried deep in all that we in Canada have been taught about freedom. I don't renounce my friend simply because he is my friend. Perhaps as an effort from his side to make it easier for us to remain friends, he, I repeat, never has talked Communism to me, never has based an opinion of his on the party line in any other discussion we've had. It is easy, on this ground, to make the point that a Canadian Communist is at least partly just a Canadian. For me, it has been possible so far to convince myself that no harm can come from associating with someone who is merely the adult development of a boy who was a close friend. That is, I am sure I am incorruptible; can associate with anyone and come out clean.

"Yet now, in the light of what has happened in other countries to men like me who believed in full freedom, I want to know what the government thinks of me and the other Canadians—there must be thousands of us—who are facing this problem in all its variations."

Dollar Down

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 — (CP)— The American dollar today opened at 4¼ per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down ⅛ from Wednesday's close. That is, it took $1.04¼ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.91⅞, down ⅜ from Wednesday.

2 Plead Guilty To Tool Theft

Two local youths who pleaded guilty to a theft charge Tuesday were placed on suspended sentence for one year by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today.

Allan Patton, 20 and Keith Wheeler, both of 659 Hawley St. were charged with stealing a tool box valued at $125 belonging to Frank Coyle of Lakefield. The tool box together with some gasoline, was taken from a bulldozer owned by Mr. Coyle which was parked in the city gravel pit in Smith township Hallowe'en night.

OPP Constable Thomas Fitzpatrick who investigated the theft and made the arrests testified that he found the tool box in the trunk of Patton's car. Constable Patton said he obtained a statement signed by both men saying they had taken the tools.

Said Prank

W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for both men today and submitted that it was just "a prank" and that the owner was foolish to leave such a valuable box lying in the open unlocked. In asking for suspended sentence, Mr. Fair said that the fathers of both boys were willing to sign a bond guaranteeing their good behaviour and were also willing to make restitution for the tools said to be missing from the box.

The estimated value of the missing tools could not be determined today, because the employee of Mr. Coyle who knew how many tools were in the box is snowbound north of Apsley.

Asistant Crown Attorney Walter Howell agreed to the suspended sentence, and the men were released on probation after their fathers, Ennismore farmers, had signed bonds of $200 and paid $7.50 court costs for each. The fathers also agreed to pay Mr. Coyle the price of the missing tools as will be determined by the court at a later date.

Court Dismisses Driving Charge

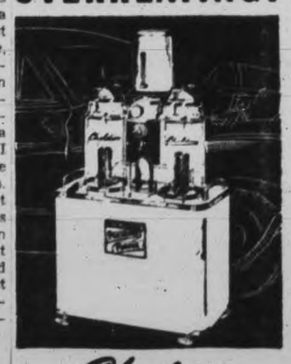
A charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol against Cyril Cooper, 28, of 759 Snelgrove Ave., was dismissed in police court today.

Cooper pleaded not guilty to the charge. He was acquitted after the evidence was heard.

Cooper was involved in an accident with a car driven by William Storey, 751 Brown St., the evening of November 3.

Acting Sergeant Gordon Trennum testified he laid the charge after Cooper told him "I am under the finluence of alcohol."

Storey testified that a northbound car which passed Cooper and forced him into the curb was responsible for the accident on Water St. near Antrim. Neither Storey nor Constable Trennum gave any evidence indicating that Cooper's driving ability was impaired.



In dismissing the charge, Magistrate Philp said he believed that under the section covering the impairment charge "the impairment of driving must be proven by evidence as to how he has driven rather than by drawing the inference a man cannot drive because of consuming some alcohol.

Oppose Deer Season

WELLAND, Nov. 8 (CP). — Welland county council today asked the Ontario Lands Department to cancel the open season on deer in Welland county. The season is scheduled for Dec. 3, 4 and 5.

The request came after a group of sportsmen said adjacent counties had cancelled their open seasons and a swarm of hunters would descend on Welland.

Name Mainguy New Chief Of Naval Staff

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP).—Canada gets a new chief of naval staff Dec. 1 when Rear-Admiral E. Rolo Mainguy, CBE, 50, takes over from Vice-Admiral Harold T. W. Grant, CBE, DSO.

Naval headquarters Wednesday night officially announced the retirement of its 52-year-old Halifax-born chief who began his career in the navy when he was a boy of 15.

Rear-Admiral Mainguy has been flag officer, Atlantic coast since 1948. He was chairman in 1949 of a three-man commission which investigated a series of incidents aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent and the destroyers Athabaskan and Crescent.

The commission reported the incidents technically were mutinies and recommended widespread steps for improvement of recruiting and training and urged the navy be given a more Canadian flavor.

The careers of the incoming and outgoing senior service chiefs are similar in many ways. Both graduated from Canada's old Royal Naval College, Admiral Grant in 1917 and Admiral Mainguy in 1918. Both served aboard Royal Navy ships, commanded destroyer flotillas, held headquarters posts and were decorated for sea actions.

Admiral Grant was in command of the Royal Navy cruiser Enterprise in March, 1943, in the Bay of Biscay. With HMS Glasgow the Enterprise engaged 11 enemy destroyers, sinking three and driving the remainder into a French port. Admiral Grant was awarded the Distinguished Service Order.

Rear-Admiral Mainguy—who will be promoted to Vice-Admiral on taking over as chief—was in command of the Canadian cruiser Uganda when she was the only Canadian warship to see action in the final phases of the Pacific war. The Uganda took part in the bombardment of Sakishima and was the flagship of the naval force which bombarded the Japanese sea fortress of Truk.

Succeeding him in the Atlantic coast post will be Commodore Roger E. S. Bidwell, 52, who has been serving as Commodore of RCN barracks at Esquimalt, BC. He will be promoted to Rear-Admiral.

Snow Has Delayed Operation Moose

Operation Moose salvage reported in Wednesday's Examiner has bogged down. The cause is 14 inches of wet snow that gives no traction to trucks or jeeps and the slipping is yet not quite good enough for sleighs.

Lands and Forests district office, Lindsay, received a call on Wednesday from a hunter who reported he had shot a moose in self-defence. It happened nine miles south of Tory Hill around Monmouth Lake.

Reporting that the moose attacked him, the hunter fired one shot into the ground to scare it. The moose did not budge and was brought down by a second shot.

Two game wardens were dispatched Wednesday and found conditions too wintry for bush truck travel. Salvage will be made as soon as conditions permit, officials say.

Hearing Opens On Toronto Guild Charges

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Hearing opened in magistrate's court Wednesday of a charge by the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) that The Canadian Press had failed to bargain with "every reasonable effort" to conclude a collective agreement.

The charge, a private prosecution, being heard by Magistrate Thomas Elmore, results from a collective bargaining dispute between the national news-gathering agency and the union, certified in April, 1950, as bargaining agent for a unit of employees in the CP's editorial department.

Also being heard are four other charges, all similar in substance, that CP had discriminated against four of its employees in its Ottawa bureau allegedly by refusing to permit them to work in the parliamentary press gallery because they were members of the union.

As the hearing opened, CP counsel J. J. Robinette, KC, moved that all charges be quashed on the ground they had not been filed within a six months limitation provided in the Criminal Code for offences which might lead to a summary conviction.

Give Arguments

He contended the charges, laid under the Federal Labor Code, were invalid because they all specified periods beginning early in 1950 and running to periods within the six-months period prior to Sept. 26.

John Osler, counsel for the union, held that the charges were legal in that the Guild contended the offences were 'continuing offences"— that they were in existence through the whole of the periods specified. There were cases where charges were held to be good when the offences were continuing.

Mr. Robinette, without conceding that any offence had been committed, argued that Mr. Osler, if he felt that they were continuing offences, should have dated the charges back only six months from Sept. 26.

Magistrate Elmore took the motion under consideration and directed a plea of not guilty for the company. The hearing continued, with Guild witnesses testifying as to bargaining sessions between the Guild and CP in the period from April, 1950, to March, 1951.

The hearing will continue today.

Ice Blamed For Accidents

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 8—(ENS)—A number of motor accidents in this area kept provincial police busy on Tuesday, with slippery roads and poor visibility blamed for most of the mishaps.

An accident on Tuesday morning on the old Havelock Road involving a Hydro truck and a Campbellford taxi driven by Russel Willis resulted in about $200 damage. The taxi driver said his vision was obscured by a car ahead and the taxi struck an approaching truck on a curve. No one was injured.

A light pick-up truck driven by Carl H. Owens of RR 2 Campbellford and a car driven by Reginald Burkett of the same address came to grief Tuesday when they met at an intersection near Petherick's Corners, five miles north-east of the town. Poor visibility was blamed for this accident, which resulted in about $300 damage to the two vehicles. Neither of the drivers was injured.

Car Burns

A 1937 model car was completely destroyed by fire late Monday night on the Campbellford-Hastings road about two miles east of Hastings. Bernard Hutchings of Haliburton was driving on the county road when flames shot out from under the instrument panel. Hutchings barely had time to stop the car before it was a roaring mass of flames. It was completely destroyed within a few minutes. The fire was blamed on defective wiring. Provincial Constable George Rose of Campbellford investigated all these mishaps.

NATO Plans For Defence To Be Pared

Financial Troubles Of Some Allies Bring On Reduction

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. (AP) —Administration officials said today the North Atlantic Treaty Organization likely will be called on to scale down its Western-Europe defence plan along lines recommended here this week by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Because of the financial difficulties of Britain and other Allies, these officials said, it is almost certain that a 12-country "Wisemen" group will propose the downward revision during the NATO council meeting opening Nov. 24 at Rome.

The committee is due to submit its interim report at this session. Named at the Ottawa meeting in September, it is making a country-by-country survey of the ability of the NATO Allies to bear the arms burden imposed by the 1950 "middle term" master plan.

Need 90 Divisions

This calls for a defence force of more than 90 divisions by mid-1954, which with air and naval backing was deemed sufficient by military planners to cope with a full-scale invasion of western Europe. The prospective downward revision means on its face fewer divisions by the target date, but under Eisenhower's recommendations, a force ready for action in the meantime.

In the light of inflationary troubles of France, Italy, and neighbor countries, and Prime Minister Churchill's warning that Britain faces the threat of national bankruptcy, American authorities are convinced a realistic shakedown is inescapable. Involved in this is the proposal pressed by Eisenhower for a speed-up of arms deliveries aimed at assuring an integrated fighting force-in-being of up to 30 divisions some time next year.

INJURED IN CRASH—Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario fractured his right hip and suffered head injuries in a collision Thursday.

Doucett Hurt In Collision Near Ottawa

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 — (CP). — Highways Minister Doucett of Ontario Thursday suffered head injuries and a fractured right hip and thighbone when a car in which he was riding to a political meeting collided with another.

The 54-year-old minister was taken to Civic Hospital here where he first was reported in semi-conscious condition. Later the hospital said he was conscious, that the head injuries were "minor." His condition Thursday night was described as "quite fair."

The collision occurred near Carleton Place, about 35 miles west of Ottawa.

Mr. Doucett had left his home in Carleton Place to drive to Finch, Ont., where the accident occurred. He was scheduled to speak at a nomination meeting in Finch on behalf of John McDonald, Progressive Conservative candidate in Stormont constituency in the November 22 Ontario election.

2 Countries Support Truman Plan

Vishinsky Attitude Sharply Criticized By Anzac Leaders

PARIS, Nov. 9. (CP)—Australia and New Zealand today pledged warm support of the Truman plan for peace and disarmament, turned down in the United Nations Thursday by Russia's Andrei Vishinsky.

Delegates of the two commonwealth countries decried the Russian foreign minister's action and urged the general assembly to speed talks on the plan.

Australia's minister for external affairs, Richard Casey, fixed the blame for the present stage of world affairs on Russia.

"Millions of humble people who are yearning for peace will be appalled," he said, "by Vishinsky's cynical levity."

(The Russian joked in the assembly Thursday that he could not sleep for laughing at the west's peace plan.)

Genuine Attempt

New Zealand's high commissioner in London, Fred W. Doidge, called the western plan "a genuine attempt to bridge" the east-west split.

State Secretary Dean Acheson of the US met Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France again today before the session began, planning the next move after Russia's cold shoulder.

As they spoke, US Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, in a special press conference, challenged Russia to start disarmament talks in the UN now—not to wait until some time before June 1, 1952, as the Russians proposed Thursday. Jessup also accused the Russians of trying to by-pass the UN in asking a world-wide arms conference.

In the assembly today F. W. Doidge of New Zealand urged increased measures of collective security to give the free world strength to repel any future aggressions such as occurred in Korea.

He called on all UN members to "pull their weight in deeds as well as words" for an effective system of world-wide collective security.

Judge Directs Jury To Free Widow, Woman Collapses

By DAVE WHITE, Examiner Staff Writer

Mrs. Lillian Thompson, 35-year-old mother of five children, Thursday night was able to sleep the peaceful sleep of a free woman after 75 long nights in the county jail. Her immediate plans for herself and her young brood have not yet been decided. At 5:15 pm Thursday, after a two-day trial, Justice W. F. Spence directed a Peterborough county jury to find her not guilty of murdering her husband last August 25. She was alleged to have shot her husband, Roy Thompson, through the right side of the chest after a family quarrel at their Howden Ave. home.

Strangely enough, a courtroom of not more than 18 spectators witnessed the climax to one of the most talked about trials in Peterborough county in recent years.

The demeanor of the prisoner was in keeping with this paradoxical element of the trial.

After keeping her composure—with only a couple of lapses during the two-day ordeal—Mrs. Thompson broke down completely at the end. Sobbing, and in a state of semi-collapse, she walked from the prisoner's box, clutching at the guard rail and relying on Mrs. Mel Shadgett, police matron, for support.

Taken Home

After a brief rest she was whisked away to the home of relatives—away from concrete cells, steel bars, the glare of publicity, and the nightmare of the last two and a half months—to see her children and try to forget.

Before discharging the prisoner Mr. Justice Spence warned the spectators against any demonstration. The warning was hardly necessary.

During the justice's instructions to the 12-man jury, his reasoning for ordering a directed verdict, and his final words permitting her to go, Mrs. Thompson retained a stoical calm. It was only when she stepped from the prisoner's box, a free woman, exonerated by a Canadian court of law, that she gave full public view of her stemmed up emotions.

The handful of spectators remained in sympathetic silence.

But even the acquittal failed to match the penetrating drama of an hour or so before. At that time mother and daughter stood face to face in the courtroom—the mother on trial for her life and the 12-year-old daughter, a Crown witness, vowing to tell all she knew of her parents' argument on the night her father was fatally-wounded.

Say Democrats Tried To Make Eisenhower Deal

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 — (AP)—The New York Times says today Democrats have visited General Dwight D. Eisenhower in Paris twice within five weeks and promised him President Truman's support for the 1952 Presidential nomination.

The visits, the Times says, appeared to be part of a "much more active and organized campaign than has been generally known" to get Eisenhower as the Democratic nominee.

Arthur Krock, Washington correspondent for the newspaper, writes that he received his information from a Republican who should know and whose "standing in the nation is very high indeed."

On each occasion, the story says the same statement was made to Eisenhower:

"It was that if, at any time before the Democratic National Convention, he would say he would accept its Presidential nomination, his visitors were convinced they would 'guarantee' it and he could count on the support of President Truman.

Quote Reply

"General Eisenhower's reported reply was: 'You can't join a party just to run for office. What reason have you to think I have ever been a Democrat?' "

The story says Eisenhower told about the proposition to a friend on his recent visit to the United States, with the remark:

"You know I have been a Republican all my life and that my family have always been Republican."

Krock says evidence is growing that President Truman had offered to support Eisenhower in "the culminating point in a major enterprise by important Democrats that seems to have failed."

Five Lick Dew Off Deck To Keep Alive

MELBOURNE, Nov. 9 (Reuters) — Five Pacific Islanders, adrift in a 24-foot cutter for 109 days, kept themselves alive by licking dew from the boat's deck at night, a report from the Pacific Islands of the New Hebrides said today.

The other members of the crew died during the nightmarish 1,500-mile journey from the Marshall islands to the New Hebrides. One of them, crazed by thirst drank two bottles of after-shave lotion.

The cutter left the Marshall Islands July 18 on a trading trip to neighboring Atolls, carrying a crew of five islanders and two boys.

Near Bikini a storm blew the cutter off course. The compass liquid turned black, making the compass face unreadable, the survivors said. It was thought that rain water affecting the instrument was radio-active.

After weeks of fruitless wanderings the crew tried to set course for the Philippines, sailing—as they thought—due west.

They caught some fish, but their raging thirst made eating impossible.

Last Sunday they reached Epi in the New Hebrides, too weak to steer the cutter.

They had been sailing south.

Two Turnkeys Fired At Jail

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP)—Two turnkeys at Toronto's Don Jail were dismissed Thursday and Governor G. Sanderson reprimanded as the Ontario Department of Reforms Institutions continues its investigations into the recent escape of three prisoners.

Dismissed were R. Bennett, who had been employed at the jail for 20 years, and J. Latimer.

Reason for the dismissal of the two guards was that "they had never made hourly inspections as provided for in the regulations."

Reforms Minister Foote said:

"Governor Sanderson has justifiably been given a great deal of credit for improving the conditions at the jail since he took over present duties. But under the circumstances I had no alternative for reprimanding him for laxity in his own duties."

Leonard Jackson, William Jackson and Edwin Boyd escaped from the jail Sunday night. They sawed a bar on a second-storey window, slid down a rope made of bedsheets and scaled the outside wall with a second rope of bedsheets.

Trenton Calls Off Plan To Drop Food

TRENTON, Nov. 9 — (CP). — The RCAF has called off a plan to drop food to temporarily-isolated lumber workers in the Cobalt area.

Temiskaming Airways, based in the Cobalt district, will be able to fly in the supplies. The aircraft will land at a lake 30 miles from Earlton where the men will be able to take the supplies to camp by team.

Food ran short when the freeze-up arrived two weeks earlier than expected. Thin ice on a lake near the camp has prevented a float-plane from landing.

RCAF officials said Thursday members of the search and rescue squad would drop food by parachute. Earlton is 100 miles north of North Bay.

Dominion Of Canada Ends, Called Canada Now St. Laurent Tells House

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. (CP)—It's Canada—not the "Dominion of Canada". For two years now, that concept of grown-up nationhood has been developing quietly in Ottawa and moving up on the Canadian people. It finally was tied down officially on Thursday night. Prime Minister St. Laurent, pressed by some Progressive Conservative and Social Credit adherents of long-standing tradition and ties, gave "Dominion" the last—and unaffectionate—farewell.

While this was the formal and official goodbye to "Dominion" for the Federal government, it was an anti-climax to all that has been going on for the last couple of years. In that time, the government has unobtrusively erased "Dominion" from official publications by stages. It's always "government of Canada," instead of "Dominion of Canada."

Some members opposed the drift. Their main chance came on the floor Thursday night on a minor government bill which, along with minor amendments, changed the title of the "Dominion Lands Survey Act" to the "Canada Lands Survey Act."

It brought a clamor from Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members that ties with the centre of the Commonwealth should not be severed by cutting off the term "Dominion" from Canada.

The Prime Minister made it clear that this country is not going to be the "Dominion of Canada," but just "Canada." The measure carried with the "Canada" title.

"Some of us rather like the name of Canada," Mr. St. Laurent said.

There had been a "progression" since Confederation, resulting in the Statute of Westminster that gave Canada nationhood.

"This government," he said, "feels that the majority of people consider it is quite a privilege to be regarded as a 'Canadian' rather than as a 'Dominion' citizen."

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 9.—(CP)—Motorists—beware of Locomotive 3002! On its way into London Thursday night the engine tangled with a car. Today, on its run out of London, it wrecked a truck. No one was injured. PS—Locomotive 3002 will be on the Toronto-to-London passenger run again tonight.

Dead Woman Comes To Life

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9 — (AP).— A woman presumed dead revived at the city morgue here and today still clung to a faint spark of life.

Mrs. Theresa Butler, 60, was found in her bath by a maid on Thursday. A doctor pronounced her dead at 11:45 am and police listed her as an apparent suicide from an overdose of sleeping pills.

But just before 2 p.m., as Deputy Coroner James Leonard pulled her stretcher from an ambulance at the city morgue, he said he heard gasping sounds and saw signs of life in Mrs. Butler's face. She was rushed to hospital.

After being given oxygen, blood plasma, stimulants and artificial respiration, she was reported improving today, but still in critical condition.

Dr. Edward McLin, who first pronounced the woman dead, gasped in amazement when informed she still lived.

"She looked as dead as they come," he declared.

Flier Bails Out Of RCAF Plane

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 — (CP). — Flying Officer Donald J. Enman, 23, of Truro, NS, bailed out safely from 2,500 feet today when his Mustang fighter aircraft developed engine trouble, caught fire and crashed near Carleton Place, about 35 miles west of Ottawa.

The RCAF pilot took off with three other Mustangs on a routine formation flight from nearby Uplands Airport at about 10:40 am EST.

A few minutes later he noticed smoke coming from his engine, and later some flames. He bailed out at 2,500 feet and landed near his crashed plane.

Can Get 'Brain' For $80,000

HAWTHORNE, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP). — An electronic brain that can even play chess was placed today within the reach of anyone —anyone with $80,000.

Computer Research Corp. unveiled its CRC-102 general purpose computer just finished for the US Air Force. The firm said it will be able to produce them commercially in six to eight months.

The brain, a maze of wires and vacuum tubes mounted on casters in a 500-pound package, is about the size of an office desk.

Its price and size make it unique from such predecessors as those at Harvard and other research centres. Those brains usually are large enough to fill one room and some cost into the millions.

Yet CRC claims the same capabilities for its baby-sized brain.

Engineer Richard Sprague, one of the designers, says it can even think enough to play chess. But it would be a monotonous opponent.

"It would always win," Sprague said.

Gales And Floods Battering Europe

LONDON, Nov. 9 (Reuters).—Floods in southwest England today were the worst in years following heavy rains which showed no signs of decreasing.

The river Severn rose 3½ feet at Worcester Thursday night to a level 11¼ feet above normal.

Water poured into homes and stores in some southern towns. Poultry houses floated over the inundated farms. Automobiles were stranded and livestock marooned.

The toll of known dead rose to six in storm-lashed northern Italy today as rescuers removed two bodies from the debris of three crumpled houses at Tavernerio.

Another 15 persons were still buried and probably dead under the ruins.

Earlier, four persons in other areas were killed as storms struck northern Italy and Genoa on the Ligrian Sea to Venice on the Adriatic.

Lifeboat Service Rocked By Storm

RUNSWICK, England, Nov. 9 —(AP). — A storm lustier than the wintry gales which blast this tight little isle threatened Britain's voluntary lifeboat service today.

The national rhubarb is over a decision of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, which reprimanded Coxswain Tom Patton and his volunteer fishermen's crew for not going to the aid of the 203-ton steamer Pandora on October 22.

The Runswick lifeboat crew turned out but Tom looked at the towering waves churned by the gale that hit the North Yorkshire coast and said he would not risk the lives of his men on what he considered a foolhardy mission.

Six miles away at Whitby, Coxswain William Richardson of the Whitby lifeboat—larger than Runswick's—also decided the risk was too great.

The Pandora foundered and all six men aboard were lost.

The Royal National Lifeboat Institution officially reprimanded Patton Thursday night and closed the Runswick station, but exonerated the Whitby crew. The Whitby lifeboatmen promptly resigned in protest and a national howl went up. From stations all around this sea-girt nation came messages of support for Patton.

Labor Captures Final Seat

BARNSLEY, England, Nov. 9—(Reuters) — Labor Thursday night won the last seat to be contested in the general election, holding this Yorkshire Labor stronghold district with a majority of 28,227 over the Conservative vote.

This makes the government majority in the House of Commons 17, including the speaker, who is neutral:

The vote:

S. Schofield, Labor 37,523; G. Whitaker, Conservative 9,296; G. Walker, Liberal, 7,002.

The contest was deferred from the general election day, Oct. 25 because the former Labor candidate died.

Final standings in the new House of 625 seats are: Conservatives and associates 320; Labor 295; Liberals six; Independent (Irish Labor) one; Irish Nationalist two and the speaker, nominally a Conservative but who is traditionally neutral.

Adenauer Accepts Big Three Invitation

BONN, Germany, Nov. 9 (Reuters)—Konrad Adenaeur, West German chancellor and foreign minister, today accepted an allied invitation to meet the big three western foreign ministers in Paris Nov. 22, it was announced here tonight.

The four foreign ministers will be able to decide on the last stages of West Germany's integration with the west, as planned at the Washington conference in September.

West Germany will sign a treaty system, now being drafted, to end the joint high commission and the occupation statute and give West Germany virtual independence.

In exchange she will undertake to raise troops for Europe's defence.

Britons Face New Food Cuts

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—Food Minister Gwilym Lloyd George warned rationed Britons today they may have even less to eat in coming months.

"Owing to our financial position our food supplies are in a very dangerous position," Lloyd George told the House of Commons.

"Leaving out of account the stoocks which have been accumulated and set aside for strategical purposes, I find that our stocks of wheat flour, margarine and cooking fats, sugar and butter —to take a few examples—are all well below the level of 1941."

That was the year when German submarines sharply cut supplies of food and materials reaching Britain from overseas.

Lloyd Geoorge said even if additional supplies of wheat, butter and cheese were found abroad, the country's financial position would prevent Britain from buying them.

New York Dockers Call Off 25-Day Wildcat Walkout

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Striking longshoremen today agreed to end New York's 25-day wildcat walkout.

A rebel union faction yielded to a New York State fact-finding board in the early-morning hours, and promised to have the 30 miles of docks open later in the day.

The $1,000,000,000 strike was the costliest in the history of the world's biggest port. At the peak of the walkout 114 ships were tied up.

The New York State Industrial Commissioner, Edward Corsi, announced shortly before 2 am EST that the ports of New York and Boston would be open at 1 pm today.

In New York, an increasing number of dockers had been returning to work on non-military ships in recent days.

Corsi's announcement followed a four-hour meeting between representatives of rebel longshoremen and a three-man inquiry panel.

The stevedores are members of the International Longshoremen's Association (AFL), whose Atlantic Coast district represents 65,000 dock workers from Maine to Virginia.

More than 20,000 union dockers were affected by the minority walkout, which began over ratification Oct. 12 of a new contract The dissident group, led by John (Gene) Sampson, went out three days later.

In announcing the back-to-work move, Corsi made no mention of concessions, if any, coming from either side.

Joseph P. Ryan, head of the ILA, said he is "very happy" that the walkout is over.

Some observers believed that the split-up in the two union groups was touched off by the long-standing feud for union power between Ryan and Sampson. Sampson has denied this.

Find Hunting Party Lost Near North Bay

NORTH BAY, Nov. 9 —(CP)— Canadian National Railways officials here said today that Frederick Henry Hudson and party have been found safe by searchers in the Pickerel River section 70 miles southwest of here.

Hudson, one of a party of Toronto hunters, became lost Tuesday near the mouth of the French River.

He is a cousin of Dr. Henry Hudson, Timmins dentist who with hockey player Bill Barilko, has been missing since Aug. 26 in the James Bay area.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 9 (AP) — Immigration to Israel dropped to 5,000 last month, lowest since the program for bringing Jews to this country began three years ago. Despite the drop, the Jewish agency said the 1951 goal of 80,000 new citizens would be reached.

Big Baby-Farming Racket In Montreal

Police Investigating Children Being Sold To People In US

MONTREAL, Nov 9 (CP) — Inspector Ernest Francoeur, acting head of the city police detective bureau, today confirmed the existence of a baby-farming racket here and said an investigation was started because of "complaints."

Two policemen and two investigators of the social welfare office are investigating the racket which earlier was reported by two Montreal newspapers—La Presse and The Gazette—as yielding sums up to $5,000 for the sale of illegitimate infants in the United States.

Inspector Francoeur said investigators made a complete check of all illegitimate births in the city and compared them with adoption records. The survey showed 200 adoptions of children from parents of one religious faith although there were only six illegitimate births listed for women of that faith.

The Herald, following up reports by La Presse and The Gazette, says in a newspage story today that one "victim" of the racket told the paper she was delivered of her illegitimate child "on condition she give it up for 'adoption' by people whose name was not revealed to her.

"She agreed, was hospitalized and gave birth to her child. All her hospital expenses were paid. Afterwards, in the presence of two people she never met, she signed papers declaring she gave up the child.

"Such papers, according to legal counsel, are worthless because a child may not be given in adoption unless both parents appear in civil court, testify before a judge and then sign legal adoption agreements."

The Herald story says the baby-farm business is operated with "the co-operation of doctors, by people with 'connections' in the United States and Montreal."

The story says there is a possibility police may lay charges of sequestering infants from their mothers since the papers signed in these cases had no legal standing.

Pensions Bill Given 3rd Reading

CCF Attempt Fails To Alter Any Of Provisions

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. (CP) — Legislation to provide universal pensions at 70 received third and final reading in the Commons Thursday after weathering a final opposition assault on some of its provisions and a CCF attempt to change the method of financing the payments.

The government measure, under which $40-a-month payments to all over 70 will start Jan. 1 next, now goes to the Senate for approval.

It got third reading without a recorded vote, but before that it ran into these criticisms:

1. The CCF contended the 2 per cent personal income tax, which will partly finance the pension, should not have a $60-a-year ceiling as the bill proposes, since that kept the rich from paying an equitable share.
2. Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit spokesmen argued a 2 per cent sales tax at the manufacturer's level, another part of the financing, is a hidden tax and also would be pyramided heavily by the time it reaches the consumer.
3. CCF and Social Credit members said the $40 pension is not adequate.

Unsuccessful Try

The CCF tried, unsuccessfully, to get the $60 ceiling on the old age security tax knocked out of the bill, leaving it a straight 2 per cent levy on taxable personal income. Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre) brought in an amendment to this effect, but it was ruled out of order by Deputy Speaker J. A. Dion while the House was dealing with the bill in committee of the whole.

On a formal appeal to the House, Mr. Dion was upheld by a vote of 118 to 27 with the Liberals backing him solidly, the CCF and Social Credit members voting against the ruling, and the dozen Progressive Conservatives in the House splitting seven to five in favor of the ruling.

In reply to questions as to how the pension would be paid before the security fund gets built up, Mr. Abbott told the House payments will be made out of the treasury whether or not the fund is in bookkeeping balance. If it should be found the fund was not large enough to carry the payments, it probably would be necessary to increase the special levies.

Canada Gives India Wheat

OTTAWA, Nov. 9. (CP)—India, the land of "terrible and pressing problems" and poverty-stricken millions, is to get $10,000,000 worth of top-quality wheat from Canada. Earlier this year Canada offered as a gift some of last fall's frosted wheat but India said she would prefer to wait until Canada could give top-quality grain. Canada has stipulated though that India use the money obtained from the sale of the wheat to dealers to finance long-range projects capable of raising the country's living standards. This conforms with the policies of the Colombo Plan. The Colombo Plan is a six-year commonwealth program for building up the southern Asiatic economy against the threat of Communist aggression. Canada's contribution is $25,000,000—$15,000,000 to India, $10,000,000 to Pakistan. Funds to cover the wheat gift will come from the amount assigned to India.

Nik Cavell, 57-year-old Toronto industrialist, is Canada's Colombo-plan administrator.

Must Act Soon

The western democracies have to make up their minds either to allow Moscow's fantastic lies to win to their side more millions in Asia or to get in there themselves and disprove those lies," he said Thursday in an address to the Canadian Club of Ottawa.

He warned that by lying Russia is "licking the pants off us" in the cold war.

India's government "faces more terrible and pressing problems than any other government in the world today." It's 350,000,000 people are "terribly poverty-stricken" and for many of them "famine is just around the corner."

The Colombo plan was not designed to provide relief from current food shortages but for provision of capital equipment which could raise living standards.

"But as our oriental friends point out to us, and their argument is unanswerable, it is useless to give us beautiful equipment for use in two or three years' time, if in the meantime we have died of famine."

Believe Reds Trying To Stall

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 9 (AP) —Truce negotiators cancelled their afternoon meeting today after an "inconclusive and unproductive" morning session.

A United Nations' command communique which described the talks as fruitless, said negotiators will meet Saturday at 11 am (9 pm EST Friday).

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckolls, UN spokesman, said he got the impression Communist representatives might be stalling.

Allied sources suggested the Reds might be waiting for new instructions in view of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's proposal Thursday in Paris for a cease-fire within 10 days. Vishinsky suggested all troops withdraw from the 38th Parallel and foreign units leave Korea within three months.

Realized Seriousness

Shy and apparently realizing the seriousness of the occasion, the daughter Betty started to give her evidence. She was not sworn.

As Betty walked to the witness box her mother smiled proudly—the first smile that crossed her face from the time the trial began.

Betty said she and her 14-year-old chum, Nancy Scott, went up to her bedroom to retire for the night. They took with them apples, cookies and a supply of comic books.

From time to time Betty could hear "mumbling" downstairs between her father and her mother.

She heard a "noise and then a bang". And she also heard her father say, "I don't care if I break the wall down."

In a faltering voice the young girl said she heard her mother on the telephone.

"I heard her say that she shot Daddy."

Later Mrs. Thompson came up to the bedroom where Betty was sitting on the bed crying over what she had heard. Nancy was trying to settle Betty down. Mrs. Thompson suggested Betty go to bed but Nancy persuaded Mrs. Thompson that Betty should go home with her.

Both In Tears

As the 12-year-old told of the events on the night of August 25, Mrs. Thompson's proud smile faded into tears. Catching sight of her upset mother, and confused by strange surroundings and the questioning, Betty began to cry also.

Mr. Justice Spence declared a brief recess so the two could regain their composure. During the recess Mrs. Thompson tried to speak to her little girl and comfort her, but this too was forbidden by courtroom regulations.

For court purposes they were not mother and daughter, but the accused and a witness. So they sat, some 25 feet apart, just looking at each other.

Spectators, ill at ease, filed out of the courtroom during the recess to give the couple a semblance of privacy.

Very Upset

Nancy Scott told the court that Mrs. Thompson was "very upset" when she came upstairs to the bedroom. She also thought she could previously remember Mrs. Thompson on the phone but she couldn't be sure.

During the earlier part of the evening she recalled that she heard Mr. Thompson swearing.

"I think Mrs. Thompson told him to stop it; she didn't like it."

Earlier in the afternoon the spectators heard Lawrence Dennie testify that Mr. Thompson had taken several shots of hard liquor during the afternoon and evening. But Mr. Dennie said he was unable to notice any effect the alcohol had.

Mrs. Betty Jamieson, 584 Howden Ave., corroborated the testimony of her husband, a previous witness. She said that at 9.45 pm Mrs. Thompson burst into her home and said, hysterically: "Call a doctor. Call a doctor."

When Mrs. Jamieson, aware that Mrs. Thompson was seven months pregnant, inquired if she had to go to a hospital, Mrs. Thompson kept repeating: "I shot him. I shot him."

"Who—your husband?" asked Mrs. Jamieson.

"I shot him. I shot him," was the only reply.

In all Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, KC, called 14 witnesses. He closed his case at 3.45 pm.

No Defence

Defence Counsel T. J. Carley, KC, did not put in any defence. He asked Mr. Justice Spence to direct the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty."

"The evidence adduced in court is not sufficient for a jury, properly instructed in law and having regard to their oaths as jurors, to bring in a verdict of the offence charged — or of the lesser offence."

Mr. Carley argued that the only evidence was the statement: "I shot him. I shot him." At the most this was a statement by a woman in an hysterical condition, he said.

"There is nothing more here than what is consistent with an accidental shooting. The conduct of the woman is consistent with accidental shooting. There is nothing inconsistent such as hiding a weapon or other evidence of guilt."

Rules Out Manslaughter

Mr. Carley ruled out the possibility of a manslaughter verdict.

"On the evidence before us it is murder or nothing," he said, "because there is no indication of criminal negligence.

There was no evidence of intent, he said, and no evidence of lack of care except the statement "I shot him."

Crown Attorney Bradshaw argued that the only element missing was intent and it could be presumed. There was evidence of a quarrel.

"From the whole of the surrounding circumstances a jury might infer intent," said Mr. Bradshaw, "and it is for a jury to decide."

At 4:30 pm Mr. Justice Spence adjourned court for half an hour while he considered Mr. Carley's motion for a directed verdict. He also said that no matter how the trial ended, Crown Attorney Bradshaw had no other course to follow than to lay the charge he did.

Directs Jury

The jury was brought back into the courtroom at 5:15 pm and Mr. Justice Spence told them to bring in a verdict of "not guilty." He said he was not trying to usurp the place of the jury but pointed out that it was their duty to accept his outline of the law.

"There is no evidence here from which a jury could, without reasonable doubt, find intent and bring in a conviction," he said.

He also ruled out manslaughter.

Guilt might be inferred from some of the evidence, he said, but, apart from the evidence of the two children, it was totally circumstantial. The children's evidence could not be accepted unless corroborated by other evidence.

On the evidence Mrs. Thompson's statement was as consistent with an innocent explanation as a guilty one, said Mr. Justice Spence.

"A HEARTY WELCOME TO ALL"

Royal Couple Pays Respects To "Islanders"

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 9—(CP)—Prince Edward Islanders are proud of their confederation role, their longevity, their silver foxes and Anne of Green Gables. And they worked all four into warm-hearted Royal visit welcoming ceremonies here today.

The Royal couple board the cruiser Ontario tonight for Sydney, NS, then on to St. John's, Nfld., where they complete their 15,000-mile North American tour. Next week they'll be home in England.

Bright sunshine, blotted from time to time with woolly clouds scudding across the blue sky, greeted Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh as they were cheered through the streets by a crowd estimated to have swelled the 15,000 population of the city at least three times. The procession route was lined with a shoulder-to-shoulder string of flag-waving children.

The Confederation Chamber where the builders of Canada held their preliminary meetings was the scene of the province's first official welcome. The Princess spoke from the balcony of this historic building and drew attention to its significance.

Healthy People

On her way into the building she catted with Robert Furness, 100-year-old native of nearby Vernon Bridge. He told Elizabeth he had been fishing Thursday and had done a bit of gardening before coming into the ceremonies.

"How interesting at your age," she said.

The Princess also met 94-year-old Dr. R. J. Macdonald, still a practicing physician from nearby St. Peters. He told the Princess that islanders were so healthy they really didn't need doctors, but he continued in service just to keep himself active. She thought his record "wonderful."

The Royal train was pulled across the island from the car-ferry landing by Diesel locomotives. When the train was pulling into the station the cruiser Ontario began firing a salute.

This was echoed by a shore battery which used only two guns because it had recently converted to anti-aircraft.

The guard of honor was made up of Air Force men from the big Summerside air training station.

Sign Register

The Royal couple signed off the last page of the old register which had been started by the King in 1939 and signed the first names on a new register which is left in the Confederation Room.

Premier J. Walter Jones presented Princess Elizabeth with a cheque for $1,000 to be applied to any charity of her choice and also gave her a platinum fox cape from the Island which he said was "the alma mater of the fox industry."

At the city hall acting mayor J. G. Stewart gave the Royal couple a set of six colored photographs of island scenes.

"I expect your highness has read the old favorite 'Anne of Green Gables' by our L. M. Montgomery?"

The Princess said "Oh yes."

"Well," said the mayor, "we are giving you a copy to take home to Princess Anne."

Canoe For Charles

There was a birch bark canoe for Prince Charles.

The Princess wore a brown silk dress under her long mink coat. She also wore a brown hat. The Duke was in naval uniform.

En route to Government House for a private luncheon with Lieutenant-Governor T. W. L. Browse, the motorcade slowed so that the Royal pair could exchange greetings with some children polio patients at the hospital.

Today was the first of their three island stops. Saturday it's Cape Breton Island and the next day, Newfoundland.

Behind them were thousands of Haligonians who stood for hours to give their welcome in the driving rain which fell for both days of the Royal stop here.

But the Princess, who drove with her car window down most of the time despite the wind-driven rain which pelted into her face, said her Halifax welcome had not been dimmed by the elements.

"We shall take away with us memories of your wonderful welcome," she said at a provincial dinner Thursday night.

Their final day in Halifax was a busy one of official functions and rides through the city.

Moving Spectacle

One of the most moving spectacles was at the Halifax Forum where school children jammed every available seat after being forced to cancel a planned program on the spacious exhibition grounds.

With vapor like a Scottish mist rising from the rink's ice surface, the New Glasgow, NS, Girls' Pipe Band paraded with full ceremony and music.

As the pipers marched, Princess Elizabeth beat out a rhythm with her right foot on the bright red carpet.

As the Royal pair left the rink the voices of the children blended in a lusty rendition of "Auld Lang Syne."

At Private Home

Later in the day they were entertained informally in a private home for the first time on their tour.

Princess Elizabeth sat on the arm of a chesterfield beside a blazing log fire in the home of Premier Angus L. Macdonald. The Duke perched on a piano stool.

Each had a cup of tea and chatted with Premier and Mrs. Douglas and their three daughters.

To Oonagh the Princess said she was sorry she had to miss the ride of the Junior Bengal Lancers, cancelled because of the rain. Oonagh is the leader of the famed musical ride performed by youngsters.

The Royal Couple called at stately Admiralty House where Elizabeth had a sherry and Philip stuck to his naval tradition and a wardroom nip of rum.

Canadian Pride

The Princess, with apparent Canadian pride, asked Lt.-Cmdr. W. H. Esworthy, a visiting United States submariner, how he liked working "with our navy."

"Fine," was the reply.

The Duke said his farewell at a civic luncheon in reply to the city's toast to himself and the Princess.

He said he had been struck by the tremendous achievements and enormous possibilities across Canada and was taking back home with him a message that "Canada is a good investment."

"But perhaps more important is the way people go to work here," he said. "Natural resources are not being squandered recklessly. Towns and villages are not growing up without proper thought for their citizens' welfare."

Philip Murray Named CIO Head 12th Time

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Philip Murray, 65-year-old former coal miner, was re-elected today to his 12th year as president of the CIO.

Election of officers followed the passage of resolutions calling for intensified political action next year and authorizing Murray and other officers to pursue whatever avenues toward labor unity that may develop.

Possibility of a CIO-AFL merger appeared remote, however. Murray has declared the CIO against immediate merger while favoring co-operation between the two big labor groups.

Japanese Freighter Reported In Distress

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9 (AP) —The Japanese freighter Kinugasa Maru, with 42 men aboard, was reported in distress in the North Pacific today.

The radiomarine station at Point Reyes, Calif., said it picked up an SOS from the 4,971-ton vessel at 6:15 am (9:15 am EST) saying she was in need of immediate rescue. The number three hold was reported flooding.

An inquest into the death of Joseph Kearns, Lindsay wagon driver who was fatally injured Oct. 27, has been set for Nov. 16. It will be in the Lindsay council chambers.

Mr. Kearns suffered a broken pelvis and died a week ago today after one of the wheels from a wagon, fully loaded with coal, ran over him.

He had left the wagon to inquire where to dump the load when a wedding party drove down the street. The sound of horns blowing and the clatter of tin cans frightened the team and they bolted.

Mr. Kearns was run over when he tried to stop them.

Fails To Prove Discrimination In Time Period

TORONTO, Nov. 9. (CP) — Magistrate Thomas Elmore today dismissed four charges by the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) that the Canadian Press discriminated against four employees of the Ottawa bureau because they were members of the union.

A charge that the national news-gathering agency failed to make every reasonable effort to negotiate a collective agreement was dismissed yesterday.

A similar negotiation charge against Press News Limited, CP's radio-new subsidiary, was withdrawn by Guild counsel.

The four charges dismissed today alleged there had been discrimination in various periods from early 1950 to Sept. 26 this year, the date the charges were sworn.

Magistrate Elmore upheld a contention by CP counsel J. J. Robinette that the charges could relate only to any discrimination alleged in the six months immediately prior to Sept. 26.

Mr. Robinette based this argument on a Criminal Code provision that charges which may lead to summary conviction may only be based on alleged offences occurring within six months of date of swearing.

Magistrate Elmore said the Union had failed to prove discrimination within that six-month limitation.

As in the case dismissed yesterday, no CP witnesses were called in defence.

Plan To Appeal

Guild representatives later said the magistrate's decision will be appealed.

The charges dismissed today, all similar, contended that the CP had discriminated against the employees—H. Dent Hodgson, Katherine Rex, Douglas How and D'Arcy O'Donnell—by refusing to permit them to work in the Parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa.

Magistrate Elmore said the guild had to establish that CP had refused to allow an employee who was a member of the Guild to work in the press gallery within the last six months. That had not been established.

Just because the company might have refused permission at one time, he could not conclude that it might refuse again.

The magistrate noted that the one Guild member now working in Ottawa bureau, H. D. Hodgson, had made no request to be returned to the parliamentary press gallery.

Port Hope Merchants Buck Price-Fixing Legislation

PORT HOPE, Nov. 9.—A meeting of local retail merchants went on record Wednesday night at a meeting in the Orange hall here, as opposing the bill to abolish price fixing recently introduced in the House of Commons.

The bill is aimed at eliminating the present practice whereby many products are sold to retailers on condition they will not resell these articles below a certain minimum price. And retailers failing to observe this practice is likely to find that distributors will be unwilling to accept future orders.

"At first, it was our general impression that merchants favored the abolishment of price maintenance but a closer and more lengthy survey has revealed that such is not the case," R. A. Haworth, secretary manager of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada (Ontario division) told the meeting.

Retailers' Feelings

When the government introduced the bill at the present session of parliament, it touched off a series of meetings throughout Ontario to determine how independent retailers felt about the proposed legislation.

Mr. Howarth said that the object of these meetings is to obtain an unbiased opinion of how retailers feel about abolishing price maintenance.

Looking the bill from the standpoint of those who are for and against it Mr. Howarth said that those who are boosting the anti-price fixing legislation say that price maintenance eliminates competition. They argue that prices are prevented from finding their own level according to variations in supply and demand.

The other side of the picture is that it is in the public interest to have price maintenance because it insures that goods will be properly displayed and presented.

Sees Price War

Charging that this legislation "would spark a price war," the speaker declared "we are bringing powerful and irrefutable facts to the attention of the government against the abolishment of price maintenance."

Mr. Haworth expressed the opinion the bill would not be passed this session.

Formed in 1896, the Retail Merchants' Association is divided into six provinces: Quebec and eastern Canada and an office in each of the other provinces. There are about 5,000 members in the Ontario branch which has its head office in Toronto.

Doctors Want To Curb Legal Abortions

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9 — (AP)—Legal abortions should be outlawed along with those now prohibited by statute because they are "legalized murder," two prominent surgeons said today.

A third surgeon said too many permissive abortions are being performed, but cited instances in which he said such surgery should be considered.

Dr. Samuel A. Cosgrove of Columbia University and Dr. Roy J. Heffernan of Tufts Medical College, Boston, favor abolition of the practice, they told reporters at the American College of Surgeons' Clinical Congress.

"Anyone who commits therapeutical (legal) abortion today," said Dr. Heffernan, "does so because he is either ignorant of the modern methods of treating the complications of pregnancy or is unwilling to take the time to treat them."

Abortion is legal only in cases where doctors say it is necessary to save the mother's life.

Dr. John H. Morton of the College of Medical Evangelists at Los Angeles, told the reporters:

"I have seen three women die from vomiting due to the morning sickness of pregnancy. They might have been saved by abortion. I have seen women die of heart trouble complicated by pregnancy.

"Every woman wanting an abortion should be given a hearing."

Free Press Receives 2nd Award Of Merit

LONDON, Ont. Nov. 9—(CP)—The Free Press has received a second award of merit from the American Association for State and Local History "for continuing its leadership in the publication of articles and materials of local history."

The citation accompanying the award commended the newspaper for "the promotion of interest in local history in Ontario through the publication on every Saturday since 1943—a full page devoted to the local history of western Ontario."

The newspaper first received the award for its "looking over western Ontario" feature in 1946.

The award was voted at the annual meeting of the Association, which is made up of representatives of state history societies of the United States and some provincial societies of Canada.

Took Ride Home Lands In Court

A ride with two men he met in a downtown beverage room Thursday night landed Harrison Lackie, 32 of 668 Stormont St., in jail for the night on a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence.

The car in which Lackie was riding struck the rear of a car driven by W. Harold Roy, 748 Water St., just as Mr. Roy was slowing up to pull into his driveway about 9.20 Thursday night.

After the collision, Lackie jumped out of the car. Then, the driver of the car switched out his lights, shifted into reverse and backed up to Parkhill Rd.

Bottle Dropped Out

When Constable W. A. Scott arrived, Mr. Roy was holding Lackie who seemed anxious to get away from the scene. Mr. Roy told Constable Scott that a pint bottle of beer laying in the snow had fallen out of Lackie's pocket in the scuffle.

In police court today, Lackie pleaded guilty to the charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence. He was fined $15 and $2.50 costs or 10 days in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Constable Scott reported that Lackie said he had met the two men he was riding with in a downtown hotel but did not know their names. He said they were driving an old model car. Police said today, they believe they have established the identity of the car owner.

Raven Follows Pal To School Every Day

GARSON CITY, Nev., Nov. 9—(AP)—Mary had a little lamb that followed her to school one day—but eight-year-old Bobby Anderson can do better than that.

Bobby has a raven that follows him to school every day.

The big black bird named "Smoky" flies right up to the door and, on occasion, flits right into Bobby's third-grade classroom.

And as in the tale of Mary's lamb, that's very much against the rule.

"It's too much of a distracting influence," says Principal John Blaikie.

May Ask Canada For Help In Project

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP)—The Evening News speculated today that Canada and Australia may be asked for help in certain secret British defence projects now held up by lack of manpower.

The paper without going into details, implied that labor shortages are most acute in production of aircraft and guided weapons. There was no indication in what way help would be sought from the two commonwealth countries.

Unofficial estimates are that Britain's three-year £4,700,000,000 defence program will mean that thousands of British workers will have to change jobs within the next few years. There are up to 500,000 job vacancies.

US Has A-Weapons Ready For Battlefield

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—Senator Zales, N. Ecton (Rep. Mont.) said today the United States now has offensive-smashing atomic weapons ready for battlefield use against the Communists in Korea—"if necessary."

Ecton, who witnessed an atomic test in Nevada last week, told reporters the weapons can be used like artillery in support of ground forces. He added, however, that in the strict sense "It's not artillery—they are bombs."

Don't Want Fowl Unless It's Cooked

LONDON, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Canadians sending Christmas food parcels to friends or relatives in Britain were asked today to refrain from including fowl unless it is fully cooked.

The British Agriculture Ministry drew attention to an order effective this month prohibiting the import of poultry carcasses from Canada, Holland and Jersey. The ban was imposed as a precaution against fowl pest.

A Serious Threat To The Kawarthas

Algae in the Kawartha Lakes are killing farm animals and endangering the tourist business. The presence of this noxious many-particled green scum in increasing quantities is a menace and every visitor, cottager, resort owner, swimmer and boater in the Kawartha district is alarmed. What is being done about it? Precisely nothing, it seems.

* * *

It is hardly possible to underestimate the problem which algae is creating and the alarm people feel. In our news columns yesterday was noted the death of eight cattle pastured on the shores of Buckhorn Lake. Two months ago thirteen cattle in the Pigeon Lake area became ill and five of them died. Veterinaries blame algae. Dr. A. F. McKinnon of Bobcaygeon says that the epidemic of cattle poisoning due to the presence of algae in the Kawarthas this year is the most serious it has ever been. The evidence of cottagers on all the Kawartha lakes is that the green plankton on and in the water this season has been heavier and more widespread than ever. And never before has the algae remained until the end of October.

* * *

If this were a unique year for algae people would put up with it without great anxiety. But authorities whom we and other disturbed people have consulted indicate that algae is here to stay. A decade ago the green scum could be seen on backwater bays, but never did it cover a whole shore and most of the lake all summer. Algae could be found in the water of the muddiest lakes, but this year it has got even into Stony Lake.

* * *

Algae are in the Kawarthas from now until the end of time, some experts say with a lack of concern which is frightening farmers, holidayers and business people of this district. Last week the chief of the wildlife division of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests was closely questioned by Kawartha resort operators. What could be done to rid the lakes of algae? Dr. Harkness had no reassuring answers. The official opinion seems to be that nothing can be done.

* * *

That is not good enough. It is too complacent. If algae continues to pollute our lakes at the present rate the million-dollar American tourist influx to the Kawarthas will be stopped up completely. Local people will be unable to use the waters for pleasure. Farmers whose ranches border on the lakes will have to abandon the ranches or water their cattle expensively in other ways.

* * *

We refuse to believe that the Kawarthas are to be polluted forever by algae. We refuse to believe that science, provincial agencies and waterway experts can do nothing to remedy the situation. If no practicable remedy exists, one must be discovered. To curb the algae may be a big undertaking and expensive—although we think that there must be some simple measures of water control, sewage disposal and soil conservation which should be effective. The problem is not small and local; it it serious and regional. A way must be found to deal with the algae, and the people who should find the way and put the remedial and control measures into immediate action are the experts in Toronto and Ottawa and the Provincial Ministers of Agriculture, of Lands and Forests, and of Travel and Publicity. These departments should now be studying the situation and taking steps to remedy it. To sit with folded hands and say nothing can be done is a policy of neglect or despair which Peterborough and other Kawartha people should not condone.

The Churchill Touch

The Speech from the Throne with which the newly formed Conservative Government of Britain has begun its regime was a somewhat vague document. It is worth noting that except for undertakings to remove the steel industry from national management, and to liberalize the national management of some other industries, it contained nothing which a Labour Government would not have said if the decision in the election had been in Labour's favour. When a country has its back to the wall, as Britain has now, governments cannot promise anything except further hardships.

The tone in which these predictions was made, however, was the characteristic tone of Winston Churchill. He, more than any other man of our time, can make bad news seem inspiring. Time and again during the war Churchill told his people, and the world, that the Allied cause was in serious danger, but he always contrived to make danger stimulating.

Because this is a characteristic of Churchill's personality we must not dismiss it as a mere trick. In our democratic age we are apt to undervalue the power of personal magnetism and personal leadership. Mr. Attlee was a man from whom bad news was bad indeed; he [illegible] of great quality, and a statesman, but he is not a man whom other men will follow through fire and water. Churchill has enough buoyancy of spirit to suffice for a whole warring nation.

Will that spirit infect a nation not at war—a nation fighting, on the contrary, the dreary, debilitating economic struggle? It remains to be seen. The Churchill touch was visible in the Speech from the Throne, and we may expect more of that old magic before long.

Fifteen Acts Of Heavysege

Our curiosity has been aroused by a letter which appeared last week in the Montreal Star, written by two students of Bishop's University, who ask why the Canadian dramatist Charles Heavysege (1816-76) is so utterly neglected. In particular they ask for some excuse for the fact that Heavysege's masterwork, a drama in three sections of five acts each, called Saul, has never been presented on any stage. Apparently this work (which we have not read) was praised when it first appeared; it was published in three editions; no less a critic than Coventry Patmore said that parts of it were "scarcely short of Shakespearean", why then does it linger in obscurity?

We would like to assist in any revival of Heavysege's reputation, for not only was he a dramatist—he was also a newspaper man. We repeat that we have never read a line of his work, though we will do so if someone will unearth a copy of Saul for us. But we will take a certain amount of convincing before we will believe that Heavysege was a neglected genius, for the following reasons:

(1) No first-rate drama on a Biblical theme has ever been written; there have been some good plays about Biblical characters, but nothing remotely approaching the Shakespearean level; even Milton couldn't do it.

(2) Fifteen acts is just ten acts more than Shakespeare needed to say his say about anything of importance; it is true that Henry VI runs to three parts, but it is not all Shakespeare, and it is poor drama.

(3) Patmore, like critics before and since, could pick a lemon, and the Victorians had a passion for what they called "closet drama"—unactable, ponderous rubbish, in the main.

We will do all we can for the late Heavysege as we said before; if Bishop's College will present Saul at full length, we will travel to Lennoxville to see it. But we won't promise to like it.

Two-Way Hallowe'en?

In addition to our recent comment about Hallowe'en, we add the following from the Brantford Expositor:

Just glancing casually over the list of some of last week's Hallowe'en happenings, we take at random: an 11-year-old boy killed at Ardrossan, Alberta, when, with some other kids, he was trying to pull the rack off a farm wagon (the rack hit him on the head); 40 tombstones overturned at Oshawa (couldn't have been children because some of the monuments weighed as much as five tons); a young couple shot at but, fortunately, not seriously injured by an irate farmer who mistook them for nitwits who had removed his farm gates and upset his privy. All "innocent" fun? Neither innocent nor funny, we would say—and say it, moreover, to the old-enough-to-know-better birds who boast of the fabulous things they did when they were younger and presumably even sillier than at present.

Would Hallowe'en be more interesting if it were a two-way affair? The farmer with the shotgun may have the right idea. If, on the Eve of All Hallows those of us who have reached adult life were to creep about with baseball bats and dornicks, committing playful mayhem upon those of greener years who were intent upon destroying or dishevelling our property, the old festival would take on a new vitality. And of course it would all be good, clean fun, which nobody who was not a grouch could possibly resent.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. Attlee has been given the Order of Merit, one of the highest honours in the gift of the sovereign. Many people will wonder what, precisely, entitled Mr. Attlee to this particular honour, when a knighthood or baronetcy would have seemed more appropriate. The O. M. is more fittingly kept for men distinguished in the arts or sciences.

H. L. MacPherson, in the Windsor Star, says that Elizabeth and Philip visited Canada as "a Canadian-owned institution," and that it was as "state property" that the King and Queen were here in 1939. Haven't they heard in Windsor that the days of slavery are over?

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHY: Is George Street United Church paying for the free illumination of its tower that it gets by reflection from the floodlighting of the new City Hall?

ANSWER: George St. Church may be a financial centre of Peterborough Christianity, but I doubt that the City Fathers would have the temerity to charge rental for their reflected light. The south side of the tower, as you have suggested, does catch the glow of the bright lights across from it, and looks handsome therein.

I have always thought it a pity that the elders, stewards, deacons or whoever runs that church, have never ordered lights to be put on it for festive occasions. It is one of the finest brick towers in the Province. (I believe that the architect of the church was the same person who designed the Metropolitan Church in Toronto; hence the similarity in church fabric and tower.) George St. church tower looks particularly pleasing in summer from across the river opposite London Street, rising from a bower of leafy green.

DEAR ALPHA: Who are the heirs of all the ages: the Americans, the British, the Israelites, or the loudest talkers?

ANSWER: Your question is restrictive in its premise. It could be that the Chinese are the great inheritors; after all, they have a longer civilization and now a pretty strong front. Chinese inscrutability (of which we hear little these days) covers a multitude of the aches and joys and achievements of the human race. (Isn't it strange that we fondly talked of the 'inscrutable Chinese' when they were on our side; and now we think only of Mao's pan-face, forgetting that he is a very clever, able general and statemaker; and also probably as inscrutable as his revered compatriots of pre-hostile days?)

The phrase comes directly from John Tyndall, British scientist and natural historian, who got it from Tennyson: 'I the heir of all the ages in the foremost halls of time' (Locksley Hall). Everybody and every nation is heir of all the ages; it is one inheritance that taxation cannot take from anybody. I would say that now the Americans have the biggest chunk, as a nation. But never underestimate the power of a Jew. There are great capacities in the Jewish people, and they have a great tradition.

Listening to President Truman broadcast Wednesday evening on the limitations of armaments, I felt the great lack which the U.S. has of a Churchill. There is Churchill, born after his time, in a bankrupt England. There is President Truman, folksey in his talk, mid-western in his accent, slip-slop in his diction (if I may be pardoned for criticizing the speech of the head of the greatest nation on earth); a small voice for his nation. Churchill's seems too big for his now. How wonderful, and salutory for mankind on earth, if Churchill could speak, with his Elizabethan fervour, certitude, flamboyance and grandeur, for the greatest nation on earth—the United States. But, alas, this hardly seems possible—unless the United States joined the British Commonwealth.

JURY IN MURDER TRIAL: Jury duty is a responsibility of citizenship but it is often inconvenient. This is particularly true in long trials for murder. Immediately that a man called to present himself as a possible juryman is accepted by the defending and prosecuting counsel and by the Court, he is held a prisoner until the trial has ended. He can't communicate with anybody outside the Court.

This week some jurors had left their cars mired in the snow on side streets or on the market. When they were chosen jurors it was as if they were people caged by a hypnotist. Messages had to be sent to the police either to rescue the cars or at least not pounce on them. Other messages were relayed to wives not to forget to pay the gas bill tomorrow. Toothbrushes, pyjamas and a change of linen had to be sent for .... Jurymen live, eat and sleep in complete isolation from the outside world. At night, they are taken to a hotel and locked in their rooms. All the day, all the night, they are out of reach of wives and families, business affairs and their clubs. A juryman is ostracized from the society of others as if he were a person with a loathsome disease. I am told that he cannot use the telephone, listen to the radio, or even read The Examiner. The reason for all these precautions is, of course, that jurymen shall be uninfluenced in their decision by anything other than what they hear in Court.

SIR: Sometimes Parliaments are known by nicknames—for instance the "Long" Parliament (1640-1660) opened by Charles I. I remember from one schoolteacher that a parliament was called the "Mad Parliament". Can you please tell me which one that was?

ANSWER: The Mad Parliament met at Oxford in 1258. It was so called because of its opposition to the King.

Other Parliaments which have been given special names (by people or schoolmasters) are: The Drunken Parliament 1661, a Scottish Parliament elected just after the Restoration. It was thoroughly Royalist and annulled all acts passed during the preceding twenty-eight years. The Addled Parliament, 1614, was dismissed by James I, and several of its members were imprisoned because they refused to provide supplies until grievances were redressed. There was a Parliament of Bats and Clubs, of 1426, which met at Leicester. Members had been prohibited from carrying weapons, but, since they needed protection, went down to the Parliament house with a crowd of servants behind them armed with bludgeons and similar weapons. There was a Lack of Learning Parliament (1404) so called because the sheriffs were ordered by the King to return none to Parliament but "illiterate persons".

There have been both a Little Parliament and a Small Parliament. The Little Parliament (1653) was the first summoned by Cromwell, composed of 120 nominees of Independent ministers. It was also known as "Barebone's Parliament" from the name of one of its members, 'Praise God Barebon', a leather seller in Fleet Street. The Short Parliament (1640) was Charles I'st fourth Parliament. It sat for three weeks only, and was dissolved because, instead of voting supplies, it turned its attention to the redress of grievances. There has been one Model Parliament (1295) which contained representatives of the barons and the prelates, and also two knights from each shire and two burgesses from each borough. At that time it was considered a model of what Parliament should be. There has been only one "Good Parliament" in the last seven centuries—the Parliament of 1376, which banished Alice Perrers, the mistress of Edward III, and censured the King himself. It was the first instance of impeachment.

FOR THE RECORD: The carved and painted reproduction of the Armorial Bearings which adorns the new Council Chamber is handsome, but not what the College of Heralds designed. The trappings above the shield are over-elaborated, turned the opposite way from those on the authorized Bearings, and, wonder of wonders, the dexter supporter of the shield, the stag, has been transformed into a hind. Whether this is due to accident of design, or oversight, it is wrong. A hind is not what the College of Heralds ordained—whoever heard of a hind as a symbol of civic virility?

While I am on this subject—the new city hall letter-head, incorporating the armorial bearing is now in use, and the new city seal has been designed. In both, the reproduction of the authentic armorial bearings is an inelegant parody of them. The lion on the stationery, for instance, looks like a bedraggled mongrel Dachshund. The crest, in its cramped shape, looks warped. The engraving on the seal is coarse, and the drawing is not faithful to the heraldic design. I understand that the master dies for both were done in Toronto. It would be interesting to know why the Peterborough engraver, Mr. Stanley Hayman, a craftsman eminently qualified to do such work, and who is constantly engaged in it, was not asked to do the Peterborough job. He is considered one of the best half-dozen engravers in the country and has had a long thorough training in his craft, much of it at the Royal Mint.

An American Opinion: THE INVISIBLE CANDIDATE

And Rome Fell

(Rene Sedillot: "History of the World In 300 Pages")

As Rome moved toward its fall the only continuing element in all this instability was the bureaucracy. Emperors might come and emperors might go, but the civil service went on forever. Its officials were creatures of routine, the instruments of a centralized government, omnipotent. In their persons the State triumphed.

Because it eliminated private enterprise from every sphere, because it intervened more and more in the life of the community, the machinery of State became more and more expensive to run. In order to meet the drain on the Treasury taxation was increased to a point at which it became intolerable. The burdens laid on private enterprise ended by killing it. Inevitably bureaucrats gave birth to more bureaucrats and State action produced more State action.

The imperial administration imposed taxation by decree. In course of time it had become the owner and exploiter of an immense landed property. It built up a controlled economy. Under Domitian, in order to check over-production, it ordered vines to be uprooted. Under Diocletian, in order to combat a rise in the cost of living, it laid down maximum prices and wages, threatening death to any who should be found guilty of contravening the new ordinances. But the laws of supply and demand rebelled against this pattern of arbitrary administration.

The system inevitably produced inflation and devaluation. The denarius had its silver content progressively reduced until it contained more copper than of white metal. The weight of the gold piece, called at first "aureus" and later, "solidus", was reduced by 50 per cent between the reigns of Caesar and Valentinian.

Once Rome had been rich, but she was rich no longer. She had fed upon her wealth. She had destroyed her natural leaders and ruined her middle class. She had undermined the spirit of enterprise. She had come to hate hard work. As a result of her decadence the economic axis of Europe moved from the Mediterranean to the Rhine-Danube line. Rome was no longer the centre of the world.

Cooking

(Manchester Guardian)

Mrs. Elizabeth Raffald's 800 recipes may have had a well-justified vogue in the Eighteenth Century, but they would be of little use to the modern housewife. Apart from a complete lack of what Mrs. Raffald would consider quite normal ingredients, such as six pounds of butter in a pie crust, modern cooks would probably object to some of the methods of preparation. For in Mrs. Raffald's day the cook began right at the beginning. The directions for roasting a pig, for instance, begin firmly: "Stick your pig just above the breast bone, run your knife to the heart, when it is dead put it in cold water for a few minutes.... Take off the four feet at the first joint, make a slit down the belly, take out the entrails." Even after the pig was roasted some muscular work was still required. "Take a sharp knife, cut off the head and take off the collar, then take off the ears and jawbone, split the jaw in two."

One would like to see Mrs. Raffald's ghost in a modern kitchenette with one week's rations out of which to produce her "Grand Table" of three courses, each course consisting of 25 elaborate dishes.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth. (II Cor. 10: 17, 18.)

✧ ✧ ✧

But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ. (II Cor. 11: 3.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it. (I Cor. 10: 12, 13.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen. (Jude 1: 24, 25.)

✧ ✧ ✧

All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him.

Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. (Matt. 11: 27-29.)

Love Begins At 40?

(Ottawa Journal)

For years, it seems to us, Canadians going across the border have said smugly, "And we've tickets for 'South Pacific', too!" New York, we have heard, went wild over this romance of the middle-aged planter and his enchanted evenings under the Southern moon. Now our other cousins in London have seen "South Pacific" and the critics have been at the job of criticizing unfavorably even as the audiences have cheered.

This goes to show that the British at the show are different from the Americans, after all. No entertainment in recent British history brought bigger crowds and more enthusiasm than the American imports, "Arsenic and Old Lace", "Oklahoma", and "Annie Get Your Gun", although the Cockney accents of some of the supporting cast acting as Brooklyn policemen or wide West cowhands lent a certain piquancy to their lines.

And why, therefore, did "South Pacific" fail to rate rave notices? As usual, it took a Canadian to interpret between the British and the Americans, and Beverley Baxter, who divides his time between being an MP, a columnist and a theatre critic, put his finger on the difficulty:

"Here in these islands the blush of youth has never had a chance against the greying temples of middle age."

There you have it. The Americans, with the accent on youth and bobby-soxers (has that term become antiquated?) are delighted and intrigued by the success of a middle-aged lover. But in England, Sir! A man with his wars and depressions behind him is just coming into his romantic best in the 40s and 50s. And if these types can snatch a maiden's heart in foggy London what's surprising about a display of accomplishment in love by a stiff-kneed Romeo in the warm South?

Alas The Poor Butler!

(Montreal Gazette)

A recent statement on unemployment in Great Britain says that positions for butlers have now become very rare. An effort is being made to direct butlers to some other form of employment.

Readers of P. G. Wodehouse will remember the incomparable dignity of Jeeves. "There was another ring at the front door, Jeeves shimmered out and came back with a telegram." It is not easy to see how the art of shimmering (acquired by long and devoted practice) would be regarded as an occupational skill of general usefulness.

Nor is the imperturable butler merely a figure out of fiction. An anecdote about just such a butler appears in The Autobiography of Sir Patrick Hastings, the English barrister. Once Sir Patrick went to a dinner party, at which Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree was present. A dispute arose as to the correct manner of depicting the death of Hamlet. Some of those present favoured a painful and gymnastic death. Others (including Tree himself) were more inclined towards grace and elegance. In the end the guests supported their arguments with demonstrations. As the result, they were all lying around the table as dying Hamlets.

At that moment the butler brought in the fish. Neither his face nor manner betrayed the slightest astonishment at the strange spectacle that met his eyes. He stepped over the recumbent forms in turn, continuing his duties, and left the fish upon the table until such time as any weary Prince of Denmark might care to resume his seat and dinner.

Four card sharps got together on the train and a tense, hard-fought contest ensued. Suddenly, the dealer tossed his cards down and said: "This game is crooked."

"What makes you think so?" queried the card sharp on his left.

"I can tell," replied the dealer, "because that guy is not playing the same hand I dealt him."

Bring Back Rent Committee If Elected, Jolliffe Says

By The Canadian Press

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, says that if his party wins the Nov. 22 provincial general election, it will immediately re-establish the Legislature Rent Committee to clear up what he terms "the present chaotic situation" on rentals of houses and commercial premises

In a campaign speech Thursday night at Oakville, midway between Toronto and Hamilton, he said the Rent committee was "deliberately killed" last August because the government is opposed to rent controls. He said it was "put to death" just when it was about to make specific recommendations on rent adjustments.

Premier Frost toured a section of Western Ontario Thursday night and spoke in Arthur, Listowel and Brantford, telling his Brantford audience that Ontario civil servants need have no fear of dismissal because of political views. Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, told a Hamilton gathering the government had neglected to use $30,000,000 in federal funds that were available for hospitals and other public health services.

Mr. Joliffe said the present rent-control status can only be determined by studying relevant federal statutes and amendments to them. The province had made only a few changes when it took over the federal rules.

"As a result, tenants don't know where they stand with their landlords and the landlords don't know either. Even their lawyers don't know how the regulations stand."

The state of commercial rent regulations was worse. Many small business men were being forced into bankruptcy by "extortionate" landlords.

Mr. Thomson said the government has used only $10,870,000 of the $40,025,299 in federal health funds at its disposal since 1948.

"Why the shortage of hospital beds when this surplus is evident? Add to this some $20,000,000 in other surpluses. Much could have been done with this to save life and health throughout Ontario.

No Lack Of Money

"There is no lack of money for this, but just a refusal to use the funds available. The government wouldn't even touch its own great surplus, even though the need was great."

A Liberal administration would use the federal funds to set up additional clinics for cancer detection and for treatment of rheumatism and tuberculosis and would provide more rehabilitation centres for the crippled.

Premier Frost said at Brantford that his government believes civil servants should not be subject to "the whims and fancies of political parties." Provincial civil servants were treated as part of government, not as political appointees.

"I have tried since I have been Prime Minister of this province to build up a civil service which would not be at the mercy of politicians."

Aids Rural Dwellers

At Arthur, he said his government had tried to provide rural dwellers with improved hydro and telephone services, grants for community centres and arenas and has contributed toward meeting snowplowing costs — all in an effort to place farm life more on a par with city life. A plan announced this week to provide loans for housebuilding on farms and in small towns and for helping farmers' sons set up their own farms was a step in the same direction.

Also at Arthur, Health Minister Phillips announced a system of capital grants to establish psychiatric units for early treatment of mental cases in general hospitals. He said he hopes the plan will save 36 per cent of all mental patients who otherwise would go to mental hospitals."

UAW Boosts Officials' Salaries

CINCINNATI, Nov. 9 (AP). — The United Automobile Workers' Union (AFL) boosted the salaries of their international officers Thursday, raising the president's and secretary-treasurer's pay to $15,000 annually. The two officers previously received $7,800.

The vice-president's salary was increased from $6,000 to $13,000 at the annual convention, and all other board members from $5,400 to $11,000.

At the same time, the auto workers increased union dues from a $1.50 monthly minimum to a $2 minimum.

Harry E. O'Reilly, director of organization for the AFL, reported the AFL's total membership had increased by 750,000 between the union's 1950 and 1951 conventions.

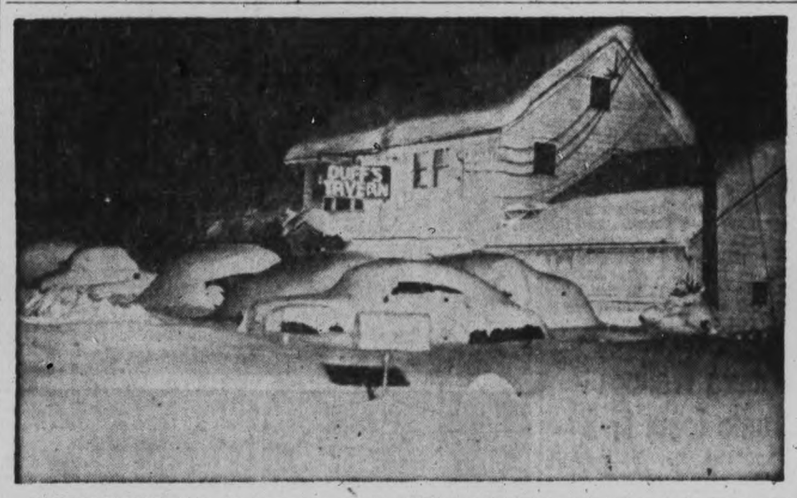
Approval Given For New School

Notice of approval of a $225,000 expenditure for the new public school planned in Ashburnham was received Thursday night by the Board of Education from the the Department of Education.

At the same time, a letter from city council notified the board that a bylaw providing $250,000 for the school had received first and second readings and had been forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Originally the school was intended to contain eight instructional units, but a recent decision of the board changed the school's capacity to nine units.

The department of education will pay grants of $25,000 for each unit, for construction purposes, but pays nothing for sites or their development.



When the $250,000 bylaw is approved by the municipal board, it will return to city council, where third reading will be given. It will then become law, and work can start on plans for the new school.

Reporting on the new collegiate, G. Wilson Craw told the board that the weather had slowed concrete work, but that the contractor had secured structural steel a month earlier than expected.

At the Grove school, said Mr. Craw, rough plastering and partition work was done and the contractor, Walter Mortlock, expected to have the school ready early in the year.

Bethany News

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Tennant, Blackstock visited with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Ginn on Wednesday afternoon, their wedding trip cut short because of the storm. Mrs. Tennant reported snow waist deep in Buffalo and travelling was very difficult.

BUFFALO HAD a really heavy snowfall Saturday and Sunday and some of the residents went to Duff's Tavern for a quickie. When this picture was taken their cars were still there and immovable. The drivers and passengers? Oh, probably still there if it's nice and warm.

Discuss Mission Work At Bethany Meeting

BETHANY, Nov. 9—(ENS)—The Mission Circle Girls of the United church met at the home of Mrs. T. J. Jackson for their November meeting. The president, Miss Joan Bristow, led the devotional period, assisted by Miss June Wright.

Miss Janet Bigelow told about the work of the United Church Training School in Toronto. "Two scholarship students from Korea and one from Japan are now attending this school. The Japanese girl arrived almost starved as she did not know enough English to order her meals in her trip across Canada."

Miss Eleanor Rowan told of the work and life of the Rev. Robert G. Katsuroff of Bulgaria, how he came to this country and is now helping his fellow countrymen through the Church of All Nations in Montreal.

Mrs. T. Jackson gave a talk on mission work, taken from a report given by John Kitchen, who has recently returned to Canada from China. He still has faith that the Christian Chinese will retain their faith and religion in these troubled times.

Senior hockey returns to Peterborough tonight at 8.30 in Civic Arena. It's the opening of the OHA senior "B" schedule, Queen's University of Kingston clashing with the local Eagles. The Petes go to Belleville tonight. Can't tell you what Queen's are like yet but they're supposed to be much stronger than last season. Nor can one say how good the Eagles are until they've been seen in action. In the past, they've been a crowd-pleasing crew, one that fights right to the final gong. Under scrappy Coach Ned Vitarelli, they no doubt will continue to show that hustle, and we expect a big turnout this eve for the puck opener.

The ability of Ross Nicholls in the nets is well known, and fans know defencemen Keith Montgomery, Jim Munroe and Doug Mortimer. The other chap is Moon Wootton, classy eager for the senior lacrossers. He's played hockey up north, the intermediate brand, and looks like he'll fit in okay. George Brabin, former Oshawa junior, is on one line with Joe Rochetta and Bill Crowley. Another one has three w.k. puckists in Bert Hill, Dootch Vitarelli and Buck Legrow. Third line features Freddy Mortimer, Reg Stewart and Jim Wilson, who played Toronto mercantile hockey. Several others will be used in later games with the Eagles. Should be a solid squad.

A School For Cagers

There's a basketball school for guys tonight and Saturday eve in the YMCA. It is put on by Barry Lowes, physical recreation adviser of the Department of Education. He stages various cage schools about the province. Designed primarily for coaches and hoop referees, players may attend, too. Classes deal with training and picking players, practices, teaching of fundamentals, films, styles of offence and defence, feinting, shooting, etc. and etc. Two two-hour sessions, including lectures and demonstrations. It should prove interesting and valuable to those keen on basketball here.

A Louisiana dentist, Dr. M. T. Marietta, has invented a facial mask for athletes, according to the Windsor writer. It started when a farmer asked him to fashion a plastic nose for him. The dentist made a mould of the man's face and formed a crude plastic mask to be attached to the fellow's face with metal hooks fitting inside the cheek bones. Gradually word spread around and some football players asked for similar masks to be worn during games to prevent facial injuries. Deluged finally with inquiries and orders, Dr. Marietta moved to Dallas and opened a mask factory. Puckists as well as gridders use them. For example, University of California ordered 30.

Orfun Gridders Dined

Orfuns were entertained at dinner in the "Y" last night by the Y's Men's Club, where a presentation was made to Coach Frank Gnup. He was the recipient also of a present from the gridders ere he returns to his Hamilton home. The capable and popular coach isn't sure of his football plans yet for next year, but Dr. Chenoweth—Orfuns' prexy—said the club wants him back here. Had Gnup been at the helm all season, it is quite likely Peterborough (not Oshawa) would have taken this group to go into provincial finals. Frank had high praise for the local players, who gave it all they had in a rugged schedule, after getting off to a shaky start.

Oshawa Combines tackle PCVS senior "A" footballers at two tomorrow aft in Morrow Park to wind up their high school schedule, and Bev Goulding's crew should take this one and proceed a week later into the COSSA final. Against Stamford of the Niagara peninsula here. It might be a pretty greasy gridiron on the morrow as no attempt will be made to scrape the field first. Maybe the Garnet and Greys should have borrowed the CRU $12,000 tarp lying idle at Varsity! Next weekend, the winner of the Georgian Bay-Niagara Falls sawoff will be here to play St. Peter's in the COSSA junior "B" final, according to present arrangements. It will make for two playoffs locally on the same day.

Gnup Honored By Team And Y's Men

Coach Frank Gnup of the ORFU intermediate Orfuns was honored last night by his executive and players, as well as by the Y's Men's Club, when the latter entertained the Orfuns at a dinner in the YMCA. Mr. Gnup, whose plans for next football season are uncertain at present, is leaving Peterborough within a few days to return to his home in Hamilton.

Joe Barnard, Y's Men's Club president, welcomed the large turnout of gridiron guests. Entertainment included a sing-song led by Joe Watson with Quirt McKinney the pianist. Stan McBride, after introducing the executive and players of the Orfuns Football Club, introduced the guest speaker, Frank Gnup.

"This has been one of the finest teams I have handled," Gnup said of the Orfuns; "they give the game all they have. They're playing a hard, rugged game for the fun of it and they deserve a lot of credit. If this team gets off to a good early start next year, it should be a winning one. It has an excellent hard-working executive and the club deserves more fan support." He then dealt with various phases of the game and reeled off a number of enjoyable anecdotes.

Joke On Gnup

One which drew much laughter was on himself. As the playing coach of Hamilton a few years ago, he bawled out a referee in a Montreal game, saying: "You've got the best seat in the place and you get paid for this, but you stink!" The referee picked up the ball, paced off 10 yards against Gnup's squad and asked him: "How do I smell from here?" Mr. Gnup was thanked for his speech by Don Harwood.

D. A. McGillis, Sr., came in for considerable praise for his aid to various sports here, including football.

Following a presentation of a pen to Gnup by the Y's Men's Club, Gord Beatty, Orfuns' captain, on behalf of the club presented the coach with a fine station-wagon coat.

Club president Dr. Roger Chenoweth expressed thanks to the Y's Men's Club for entertaining the footballers, and praised Frank Gnup for his work after coming in late in the season to coach the team. He said they wanted Frank back again next year.

Cobourg Wallops Toronto Team 17-8

COBOURG, Nov. 9.—Cobourg Comets of the Lakeshore Intermediate Hockey League opened their season here by whipping Danforth Combines, a Toronto Senior "B" team, 17-8, in a brawling exhibition game.

Fights on the ice were common and both teams played four men a side for 10 minutes in the second session as a result of one battle that saw Cobourg winger Ken Wilcox and Toronto centre Todd square off and slug it out with both teams finally joining in.

A Toronto team non-playing member started a mill back of his team's bench at the same time with Cobourg spectators and the fans had two fights to watch at one time. Referee Allan Fisher finally summoned the rink manager and police to have the Toronto spectator removed to another vantage point.

Indian Athlete Has Skin Cancer Operation

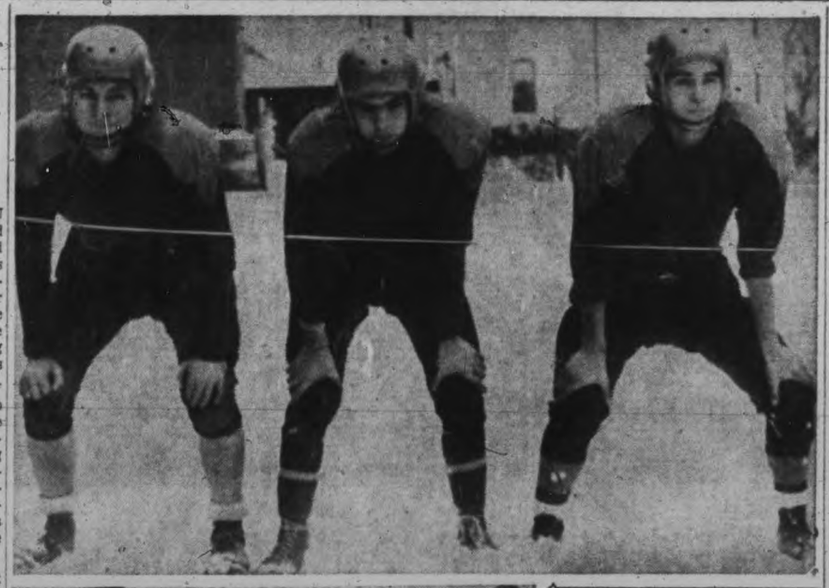
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9 (AP)—Jim Thorpe, 63-year-old Indian athlete termed the United States' greatest of the last 50 years, undergoes a delicate operation today for what a hospital spokesman describes as a form of skin cancer.

Thorpe has been appearing at a Philadelphia cafe heading an all-Indian song and dance troupe. He entered hospital several days ago when a sore on his lower lip failed to respond to ordinary treatment.

The former Carlisle Indian Institute football star and 1912 Olympic decathlon winner will undergo several delicate operations calling for plastic surgery, a spokesman said.

Dandurand Selling Stock In Alouettes

MONTREAL, Nov. 9 (CP).—Leo Dandurand said Thursday night he has offered his stock in Alouettes Big Four Football Club to his two partners, Eric Cradock and Lew Hayman, and given them until Nov. 26 to make a decision.



Dandurand announced several weeks he was resigning as president of the Montreal team and would sell his one-third interest. By agreement he is obliged to offer it to the other two shareholders.

Dandurand said he was not breaking off all relations with the team and had been in discussions on plans for a reorganization for 1952.

Toronto's G. Chevier Defends Snooker Title

At Winnipeg, George Chenier of Toronto successfully defended his Canadian snooker championship Thursday by defeating Leo Levitt of Montreal 4-1. It was Chenier's fifth defence of the title since he claimed it six years ago. His four-game run in the afternoon session gave him a total of 26 victories in the best-of-51 game match. Levitt won nine during four days' play.

COSSA DEBUTS next week will be made at Morrow park when St. Peter's High School oppose the winner, yet to be declared, from the Niagara alls and Georgian Bay districts in the first junior "B" COSSA championship. Excellent reasons for the 12-game winning streak are: (Top) backfielders Frank McGillen, Bob O'Rourke and Murray Byrne; (Middle) first year snap, Don Chambers, and quarterback, John Hickey; (Bottom), plunger-kicker Gord Snape. Snape, who alternates with McGillen on the kicking, will be trying for his second straight junior championship, last year a WOSSA champ.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Negro Athletes Treated Well In Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Nov. 9 (CP). — Jimmy Cole, a Negro who used to play sandlot baseball here, now is the unofficial agent for all Negro boxers who appear in Vancouver.

"My boys," says Jimmy, "want to say thanks, Vancouver, for being good to us."

In an interview Jimmy added: "A lot of our southern boys arrive here with fears as to how they'll be treated. I meet them, find out their tastes and try to arrange for their entertainment by our people.

"Take Earl Richmond (who fought here recently).

"I took him among our own people, he went to church, he was received in homes and he felt right at home, instead of being left lonely and feeling unwanted.

"He said when he left how well he had been treated by white people. . . .

More Examples

"The other night, (promoter) Jack Fox picked Floyd Marks as his best of the card at the Gardens and gave him a watch. All the other boys on the card were white and it meant a lot to us to see that the color of skin did not count.

"We feel human up here. Need I say more?"

At the end of the baseball season here, Vancouver fans picked Negro catcher John Ritchey as most popular player on their Western International League team.

Now Vancouver hockey fans are voicing their approval of gangling, 20-year-old Negro Alf Lewsey, forward on their Pacific Coast Senior Amateur League team, the Monarchs.

Zorra vs. Zebra Tops Mat Card

An outstanding attraction has been lined up for next Tuesday's wrestling card at the Brock when the Zebra, a masked matman meets the sensational Zorra in the feature event.

Although this is the first appearance here for the Zebra his reputation has preceded him. The masked 325-pound grappler is one of the best—fast for a big man and plenty ringwise.

Zorra needs no introduction. There is never a dull moment when he's in the ring, as his last couple of bouts have proved. This boy is really tops.

The semi-final will bring together Lou Newman and Myron Cox. There will be fireworks in this match.

A newcomer, Mike Padousis meets up with Lou Sjoberg in the opener. Padousis, a Greek grappler, is highly rated.

Plans Return To Harness Racing

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9 (AP)—Hanover Shoe Farm, largest breed stable in the United States, plans on returning horses to harness racing competition next year. The farm discontinued racing in the late 1930s.

For a starter, Lawrence B. Sheppard, president of the Horse-breeding Corporation at Hanover, Pa., will enter Tar Heel and Solicitor, champion three-year-olds he acquired at record prices on Thursday.

Sheppard told a reporter of his plans after paying $125,000 for Tar Heel at the standard-bred horse sale at the Pennsylvania State farm show. It was the highest price ever paid at a horse auction.

The Hanover Shoe Farm operator also paid $100,000 for Solicitor. This too topped the previous high of $72,000 paid by J. J. McIntyre, Hollis, Va., for the yearling Imperial Hanover in 1949.

Sheppard's purchases were made in spirited buying which saw the four-day total standard-bred sales soar to a record $1,481,525.

Tar Heel and Solicitor were purchased for breeding purposes but they will race next year, Sheppard said.

Local Male Hoop Players Can't Agree Upon Teams

A player dispute involving two of three basketball teams who will represent Peterborough in the Ontario cage game this season is presently raging.

The disagreement is over the intermediate "A" calibre basketball players who prefer to play only intermediate "B". The teams involved are last year's Clapper's Bruins, intermediate "A", and the Marines, who reached the intermediate "B" semi-finals last year.

At a recent practice all the players were invited out with the intermediate "A" team but only last year's players turned out. This left a number, who want to play intermediate "B" basketball, although they are of "A" calibre.

The intermediate "A" team wants to have those players to strengthen its ranks this year.

In Lakeshore

Fraser Wade, physical director at the YMCA, said today that the former Clapper Bruins, who last year played only exhibition games until the Ontario playoffs, will this year play in the lakeshore league, probably jumping into the "A" playdowns in the spring.

The team so far is much the same as last years with veterans, Joe Stewart, Chum Gillespie, Gord Burns, Doug. Plunkett, Ab Stewart, Warren Smith, Bill Edger and Hugh Dibben back pounding the hardwood.

Star PCVS player last year Al Northcott is working out with another PCVS senior Garth Jopling and newcomer Bill Canning.

A league meeting to discuss entries and rules, and to draw up a schedule will be held shortly. It included last year teams from Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Cobourg and Port Hope.

Last year's intermediate "B" is back in full force this year and will probably be stronger. It easily romped undefeated through the lakeshore league last year and lost only one game, those few points edging them out of Ontario finals.

Under Coach Gord McIntyre, there are out at practices high scorers Jim Thorburn, and Ted Payne, along with speedy Rocky Kidd, and tough guards like Doug MacPherson, Bill Dadson and Bill Trimm.

Ace Newcomers

Newcomers this year are also PCVS graduates from the senior ranks, both considered top COSSA players while with the Garnet and Grey under Coach Bev Goulding. They are Harold Grafstein, who played last year in Toronto with one of the better junior teams, and PCVS' Neil Thompson. Thompson played sparingly last year with the Marines and always starred.

This team will be in an Eastern Ontario league which includes teams from Belleville and Kingston. These teams are usually stronger that the lakeshore league teams.

The third team is an offshoot from the YMCA city league in 1950-51 and is primarily for the less-experienced players. It is coached jointly by Ted Smith and Fraser Wade.

All the players have had some experience on the basketball floor, mostly under the PCVS Garnet and Grey colors, and should provide fairly stiff opposition for other lakeshore league teams.

Out with this team are: John Cereno, Vern Butcher, Spike Batchelor, Larry Cunningham, Bob Jamieson and Ted Smith.

PCVS Squad Won't Clear Morrow Park For Contest

While skiers are zooming down nearby hills, the skaters and hockey players are initiating frozen-pond rinks, the PCVS Garnet and Grey football team will be playing Saturday its last hurdle before the COSSA final, November 17.

At Morrow Park Saturday without shovels, snowshoes or skis, the Garnet and Grey will attempt to plough through two opponents, the eight inches of slush and snow, and the Oshawa Collegiate Combines.

This will be the first time that the Garnet and Grey has entertained on a snowy field since collegiate football returned to PCVS after the war.

But for this year's low-flying squad playing in snow will be nothing new. They had a successful experience last Saturday in Belleville when they easily cast aside six inches of wet snow and the Belleville Collegiate team 39-0.

Hopes For Thaw

Coach Bev Goulding said today that as for moving the heavy blanket of snow now covering the Morrow Park field, nothing will be done. He is hoping that before the COSSA final in a week's time, there will be mild weather, at least enough to clear the field.

He reasons that, if the field were cleared for Saturday's game, the field might be ruined for the remainder of the season with the tire and chain marks, caused by the grader which would have to be used to clear the snow away. Anyway he'll take the chance that there'll be a thaw before the final day.

If, on the mucky field, Oshawa should upset the favored Garnet and Grey, a sudden-death game will be played next Wednesday to declare a winner from the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario district.

No Upset Likely

But the chances for an upset are slim. The Garnet and Grey proved last week in their Belleville victory that they can play on snow, whether passing, running or kicking.

Oshawa Collegiate just edged past Belleville in their first meeting 15-9 and didn't indicate too much power in their first game with PCVS, won by Coach Goulding's squad 27-11.

Back into the lineup this week will be backfielder Don Scriver, who sat a week out with a minor injury and Ted Sanders, a regular outside, whose ankle was badly bruised in the Red Feather game with Kirkland Lake.

Bryan Young, flashy quarterback with the Garnet and Grey, will be making his first appearance this season against the Motor City squad. Alternate Dave Langhorne handled the PCVS squad in Oshawa.

Hawks Drop 3-1 Decision To Toronto Leafs, Canadiens Whip Bruins 4-2

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago Black Hawks fans who debunked for years the old saw "You gotta produce a winner to get a crowd," are yielding to that popular sports theory after five heartbreak years. They've decided, after setting season National Hockey League attendance records, that a last-place club can become a trifle boring. Only 4,102 hard-bitten folks showed up at Chicago stadium (capacity: 20,004) Thursday night to see Ebbie Foodfellow's last placers drop a 3-1 decision to Toronto Maple Leafs. It was the smallest turnout at the stadium since the Hawks got their NHL franchise 25 years ago.

The other NHL game Thursday night was played at Montreal where the Canadiens climbed to within one point of the third-place Boston Bruins with a 4-2 decision. A count of noses showed 13,971, smallest crowd of the season at the Forum.

Hawk fans have shown the patience of a Job as their "favorites" floundered around in the cellar. Since the 1946-47 season, they've trailed the pack each time out except in the 1949-50 campaign when the Hawks climbed a notch.

And through it all the Chicago fans turned out in fantastic numbers—521,831 in the 1946-47 season, highest in the league. The foollowing year the count was 491,584, again high-water mark for the six-team circuit and it was the same story in 1948-49 when the figure was 491,494.

Drop All Over

Figures weren't compiled, for publication, the last two seasons but unofficial surveys indicated a drop in all NHL cities except Toronto and Montreal.

The NHL brass now may get cracking on that publicity campaign they set up in 1949 to sell the game to the Canadian and American public. The publicity board, set up at a meeting in New York, was instructed to "plan and develop a positive statement of hockey objectives for a vigorous presentation to the public."

Chicago would be a logical kicking-off spot.

Thursday night's defeat was the second in five days on Chicago ice. Leafs, who shut out the Hawks 1-0 Wednesday night in Toronto, poked home two goals in three minutes in the second period for the lead on which they coasted home.

Rudy Migay, Ted Kennedy and Harry Watson scored the Leaf goals. Roy Conacher saved the shutout with a marker at, 10:13 of the final period on assists from Gus Bodnar and Pete Horeck.

At Montreal, the Bruins suffered their first loss in seven games. Bert Olmstead, Ross Lowe, Dick Gamble and Paul Meger scored for the Canadiens and Johnny Pierson and Vic Lynn for Boston.

The Bruins gave the Montrealers a scare in the final period with a parade of power plays but Gerry McNeil in the Montreal nets held them out.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Dr. Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., dentist, Thursday came up with his second one-under par 71 to take a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the $7,500 north and south open golf tournament at Pinehurst, NC.

With single rounds remaining today and Sunday, Middlecoff's 142 was one stroke in front of three rivals — Jimmy Adams, Scottish member of the British Ryder Cup team; the reigning British amateur champion, Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, and Tommy Bolt, Durham, NC, pro. Chapman's four-under par 68 was the day's best effort over the wind-swept 7,007 yards of the No. 2 championship course of the Pinehurst Country Club.

Sammy Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the PGA champion who was gunning for his third straight north and south victory, blew himself to a 78 for 150, eight off the pace, and withdrew.

At Winnipeg, Tom Casey said his regular sports broadcast last night that George Trafton has signed a contract to coach Winnipeg Blue Bombers again in 1952. Casey, himself a player for Bombers, said club officials will make the announcement within a few days.

At Toronto, Ontario Agriculture College Aggies of Guelph on Thursday shut out University of Toronto 13-0 in an intermediate intercollegiate football game, ruining Varsity's chances of going through the season undefeated.

The U. of T. team has piled up enough games to ensure the intermediate championship and the Aggies gave them their first defeat this year.

ALL-STAR SNAP—Bruce Mattingly, 23-year-old captain of Sarnia Imperials was voted 1951 winner of the Imperial Oil Trophy as the most valuable player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. He was the choice in a poll of players among the four teams—Imps, Windsor Royals, Toronto Balmy Beach and Hamilton's McMaster University. The six foot 210-pound native of Sarnia has been six years with the same squad.

Australian Attack Best In Years

BRISBANE, Nov. 9 (Reuters)—The best Australian attack seen for years today answered the West Indies' challenge to Australia's claim to world cricket supremacy when the first test match began.

West Indies lost their first five wickets for 95 runs, but unexpected resistance by their tail-enders, especially captain John Goddard, took the total of 216 before the innings ended. Australia had replied with 16 for no wicket by close of play.

Taking full advantage of the heavy atmosphere and lift from the pitch, pace bowlers Ray Lindwall, Keith Miller and Bill Johnston had West Indies in trouble from the start.

Brilliant fielding, wickets often being hit by throw-ins from the boundaries, completed a first-class display of all-round attacking strength by the Australians.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Latch, linemates for Montreal Canadiens, each collected a pair of assists Thursday night to put four points between them and their nearest rivals in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

The league's two games in which Montreal downed Boston 4-2 and Toronto defeated Chicago 3-1 served to break up the three-way tie between Boston's Adam Brown, Toronto's Sid Smith and Montreal's Bert Olmstead.

Brown with six goals and four assists and Olmstead with two goals and eight assists were tied with 10 points behind Lach and Richard. Brown got an assist and Olmstead a goal at Montreal. Smith was scoreless and got no assists at Chicago.

Richard retained the lead in the goal-scoring department with nine, four more than Detroit's Gordie Howe and Boston's Johnny Peirson. Lach still has the most assists—12.

The leaders:	G	A	Pts.

Bisons, Caps Tied 3-3 In Overtime

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 9 (AP).—Buffalo Bisons and Indianapolis Capitals of American Hockey League each scored a goal a period Thursday night and matched defences in the overtime to finish in a 3-3 deadlock.

Buffalo took a 3-2 lead at 12 minutes of the third period when a 50-foot shot by Les Hickey went into the cage off the stick of Earl Reibel, Indianapolis forward. The Capitals tied the score at 15:02 on a wild shot by Bert Hirschfeld that glanced in off a skate in a hot scrimmage.

Reibel and Callum MacKay of Buffalo got the first period goals. Stan Long of the Bisons and Billy McComb of Indianapolis scored in the second.

Mechanical music boxes were invented in the middle of the 18th century by the Swiss.

A STRAY CAT wandered into the Whittier school's first grade room at Seattle. Teacher Mary Pelan put it up to the class aquarium. The cat attempted to catch the goldfish through the glass for several hours. Then, when class was almost out, the kitty discovered an approach could be made from above. The cat failed to make a catch, however, because of the fishes' defence-in-depth tactics.

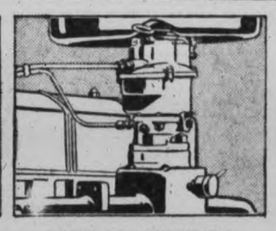
POWERED FOR THE JOB

Four great engines! The 92-h.p. Thriftmaster, the big 105-h.p. Loadmaster, the massive 114-h.p. Torquemaster and the mighty 120-h.p. engine all deliver outstanding performance with remarkably low fuel and maintenance expense.

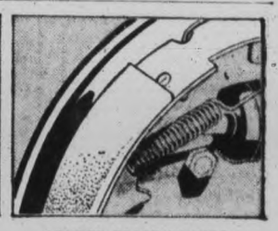


VALVE-IN-HEAD DESIGN

For 39 years, Chevrolet has built valve-in-head engines. No other manufacturer has built so many, just as no other truck-engine design can match the over-all economy and proved efficiency of Chevrolet's valve-in-head.

BLUE-FLAME COMBUSTION

Wrings all the usable energy from every drop of gasoline. Blue-Flame combustion is possible only with valve-in-head engine design — provides greater power and livelier performance, through more efficient utilization of fuel.

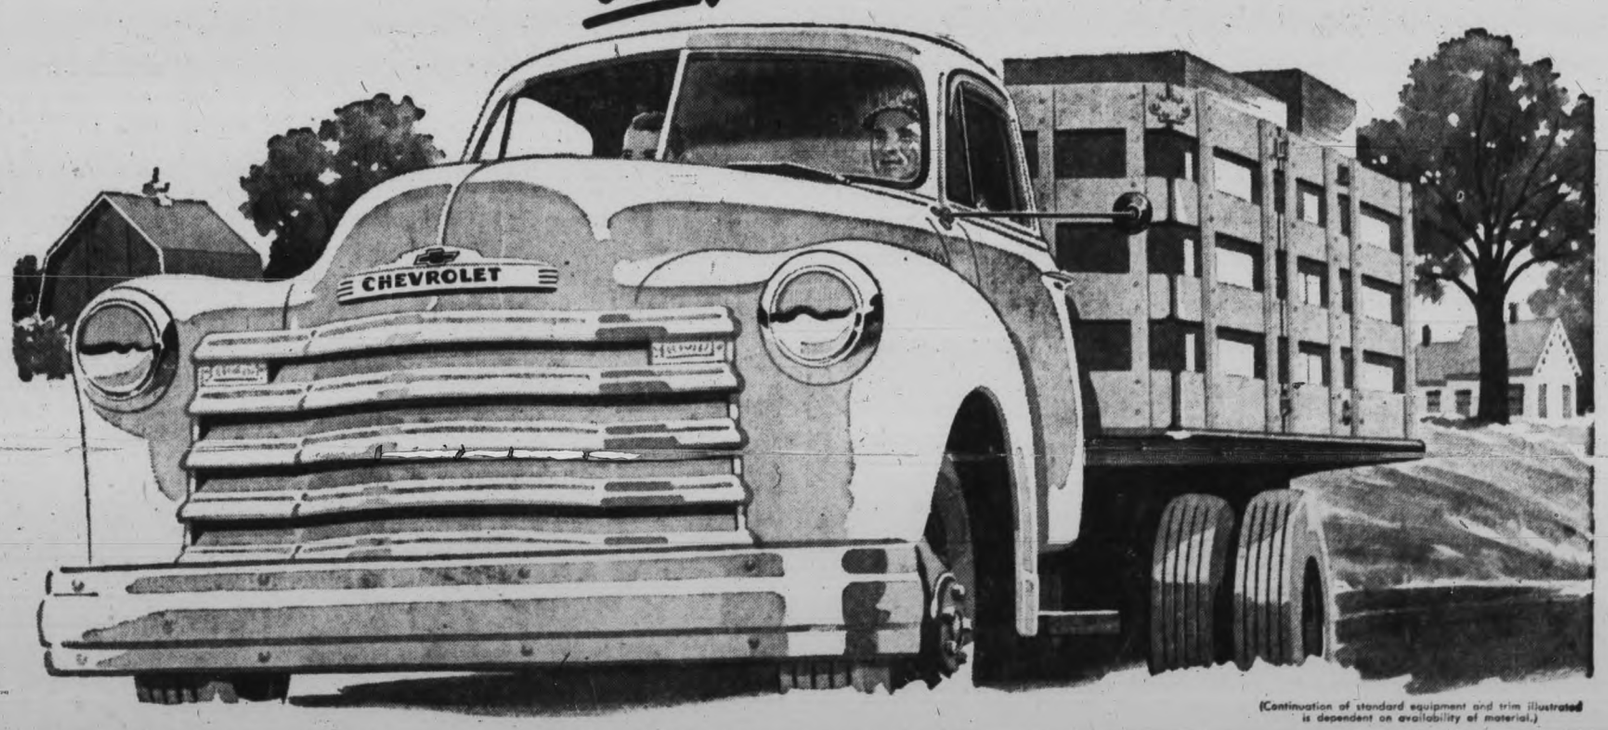


POWER-JET CARBURETOR

At low speed, on grades or at regular highway speeds, Chevrolet's Power-Jet carburetor maintains the proper fuel mixture for the engine. This, plus fast warm-up, smooth, quick response, means surprisingly low operating costs.

LONG LASTING BRAKES

The greater self-energization of Chevrolet hydraulic brakes provides smoother, safer braking — completely equalized pressure to each brake. This in turn assures full lining contact and longer wear — for the brakes on your truck.



BONDED BRAKE LININGS

No rivets! On light- and medium-duty models, the lining is bonded directly to brake shoes to increase life and to eliminate danger of scoring brake drums as lining wears. You get extra wear — safer brakes.

greater economy engineered in!

...to do more work for your money

(Continuation of standard equipment and trim illustrated is dependent on availability of material.)

Just take a look at the engineered-in economy features of Chevrolet trucks. Features like valve-in-head engine design, Blue-Flame combustion, Power-Jet carburetor, long lasting brakes and a host of others. All the vast engineering and manufacturing experience of Canada's largest truck builder is used to give you greater economy on the job.

And Chevrolet economy goes far beyond low operating costs. It means engines, chassis and cabs will stand up under rough, tough use month after month, year after year. It means building extra ruggedness and extra efficiency into Chevrolet trucks at lowest cost.

Every day, more and more truck users are switching to new Chevrolet trucks. Take a tip from these truck-wise buyers and get real economy and more work for your money.

ERNEST RIDOUT REAL ESTATE OPENS LOCAL OFFICE!

Opening Of Kawartha Branch Confirms Faith In City and District's Future Development

Attractive Office to Serve Both Buyer and Seller

Peterborough's newest and most up-to-date real estate office will open Saturday, November 10th at 292 Charlotte Street West.

Their staff of experienced sales agents will be on hand to welcome the public to the opening day celebration, particularly those interested in the development, the sale or the purchase of properties in and around Peterborough.

The office is conveniently located on the main highway with bus service to the door and ample free parking space. It will of course be marked by the familiar neon sign which has become a Ridout trade-mark.

In keeping with company policy to provide the best possible service to both purchasers and vendors of property the office will remain open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. each week day.

The decor of the office is a skilful blend of beauty and efficiency. A three dimensional map in full colour despicting an aerial view of the Kawartha Lakes forms one full wall of the reception room. It is believed to be the only such map in existence.

A large oil painting of a flight of Canadian geese illuminates the west wall and the entire office gives one a feeling that it is novel in the fact that so much of Canada's out-of-doors was incorporated into the general theme of the interior decoration.

The president of the firm that bears his name, Mr. Ernest Ridout and other senior members of the Head Office in Toronto will arrive early Saturday morning and the full staff will be on hand to extend a warm welcome to this district's residents.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the Hon. Harold R. Scott M.P.P. Minister of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests will conduct a lucky draw for a Crosley Television set donated by Ernest Ridout Real Estate Limited on the occasion of the opening of this newest branch in their expanding organization. Tickets for the draw will be delivered to householders in the city by post. Out of town residents may obtain free tickets at the office while the supply lasts.

Canada's Largest Realtors Bring New Service to Peterborough Area

Branch Manager

JOHN M. BOWES

The manager of the newly opened Peterborough office of Canada's largest real estate sales organization typifies the progressive policies of his company in several respects. At the age of 24, he is the youngest branch manager in the Ridout organization, but is still less than ten years younger than the President of the firm. He is in charge of this office not because the company asked him to move to Peterborough but because he persuaded the company to open their office here. Therein lies a tale.

In 1938 Mr. Bowes was attending school in the village of Port Perry, 40 miles west of Peterborough, while his father, W. M. Bowes, was actively organizing the Central Ontario Highway Association for the purpose of completing and improving Highway No. 7 from Sarnia to Ottawa. The Highway project went through, and in the course of his father's travels from town to town John acquired a permanent enthusiasm for the beautiful Kawartha Lakes district and the city of Peterborough in particular.

While still a student in high school he entered the building field by designing and contracting to build summer cottages on vacant land near Caesarea on Lake Scugog. Eventually a subdivision of nearly one hundred summer homes was completed and sold under his direction.

Yielding to the lure of far away fields, he left for Hong Kong, China, in 1947 to take a position with a Canadian firm in the export trade with the Far East. After two years there and at Manila in the midst of the Communist invasion of China and assorted revolutions and uprisings, he returned home with a renewed appreciation of life in Canada. He also had the framework of an idea which had its origin in the days of building and selling summer cottages.

This idea was for a summer property sales organization which would enable cottage owners living in one part of the province to publicize and sell their property to prospective purchasers living in cities hundreds of miles away. Out of this idea grew the plan for the Kawartha Resort Bureau of Ernest Ridout Real Estate Ltd. which during the past summer has proved it possible to sell not only cottages, but farms, homes, businesses, and vacant lots to buyers in Toronto, Hamilton, and U.S. cities. The business has grown to such an extent that an office in the immediate district has become necessary. The logical place for this office was Peterborough, and the logical man for the job was John Bowes. Both are now at your service.

Ridout Salesmen Keep Abreast Of The Times

Schooled In All Phases Of The Business

Ridout salesmen receive careful training in listing properties, writing offers which protect both purchaser and vendor and in all phases of the real estate business. The company works closely with real estate boards across the country to keep training and standards high. With 160 men now in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Markham, Richmond Hill and Peterborough, the company plans still further expansion. Offices will soon be opened in Oshawa, Windsor and Perth—still others are expected to open within the next year.

Employee relations of the firm are good. Any employee who proves himself can go far in the company.

The Peterborough office will operate a land development and property management department for the convenience of their customers, as well as an insurance and mortgage department. The land development department is for the use of those who have large properties to divide and sell, apartment houses to build or similar projects.

A resident here who wishes to purchase a property may first answer one of the firm's classified advertisements. He is then referred to a member of the sales staff, each of whom has a certain number of properties to handle. Salesmen show the property and if acceptable, write out an 'offer of purchase'. The offer then goes to Mr. Bowes, who handles mortgages, insurance and other necessary details.

A vendor of property gives his name, address and asking price. A salesman then lists the property in full detail, evaluates it and checks the valuation against the asking price. The client then decides on the type of listing and the listing forms are signed.

The property is then ready for sale. The company stresses use of their exclusive listings.

GORDON BAILEY, Lang artist puts the finishing touches to a three panel folding screen that will be used to sub-divide a portion of the spacious office on Charlotte Street. The artist chose a familiar scene of the Kawarthas and has depicted partridge whirring through a birch grove. The screen is six feet wide and eight feet high. It was executed in oils.

Why Peterborough?

The selection of the City of Peterborough for the establishment of a branch office by Ernest Ridout Real Estate Limited was not one of mere chance or conjecture in a sweeping move to extend an expanding business, but one of careful choice after years of surveying the possibilities and the potentialities of this land of rivers, lakes and forests.

This century old, solid city, located as it is in a broad land where numerous vacationists wend their way annually to enjoy the freedom that the outdoors offers those who are are tired of the big cities and the fast tempo of modern times. Peterborough has passed the centennial milestone and is looking ahead into the depths of another hundred years that will bring it the steady prosperity that it has known in the past.

Of such a city, stone and timber and mortar do not complete the fibre and structure of a thriving metropolis. Rather it is its people and the steady, sincere, home-loving folks that constitute the heart of a city. Of these and their ways, their simple yet earnest customs has grown a city that is fast becoming one of the greatest of its size in the Dominion. From an industrial standpoint, it has grown from a town fostering a few mills, shops and small factories to a great industrial cog in the wheels of industrial Canada. Its shops are well managed and merchandising in Peterborough has no peer. In the outskirts of the city the choicest farm lands of the province produce grains, foodstuffs and all branches of animal husbandry is promoted to the fullest extent of the agriculturists' ability. Beyond the farms another industry has taken firm root among the rivers and lakes of the district. Tourist resorts have developed and are continuing to develop into the finest galaxy of carefree vacation havens on the continent. With further development these resorts can enjoy a longer season and continue operation into the winter months with skiing, skating, snowshoeing, riding and other outdoor sports.

Timber, minerals and marble can be had further north in the district.

These things assured, and with a firm conviction of the great possibilities that are around and about us, no one would question the advisability of this move to bring an office to Peterborough and join in the forward trend of this city's active business and would no longer pose the question: "WHY PETERBOROUGH?"

Canada Affected By Car Freeze

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—Production Minister Howe said Thursday night that an order freezing new passenger-car models in the United States to conserve machine tools will apply automatically to Canada.

He was commenting on an order in Washington by the National Production Authority to divert all new machine tools to defence and defence-supporting industries after Feb. 1 next.

Other defence-production officials said the US diversion order will mean that all Canadian passenger cars and civilian trucks will be frozen on 1952 patterns.

US frames and body stampings for Canadian vehicles are in the hands of manufacturers and 1952 models are being turned out. Similar action to freeze patterns to conserve the machine-tool supply was taken early in the Second World War.

The US order applies to machine tools used in the production of automobiles and such other durable goods as washing machines and refrigerators.

However, officials said the patterns normally do not change markedly on these items and the industries likely would not be greatly affected.

8 Die In Crash

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 9—(AP)—Eight of 15 members of a B-29 Superfortress apparently were killed Thursday night in a crash near here. Maj. Russell Webb, public information officer at Kelly air force base, said seven of the crew members were known to be alive.

WINDSOR, Nov. 9 (CP) — Three armed bandits captured by police in Windsor and Chatham Tuesday night all pleaded guilty in police court Thursday morning to two joint charges of armed robbery with violence. In addition one of the three was remanded without plea on a charge of illegal possession of narcotics. All three were remanded to Nov. 15 for sentence on the armed robbery charges.

New Envoy Dr. W. Dankwort Outlines German Plan

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—The first German ambassador named to Canada presented his credentials to the Governor-General Thursday and hailed the occasion as the start of a campaign to win Canadian trade, investment and friendship for West Germany.

Dr. Werner Dankwort, a career diplomat who paints as a hobby, outlined in an interview a four-point program designed to strengthen and broaden Canadian-German ties in all possible fields, from the commercial to the cultural.

"Germany has made her choice," he said, "for freedom, peace and civilization.

"She is willing to take her part as an equal partner in defence of Western culture, civilization and ideals. We have a common cause today. We are here to make friends."

Served In Sweden

A diplomat in Sweden through most of the war, Dr. Dankwort has been in Ottawa since February as a consul-general. His elevation arises from the Canadian-West German agreement to exchange ambassadors under which T. C. Davis has already presented his credentials in Bonn as Canada's first ambassador to Germany.

In Hitler's era, the German representative here was a consul-general. Dr. Dankwort Thursday became the 24th foreign ambassador or equivalent in Ottawa and the head of one of the 62 foreign missions of one status or another stationed here, a number far greater than the 1939 total.

Citing the growth in Ottawa's diplomatic prestige as part of Canada's growth generally, Dr. Dankwort outlined these aims for his own country:

Canadian-German trade will run to $50,000,000 or more this year and is fairly well balanced, although German purchases have started to run ahead of Canada's particularly after a $10,000,000 purchase of law-grade wheat. In volume, the trade is about at the pre-war level. But Germany would like to see it larger, would like to see long-range plans worked out.

Germany has been or is buying wheat, lumber, pit-props, newsprint; Canada is taking iron and steel products, machinery and tools, and special consumer goods such as toys and novelties and Christmas tree decorations.

Investment

A number of German firms are interested in establishing in Canada and can bring skilled manpower and equipment, but capital is hard to get because of government restrictions. They would be interested in partnerships with Canadian capital.

Nearly 10,000,000 refugees of German origin have flooded into West Germany from behind the Iron Curtain. Canada is taking about 25,000 of these people this year and he hoped that would continue, but the flow would drop markedly if Canada cancelled her financial assistance to immigrants for the Atlantic crossing. Canada's reception of the Germans has been excellent.

Culture

There are two German students at Canadian colleges now and he hopes to see this grow into a considerable two-way exchange and to see exchanges of books, art, concerts, exhibitions and other branches of culture.

North America Eyed As Market For NZ Foods

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, NZ (CP)—While most of the world's major food-producing countries are tending to reduce exports owing to large internal consumption, New Zealand's policy still looks to a steadily increasing export surplus. With this prospect ahead the Dominion is showing growing interest in future markets overseas.

A. P. O'Shea, general secretary of the Federated Farmers of New Zealand, believes the greatest potential market for the country's surplus food products is North America.

"I am certain that New Zealand would always endeavor to see primarily that the people of Britain always obtained sufficient food from New Zealand for their requirements," he said in an address. "On the other hand I believe New Zealand can expand her primary protection enormously. With these two considerations in mind it is unwise to depend on the United Kingdom to purchase all the supplies of foodstuffs we produce.

Spectacular Increases

"We have had spectacular increases in production. Twenty-five years ago we exported about 5,000,000 carcasses of lamb annually. Now we are exporting about 12,000,000. Twenty-five years ago we exported 60,000 tons of butter. Today the figure is about 140,000 tons."

O'Shea said New Zealand had the ability to produce a further 8,000,000 lamb carcasses and 60,000 tons of butter annually. He did not believe that Britain could absorb that much extra. On the other hand North America had enormous resources and great unexploited wealth. In the exploitation of this natural wealth the people must have an enormous advantage in ability to attain a high standard of living and hence the continent can be regarded as a future market for additional food.

Rebuild Whaling Industry Newest Aussie Project

By LOUIS L. LECK

SYDNEY, Australia — (CP) — In the last three years, Australia has re-established her long dead whaling industry and developed it into a highly profitable business.

Two whaling stations—both on the West Australian Coast—are in full operation.

Between them, this year, they will produce oil worth £1,400,000 and by-products valued at £200,000.

Further stations are now being organized at Moreton Island, Queensland, Byron Bay, New South Wales, and Albany, Western Australia.

When they are in operation whaling will be worth more than £3,000,000 a year to the Commonwealth.

A century ago Australia was one of the world's whaling centres.

The thriving industry collapsed almost overnight when kerosene was discovered in 1859 and the whale oil lamp went out of fashion. For many decades nothing happened to cause a rebirth of local interest.

In 1936 two whalers flying the United States flag appeared off the West Australian Coast and took 3,072 whales in the season. No one envied them much for whale oil was then bringing barely £10 a ton (now £160).

The ships reappeared in 1937 to catch 3,242 whales. One came alone in 1938 and obtained 917 whales.

Then the Second World War almost halted whaling everywhere.

Used In Margarine

A company called the Nor'-West Whaling Co. was formed in Perth to cash in on the high prices. It opened up a station which Norwegians had established at Point Cloates in Western Australia but later abandoned.

In April, 1949, the Australian government decided to open a whaling station of its own.

This year, by the end of October, the government station tally will be 600 whales. Nor'-West Company will also have caught and processed 600.

German buyers are particularly eager to get Australian whale oil, and are offering more than £160 a ton.

By next year privately owned stations at Moreton Island and Albany will be in operation. The Byron Bay station should quickly follow.

There seems no reason why Australians, once they get the know-how, shouldn't do well in their own backyard—the Antarctic.

There Norwegian, British and Japanese whalers are earning $30,000,000 a year between them.

Transport Expands

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP). — Transport Minister Chevrier said Thursday night that Canada's transportation system is rapidly expanding and keeping abreast of a "spectacular" growth in the Canadian economy. New resources discovered beyond the sphere of main transportation routes had sparked a build-up in rail, ship and air facilities, the Minister said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association.

Bus Bylaws

STRATFORD, Nov. 9 (CP). — City Council Thursday night gave two readings to by-laws authorizing a municipally-operated bus system. One bylaw requests authority to issue $60,000 in 15 year debentures to buy new equipment and the other to authorize the public utilities commission to operate the new system. Both bylaws go to the ratepayers at Dec. 3 municipal election.

More than 500 sailed from Quesa cebtlkhtBledvTmes from Quebec last Monday and an advance party of 300 already is in camp at Hanover, Germany.

Cut Out Extras

LONDON, Nov. 9 —(AP)—Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of the British Oversees Airways Corporation, said Thursday night that his company would convert many of its planes to stripped-down tourist standards to fly 2,000 passengers a month across the Atlantic at cheap fares. "I expect the single fare will be under £100. The frills and fripperies on the tourist planes will be cut out," he said.

Sticks By Story

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 —(AP)— The New York Times says the source of its published report that President Truman had offered to support Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1952 sticks by his account despite the President's denial. The Times published the story Thursday, attributing it to an anonymous but "thoroughly reliable and informed" source. Both the President and Eisenhower's headquarters denied it.

BUY A POPPY for Remembrance Day

Poppy Day is Tomorrow . . .
SATURDAY, NOV. 10th.

Saturday, Nov. 10 has been designated Poppy Day by the Canadian Legion. It is a privilege for each one of us to purchase a Poppy in memory of those who laid down their lives in the service of their King and Country.

This year Remembrance Day comes to find us facing another threat from tyrannical armies. It finds us, too, accepting this challenge, as did those brave Canadians in past years. In such manner is democracy defended. Not by depriving others, and ourselves of liberty, but by defeating those who would deprive us. Today we are mustering all of our might and joining forces with our allies. Today we are meeting this threat to liberty in all parts of the world, fighting this many-headed monster of decadence wherever we can, aware that our kind of liberty never loses.

20,000,000 Slave Workers Said In Russian Camps

KINGSTON — (CP)—Edward Jowalski, former pilot in the Polish air force, believes Russia now has about 20,000,000 slave laborers.

"These are not just figures I have dreamed up but rather they are based on my own personal experience in conjunction with accurate information supplied by numerous other 'slaves,'" he said in an interview here.

Now living in Kingston, Kowalski served time in several Russian camps during the last war. He was captured by Russian frontier guards near the Hungarian border in 1940.

Kowalski said some of Russia's slave labor camps are "veritable cities' in themselves.

"I saw one in the Archangel district in northern Russia where there were almost 90,000 slaves," he said. "All are living in the same meaningless way and doing the same work."

Slave labor exists over almost half of the whole Russian territory, he said. The Russian government has a special ministry handling this type of labor, known as Gulag.

Organized System

Labor camps run by Gulag are divided into systems or commands, each system covering a certain territory with special economic duties varying according to the nature of the territory and the industrial resources there.

Kowalski said one of these is near the city of Kubishev, which acted as a large industrial centre for war production. Another, on the banks of the Petchora River, dealt with metallurgy, lumber and fishing.

Another combination of such camps in the White Sea area contained almost 500,000 slaves, by his estimate, dealing with all types of light and heavy industries.

Tobacco Area Of Greece Rich In Minerals

By SAM MODIANO.

ATHENS (Reuters). — The "poor" northern provinces of Greece could be rich, but the peasants stick to growing tobacco instead of developing the land's mineral wealth.

Experts consider northern Greece (Macedonia and Thrace) to be one of the richest areas in the Balkan [illegible]. It is a region whose wealth has not been explored or exploited.

Although they are the most vulnerable part of the county, lying along the border of the iron curtain, they are the provinces which could put the Greek economy back on its feet.

Recent geological surveys have revealed there as manganese, lead, zinc, copper under the mountain ranges of this region.

The greatest mineral asset of northern Greece is lignite. In the Ptolemais district, 200,000,000 tons of this are known to exist, while more optimistic estimates bring the deposits up to between two and four billion tons.

Properly developed, the Ptolemais mines could replace the bituminous coal imported by Greece and cover the country's requirements of solid fuel. Plans have been prepared for the establishment of a thermo-electric generating plant in the Ptolemais district, using lignite as fuel. Also under consideration is a nitrogen fertilizer factory in the northern region.

Cheap Power

Cheap electrical power would promote industrial development in the northern provinces. Local industries are able to find on the spot all the raw material needed, from cotton for textiles to timber for the wood industries and mineral ores for metal factories.

But while prospects for the future are good, Macedonia and Thrace remain at present chiefly agricultural areas, with the largest part of the land devoted to tobacco cultivation.

"Macedonia and Thrace live on tobacco" is the prewar slogan which sticks in the mind of peasants, workers and traders in this region.

The slogan was true until 1946. Pre-war Germany was buying at high rates most of the Greek tobacco production. The tobacco was dumped in overseas countries against hard currency. The Greeks were repaid with manufactured goods from Germany, ranging from aspirin to haberdashery and heavy machinery.

With the end of the war, hundreds of thousands of displaced Greek peasants returned to their homes and fields. Instead of cultivating food for their tables, starved villagers walked for miles each morning to tiny plots carrying two heavy cans of water, to water their tobacco plants.

Behind Times

They still cannot realize that the war has changed the Greek economic outlook, that Virginia tobacco has conquered Europe. They still hope for a high profit from a handful of Oriental tobacco.

In a speech delivered at Salonica, Marshall Plan Chief Roger Lapham said: "Thousands of acres are producing sub-standard tobacco. This land could be used for the production of food and fibre. The dependence of farm-families on the one-crop system must be broken in northern Greece."

But meanwhile, throughout Macedona and Thrace, villagers are ripening their tobacco. Outside their little houses they wait for the German, the American or the British buyer. They still have in hand, too, their last year's crop which has not been sold.

White Race Split New African Problem

JOHANNESBURG. — (CP) — Leaders of South African thought are becoming more and more engrossed by an apparent tendency of the comparatively small white population to split into two opposing camps.

Prime Minister Daniel Malan, speaking recently of relations between the Afrikaans' and the English-speaking population of the Union, said "Nobody will deny that race relations have deteriorated to an alarming extent."

The governor-general, Dr. Ernest Jansen, has also spoken of the trend towards division of the white population, whose total of less than three millions is faced not only by the increasing native population but by a vast native population outside the Union's borders.

"If one were to believe the newspapers and some politicians," said the governor-general, "co-operation is farther off than ever and racialism is rampant. Personally I believe there is far less real race hatred in this country than is often alleged."

The very Rev. Frederick Moore, vicar-general of the Pretoria Anglican diocese, wrote in an Anglican magazine that "Iron curtains are beginning to descend between English and Afrikaans-speaking people, between those who support the government and those who do not; and, much more dangerously, between black and white."

Critics Busy

Claiming that the government is seeking to entrench itself by means of anti-democratic republic which will accord rights only to nationalist supporters, the rapidly-swelling army of critics sets up a clamor at every move which appears to be directed towards that end. The government and its supporters are not slow to reply.

So far, Dr. Malan's policy of apartheid has not come up to his expectations as an instrument for white racial unity. Aimed at separating South Africa's black races from the white and encouraging their separate development, this policy is viewed by Dr. Malan as "a powerful influence in establishing national unity on the firm basis of common conviction and including both white races."

Has Opposite Effect

One step in this policy, the alteration of the voting rights of South Africa's 5,000 colored voters, has had an opposite effect.

Legislated earlier this year, the change was made possible by a house ruling that the constitutional entrenchment of colored voting rights was no longer valid.

Opposition MP's sounded the alarm. They pointed out that the constitutional amendment which safeguards the status of English as an official language in South Africa, has also fallen away. They stated the ruling means that the South African parliament is free to withdraw official recognition of the English language by a majority of one vote.

Will Not Interfere

Dr. Malan and his ministers have given repeated assurances that they have no intention of interfering with the English language and other rights of the English-speaking section and Dr. Malan has repeatedly challenged his opponents to show where such rights have been taken away.

Dr. Malan has said "Today, after more than a generation, you cannot enforce bilingualism in any state department without violent reactions on the opposite side, in spite of the clear obligation resting on all South African governments to treat both official languages on a footing of equality."

Deep Suspension

A speech by the grand president of the Sons of England, H. G. Bailey, illustrates how deeply suspicion has taken root in some quarters.

He said that the Sons of England and all English-speaking South Africans would never allow an isolationist republic, modernized with Hitler techniques, to cause an exodus of the English from South Africa. "We will fight for a free and righteous South Africa as long as God gives us strength." He made it clear that he meant a constitutional fight, which would be "hard and unrelenting."

Discussing his party's Republican aims, Dr. Malan has said that a republic will not be forced on South Africa. It will come only as a result of the clear and unequivocal expression of the people's will and will be based on the principle of equal rights for the two white sections of the population. "It is also not anti-British nor a retreat into isolation," he said.

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—An old clock standing on the mantel of Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison of Corunna, Ont., is a relic of the wreck of the steamer Lady Elgin, sunk in collision in 1860 with the loss of 287 lives. Location of the relic was disclosed in a marine historical review received here.

Coldwell Criticizes Privilege Violations

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said Thursday night that during the September North Atlantic Treaty conference in Ottawa there had been "certain violations of the privileges of parliament" which should be guarded against in future.

He told the Commons of being challenged at the door of parliament and asked for a pass. He had insisted on his right to enter and had eventually gained admittance without showing a pass.

He had done that, he said, in protest against the violation of the privilege of any member of parliament to enter the house at any time as a matter of right.

Mr. Coldwell made the statement during debate on a measure to provide privileges and immunities to representatives of NATO.

Britain Has Repaid Over Half Of Loan

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said Thursday night in the Commons that Britain has repaid $470,200,000 of a Canadian loan of $700,000,000 made in 1942.

As at Oct. 25, the outstanding principal had been reduced to $229,800,000, an average repayment rate of $50,000,000 a year. This was considered satisfactory.

The repayments had come out of the proceeds from the redemption or sale of Canadian securities held in the United Kingdom.

House Builders Switching To Pine In New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, NZ—(CP)—New Zealand faces a problem in house building, involving a switch in the type of timber used. Because of the mild climate and abundant timber supplies, most houses here are built of wood, but prodigal use of fine native timber has brought a rapid decline in available supplies.

To offset this shortage, vast specially-grown stands of imported varieties of pine are reaching maturity. Huge quantities are reaching the millable stage to maintain a paper-pulp and newspaper industry, leaving a big surplus for local use. But it is very different timber from the native wood and New Zealand has to learn how to use it in construction.

In the early days of settlement in New Zealand the best building timber was Kauri, which grows to magnificent trees in the north of the country. The Royal Navy sent vessels to New Zealand to load Kauri spars for masts which played an important part in the Battle of Trafalgar and other British victories. It lasts so well that buildings over 50 years old are not wrecked in New Zealand when due for replacement, but are arefully demolished plank by plank so the timber can be used again. Heart Kauri is better even after 50 to 100 years than any timbers being produced in the country today.

Reckless Consumption

The Kauki forests however were destroyed so recklessly that little remains except in national parks, and it grows too slowly to be practicable as a plantation tree.

Other native timbers have replaced Kauri for building and until 1949 Rimu was the chief timber produced in the country. Production of this also is declining, and within a few years the cut from planted pine forests will far exceed the production of all types of native timbers.

Most of the man-made forests are insignis pine, which grows in New Zealand very much faster than in the northern hemisphere. It reaches a millable girth in 20 or 30 years, but as yet nobody is sure how it will stand up in building as compared with timbers from similar trees grown more slowly in colder climates.

So far pine has been used only for second-class purposes, but within a few years it will bcome the main building timber in use. It will require far more treatment than native timbers. Experts are studying its susceptibility to fungus attack, decay and borer, but it will take years to reach solid conclusions.

Meanwhile the need to use pine, available freely and in such large quantities, is compelling immediate decisions before full test can be made. Authorities are warning that pine must be used with continuing care from the mill to the last nail in order to avoid trouble in the future. It is probable that until experience provides the answers, a large proportion of pine used in building will be preservative-treated to guard against breakdown.

Collegiate To Bear Kenner Name

To Be Only School In Peterborough Named After Resident

Kenner Collegiate Institute was decided on as the name of the new southend collegiate at a meeting of the Board of Education Thursday night.

The new collegiate will be named after Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, PCVS principal for 35 years, and a teacher there for 50 years. Dr. Kenner joined the PCVS staff in 1893, died in 1945.

Kenner Collegiate will be the only school in the city named after a Peterborough man.

Acting chairman W. B. Gordon opened the meeting to suggestions for names for the new collegiate after other business had been concluded.

Suggested Earlier

Naming the school after Dr. Kenner was suggested at the October 11 meeting of the board, and decision on the matter was deferred indefinitely.

At the Thursday meeting, G. Wilson Craw suggested that the school be called Kenner Collegiate Institute, "in honor of the years of service H. R. H. Kenner gave to PCVS."

Mr. Craw drew a line of distinction between the names "Kenner Memorial Collegiate," and "Kenner Collegiate Institute." He noted that the school was not being built as a memorial to Dr. Kenner, but rather, it was being named after him.

A motion by Mr. Craw to name the school was seconded by Mrs. Paige Rowell.

Dr. Kenner, a graduate in classics of the University of Toronto, joined the PCVS staff as a teacher in 1893, the year of his graduation. In 1908 he was made principal and in 1943, retired.

He was born in Cornwall England, and came to Canada while still young.

Too Sweet

High living costs are reflected in the decision by at least two city restaurants to stop serving sugar in the tilt-type dispensers. Both have begun serving cube sugar with coffee and tea. One restaurateur reported he used less than half as much by serving cubes. There was a good deal of waste with the tilt dispensers, he said.

Durham Closed To Hunters In Deer Season

Deer hunters who are planning on hunting in Durham and Northumberland Counties this season, Nov. 12-17, are being warned by the department of lands and forests where they may go.

There is no hunting at all in Durham. The season is closed there.

But hunting is allowed in Northumberland County within the above season dates with the exception of South Monaghan township.

The deer hunting issues in both counties goes back for a year. In 1950 Brighton and Murray townships in Northumberland had a three-day season. The county council passed a resolution in November asking that all the county be opened. County Clerk W. Barr of the combined counties said that the department were then considering opening both counties to hunting.

Early this year the townships of Cavan, Clarke, Cartwright and Hope in Durham and South Monaghan in Northumberland, petitioned the department to close deer hunting in their townships.

The final ruling handed down now by the department has closed deer hunting entirely throughout Durham County and opened it throughout Northumberland, except South Monaghan township. The season is from Nov. 12 to 17.

Walter Thomson To Speak Here

Liberal leader Walter Thomson will speak in Peterborough on November 17 at Queen Mary auditorium, city Liberal headquarters announced today.

Eldon Purvis, campaign manager for candidate F. P. Burke, said a telephone call from Toronto this morning confirmed the plans Liberals here had made.

At the same time, Mr. Purvis said there would be no rural electioneering to speak of by the Liberals. Instead, he and other party executives will hold organization meetings in the district with party workers, instructing them in their election-day tasks.

First Ontario party leader to speak here was E. B. Jolliffe, of the CCF, who addressed a CCF rally at the Legion hall November 5 on behalf of his party's candidate here, W. C. Grant.

As far as is known now, Premier Leslie Frost will not be speaking in Peterborough.

Three Party Fights In 4 Ridings

5 Cabinet Ministers Contesting Seats In Central Ontario

With three-cornered fights in four of the ridings and straight fights in the two others this section of Central Ontario got squared away on Thursday at the official nominations for the final two weeks of the provincial election campaign. Northumberland and Victoria will have contests between the two old parties, Liberal and Progressive Conservative, while the CCF party has entered candidates in Peterborough, Durham, Muskoka-Ontario and Hastings West.

With the Prime Minister representing Victoria and ministers running in Durham, Peterborough, Northumberland and Muskoka-Ontario, this section has been well looked after with ministerial appointments. There is Lands and Forests Minister Scott in Peterborough, Secretary and Registrar Welsh in Muskoka-Ontario, Public Welfare Minister Goodfellow in Northumberland and Reform Institutions Minister Foote in Durham.

In the last election Mr. Scott had a majority of 2,528, Mr. Frost 4,173, Mr. Foote 1,336, Mr. Welsh 306 and Mr. Goodfellow 3,047.

Hastings West represented by Elmer Sandercock was the only riding in the group that did not have cabinet representation. All six members of the last legislature are seeking re-election.

Mrs. Earl Mitchell, CCF candidate in Muskoka-Ontario is the only woman entering contest in the six ridings.

Result of the official nominations were:

DURHAM—Spencer W. Cheshire (CCF), John W. Foote (PC), George Walton (L).

HASTINGS WEST—Angus Duffy (L), Ernest Gibbs (CCF), Elmer Sandercock (PC).

NORTHUMBERLAND — W. A. Goodfellow (PC), Charles Johnston (L).

PETERBOROUGH—P. J. Burke (L), William C. Grant (CCF), Harold R. Scott (PC).

MUSKOKA-ONTARIO — Arthur Ferguson (L), Mrs. Earl Mitchell (CCF), Arthur Welsh (PC).

VICTORIA - HALIBURTON — Leslie Frost (PC), Edward Harding (L).

Tows To Operate As Skiing Opens

This season Peterborough skiers are determined to ski when and where there is snow. This weekend is no exception.

A record for opening the season will be set this weekend when skiing officially opens at Kemp's hill, three miles out the Warsaw road, and at Bethany, on the high hills just north of the village.

Thursday night Peterborough Ski Club members worked throughout the evening preparing the tow, lights and slope for the season.

They announced today that there will be good skiing there over the weekend. The tow will be operating on Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday.

Caught Off Guard

At Bethany the unexpected snowfall last weekend caught the club unprepared. The club members will mix work and pleasure Sunday when they try the skiing conditions on the hill and also erect the tow rope.

The club reports for the first skiing weekend, "fair" conditions for the entire district. At both Kemp's and Bethany there is a reported eight to 10 inches of packed crusty snow. There is still insufficient snow in the woods for those who like bush skiing.

Four Cars Pile Up In Intersection Crash

A four-car pile-up at Rink and George streets at dusk Friday evening resulted in damage to all the vehicles involved. No one was injured.

Constable Ed. Patterson who investigated the accident reported the accident occurred when Warne Northey of Lakefield who was driving north on George St., struck a car from behind driven by Frank Cameron, 478 Elm St., who was also going north on George St. Cameron was just about to turn left on Rink St., and the impact sent his car into a southbound George St. car driven by D. J. Wannan, 660 Little St.

At this point, Donald Byers, 27 Park St. south, who was driving north on George St., crashed into Northey's truck.

Considerable damage was done to the grill, both front fenders and radiator of Byers' truck. The other three vehicles were only damaged slightly.

PETERBOROUGH'S NEW GARBAGE DISPOSAL TRUCK arrived on Wednesday from Windsor and after a day's inspection was put to work today. Elmo Pierce, superintendent of the sanitation department, delivered the truck which was partly built in Chatham and Windsor. At a cost of $10,441.70, the new truck replaces the old disposal truck which was completely destroyed by fire.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

School Board To Provide 3 Traffic Guards

Board of Education on Thursday night accepted the slightly warm potato that has been tossed back and forth once between the Board and the Police Commission.

It was the question of more school guards for three crossings that the Board considered dangerous. The Police Commission indicated in October that its budget would handle no more extra guards.

The question has been brought up at previous meetings of the Board, and it was referred to the Supervision Committee.

Misgivings

Acceptance came finally, with a few misgivings, but with the Board agreeing that guards were necessary, in the words of Mrs. Paige Rowell, "at all costs."

Mrs. Blake Bell, the Board"s other woman member, asked if there were "no way of persuading the police that it is as much their duty to guard school children as to look after meters?"

Mrs. Bell asked secondly if there would be a possibility of getting women as guards. She said she had seen women school guards in Albany, NY.

"We always work for less," remarked Mrs. Rowell.

"Not now you don't," acting chairman W. B. Gordon said, presumably in a reference to the recent legislation that called for equal pay for equal work for women.

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, suggested that the Board advertise for guards, men or women. This suggestion was adopted.

The crossings concerned are Mark and Hunter Streets, Wolsley Street and Chemong Road, and Lansdowne and Park Streets.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

FAN CATCHES FINGERS

David Gray, 49, 748 St. Mary's Street, is in Civic Hospital with lacerated fingers of his left hand. He was admitted to hospital on Thursday afternoon after he caught his hand in an electric fan. His condition is reported as good.

FEE REFUNDS

Refunds of night school fees will not be made in future after the third lesson has been completed by the student, Board of Education decided Thursday night. Setting a date, the board decided that in no case would refunds be made after November 15.

SAID FAREWELL

Members of the city council who said farewell at the CPR station to Mayor G. R. Chamberlain and Ald. E. V. Martin of Peterborough, England, at noon Thursday were: Ald. T. D. Miller and Mrs. Miller, Aldermen Gillespie, Burrows, Anglesey, Braund and Graham, and Mrs. L. R. Groombridge.

CAR HITS TRAIN

Carmen Sutton, 809 Bethune St., told police he was driving north on Aylmer St., about 8.15 Thursday evening, and seeing a train approaching as he neared the Perry St. CNR crossing, Mr. Sutton said he applied his brakes. However, before he could stop on the icy pavement, his car slid into the engine of the train, damaging his car slightly.

CLEAR AWAY SNOW

As soon as deep snow begins to pile up at the curbside an extra fire hazard is added. Often snow covers the fire hydrants. Fire Chief George Smith is asking local residents to clear the snow away from the nearest hydrant so, if there is a fire, the firemen do not have to hunt around for the hydrant. Just enough room so a hose line can be attached, is all Chief Smith wants. He points out that a delay of even a few seconds could be costly.

Labor Board To Reconsider UE Application At De Laval

The three-year battle by the United Electrical Workers to be the bargaining agent for production workers at the DeLaval Co., is continuing. Union members got a shot in the arm Thursday when the Ontario Labor Relations Board announced that they were reconsidering the UE's application.

An application by Local 527, UE, was turned down by the Board in August on the grounds they did not have 45 per cent of the eligible membership. Usual procedure is to hold a vote among the employees if 45 per cent is proven.

Local 527 asked the Board to review their findings and Thursday they were informed by the Board that the union did have the required 45 per cent.

Board Investigating

The Board is continuing its investigation and an examiner is now checking the evidence at the De Laval plant.

Local 527 applied for certification on June 11 and later, at a Board hearing, they filed 161 cards of union membership. Six of the cards they asked to be segregated as the employees were laid off, though possibly still on the payroll.

The company said 322 production employees were eligible for membership. The Board reserved judgment and then said that Local 527 did not have the required 45 per cent.

When union officials heard of this decision they went through the plant and got sworn affidavits that 155 union members were employees at the time of the application. And there was still the same number at the time the Board gave judgment.

Farmers Ask Aid For Hands

FLESHERTON, Nov. 9 (CP).—The annual meeting of Grey County Federation of Agriculture said it wishes establishment of a system of rural workmen's compensation.

The resolutions committee said a Grey County farmer had paid out $1,000 in damages to a farm hand cut with an axe. The committee said this was unfair, for the farmer had no protection against damages for injuries to any person he employs.

The resolution said a system of rural workmen's compensation is especially needed in the case of displaced persons because of their unfamiliarity with Canadian farm operations and their inability to speak English.

Another resolution asked financial help for those who suffered losses from hail, and the establishment of a township-county-province plan of hail insuran...

2 Cars Collide At Lane Parked Auto Hit

Three cars were slightly damaged when they collided on Lock St. at 5.30 Thursday evening.

William Mohan, 26 Avenue Rd., Toronto, was driving north on Lock St., and just as he was passing a laneway at 126 Lock St., his car collided with another car driven by Donald O'Connell, 301 Margaret St., who was backing on to the street.

The impact spun the Mohan car in a complete circle and it struck the rear of a parked car owned by Hans Williams, 210 Lock St.

Constable Ed. Patterson who investigated, reported that O'Connell was driving on a temporary driver's permit and that there was no licenced driver with him at the time.

Youth, 16, Run Over By 10-Ton Machine

KIRKLAND LAKE, Nov. 9 — (CP)—Nelvin Newton, 16, of Orillia suffered serious head injuries while working with a road construction crew 20 miles north of here last night. He was run over by a 10-ton earth moving vehicle loaded with sand.

Police said that Newton had been checking loads beside the road when the ponderous machine went out of control, and knocked him 33 feet.

UK To Inquire Into Jane Russell Taking Baby

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP) — A member of parliament demanded an official inquiry today into the removal of a London baby from Britain by Hollywood's buxom Jane Russell.

"We don't want to export babies to Hollywood or anywhere else," Marcus Lipton told newspaper men.

He said he will bring the matter up in the House of Commons next Thursday as a formal question to Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, home secretary.

The baby in the case is Thomas Kavanagh, 15-month-old son of a poor family in London's working-class district of Lambeth. His father, Michael, is a carpenter and Thomas is one of three children. The Kavanaghs live in a three-room flat which rents at 11 shillings a week.

Better Chance

Mrs. Kavanagh says she entrusted the baby to Miss Russell for a three-month visit to America "because I thought he would have a better chance there."

Miss Russell has said she did not expect to adopt the child. English law prohibits the adoption of children of British citizens by nationals of other countries.

Lipton filed the following question for the home secretary to answer in the House next week:

"Is the home secretary satisfied that Thomas Kavanagh was taken from this country with his parents' consent, and will he investigate this matter?"

Lipton told reporters that in his view "the procedure was rather irregular" at the very least.

Salary Requests Excessive—Board

Night school salaries requested by teachers doing that work were termed "excessive" on Thursday night in the report of the advisory vocational committee to the Board of Education.

Chairman Stanley Adamson read the report and moved its adoption.

The committee felt, said the chairman, that some increase is in order, "but that the suggested rate of $4.50 an hour is excessive."

Present rate for night school teachers is $3.30 an hour. This rate has been in effect for some years, said Mr. Adamson, and should be revised. The matter was referred to the committee dealing with other salary demands.

Board Of Education To Revalue Property

Thomas C. Ephgrave will be hired by the Board of Education to revalue school properties and bring their values in line with present day real estate values. Decision to hire Mr. Ephgrave was made Thursday night.

All school properties under the board's jurisdiction are insured under a single policy. But by the co-insurance clause, they must be insured for more than 80 per cent of their cost.

It is three or four years since the properties were revalued, and real estate values have gone up considerable since then. It was with this in mind that the board decided to hire Mr. Ephgrave.

Exhibition Board Willing To Allow Expropriation Of Memorial Centre Land

Way Now Opens For Soundings In Soil At Corner Of Lansdowne, Lock St., Board Would Ask For Say In Management

Peterborough Exhibition directors restated Thursday night their willingness to stand aside in any expropriation proceedings by the city council to secure a site in Morrow Park for the Memorial Community Centre. President Norman McConkey summarized the drift of discussion: "We are agreeable to having the Community Centre built there, and to the council going ahead, but we are not a party to expropriation." The directors said they were reaffirming the position which they had taken in a motion passed on May 1.

The action of the directors came on the heels of a city council motion at its latest meeting.

"Moved by Ald. Braund, seconded by Ald. Burrows, that the building committee of Peterborough Memorial Centre be informed that this council will take immediate steps to obtain the site desired on Morrow Park, when a report has been received after the making of necessary soil tests, that this site would meet the foundation requirements of such a building."

Proposed site is at the corner of Lansdowne and Lock Sts. It has been suggested in recent revival of Centre consideration that the Memorial Centre building would front on Lansdowne St. Tentative dimensions of the lot are 250 feet on Lansdowne St. by 300 feet depth on Lock St.

Ask For Say

The motion of assent was by Ross Dobbin and Clarence Bacon. Exhibition Board will ask for representatives on the Memorial Centre Board of Management. They also will require agreement for use of the Centre for exhibition and other agricultural purposes, and they expect that previously mentioned plans providing certain space in the building for board and other meetings would be available to rural groups.

Present action enables the council to take soundings of the subsoil in the northeastern area of Morrow Park.

Eventually, it was said, the site should be determined by representatives of the interested parties and the placing of the building should be decided with respect to the Exhibition Board's present establishment. Apparently there is no longer any doubt about the Centre being an advantage to the Exhibition and other agricultural activities such as the Central Ontario Championship show of the Holstein Breeders' Association.

Proposed location would provide a spacious show ring within easy reach of the livestock barns.

Among those present last night were: Mr. McConkey, G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. G. K. Fraser, Clarence Mann, R. L. Dobbin, Don Milburn, Vern Campbell, Alex Huston, Burritt Mann, Clarence Bacon, John Kitney, R. B. Arnold and Frank C. Paterson.

Summer Theatre To Finish Season In Queen Mary

Peterborough's Summer Theatre will conclude its 1952 season at the Queen Mary school auditorium, if the Board of Education's offer is accepted.

Terms of the offer were made known Thursday night in the report of the finance committee given by G. Wilson Craw, committee chairman.

Weekly rent for the auditorium will be increased $10, from $150 a week to $160. This is caused by an increase in insurance premiums. Total additional insurance cost of $426 is expected.

The Summer Theatre's season, as usual, will open at the PCVS auditorium, from June 23 to 28. The concluding weeks, from June 30 ~~to~~ September 6, will be in the Monaghan Rd. theatre.

Mr. Craw remarked that this schedule included the first week that school will be open. "School will have been going on such a short time that there should be no interruption resulting," he said.

In other years, the theatre, under direction of Michael Sadlier, has opened and closed at PCVS. Last year, Mr. Sadlier asked that the theatre be allowed to close its season at Queen Mary, but the board denied this request.

County Forums To Meet at Normal School Nov. 19 . . . Keith McIntyre Nominated for Week's Trip to 4-H Club Congress . . . Steady Progress Reported From Maple . . . Forum Broadcast Nov. 12

Keith McIntyre of Otonabee has been notified that he has been chosen as one of 25 delegates from Ontario to attend the 30th National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

This party of representative Junior Farmers of the province will leave Toronto Nov. 24 and will spend a full week in Chicago, leaving for home on Dec. 1.

Mr. Frank Q. Dench, agricultural representative in Renfrew county, will be in charge of the Ontario delegation. He is a son of Mr. B. Q. Dench of Lakefield. An accompanying chaperone has also been appointed for this party of 11 girls and 14 boys.

Other juniors who have been appointed from this area to attend the 4-H Congress are: Victoria county, Beatrice Lambert Woodville; Durham, Merrill Van Camp of Nestleton; Hastings, Donald Martin, Tweed RR 2; Prince Edward, Marion Conklin, Belleville, RR No. 7; Ontario county, Kay Prentice, Port Perry, RR 3.

The 4-H Clubs in the United States are the counterpart of the Junior Farmers of this province.

Their Congress is held at the same time as the International Live Stock Show. The Ontario group will be guests of International Harvester Co. and other industries interested in the juniors of agriculture. Selection of the 25 delegates has been based by the Ontario Department of Agriculture on their activities in the various phases of community affairs in addition to their interest in junior and other farm developments.

Mr. McIntyre was recently elected president of Peterborough Junior Farmers and has been a calf club leader for two years. That is the only part of his contribution to rural associations.

Two boys who won awards at the International Plowing Match last month are also joining the Ontario party.

100 ACRES IN WHEAT

Robert E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, said he had recently seen 100 acres in fall wheat on the farm of Junior Don MacFarlane's home in Otonabee. This new land that has been added to the farm was pastured for years. Another hundred acres are in swamp.

BRINGS $1.11 A POUND

The grand champion steer at the Ottawa Winter Fair sold for $1,054.50. Owned by G. E. Wiggins of Kemptville, the 950-pound Shorthorn brought $1.11 a pound on the hoof. Ottawa Journal says its steaks will bring $3 a pound. It was bought by L. E. Riley, manager of Steinberg's store.

✧ ✧ ✧

MORE MARGARINE MADE

Margarine production for the nine months ending Sept. 30 was 77,190,000 lbs., an increase of 7,589,000 lbs. over the same period last year.

As recently reported the US cottonseed crop is unusually heavy, and that means a big output of cottonseed oil, the price of which has been declining in the last few months. These cheaper oils are major ingredients of margarine.

✧ ✧ ✧

BOW FOR BOB BELL

Probably it is only a coincidence, but Bob Bell appears to have set an example for Juniors in desertion of the ranks of bachelorhood. First it was John Edmison, and now on Saturday Reg Ferguson is falling into line. There are some more eligibles around the county who should be practicing on that irreducibly worded commitment: "I do".

FEDERATION BULLETIN

An Ontario Federation of Agriculture bulletin says there is no support on hogs in effect at present in the US, and none is contemplated. However, the Secretary of Agriculture could apply a price support if necessary. Prices on the Chicago market since have been: June 15, price was $21.15 per cwt.; July 15 price was $20.80; and $21.05 Sept. 20.

"Effective parity at Aug. 15 would have been $20.30, and since American price support is figured generally at 90 per cent of parity, the US support price for hogs would have been $18.40 at that date, if it had been in effect."

MAPLE REPORTS INCREASES

G. W. Keffer, manager of the Maple breeding unit, reports an increase of 64 per cent in inseminations and 24 per cent in membership for the first half of this year. He estimates the number of inseminations for the year may reach 36,000.

Regarding the recent sale of Holsteins sired from Maple, A. E. Snider, treasurer of the Unit Association, writes: "The comment most frequently heard at our sale was that the cattle offered were exceptionally well grown. This could not all be attributed to good feeding. We listened in while one consignor told the group around his two-year-old heifer that it weighed 200 lbs. more than her dam at maturity. "You must have been extra good to the heifer," said one of the group. "The big bulls at the Unit had more to do with it," was the owner's reply.

Again and again we heard similar comment. These men were sure that, with the good bulls available at a well managed insemination centre, such as Maple, they were getting better type animals than would have been possible from sires which they could have afforded as individuals to buy."

"It was not expected that cattle with most of their appeal on the one side (sire) of the pedigree would sell at ultra high prices. They did sell at good prices, and demonstrated in just average registered herds, the value of such bulls as Maple offers. Fifteen milking females averaged $592; 23 bred heifers $505; eight heifer calves $353.

HARWOOD FORUM

Harwood Forum meetings are held in the Community Hall. Officers for the yetar are: President, Donald Herriott; vice-presidents, Alfred Crick and John Moore; secretary-treasurer, Frank Stephens.

VICTORIA FEDERATION

Annual meeting of Victoria Federation of Agriculture will be Thursday Nov. 29 in the Presbyterian auditorium in Lindsay. Directors and women's meetings called for 11 a.m.; dinner is at 12.30 p.m. followed by business and addresses.

✧ ✧ ✧

MAY NEED THAT HAY

A lot of cattle were foraging for themselves last year a month later than this week's snowfall.

"If farmers have to feed the livestock in the barns from now until spring," said Frank C. Paterson, "they are going to need that abundance of hay they harvested this season."

✧ ✧ ✧

ROYAL OPENS TUESDAY

Judging of dairy cattle at the Royal Winter Fair is listed for Friday, Nov. 16, beginning at 8 am. Beef cattle are scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 20.

The Royal opens to the public Tuesday, Nov. 13, continuing to the 21st. Some entries from this district are the MacAlpine Herefords of Fenelon Falls, and Shorthorns from L. Cadesky's Louada Manor herd in Harvey township, from M. H. Pimmett and Sons, Indian River, and Frances Walsh of Otonabee has two Herefords, one an entry for the King's Guineas for the grand champion steer.

KILLARNEY FORUM

First meeting of Killarney Corners Forum was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Legge with a full attendance. Mr. Legge was chairman, with Mrs. M. Kirk secretary, and Mr. A. Baptie treasurer.

✧ ✧ ✧

FORUM MONDAY, NOV. 12

The Forum Guide for Monday night's subject: "Are Co-operatives Socialistic?" indicates probable phases and topics of the discussion.

The Guide quotes Murray Lincoln, president of the Co-operative League of the United States: "Co-operation is the very antithesis of socialism. In socialism, all economic activities are carried on by government bureaus. In co-operation they are carried out voluntarily by the people themselves."

And Rev. Dr. M. M. Coady's assertion that if co-operation became widespread across Canada "it would immunize this country forever against any form of totalitarian statism."

500 FORUM REPORTS

Clare Burt, Ontario Forum secretary, says nearly 500 reports were received from groups representing 7,500 members after the first broadcast of the season. "Most of them agreed that the chief reason for starting a Co-op. is when the existing services are inadequate or dishonest in dealing with the public; also, possibly to provide competition or to help break a monopoly. They cautioned never to tackle it until the majority of people in a community thought it necessary and feasible."

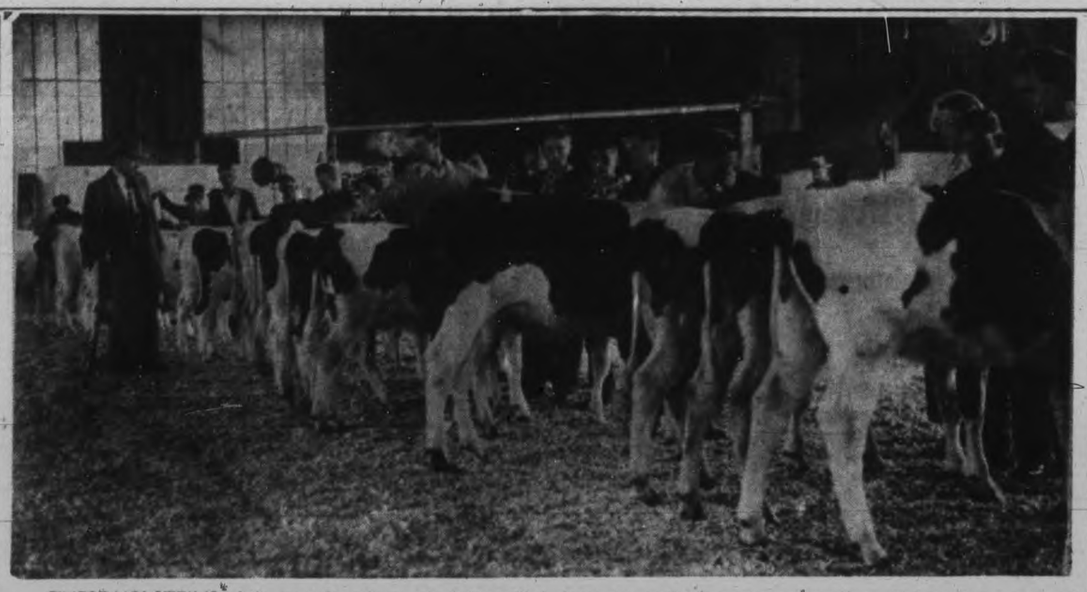
NATURE'S OWN SOIL



A farmer choosing soils which he considers highly fertile will usually select those of dark color. In that preference he pays tribute to the value of organic matter, says B. J. Finn, soil specialist, Lennoxville (Que.) experimental station.

"When new land is broken few people realize that it has taken centuries for the organic matter to accumulate in the soil. With continued cultivation, the organic matter decomposes rapidly and at a rate much faster than nature can rebuild. Once the organic matter content has become so low that good crop yields cannot be obtained, it is impossible to build up the organic matter without good soil management.

Good soil management includes a suitable rotation, the proper use of cover crops, manure, green manure, fertilizers, adequate drainage. Barnyard manure is urgently recommended as the most effective source of rebuilding, for it contains not only organic matter, but also plant nutrients and micro-organisms. A considerable part (about 80%) of the plant nutrients removed in crops fed to livestock can be returned to the soil by manuring.

By the addition of large amounts of organic matter, sands and clays can be transformed into soils similar to loams in their behaviour.

Organic matter increases the water-holding capacity of the soil thus reducing run-off and erosion; it favors workability and ease of cultivation, loosens compact heavy clay soils and closes the pores of sandy soils; it also serve as a storehouse for plant nutrients and is a source of food and energy for micro-organisms which are the agents assuring the circulation of plant food elements."

THESE HOLSTEINS of the east Peterborough dairy calf club serve only as a medium in the development of the boys and girls themselves. Experience in management and feeding and learning cattle types is particularly important. Eventually some of these young folks will own whole herds. By that time they will have reached adulthood, and from their clubs they should have acquired confidence in themselves, ability of expression, naturally easy manner in mingling with one another, and other qualities that round out character and attractive personality. Before then, some of them will become club leaders, guiding youngsters who will take their place in the show rings of Achievement Days. From right to left they are: Dorothy Chambers, Don Kindred, Doris Brown, Walter Clarke, Alan Bolton, Kerry English, Gordon Hope, Audrey Bolton, Alan Stewart, Gwelda Bolton, Mary Wood, Archie Davidson, Eldon Van Volkenburg, Gerald Bolton, Gerald Wood and James Doris. The judge is E. A. Starr of the livestock branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Keith McIntyre was leader of this club.

Cheese Producers Setting Fine Example In Marketing

The enterprise of the Ontario Cheese Producers this year in negotiating a contract with Britain "was the most important step ever taken by an Eastern Canada producers group, and its success is being noted and considered by many other groups," said Fred Crowe, of Dummer township, in his CHEX address in the Federation series.

"We believe the success of this marketing plan will enable cheese to maintain its place as the balance wheel of the whole dairy industry, since in seasons and years of high production cheese is the most suitable dairy product we have for export."

Mr. Crowe is one of the best informed men in the county on the cheese industry.

"Previous to 1870, Canada had few agricultural exports," he said in introducing his subject to his air audience. "Ontario and Quebec were well settled, but the people had little money in their possession. Most of their produce was bartered at the corner store for bare necessities."

There was some cheese being made in the Maritime provinces and sold in Great Britain. It was felt the demand was almost unlimited, so the industry began to spread to Ontario.

The Legislature added a clause to the Companies Act of 1871 permitting organization by declaration. This was a simple form by which five or more men could come together before a Justice of the Peace and, by declaring their intention of setting up a plant for the manufacture of cheese, they could secure a set of bylaws, have them registered, and proceed to sell shares in the company.

Frequently, only a percentage of the share price was paid down, and the balance was paid over a period of years from accumulated dividends. Many of these small companies eventually discontinued payment of dividends on capital stock, and have operated as true co-operatives for many years.

Two In Peterborough

Several other plans were adopted. One was for a private party to build a factory and manufacture milk into cheese on a custom basis. At least the first two factories in Peterborough county were built in this way by James Elliott. In 1872 he erected one in Smith township a few miles from the city limits. Two years later he sold it, and built another in Dummer.

So much milk was available that this factory operated both night and day for several seasons. At the turn of the century there was a cheese factory located at almost every fifth crossroad in Ontario.

A mighty volume of cheese was being exported to Great Britain. That business reached its peak in 1904 when 234 million pounds of cheese were exported. Not only was cheese produced in quantity, but a reputation was established for quality without the help of modern machinery and refrigeration which are considered so necessary by cheesemakers today.

The price was 6 to 8 cents a pound. This was quite in line with expenses. The primary producer received a larger share of the consumer dollar than he does today.

Millions To Farmers

This was millions of dollars in the hands of the people who had seen very little cash before, and they were ready to spend it for necessities. They built brick houses and new barns, and created prosperity for the whole country.

Ontario ceased to be a money lender's paradise, and the days of 10 percent interest with a farm mortgage as security were ended.

After 1904, cheese production began slowly to decline, partly because of emigration to the western provinces, and partly due to industrial expansion in Ontario. And, as Canada relinquished the British market, it was taken over by Australia and New Zealand.

During the first world war, it was still a healthy industry, and Canadian cheese producers played a major part in feeding the allied armies.

As Canada developed industrially, the demand for other milk products increased, and whole milk, concentrated milk and ice cream companies began to reach out into cheese districts for supplies. Although many factories were closed, the supply seemed inexhaustible.

This trend was temporarily halted during the depression of the thirties when many farmers were glad to have a cheese factory to process their milk when other markets were closed.

Cheese factories have never refused to accept milk if it measured up to quality standards.

At the beginning of World War II, the cheese industry was still healthy, and it seems strange that an industry which could live through depression would come to grief in time of prosperity. But this is a story of marketing.

Board System Abused

Most cheese had been sold on boards, which were formed by represetnatives of factries meeting at strategic places with buyers for various companies. The cheese was listed and sold by auction.

This was saltfactory until abuses began to creep in, the worst of which was that of companies buying cheese direct from manufacturers at a fraction of a cent above board prices.

Soon most of the cheese was sold this way, and we found that a small percentage of the cheese actually boarded was setting the price for the whole industry.

One of the first activities of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association was to secure compulsory boarding legislation. This had hardly been secured when World War II broke out, and we found ourselves victims of international trade agreements.

Agreements were made with the British Ministry of Food for quantities of cheese at prices which did not permit the producer to compete in the labor market. Moreover the producer had to buy all machinery and material at the Canadian level of prices while his product was being sold at a price set by countries in the sterling bloc.

Tride Subsidies

Farmers just could not make cheese production a major source of income, and thousands of dairy cattle were sold for beef.

The Ontario government came to our rescue with the Cheese and Hog Subsidy Act, but the Minister of Agriculture said at every opportunity that the whole idea of subsidies was unsound, and advised us to find some means of improving our position by seeking other than government help.

The year 1950 will long be remembered by cheese producers as the most difficult year of their history, and it was felt by many that unless some changes were made, cheese production in Ontario would disappear.

The Cheese Producers Marketing Board, with the approval of the delegates at the 1951 convention, decided to market their own product, and proceeded to make a contract with the Canadian buyers for cheese at a minimum price of 35 cents a pound. They then contracted with the British Ministry of Food for the estimated surplus over domestic requirements. This contract has now been fulfilled.

Forums Plan Joint Meeting For First Review Session

Peterborough county Forums are planning a joint meeting for the first review night, Monday, Nov. 19 at the Normal School. Mrs. Lorne Reynolds announced. The social phase of Forum purpose will be emphasized. A similar evening in the 1950 season attracted an attendance of more than 170 members representing all the sections of the county in which Forums have been organized. Mrs. Reynolds is secretary-treasurer of the county committee.

Central Smith Forum, Mrs. Reynolds said, was formed in 1941 and was one of the originals in this county.

"Last year 69 Forums were the means of starting 96 new ones," Mrs. Reynolds recalled. "Some of our members started Stewart Hall Forum, which has grown into a large progressive group, and last year we got Lily Lake under way. I am sure this Forum is bound to go places."

Adult education is one of the main benefits of the Forum movement. "We hear carefully prepared programs on subjects in which we are keenly interested. We add our penny's worth in discussion. This is included with opinions of all Forums in the province, and we have facts worth their weight in gold. Last season we were quoted on the air, and we have been 'chestier' ever since. Teenagers also receive benefit from the broadcasts and discussions."

On the social side, Mrs. Reynolds said: "We have all made new Forum friends whom we would not care to loose."

Forum Financing

Clarence Hancock, of Lily Lake (Smith) group, explained Forum financing in a broadcast conversation with Harold Lewis.

"Each Forum is asked to contribute 60 cents per family, per series, or $3 for the season, payable to the provincial office. Also, once a year each member pays ten cents which is sent to the county treasurer to meet local expenses. The government also makes a grant.

"The weekly Guide which each Forum receives for each meeting costs $10 per thousand more this year. These Guides and finding pads cost $4,854 for the year's production. The expenses for a year amount to more than $21,000. This includes salaries, printing, office rent, stationery, etc. You can see that is quite a large sum, and I would like to stress that if Forum members do not pay the dues, these expenses cannot be met.

"I do not know any other organization or club to which all the members of the family can belong, and pay dues as small as ours. So, please, members of Farm Forums, do not forget your dues."

Mr. Hancock said the best time to make this payment was early in the season because it involved less bookkeeping for the local and provincial secretary - treasurer, and thereby helped cut expenses.

Cows can't use crutches

We've heard from Denmark that a cow over there had to have its leg amputated, but gets along quite nicely now on a new one made of aluminum.

Whether or not this artificial leg was made of Canadian aluminum, we wouldn't know. Perhaps it was, because we do produce one quarter of the world's supply. That's quite a big thing for Canada. It means jobs for Canadians, and money from abroad to pay for Canadian imports. Right now we are hard at work on extension projects in Quebec and British Columbia; for we intend to go on playing our part in helping Canada grow. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Total Of 271 Candidates Nominated For November 22

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Ontario's election campaign today entered the home stretch. The field numbered 271.

When nominations for the Nov. 22 vote closed Thursday at 2 pm EST—an hour later in the far northwestern ridings of Kenora and Rainy River—this was the line-up of candidates for the 90-seat Legislature.

Progressive Conservative, 90; Liberal, 90 (including two Liberal-Labor); CCF, 77; Labor-Progresive, 6; Independent, 4; Independent Progressive Conservative, 2; Independent Labor, 1; Socialist-Labor, 1.

The Canadian Press compilation was not completed until early in the evening owing to crippled communications between Toronto and Picton, where nomination papers were filed by candidates in Prince Edward-Lenlox riding. Wednesday's snowstorm which swept across the province disrupted telegraph and telephone communications and Picton's report was delayed until 6:15 pm.

2 New Leaders

Both the old-line parties are headed by men leading their forces into an election for the first time. Premier Frost took over the Progressive Conservative leadership in 1949 when George Drew became the party's national leader and resigned from the Ontario house. Walter C. Thomson became provincial leader of the Liberals just a year ago but until now, has retained his seat in the House of Commons.

The official opposition leader, E. B. Jolliffe, has guided the CCF for nine years. He led the party in the 1943 election, when the Progressive Conservatives took over the government after nine years of Liberal rule; in 1945 and in 1948, when the CCF, for the first time became the official opposition in the Ontario house. The party won 21 seats in that election.

At dissolution, this was the political distribution: Progressive Conservative, 53; CCF, 21; Liberal 14, including one Liberal-Labor, and two Labor-Progressive (Communist) for a total of 90.

Stiffest Opposition

Of the leaders, Mr. Thomson apparently faces the stiffest opposition. He was nominated in Ontario riding, which he represented in the Commons and which takes in the industrial city of Oshawa. He is opposed by Oshawa's mayor, Michael Starr, the Progressive Conservative candidate; T. D. Thomas, who held the seat for the CCF in the last house, and Mrs. Evelyn Bateman, Oshawa alderman running as an Independent.

The Premier, seeking re-election in the Eastern Ontario riding of Victoria, which he has represented since 1937, is opposed by a Minden restaurateur, Edward Harding, a Liberal. Mr. Jolliffe, fighting to retain York South, has Progressive Conservative, Liberal and Labor-Progressive candidates against him.

The Labor-Progressive bid in the 1951 election is stronger than in 1948 when the party had two candidates. But it is far under that of 1945 when it put 31 candidates into the field.

That was the year when a record number of candidates—317—sought provincial office. Three years ago, the number was 290.

Seven mayors and the reeves of two townships as well as cities are in the lists. The mayors: Arthur J. Reaume of Windsor, running as a Liberal in Essex North; Philip Fay of Timmins, Liberal, in Cochrane South; F. M. Deans of Oakville, Liberal, in Halton; R. M. Robertson of St. Catharines, Liberal, in Lincoln; W. L. Houck of Niagara Falls, seeking re-election as a Liberal from that city; Starr of Oshawa in Ontario riding, and S. F. Leavine of Waterloo, Progressive Conservative, in Waterloo North.

Reeves Runinng

The reeves are William Beech of the township of York, running as a Progressive Conservative in York South, and H. Ward Allen of West York, Liberal, candidate in York West riding. Both townships are densely populated areas on Toronto's outskirts.

This is the way the election shapes up in the 90 ridings: three-way contests among the three main parties in 65; two-party battles between the Liberal and Progressive Conservative forces in 13; four-way contests in 11 and one five-way battle in Toronto St. Andrew.

Seven women, the same number as in 1948, seek election. The list is headed by Agnes Macphail, CCF, who seeks re-election in York East. Miss Macphail, first woman to enter the House of Commons and a veteran of political warfare, is opposed by Liberal and Progressive Conservative candidates.

Of the others, Mrs. Bateman in Ontario is an Independent. Mrs. Marcella Brown, newspaperwoman on leave of absence from The Sarnia Canadian Observer for the campaign, is the Liberal candidate in Lambton West. Mrs. H. K. Cartwright, Kingston lawyer is the CCF standard-bearer in that city; Mrs. Anne Vowdes represents the party in Middlesex South and Mrs. Bessie Mitchell in Muskoka-Ontario. The seventh woman is Ann B. Mayer, running as an Independent Progressive Conservative in Prescott.

The dean of the legislature, Harry C. Nixon, will be fighting his ninth election. He has represented Brant for 32 years and is seeking re-election in that riding at the age of 61 against Progresl sive Conservative and CCF opposition.

Other Contestants

The Rev. John W. Foote, reforms institutions minister who won the Victoria Cross at Dieppe, seeks re-election in Durham. He is engaged in a three-way fight.

Farquhar Oliver, former Liberal leader and house leader for the party in the last two sessions of the legislature, also has a three-way fight on his hands in Grey South.

In Kingston, where Mrs. Cartwright seeks the seat her partner-husband never won in several tries, W. M. Nickle, Progressive Conservative, is one of her opponents. He is the son of William Folger Nickle, the man who more than anyone else, is credited with the abolishment of titles in Canada. He led the fight against the granting of titles to Canada for most of his years in the Commons, from which he resigned in 1919. He was attorney-general of Ontario in the Ferguson Conservative government in the 1920s.

In Wentworth, the Progressive Conservative candidate is Art Child, for years goalie of Hamilton Tigers in Ontario Hockey Association competition. He seeks to unseat J. L. Easton, CCF. The third candidate is Russell Reinke, Liberal.

A blind man is a candidate in Toronto St. George. He is Harvey Lynes, Liberal, running against Attorney-General Dana Porter and Frank Frier, CCF.

Find Howe Not Worried About UK Austerity Cuts

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—Trade Minister Howe showed no concern Thursday regarding the United Kingdom's decision to slice imports from dollar-area countries by almost $1,000,000,000 a year.

As far as Canada is concerned, he told the Commons, there is no cause for "great alarm."

Though the government has no details of the new British austerity plan, there is nothing in the United Kingdom situation which leads him to believe that smaller amounts of goods "can be taken from Canada."

Wheat sales to Britain were at a minimum. Other exports were mostly raw materials, metals, iron ore, lumber and materials of that type—materials in great demand throughout the world and for which Canada could find markets.

The question of the possible impact of Britain's new austerity drive on Canadian exports was brought up in the Commons by a prairie farmer, P. E. Wright (CCF-Melfort).

Mr. Howe said that while the government has no particulars of the UK plan—announced in the British House of Commons Wednesday—the government does have "an under standing" with Britain that she "will continue to buy North American supplies of wheat from Canada."

Outside the Commons, officials estimated that Britain's purchases of wheat and flour likely will total about 113,000,000 bushels in the 1951-52 crop year.

Hope For Improvement

Canada's hope had been that possibly through relaxation of import controls, Canada's chances of increasing exports to Britain might have brightened in 1952, giving her a better chance to overcome a deficit in world trade. The deficit in the first nine months of 1951 reached a peak of about $325,000,000. Now, said officials, these chances were gone.

Britain now might even put the squeeze on a token shipments plan, under which Canadian exporters were allowed to ship a portion of their normal exports to Britain under a general licencing agreement in order that these exporters might retain a foothold in their traditional markets.

Here is a breakdown of major Canadian exports to Britain in the first nine months of this year: Wheat, $117,000,000; flour, $33,600,000; cheese, $4,400,000; boards and planks, $57,900,000; newsprint $5,400,000; wood pulp, $24,100,000; tobacco, $10,900,000; metals, $125,000,000.

All of these were essential and totalled about $380,000,000 of Canada's shipments. It appeared unlikely that many cuts would be made, except possibly for tobacco and lumber.

Perhaps a clearer picture of what Britain plans in the way of Canadian purchases likely will be obtained from Finance Minister Abbott when he attends a meeting of Commonwealth finance ministers in London Jan. 15.

He told Howard Green (PC, Vancouver-Quadra) that it is his intention to attend the meeting which would discuss "matters of common concern."

Canadian Press Wins Case

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Magistrate Thomas Elmore Thursday dismissed a charge by the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) that the Canadian Press failed to make "every reasonable effort" to negotiate a collective agreement with a unit of CP editorial employees.

He said he thought the national news-gathering agency had, in fact, made "every reasonable effort," and decided it was not necessary to hear any CP defence against the charge.

Guild counsel John Osler immediately withdrew a similar charge against Press News Limited, CP subsidiary which purchases CP news and processes it for sale to radio stations.

Guild representatives later said an appeal will be made against the dismissal, which came after one day of hearing on the charge.

Hearing then began on four charges which allege discrimination against four employees in CP's Ottawa bureau, with Guild witnesses testifying as the to circumstances upon which they were based.

Dismissing the main charge, Magistrate Elmore observed that the employees involved in the dispute had the right to strike if they were not satisfied. He did not think that the company, in the negotiations, had been unmindful of the costly consequences of strike action.

He suggested it was impossible to make two persons agree if they could not agree: no law could make them.

Made Reasonable Effort

He had to decide one thing—whether or not the accused company had made every reasonable effort to negotiate a collective agreement.

"I think," he told Mr. Osler, "that the accused has made every reasonable effort."

How, the magistrate asked, could he say the company had failed to make a reasonable effort when evidence indicated there had been many meetings between the two parties, that a number of matters had been dealt with "very clearly," that both sides knew what they were talking about and that there had been no "hostility."

"I don't think it can be said they were unreasonable," he said.

Actor Mitchum In Tavern Brawl

COLORADO SPRINGS, Nov. 9—(AP)—"I stopped in the joint for a hot buttered rum and bang, I was right in the middle of it."

That was the statement of Movie Actor Robert Mitchum Thursday when questioned concerning a scuffle last night in a Colorado Springs tavern involving a Camp Carson soldier.

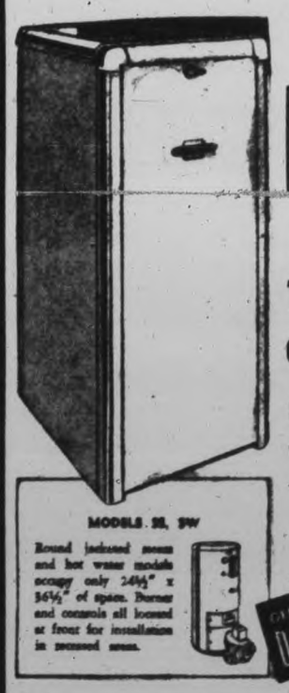
"I wasn't angry. It was just a saloon tussle," Mitchum said in a telephone interview. "I may have roughed the guy up a little, but that's all."

Mitchum, who has been making a film near here, denied kicking Pte. Bernard B. Reynolds in the face as related to police by bystanders.

Reynolds is a tackle on the Camp Carson football team and is a former light-weight boxer from Fairfield, Conn.

Reynolds was taken to a Colorado Springs hospital for observation. Attendants said Reynolds was under observation for a possible brain concussion.

"Somebody hit me on the head with a beer bottle," Mitchum said when asked if he was injured. "Otherwise I came through in great shape," he added.



Police said no complaint has been filed against Mitchum.

Canadian Plants Expected Grow Rapidly

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canada is just beginning to grow, says Harold Blancke, president of Celanese Corporation of America.

He is one of many who say this, but his words attract special attention because his company is backing them up.

It has built, through Columbia Cellulose Co., Ltd. a $27,000,000 pulp plant at Prince Rupert, BC, opened this year and already expanding its production by 50 per cent; and is building, through Canadian Chemical Co., Ltd., a $54,000,000 chemical plant at Edmonton which will open next year.

Indications are that it will build a great deal more, both in expansions at these plants, and in new plants elsewhere.

Mr. Blancke, in an address and a press interview in Toronto Thursday, outlined some of the thinking behind the actions of his group of companies.

Had Small Start

Celanese Corporation itself started as a small company in a new industry only 27 years ago, pioneering in the creating of fibres and textiles and associated products.

Shortages of raw materials sent it into research to find other new materials; sent it into other countries; with one thing leading to another.

It now has come into Canada and expects its Canadian plants to keep on growing in the same way.

Pulp from the Prince Rupert plant is used principally for the manufacture of chemical yarns and plastics, with most of it at present going to the United States. But with the opening of the Edmonton plant, about one-third of the Prince Rupert production will go to Edmonton.

In addition to producing yarns for textiles, for use by the Canadian textile industry, the Edmonton plant will make a variety of industrial chemicals from Alberta's oil.

Enough formaldehyde, for instance, will be made to supply the entire British Columbia plywood industry, and a large part of American Pacific coast demand.

Not Replacements

Mr. Blancke said new textile fibres do not replace old fibres such as cotton and wool—but integrate into a picture of increased demand, with research finding the way for one fibre to make up the deficiencies of another.

Of British Columbia and Alberta, Mr. Blancke said:

"Nowhere in the world is there close juxtaposition of such a huge endowment of timber and petroleum gas resources, our particular raw materials; as in those provinces.

"Even more important than this, however, is the fact of good government. This single factor should make it possible to develop our Canadian-affiliated companies into the essential core of the entire world-wide organization."

ROYAL MEDICAL ATTENDANTS — Surgeon Lt.-Cmdr. Harvey Little, Haileybury, Ont., and Lt. Marie Louise Corriveau, Penetanguishine, Ont., have been assigned as medical attendants on the cruiser Ontario which will take Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh from Charlottetown to Sydney, N.S., and then to St. Johns, Nfld. Lt. Corriveau, former nurse in charge of the Dionne quintuplets, was presented to the King and Queen in 1939 with the famous children. At that time the Queen expressed the hope that some day Miss Corriveau would meet her daughters.

$25,000 Fire Razes Barn, Famed Herd Safe

BUTTONVILLE, Nov. 9—Fire razed a $25,000 barn at Klaymore Farms off the Don Mills Rd., northeast of Toronto, Wednesday. The farm is owned by cattle breeder James Russell.

A herd of 150 registered Shorthorn cattle, one of the most famous on the continent, was led safely away from the blazing barn. Mr. Russell said the herd was worth $150,000.

The fire burned for four hours and three adjacent barns and the farmhouse were damaged by water.

Water Supply Runs Out

Firemen from Agincourt, Richmond Hill, Unionville and Scarboro battled the blaze. When the water supply ran out, they had to pump water from a nearby creek. Their efforts were aided by driving snow, which fell as rain when it struck the heat area of the fire.

Mr. Russell credited the prompt action of the four fire departments with saving the other buildings.

The blaze, which was seen five miles away, is believed to have originated either from spontaneous combustion or a bare electric light wire, firemen said.

When the fire broke out at noon, most of the cattle were in a corral abutting on the main barn. Joseph Easton, farm manager, his wife and three hired men drove them to safety, then returned into the smoke-filled building to free the remaining cattle and horses.

Barbara Ann Wins Praise From Critics

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9—(CP)—The opening here Thursday night of the 1951 Hollywood Ice Review, featuring Canada's Barbara Ann Scott, got an enthusiastic reception from the Milwaukee press.

Miss Scott, world and Olympic figure-skating champion before she turned professional in December, 1948, replaced Sonja Henie as star of the show which broke all records here last year.

The Milwaukee Journal said: "Beautiful, blond Barbara Ann Scott thrilled the crowd with her grace and skill. The fact that she looks as unsophisticated as a school girl amid the glamor of the blade ballet only enhances her charm. She was aesthetically perfect as she spun in unbelievably swift and dizzy gyrations; a blurred top whirling on a silver point."

"Miss Scott is young and exquisite," said the Sentinel. "Fortunately she does not attempt to imitate the incomparable Sonja Henie, but skates in her own manner and in a technique that is remarkable for a girl so young."

The revue, in which Miss Scott is expected to earn more than $100,000, will move on to New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, and Indianapolis after its 12-day run here.

Papal Consistory December 10 Names Cardinals

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 9 — (Reuters)—The Pope will call a secret consistory Dec. 10 to fill vacancies in the depleted College of Cardinals, it was reported Thursday.

This long-delayed consistory, first expected nearly two years ago, will be the second called by the present Pope for the creation of cardinals.

The first, in February, 1946, saw the nomination of the record number of 32 cardinals.

At present the College of Cardinals numbers 49, or 21 short of the number of 70 fixed by Sixtus V in 1586.

Until a few months ago, it was the general conviction that at the forthcoming consistory the Pope would increase the number of cardinals to 100.

When the limit of 70 was fixed nearly 400 years ago, the world's Catholics totalled scarcely 100,000,000.

Today, they number well over 400,000,000, and extend over vast regions which have never been represented in the College of Cardinals.

May Change Structure

With the approach of the consistory, however, Vatican observers here are uncertain whether the Pope will choose this occasion, or postpone until later, what would amount to a highly important change in the structure of the church.

At the 1946 consistory, the Pope broke with tradition by depriving the Italian cardinals of the majority they had always enjoyed in the college.

The college, as completed in 1946, consisted of 52 non-Italians and 28 Italians. It now numbers 32 foreigners and 17 Italians.

If the college were increased to a strength of 100, the Italians would probably be even more heavily outnumbered.

One important result of this would be the increased possibility of the election of a non-Italian Pope. Adrian VI of Holland, elected in 1522, was the last Pope chosen from outside the Italian hierarchy.

After the 1946 consistory, 22 nations were represented in the College of Cardinals. Italy had 28 cardinals, France seven, the United States five, Spain and Germany four each, Argentina Brazil, Canada, Poland and Portugal, two each; Armenia, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Chile, China, Cuba, Holland, England, Hungary, Peru and Syria one each.

RCAF Accents Youth, Speed In Modern Pilot's Training

GIMLI, Man., — (CP) — A vast change has been made in RCAF flying trainging in the last few years.

The Air Force is combining two big factors— air speed and youth —in modern pilot training.

Air Commodore A. P. Revington, senior RAF Liaison Officer in Canada, said the Air F orce needs new graduates who will serve as pilots for a period ranging from one to eight years. Over-age at 28, they will then form a skilled manpower pool, fit for emergencies.

The student pilot, who'll face the cockpit of a jet aircraft before long, no longer makes shaky training flights in light planes such as Tiger-Moths and Cornels.

Start Right Off.

Students now start right off in 550-horse-power Harvards, prototypes of propeller-driven fighters.

What was known as elementary flying training is now eliminated. Pilots in the last war put in about 75 hours' training in light aircraft.

When elementary schooling was concluded they went into service flying training school. Student pilots were weeded out, some going to single-engine planes and others to multiple-engined craft. From this stage they went to advanced training in fighter or larger bomber classes.

Cuts Early Training.

Now the student pilot begins in the service training stage. Unlike his predecessor who spent 10 to 15 hours aloft with instructors before soloing, the students of today spends 20 to 30 hours up before making his solo flight.

The new method eliminates much of the 75-hour elementary filying training and all light craft training.

Student pilots now take their training in three phases, interlocking and simultaneous. They're marked on (1) flying ability, (2) ground school work, and (3) character and leadership.

Pilots training prior to and during the last war were not marked on character and leadership during their student period. A separate schooling division for character and leadership— study of officer development, orderly room duties and drill— was the only training for this. Now it is worked into the student training school.

Another big change is the "plan" system. Training is completed in specific lessons or "lesson plans." This enables changing instructors to take over without wasting time or overlapping in lectures.

Air Marshall W. A. Curtis, Chief of Canada's Air Staff, said of the new method: "It's a far more solid plan."

Mass Dunking

ST. THOMAS (CP). — There were a lot of glum-looking sheep around Humphrey Campbell's farm here after the first mass sheep dipping and drenching operation ever carried out in this district. A total of about 300 were given the full treatment.

THE BEAVER HAS COME BACK from almost complete extinction as a result of widespreda protection. John Patrick Gillese will outline in Saturday's Examiner a trans-Canada program for beaver conservation, and Stephen Greenless will supply photographic details.

Preparations To Invade Europe Described By Winston Churchill

Recipe:

Take one blonde who has given up murder as her movie profession, a pair of transplanted beaver, a smoked meat sandwich king; mix carefully, spice with fiction, cartoons, and serve with a garnish of color photographs.

That is a one-glance resume of what Examiner readers will see in WEEKEND picture magazine on Saturday.

The piece de resistance, of course, is Winston Churchill's final instalment of "Closing the Ring", volume five of his work entitled "The Second World War".

On Saturday, Churchill tells of the military preparations for the cross-Channel invasion of Europe and the Allied capture of Rome.

The blonde of the recipe is Janis Carter, who grew tired of murdering her leading men, and vowed to play more sedate roles. Jack Hirshberg, WEEKEND Hollywood correspondent, writes about her change from homicide to glamor.

From northern Quebec, near James Bay, staff writer John Patrick Gillese tells the story of the beaver's comeback in Canada. With photographs by Stephen Greenlees, the story tells how the number of beaver increased in that part of Quebec from 162 in 1933 to more than 15,000.

Ronald J. Cooke tells the success tale of Benjamin Kravitz, Montreal's smoked meat sandwich king, who sells thousands of sandwiches daily to 8,000 daily customers. The sandwiches are delicatessen fare — knackwurst, pastrami, pepperoni and bengaroni, salami and corned beef.

Color photographs are an introduction to "An American In Paris", the George Gershwin musical brought to the screen by Gene Kelly.

WEEKEND sports editor Andy O'Brien debunks the pet belief that the boxers of yesteryear were iron men, compared to today's ring champs. He suggests that the 76-round "classic" between Jake Kilrain and John L. Sullivan must have been boring.

Children in Western Canada were delighted with Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip on their tour. WEEKEND brings to Examiner readers pictures of the royal pair and the children they saw and met in the west.

Articles about permanent waves for Japanese women, Italian winter fashions, and several short stories round out the WEEKEND for your enjoyment.

UN Troops Get Strange Illness

TOKYO, Nov. 9 — (AP) — A strange illness for which no sure cure has been found has broken out among United Nations' forces in Korea, General Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said today.

Brig.-Gen. William E. Shambora, Surgeon-General of the Far East command, said the mysterious malady strikes suddenly and is characterized by fever and a headache. These symptoms are common in the early stages of several known infectious diseases.

Sulfa and antibiotics have failed to stem the disease, Shambora said.

(Reuters News Agency reported that the disease turns its victims' eyeballs bright red. The report quoted Shambora as saying one-fifth of the victims became extremely ill with blood poisoning and affected kidneys).

The malady is strikingly similar to that reported by the Japanese among their Manchurian troops in 1939. Headquarters said it was too early to say the two diseases are identical.

Two Fire Chiefs Quit At Norwood

NORWOOD, Nov. 9—(ENS)—Fire chiefs A. G. Spring and Fred Tredree sent their resignations in to Norwood village council Monday night. The resignations were accepted after both men assured council they would continue to act as fire chiefs until a replacement was available.

Councillors Webb and Atkinson moved that Reeve Rork Ferguson approach Earl Hamblin to ask if he would act as temporary chief, pending a permanent appointment.

Mr. Tredree and William Garden handed in their resignations as members of the rink commission. The resignations were accepted after some discussion and a new rink commission consisting of K. E. Pakenham, George Millett, Irwin Warner, and Councillors Atkinson and Nixon were appointed.

E. M. Hess discussed with council the plan of street lighting to be adopted to increase its efficiency. Twenty-six new lights will be installed on Norwood streets.

The Bell Telephone Co., on motion by Councillors Atkinson and Nixon, was authorized to move the telephone pole at Peterborough and Cedar Sts., half the cost to be charged to the village and recovered from the Department of Highways.

Chemical Company Builds Big Plant In Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—A huge new chemical industry is taking shape in Edmonton as an offshoot of Alberta's wealth of oil and natural gas.

Important chemicals not at present produced in Canada will be manufactured out of by-products from the nearby refineries. Wood pulp from British Columbia will be processed into yarn and staple fibre.

First in the field is Canadian Chemical Co. Ltd., an affiliate of Celanese Corporation. It is spending $54,600,000 on 300 acres of buildings on what a few months ago was a wheat field.

A second plant, to cost more than $10,000,000, may be built by Canadian Industries Ltd. Montreal executives of the firm have been in Edmonton conferring with Mayor Sidney Parsons on a site for the project.

Ready In 1953

Canadian Chemical's plant, overlooking the north Saskatchewan river six miles east of the city, will be ready early in 1953. A work force of 500 men is pushing construction under severe winter conditions. Two thousand will be on the job next summer.

The plant will have two main divisions, technically called petrochemical and cellulose acetate.

The former will use propane and butane gases, available at the refineries only a few miles away, to manufacture chemicals, most of which now must be imported from the United States.

The cellulose acetate division will turn out the yarn and the staple fibre, as well as large quantities of the raw materials of these textiles which will be exported for final processing elsewhere.

Huge Production

This raw material is cellulose acetate flake. About 25,000,000 pounds a year of the stuff will be turned out—15,000,000 pounds to be processed at the Edmonton plant and the remaining 10,000,000 pounds to be exported.

Two-thirds of Edmonton's 15,000,000-pound quota will go into staple fibre and the remainder into yarn.

Wood pulp for the acetate flake will come from an affiliated mill at Terrace, BC, on the Prince Rupert-Edmonton line of Canadian National Railways.

Chemicals to be made from propane and butane include products now imported such as pentaerythritol, used in military explosives and in resins employed in manufacturing plastics and paints; methanol, used in antifreeze and as an auxiliary fuel in piston-type and jet aircraft engines, and N-propyl alcohol, the largest-volume alcohol used in the United States as a brake fluid and at present not available in Canada.

Others are propylene glycol, used as a cooling agent in liquid-cooled aircraft engines, and dipropylene glycol, used in printing inks, textile processing and in specialty oils and greases.

Fuel for heating and generating power for the huge plant will come from Alberta natural gas wells.

No details of the CIL project have been announced. The company has taken a five-month option on a 300-acre site one mile east of the city. Dr. J. H. Shipley, development manager, and Dr. H. G. Littler, chemical department manager, both of Montreal, declined to comment on the company's plans when in the city last week.

Cavan Council Pays $62 For Sheep Killed

MILLBROOK, Nov. 9—(ENS)—Accounts totalling $3,527.20 were passed at the November meeting of Cavan township council. The largest item was $2,902.60 for road vouchers.

The problem of sheep-killing dogs came up again at the meeting. Melville Morrison told council dogs had killed a lamb and a ewe valued at $62. Council voted that amount to reimburse him.

Grants totalling $35 were given to Durham Plowmen's Association and the Junior Farmers, consisting of $15 to the former and $20 to the latter.

A bylaw was passed naming polling places, and appointing deputy returning officers and poll clerks.

Metropolitan Toronto Area Crosses One Million Mark

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—The population of the metropolitan area of Toronto has crossed the 1,000,000-mark, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday in another series of preliminary population figures based on the 1951 census.

The current series covers seven major cities as well as a number of smaller ones, and shows increases of between one-half and 36.6 per cent in population growth among the main centres.

While Toronto's city population increased only one-half per cent from 1941—to 670,945 from 667,457—the queen city's metropolitan area expanded by almost 22 per cent to 1,108,532 from 909,928.

Population of Hamilton increased 24.8 per cent to 207,544 from 166,337, while the metropolitan area climbed 30.8 per cent to 258,572 from 197,732.

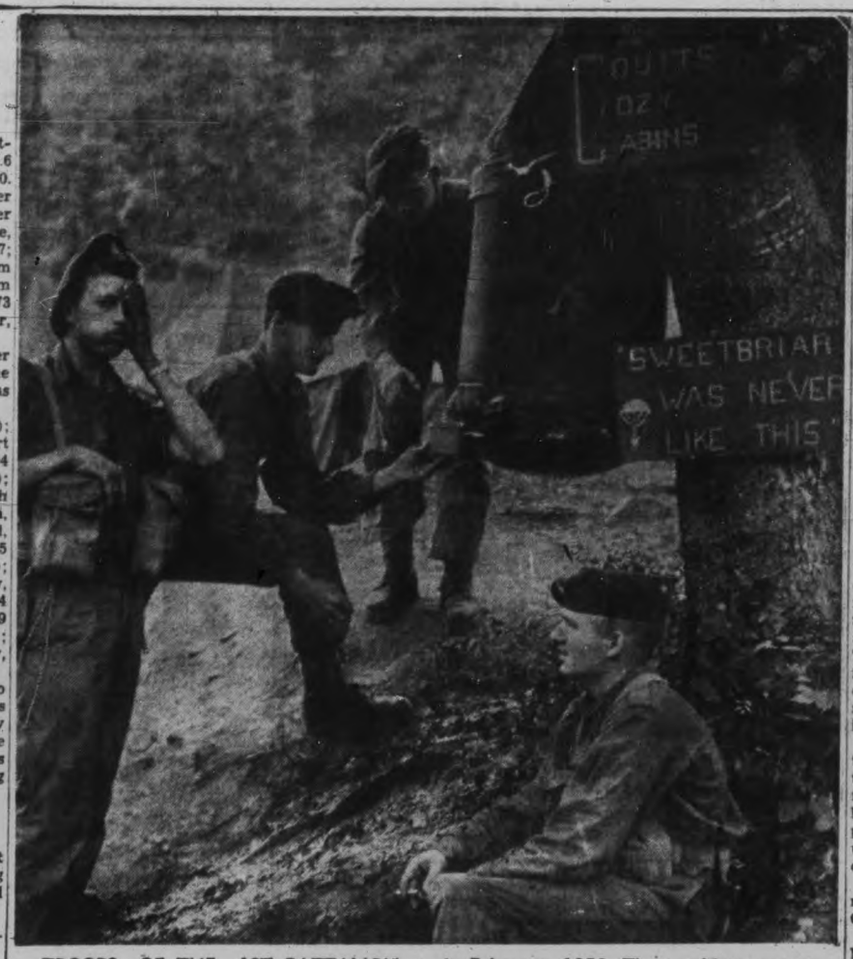
London, Ont., showed similar expansion. The city expanded 21.4 per cent to 94,984 from 78,264 and the metropolitan area jumped almost 33 per cent to 120,991, from 91,024.

Windsor population increased 13.5 per cent to 119,550 from 105,311 in 1941 and the metropolitan area 26.5 per cent to 156,868 from 123,973.

In the Maritimes, Halifax increased 19.8 per cent in the city to 84,433 from 70,488 and almost 36 per cent in the metropolitan area to 132,074 from 97,183.

On the Pacific Coast, Victoria's size increased 15.2 per cent to 50,774 from 44,068, while the metropolitan area expanded by 36.6 per cent to 103,199 from 75,560.

Kitchener, largest of the other Ontario centres of 20,000 and over reported in the current release, climbed to 44,797 from 39,657; Sudbury advanced to 41,837 from 32,203; Oshawa, 41,359 from 26,813; Sault Ste. Marie, 32,273 from 25, 794; and Port Arthur, 30,741 from 24,426.



Preliminary totals for other centres of 5,000 and over in the current release with 1941 census totals in brackets include:

Ontario—Cobourg, 7,439 (5,973); Collingwood, 7,403 (6,270); Fort Erie, 7,555 (6,595); Ingersoll, 6,504 (5,782); Lindsay, 9,587 (8,403); Long Branch, 8,711 (5,172); North Bay, 17,899 (15,599); Orillia, 12,013 (9,798); Owen Sound, 16,204 (14,002); Perth, 5,015 (4,458); Port Hope, 6,542 (5,055); Preston, 7,608 (6,704); Renfrew, 7,343 (5,511); Riverside, 9,114 (4,878); Smiths Falls, 8,379 (7,159); Tillsonburg, 5,322 (4,002); Trenton, 10,048 (8,323); Whitby, 7,230 (5,904).

The figures are subject to changes, due to such circumstances as the householder being away from his home and the home closed at the time the census was taken. A further survey is being made of these citizens.

Senators Study Resale Price Maintenance

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—The Senate's opposition leader said Thursday that the government's promised action to eliminate the business practice of resale price maintenance in Canada is "unadulterated humbug."

Senator John T. Haig, 74-year-old leader of the nine-man Progressive Conservative Party in the Upper Chamber, said the move can mean only one thing—a "pretence to the people of Canada that we are doing something about the cost of living." Actually it will make little or no difference in the cost of living.

Senator A. K. Hugessen, acting government leader, closing a two-hour debate on establishment of a joint Senate-Commons committee to study resale price maintenance, said the "humbug" charge against the government is unfair. The government is acting in good faith on recommendations brought down by the MacQuarrie Commission studying combines laws in Canada.

Seven Senators spoke, most of them against any elimination of the practice by which a manufacturer sets the level at which his goods must be sold to the public. Then the Senators voted unanimously to set up the joint committee to study the question.

The Senate will appoint 12 members to the committee; the Commons 26.

Senator Haig supported establishment of the committee, though he does not think it will accomplish anything. He said elimination of the price maintenance can mean that many big firms will start their own retail outlets, thus shutting out "the little fellow."

Senator G. P. Campbell (L, Ontario) said he does not see the need of anti-price maintenance legislation. There already is protection against combinations by manufacturers through the Combines Act and price maintenance has nothing to do with competition.

Tenigue New Highway Disease

Urges Coffee Stops Aid Tired Drivers

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—A new national disease called tenigue was reported Thursday. It's something almost any motorist may catch once he gets on the highway.

Tenigue is a made-up word — from tension and fatigue.

And L. S. Harris, executive secretary for the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administration, thinks it may be the reason why, any day now, the United States will have its 1,000,000th traffic fatality.

Harris explained his views in a news release and an interview.

"World affairs, economic strains and the general tempo of modern living tend to keep nerves at an angry tension," Harris said.

In the past, he believes, there has been a tendency to say that accidents are caused by a driver who is negligent and indifferent to the rights of others.

Actually, Harris says, it may be that the poor fellow is exhausted. "Fatigue has been largely overlooked in our search for an answer to our tragic toll of deaths and injuries in highway travel."

The combination of tension and fatigue shows up in unsteadiness, a lack of hand and eye co-ordination, slowness in mental observation and in slow reactions.

Harris says that improving the highway itself hasn't solved the problem. Modern expressways have produced a speed—and a monotony—beyond human endurance, he says.

What's the answer?

"Coffee stops," Harris claims. "Coffee stops give a fellow a chance to get out and stretch a little. Of course, I'm a coffee man, I like to stop about every 100 to 150 miles."

And what about the motorist who doesn't like coffee? How does he lick tenigue?

"Get out anyway," he said. "The stop will do him good."

Says Atomic Engine Developed By US

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 9 — (AP)—An atomic-propelled engine that will fly an airplane three times around the world without stopping is being developed by the United States, says Representative Carl Hinshaw (Rep. Calif.).

Hinshaw, a member of the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee, also told the Pasadena Exchange Club Wednesday:

"We are building a craft which will intercept enemy missiles and explode them before they can hit a target."

Free Ojibway In Murder Case

GORE BAY, Nov. 9 (CP) — A jury that deliberated nearly nine hours Thursday acquitted Frank Debassige, 39, of murder in the shooting last June 20 of Levi Bob.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer told the jurors:

"No one who has observed your conduct in this case can feel otherwise. I am sure that you have given it your careful consideration."

Debassige, a short, sunken-featured Ojibway from Little Current, smiled when jury foreman Austin Hunt pronounced the word "not guilty."

Bob, 59, was found fatally wounded in a ditch. Witnesses told conflicting stories of how he suffered the wound. Cpl. Lewis Needham of the provincial police testified that Debassige told him Bob accused Debassige's mother of putting a "bearwalk" spell on him.

Bus Driver Freed In Death Of Six

BARRIE, Nov. 9 (CP)—A Supreme Court jury Thursday acquitted Patrick F. J. Patterson, 36, of Toronto of charges of manslaughter arising out of an accident Judy 7, 1950, on Highway 11, south of here.

Patterson was the driver of a Grey Coach bus that collided with an automobile in which six persons were killed.

The jury also brought in an observation that provincial police were "very lax in their duty" in not charging the Toronto driver of a truck which the defence alleged passed the death car and sideswiped the bus, throwing it against the car.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Canadian Actress Takes Lead Role In British Farce

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON— (CP). — Canadian-born Allyn McClerie, playing a dumb brunette out of the "Born Yesterday" school, has met and passed one of the toughest tests of this London stage season.

At short notice, Miss McClerie stepped into a lead role vacated by Yolande Donlan, and did it so well British audiences didn't seem to notice that one of their favorite stars was missing.

The play is "To Dorothy, a Son," a farcical comedy neatly pointing up some contrasts between the American and the British way of life. Miss Donlan created the lead role of Myrtle, a dumb blonde. To playgoers it seemed that only she or Judy Holiday, who started the vogue for dim-witted heroines in "Born Yesterday," could do the part justice.

Difficult Job

In fact, British drama critics figured the producers were taking a big chance in substituting Miss McLerie when Yolande decided to leave the play to make a picture in Spain.

"To Dorothy, a Son" calls for a long, gruelling performance. But 24-year-old Allyn, playing what is her first "straight" part, was a success from the first jittery moment she stepped on the stage of the Garrick Theatre.

Allyn isn't so sure that she likes British critics implying that her choice for the role was a gamble. Although she hasn't played exactly that type of part, she considers herself an established player.

New York Roles

On Broadway she danced in "One Touch of Venus," starring Mary Martin; took over the lead of "On the Town," and originated the part of Amy in "Where's Charley," an American version of the British stage annual, "Charley's Aunt."

Originally Allyn came to Britain to make the film production of "Where's Charley," under option to Warner Brothers, but in her last week at the studio decided to accept the part of Myrtle. Now they are comparing her zip and verve favorably with the somewhat softer approach that was brought to the role by Miss Donlan.

"To Dorothy, a Son" involves three main characters, one of whom—a woman expecting a child—is merely a voice and a waving arm throughout. This leaves the entire stage to Allyn and Richard Attenborough, who plays her ex-husband.

Slim, five-foot-five Allyn was born in Grand-Mere, Que., but left at an early age and was brought up in New York. She still has relatives in Winnipeg, Toronto and Windsor, and each time she hits Detroit, she slips across to Windsor for a family visit.

She made her stage debut eight years ago in Hamilton and London as a ballet dancer with the San Carlo Opera Company.

IN LONDON LEAD — Canadian-born Allyn McLerie stepped into the lead role in the comedy "To Dorothy, A Son," a London hit, when the star Yolande Dolan vacated it, and received a rousing reception from audiences and critics. Born in Grand-Mere, Que., and raised in New York, she made her stage debut in Hamilton and London, Ont., and has played leads in several New York musical comedies.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Turn HubbyLooseInKitchen May Dream Up Surprises

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ever try letting hubby loose in the kitchen? There's no telling the surprises he may dream up—dishes you didn't think he even knew existed.

Men have gained the reputation for being able to make coffee and cook steaks—"just let it kiss the frying-pan that's all."

But who ever thought they could bake a cake or whip up a fancy dessert? And a friend of mine claims her father is a whizz at making porridge.

Here's proof that the head of the family can turn out as cute an array of bridge-club delights as mother would wish to set before her friends.

It's a bread-and-mushroom-soup special.

Slice a fresh loaf of bread lengthwise. Spread canned cream mushroom soup heavily on the lengthwise slices. Roll it up "like a jelly-roll" and fasten down with toothpicks. Toast to a golden brown in the oven (about 300 to 350 degrees).

The New Look

This male has picked up at least one of the cooking whimsies of the French. He likes to use a wooden spoon.

Break eggs into a bowl. Add salt, pepper and stir lightly with a wooden spoon.

Melt pat of butter in frying-pan. Pour in eggs and stir with wooden spoon — "it must be wooden," says our male friend—until almost cooked. Remove pan from heat, add a pat of butter and let it melt in. Serve.

Just in case you think men regard salads as panty-waist food, here's a favorite of one masculine connoisseur who tips the scales at the 200-pound mark.

One pound head cabbage; one medium-sized carrot; one medium-sized onion; four stalks celery (large); one large apple.

Put the vegetables through a shredder or use an ordinary grater.

Dressing: Juice of one lemon; add to this two tablespoons of sugar, one-third cup of boiled salad dressing. Salt to taste. Toss all this together. Garnish with slices of tomato and hard-boiled eggs.

However, left to his own devices—when the wife is downtown shopping—hubby most frequently will seek food from a can. One chap goes after any tinned salmon that may be around the house. This he puts in a casserole and spreads leftover potatoes on the top. First, however, he beats up "an egg or two"—men are so casual-about the high cost of living—and mixes this with the potatoes. The dish is seasoned with salt and pepper and popped into a moderate oven for 20 minutes or so.

"Excellent" says our friend, "with milk."

The biggest ALARM of all...

WHEN FIRE STRIKES, you may hear one alarm... maybe a second alarm... perhaps even a third. But the biggest alarm of all is the alarm in your heart.

"Was anybody caught inside... anybody I know... hurt?... burned?... overcome? How'd it start? How much loss? What's the whole story?"

Even if you have a police pass or a good view from a roof, you still burn up with unsatisfied suspense and curiosity...

Until you see your newspaper.

You grab your paper and all the answers are there. First, in complete detail, full of local color—as it never could be anywhere else.

You knew it would all be there. Together with all the other news to be found anywhere that matters to you. Plus a hundred things you don't find anywhere else.

It doesn't take a fire. You can be just as wrought up tomorrow about a plan in the town council to widen your street. You never know what's coming... so you read your newspaper every day.

Everybody else is just like you. Everybody reads the newspaper every day. If one thing doesn't stir them—it's another. To a thrifty housewife, the fire sale can be just as important as the fire.

That's why when you have something to sell, the newspaper is the one place to reach all the people all the time.

* * *

In advertising, why deal in fractions?...

The newspaper talks to everybody in town. It's created fresh every day to appeal to everybody. Just as you read the paper now, all your customers and prospects read the paper too—at the times they choose, for as long as they choose!

Only the newspaper is first with the most news... first with the most people... first with the most advertisers!

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Curds for Cottage Cheese Affected By Temperature

QUESTION: I have enjoyed your column very much, and would like to ask a few questions.

First would you please explain what is yogurt, and how does it differ from cottage cheese?

Second—how do you make cottage cheese so as to have large soft creamy curds. I have made it numerous times, but the tendency is always fine dry curds. My husband and I consume pounds of it, but do much prefer the creamy variety . . . Hopy Y.

ANSWER: Your little town holds some very pleasant memories for me. My mother was born in an adjoining village.

The difference between fine hard curds and large soft ones in making cottage cheese is all a matter of temperature—so the expert cottage-cheese makers tell me. An old lady of 84 who still brings cottage cheese to our market gave me careful instructions.

SOFT COTTAGE CHEESE

When milk is newly soured and thick pour into shallow enamel pan and stand in warm place . . it will become lukewarm—never over 100 deg. Fahr. When the whey separates from the curd at this temperature, have ready a double thick cheesecloth bag wrung out of warm water. Pour the prepared curd into it and let it drain overnight in warm room. Add salt and white pepper and cream and melted butter to make of desired consistency. Cover tightly and keep cold.

If you would like me to repeat method for making Dutch cream cheese, which is a variation of soft cottage cheese, let me know.

Yogurt is milk, the protein of which has been treated to make it more digestible, by the use of three bacteria; thermophilus, bulgaricum, and yoghourti. These are milk-fermenting bacteria, scientifically and precisely controlled. The culture may be purchased and the yogurt made at home, but it is tricky business and it is much more practical to buy it from your dairy. I like it best with apricots in some form.

QUESTION: Perhaps you will think my request a little early, but you know I was wondering if you would print in your column a very spicy Christmas pudding. One that I could cook in my new steam cooker. I guess you would call it a pressure canner but I use mine for most everything I cook. Would I be able to cook my Christmas cake in the canner too? I enjoy your daily column very much and have filled my files to overflowing with your wonderful recipes. Mrs. W. C. T.

ANSWER: You could use the steamer to steam the puddings and cakes but you should never use any pressure for batter mixes. The cakes would have to be transferred to the oven to finish baking at 275 degs. Fahr. for about 30 to 40 minutes, depending on the kind of cake.

Spicy Christmas Pudding (steamed

Two and two-thirds cups fine dry breadrumbs, 1¼ cups flour, 4 cups seedless raisins, 6 ounces chopped dried figs, 2 cups finely chopped suet, 1¼ cups sugar, 1 cup molasses, 1 (or two) teaspoons each nutmeg and allspice, 4 eggs, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup very finely chopped raw apples, 2 or 4 ounces finely chopped orange or lemon peel, candied. Combine ingredients in order given. Mix very well. Pour into 4 greased moulds of pint capacity of 2 quart capacity. Cover tightly. Steam for 5 hours over boiling water, or if you feel you want to use pressure very much you can steam at 15 lbs. pressure for 1 hour. Lids must fit snugly.

This is a delicious pudding, and I hope you like it so well it helps bulge your file.

Downeyville

During the month of October the CWL of St. Luke's, Downeyville held various activities. Mrs. D. M. O'Leary and Mrs. Joseph Morrissey who attended the annual meeting in Peterborough gave their reports and told of the pleasant and profitable time they spent in the city while attending the convention. At the October meeting it was decided by the ladies to make a presentation of electric appliances to one of the members, Mrs. T. J. Collins who recently moved to Peterborough from Downeyville. Mrs. Joseph Morrissey made the presentation. Mrs. Collins thanked the ladies for remembering her.

On Friday evening a Hallowe'en party was held in the parish hall, attended by 200 people, with 150 dressed in Hallowe'en costumes. The prizes were won by the Misses Shirley Lucas, Patricia Downey, Norma Lucas, Frances O'Neill and Mr. Carmen Lucas.

The King's Wharf Farm Forum held the opening meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Leary with an attendance of 30. Mr. Paul Murther was appointed secretary-treasurer and Mr. Earl Herlihey chairman. The discussion was a lively one and a social hour was spent afterward. Lunch was served by Mrs. O'Leary and her assistants. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Leary.

Pupil's Progress To Be Rated By His Ability In New System

TORONTO (CP)—A revolution is due here this month. No more will school report cards itemize students' standings in subjects.

Starting Nov. 15, report cards will gauge pupils' class progress by the use of three letters—O for outstanding, S for satisfactory, and U for unsatisfactory. They will be used in all Toronto public schools up to grade 8.

At the same time it will show by the same letters how a student is developing his personality, attitudes and sense of responsibility. And, like the old style, report cards will retain the space for parents' comments.

The letters mean exactly what they say. One pupil who gets 65 per cent may be marked U because he can do much better.

Another pupil who gets 65 may be graded O because he's working above his ability level.

Do Better Job

Toronto educators believe the new system will do a better job of reporting progress for both students and parents. Each card will have attached a note of explanation: "On this card . . . your child is not compared with other children. This report shows his progress in relation to his own ability."

One Board of Education official gave his reasons why cards without marks are an improvement:

1. Marks by themselves don't give an accurate picture of a pupil's progress, either to him or his parents.

2. Marks lead to constant comparisons apt to discourage pupils below class average and give a sense of complacency to those above class average.

3. The new system treats each pupil as an individual, instead of comparing him with everyone else.

Teachers will continue to mark examinations and tests and will note the results in their class files.

The new report cards were developed by a committee of principals and teachers and received the sanction of the city's top educators.

They regard the O-S-U type of marking as one of the biggest steps in an educational movement that has been going on in Toronto for several years.

What's Right?

You run into an acquaintance downtown and stop to have a cup of coffeee together, and the other person reaches for the check.

WRONG: Make a point of insisting that you pay for your own check.

RIGHT: Accept the other's gesture without protest—but be sure to say "Thank you."

Bethany News

Those from Bethany who attended the Central Ontario Women's Institute convention held in Toronto this week were Mrs. H. L. Challice, Mrs. M. Finney, Mrs. T. Jennings, Mrs. C. Rowan, Mrs. V. Strong, Mrs. R. Carr, Mrs. H. Sanderson, Mrs. L. Driver and Miss Eleanor Rowan.

Tuesday night's storm played havoc with roads and telephone wires here. Workers who commute to Lindsay daily were unable to get there. School busses which serve the village to Lindsay and Peterborough both failed in their attempted trips and the pupils had an unexpected holiday.

Miss Catherine Jarvis, RN, Toronto, is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jarvis.

HALIFAX WELCOME FOR PRINCESS AND DUKE—Premier Angus Macdonald of Nova Scotia chats with Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh at Halifax's historic Province House, birthplace of responsible government in the Commonwealth. The Premier assured the Princess of the Province's "humble love and homage."

Chafron-Wright

At St. Alphonsus Roman Catholic Church the Rev. R. Macdonald united in marriage Edlean Hazel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wright, 231 Princess St., and Maurice C. J. Charron, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Charron, also of Peterborough.

The bride was gowned in white slipper satin with bodice of Chantilly lace, the skirt extending in a cathedral train. Her elbow-length veil fell from a pearl-encrusted tiarra and she carried a white satin muff with red roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. Charles Wright, sister-in-law of the birde, and Mrs. Ralph Wright, sister of the groom, were attendants. Their frocks of satin with net overskirt were in pale blue and gold and they wore matching headdresses and carried bouquets of 'mums and roses in matching shades.

The bride's brother, Ralph Wright was groomsman and Keith Gordon ushered.

A reception in the church hall followed, the bride's mother receiving in a wine crepe dress with wine and black hat and corsage of white 'mums. The groom's mother wore blue crepe with a blue and white hat and corsage of 'mums.

After a trip the couple will live at 231 Princess St. For going-away the bride chose navy with white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums and red roses.

Western Style Tea Rooms Novelty At St. Andrews' WA

Every year a new idea is featured by decorators at St. Andrew's for the mammoth bazaar and tea of the Women's Association, which again drew a tremendous crowd and netted a handsome sum.

It was "western style" for 1951, attention having been drawn to that place of Canadian life by the visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Coriorfully dressed cowboys on bucking steeds, cactus plants and pine boughs were wall decorations in the Sunday school hall behind the bazaar tables that were laden with attractive Christmas table decorations, fancywork, home-baking, jam, honey, etc.

The stage was vividly represented as an outdoor ranch room with the table covered in red and white check oilcloth and decorated with a fine specimen of leghorn rooster in pottery and sevral other fowl. Hereford rugs, and saddles and rustic sheaves of corn completed the scene.

The indoor ranchhouse dining room was depicted in the ladies' parlor where tea things were set out on a floral bordered voile cloth and decorations featured figures of barnyard animals. Twin bowls in white pottery filled with white and yellow 'mums were at the table centre, highlighted with yellow tapers in four tall silver holders, and lovely figures of prairie horses were on either side. Several head of cattle made a corral scene on the opposite window and striking notes on the mantel were horse's head vases filled with flowers.

Fittingly, the decoration was in charge of the Flower Guild of which Mrs. Ken Kingston is convener and Mrs. Hugh Waddell was convener of decorations. The rugs and saddles were loaned by Mrs. Jack Stuart, Jr.

The Guild also had a booth, convened by Mrs. Mrs. Jack Richardson, at which there were beautifully shining tinsel decorations for Christmas.

Variety At Booths

At the booth convened by Mrs. J. S. Boyd and Mrs. H. Hawley were displayed the four-poster dolls' beds made by Mr. F. W. Moeser. There were also some nice girls' hats and bonnets made of felt with felt flower trim, and a wide range of novelties for the home.

"Darkie" dolls and bright red Christmas stockings with glistening decorations, all made of felt, pleased the customer's at Mrs. H. Keefer's booth. The very attractive tea spoons for sale there were well displayed in a line along the wall. Dainty dolls' clothes, felt shopping bags and leather key cases were other items noticed on the counter.

Money rolled in at the bake table and the farm produce booth for one can always use more for the larder especially when it is of the home-made variety. Apricot and pineapple conserve, fresh honey, salad dressing, home made bread, fresh eggs, were carried home along with frosted chocolate cake, tea biscuits, cookies, etc.

Those Assisting

President of the WA Mrs. C. C. Pilon was receiving at the door, assisted by the minister and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Henry Cotton. Tickets were taken by Mrs. V. Hamilton and Mrs. C. W. Green.

A new feature, and a very helpful one for the shoppers, was the check room operated by Mrs. E. R. Frost.

Pouring tea in the parlor were Mrs. D. Crawford, Mrs. C. Cadd, Mrs. H. Tudhope, and Mrs. R. Lewis, and on the stage, Mrs. C. W. Holman and Mrs. D. Ketcheson. Mrs. F. W. K. Harris and Mrs. H. Tremaine were hostesses in the tea rooms.

Refreshments were supplied by the groups under leadership of Mrs. J. Turnbull and Mrs. F. Walker, and Mrs. H. Baker was convener of the tea rooms.

Serving in the parlor were Mrs. W. L. McNeill, Mrs. J. McLeod, Mrs. W. Turner, Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. J. Heffernan, Mrs. C. B. Waite, Miss Nancy Howell and Miss Lois Holman, and on the stage, Mrs. D. Browne, Mrs. D. B. Hough and Mrs. D. Praskey.

Assistants at the flower guild booth were Mrs. Herb. Hawley, Mrs. Robert Maybee, Mrs. Grant Gillespie, Mrs. Ken Robertson and Mrs. Jack Archibald. At the home cooking table were Mrs. J. McColl, Mrs. A. Hutchinson, Mrs. F. Batten, Mrs. J. Young, Mrs. R. Cole, Mrs. R. MacNabb, Mrs. F. Dawson and Mrs. L. Bearne.

The farm products booth was convened by Miss M. Hall and helpers were Mrs. H. Stewart, Mrs. W. L. White, Miss Brown and Mrs. G. A. Gillespie. Helping Mrs. Boyd at the novelty table were Mrs. Moeser, Mrs. Wm. Swanger, Mrs. J. McKone, Mrs. H. B. Carr, Mrs. Waite, Mrs. Harold Davis, and helping Mrs. Keefer were Mrs. C. Wishart, Mrs. R. Lewis, Mrs. I. Rattenbury and Mrs. Ketcheson.

Styles For Men Being Given Once-Over In London Show

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP).—Britain's tailoring trade is out to give the man-about-town some lessons on the style, trend and quality of the clothes he should be wearing. The result: fashion parades for men only.

First of this series, using men as mannequins, was staged at a well-known department store (civil service stores) in the Strand—chosen for its proximity to the city and the west end.

Similar shows will be given in many cities of Britain in the hope of stimulating interest in points of fashion. For some time now, the clothing trade has felt that too little publicity is given new trends in men's fashions.

"Thanks to seasonal mannequin parades, women know a great deal about fabrics, prices and values," said one manufacturer. "So far men know only what individual salesmen tell them."

Four prominent manufacturers are combining to show their wares throughout the country. Factories and stores will co-operate in promoting a better knowledge of points of style and values.

Two-Year Test

"As a rule it takes two years for the general trade in manufactured clothes to accept fashions that Saville Row have already accepted," said John Taylor, editor of the trade magazine Tailor and Cutter.

On this reasoning, suits with the narrower trouser base, longer "skirted" jacket and slim shoulderline should vault into fashion's frontline.

The new slenderizing line has already been accepted to a lesser degree. Softer shoulders and fitted jackets have steadily ousted the squared, over-developed look of wartime days.

Styles on parade include factory-made jackets with single or double vents and watch pockets. Cloths include glen checks, stripes, gun club checks, dogs' tooth and the quiet monotones.

For color interest, British men take to "weskits" in hunting yellows and pinks with fancy buttons, or colored pullovers, rather than the jazzy ties favored in North America.

Coat manufacturers are showing blended, as well as all-wool, materials in even the heavy garments. They say that men show a liking for the crease-resistance of blended materials.

Says Eskimo Hospitality Really Good

MONTREAL (CP).—Mrs. James Houston, wife of Canadian artist Jim Houston, doesn't think of the Arctic as a vast, cold wasteland of ice and snow.

After eight months in the northland, Mrs. Houston is more impressed by the warm-hearted, hospitable people who live in snow huts and look mainly to hunting and fishing for their living.

"From the moment we entered an Eskimo village until the inhabitants harnessed our team and packed our sled, in preparation for the journey to another settlement, we were made to feel completely at home," Mrs. Houston said in a recent interview.

"They're such an honest, cheerful people."

Bring Back Products

With the backing of the Canadian Government, the Canadian Handicraft Guild and the co-operation of the Hudson's Bay Company, Mr. and Mrs. Houston bring back products of Eskimo culture —carvings, leatherwork, woodwork.

Throughout their stay in the Arctic, the Houstons lived, primarily on the food of the Eskimo.

"That doesn't mean blubber, either," Mrs. Houston said. "The Eskimos have all sorts of delicacies, but I was particularly fond of seal liver and muktuk, a native dish made from the flesh, just below the skin, of the whale."

In their own way, Mrs. Houston reports, Eskimo women are as fashion conscious as their southern sisters.

The amoutik, a sort of fur dress worn by all Eskimo women, differs in style in various parts of the northland.

DOROTHY DIX

Self-Centered Young Lady Said Bad Matrimonial Risk

DEAR MISS DIX: My fiancee, to whom I have recently become engaged, is almost everything a man could wish for, but she is an only child and is naturally very spoiled. She wants her own way in everything. She doesn't try to meet me halfway. I'm only interested in our future happiness, but with her attitude things are becoming quite difficult. I'm getting discouraged in my efforts to make her act differently. Do you think I should switch my affection and time to a lady who will appreciate my good intentions?

Dorothy Dix

JERRY G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: First of all, young man, don't assume that all "only children" are spoiled. This is a commonplace, but fallacious, assumption. Some of the loveliest girls I've ever known have been "only children." Intelligent parents brought them up without undue pampering and they've become the finest wives and mothers you could find.

You Must Decide

Just how spoiled your young lady has become is a matter only you can decide. If she is selfish and self-centered, demanding constant attention from those around her, unwilling to give in on any point, trivial or otherwise, she is a bad matrimonial risk.

Very often a pampered girl changes completely with the responsibilities of wife and mother. You must study the character of your fiancee very carefully and see if she gives any indication of future change. It's hard to judge sometimes. How does she behave with her family? And with yours? If she can be considerate and thoughtful with others, she probably will change. If, however, her life is built entirely around the almighty "I", you had better think about switching.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We have a problem! Every night we three girls roam the streets in search of men. We are smart, nice-looking, and feel we should be able to attract the attention of the opposite sex. What is wrong with us? We have had no luck so far and people in our town are beginning to say nasty things about us. Do you think we should sit at home and wait for the telephone to ring or should we continue as we are, unmindful of local gossip?

THE ROVER GIRLS

ANSWER: It is certainly a credit to the men of your city that you have so far failed in these nocturnal strolls. I hope they continue to stay as far away from you as possible. You say you're smart girls? Well, I have seldom heard from anyone more stupid! Where are your parents, and what are they thinking to permit your indiscriminate wandering? They should have you locked in your rooms after supper.

You are deliberately throwing away any chance you'll ever have to meet and know nice boys. The damage to your reputations is probably already done. At this point it will be hard to convince anyone of your decency, but you'd better make the attempt before it gets any later!

Believe me, girls who are really smart and nice-looking don't resort to these tactics to meet and know nice boys. In fact, even plain-looking girls can have their quota of beaux by just being smart, and that means looking in the right places for the friends they'd like to know.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a working girl of 17 and very fond of a boy 19 to whom I have never spoken. I heard recently that he is going to be a priest. Should I still make an attenmpt to meet him?

JOAN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If the object of your affections has decided upon a priestly career, there is no purpose in your exerting special efforts to become friendly with him. If you succeed in establishing an acquaintance, you will have to accept what will be, for you, a sad parting when he departs for the seminary. Better leave well enough alone and make other friends.

Riches Bad For Work ProducerSays

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9 (AP)—The evils of too much money for film producers were exposed today by Gabriel Pascal, noted maker of George Bernard Shaw movies.

Pascal, who made a career of filming Shaw plays, admitted that he is a victim of wealth. He claimed that it shouldn't happen to film producers.

"The producer must be a creator," he declared. "He must work hard and suffer in order to produce a work of art. When he has too much money, he has too many assistants and workers to do things for him. He loses the close contact with his production and the result is bad."

Personal Experience

Pascal cited his own example. He rose from obscurity to produce "Pygmalion," the first of Shaw's works to be filmed. The picture was a great success and he went on to make "Major Barbara," also hailed by the critics. But then came "Caesar and Cleopatra."

"It was a bad mistake," he sighed. "I was the victim of too much money. As a result, I got too far from the picture and too far from the public. It became a picture that lacked a basic appeal to the general moviegoer."

Pascal now is engaged in making "Androcles And The Lion," which he says is not as expensive as it seems. It has a big cast and expensive sets, but he added that it is being shot in 56 days, a short schedule for such an epic.

The producer has the rights to 10 more Shaw plays and has plans to shoot them in the next five years. He plans to start right in with "Devil's Disciple" and follow with "Candida," perhaps with Olivia DeHavilland.

Also on the slate is "The Doctors' Dilemma."

6—In Memoriam

NICHOLSON—In loving memory of my dear wife, Mrs. Harry J. Nicholson, who passed away Nov. 9, 1950.
What would I give her hand to clasp;
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.
—Ever remembered by husband.

NICHOLSON—In loving memory of a dear sister, Mrs. Harry Nicholson, who passed away Nov. 9th, 1950.
God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered: "Peace be thine."
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Lovingly remembered by her sister Sadie and family.

NICHOLSON—In ever loving memory of my dear aunt, Mrs. Harry J. Nicholson, who passed away Nov. 9, 1950.
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
What beautiful memories she left behind;
While you, dear aunt, rest and sleep,
Your memory I shall always keep.
—Sadly missed by Vernabel.

TROTTER — In loving memory of Teddy Wallace Trotter, who died four years ago, November 9, 1947.
He was a flower too sweet for earth
Sent here but for awhile,
God marked him when He gave him birth,
And took him with a smile.
—Sadly missed by mother and daddy, brothers Terry and Donnie.

Labor Party Retains Its Lead In UK Election Popular Vote

LONDON, Nov. 9—(AP)—The total vote in Britain's 1951 national election reached 28,609,268, final figures showed today.

This was slightly short of the February, 1950, total of 28,770,176. However, there were contests last year in all 625 House of Commons districts. This time the Conservative Party won four acclamations in districts of Northern Ireland.

Including figures for the delayed election yesterday in the Barnsley district, the Labor Party received 13,949,105 votes, or 48.76 per cent of the total.

Final standings in the 625-seat House of Commons after yesterday's Labor victory in Barnsley are: Conservatives and Allies (including the Speaker who does not ordinarily vote) 321; Labor 295; Liberal 6; Irish Nationalist 2; Independent Irish Labor) 1.

The Conservatives and their allies received 13,730,742 votes, or 48 per cent of the total.

The rest of the vote was divided among the Liberal Party, 730,552 or 2.55 per cent; Communist, 21,640 or .07 of one per cent, and others, 177,329 or .62 per cent.

Final figures for this year compared with those for the 1950 election:

	1951	Pct.	1950	Pct.
Total vote	28,609,268		28,770,176
Labor	13,949,105	48.76	13,265,726	46.17
Conservatives and Allies	13,730,642	48	12,475,750	43.5
Liberal	739,552	2.55	2,637,089	9.15
Communist	21,640	.07	91,746	.30
Others	177,329	.62	299,865	1.03

4 Wounded Soldiers Return By Airplane

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Four wounded Canadian soldiers flown home from Korea landed at nearby Malton airport today.

The four—one in a body cast, two stretcher victims, and one walking case—are Lieut. G. R. Tomalin, Camp Borden; Pte. G. H. Haycock, St. Thomas; Pte. W. J. Smith, Ottawa; and Pte. G. W. Mullen, Sudbury.

The four Ontario men arrived 10 days after they left the base hospital at Seoul, South Korea. After it landed the Ontario men, the plane took off for Montreal with five wounded for that city.

Yesterday, before the plane left Winnipeg on the hop to Malton, it left behind Pte. N. B. Poulton, Toronto, a typhus victim who said he had had "enough of flying."

Pte. Poulton stayed at Deer Lodge Military Hospital, Winnipeg.

Nelson's Gold Ring Stolen From Museum

GREENWICH, England, Nov. 9 —(Reuters)— A gold ring souvenir of Lord Nelson, was stolen today from the National Maritime Museum here. It was the third relic of the British admiral to disappear within six months.

The cheap nine-carat ring was worn by one of the mourners at his funeral 146 years ago.

Another souvenir, a diamond-encrusted plume of triumph presented to Nelson by the Sultan of Turkey after the Battle of the Nile, was also taken from a show case in June.

A third relic, an emeral-and-diamond ring given by Nelson to his friend Lady Hamilton, was stolen from Viscountess Erleigh last August.

None has been recovered.

Engineers Urged Work With Industry

WINDSOR, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Professional engineers across Canada were urged Thursday night to work in close co-operation with industrial management.

The appeal came by J. Herbert Smith, vice-president of the association of Professional Engineers of Ontario, who addressed a joint meeting of the association and of the Electrical Institute of Canada.

He said that never before has human leadership been as important in industry as it is now. Industry was looking to the professional engineer for that kind of leadership.

Archbishop Roy Next Cardinal?

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Nov. 9 (CP)—People close to Quebec ecclesiastical circles believe Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec will be one of the new Cardinals appointed at a Vatican consistory announced for Dec. 10.

North America's oldest See in this predominantly Roman Catholic capital of French Canada has been headed by a Cardinal almost regularly for more than 50 years.

Quebecers feel it is a virtual certainty that a Cardinal will be appointed here.

Msgr. Roy, whose appointment in July, 1947, at the age of 42, made him the youngest archbishop in Quebec's history, may become Quebec's youngest cardinal as well, it is felt.

The tall, dark-haired prelate who will be 47 next Jan. 25, would be Quebec's fifth cardinal.

Since the death of Rodrigue Cardinal Villenuve of Quebec in 1947, James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto has been the only Roman Church prelate holding that rank in Canada.

Lower Assessments Because Of Record

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP) — E. E. Sparrow, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, Thursday night, predicted lower assessments for some members of the transport industry because of an excellent no-accident record.

He told a meeting of the Accident Prevention Association that employees "can't do the job (of accident prevention) alone, but need the voluntary and full support of organized labor."

Britain To Ask US For More Dollar Aid

PARIS, Nov. 9—(AP)—Britain likely will ask for new United States dollar aid to help pay her $13,000,000,000 share in rearming for western defence, an authoritative source disclosed today.

Sir Edwin Plowden, British representative on a special North Atlantic Treaty organization committee meeting here, is expected to make a formal request for the aid next week, a highly-placed British informant said.

Out Of Hospital Man Is Arrested

PORT HOPE, Nov. 9—Robert H. Underwood of Port Hope and Peterborough will be appearing in Cobourg police court today on a charge of obtaining money on false pretenses.

Underwood is alleged to have borrowed $400 from Arthur Ash of Grafton in Port Hope recently. Ash is said to have loaned the money to Underwood on condition he would repay it by October 31.

Underwood was arrested in Peterborough by OPP Constable Ralph Trimmel as he was being released from St. Joseph's hospital.

Welsh Bush Fires Called 'Disastrous'

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 9—(Reuters)—Bush fires sweeping through parts of Northwest New South Wales today were described as "absolutely disastrous." A fire-control officer said:

"There is nothing we can do to stop them. They're the worst we've ever known."

In the neighboring state of Queensland one man was trapped and burned to death in a bush fire in the Longreach area.

Crown Colony Of Cyprus Fighting Costly Soil Loss

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—The island of Cyprus, third largest in the Mediterranean, is preparing to wage war on its worst enemy, soil erosion.

Natives of the big British Crown colony have been paying a heavy price for the 400,000 tons of soil which nature steals from their island every year. The price is less food for an increasing populace.

A bill introduced recently seeks authority to launch an anti-erosion campaign on a larger scale than ever attempted.

To the island's perspiring inhabitants the Gazette notice of the bill came as a shock. It told them that Cyprus, whose main problem is shortage of water, was suffering equally from too much water.

Unless one actually watches the erosion taking place when rain pelts down on agricultural land, it is difficult to believe that with an average annual rainfall of only 12 to 30 inches so much erosion can be possible.

Extensive surveys by weather department engineers have revealed the alarming rate of erosion in the main forest and agricultural lands and vineyard areas of Cyprus.

Future Famine Threat

The grim fact which experts now face is that, while the population of Cyprus has increased by about 170,000 persons in the last quarter of a century, the island is today producing hardly any more food crops than 25 years ago. This is true despite recent advances in mechanized cultivation and harvesting, installation of more irrigation works, and a substantial increase in the amounts of fertilizer used for cereals.

By the turn of the present century, the population of Cyprus, now 490,000, will reach an estimated 1,000,000. If soil erosion is allowed to continue at its present rate, Cyprus in 50 years' time will face possible famine or economic disaster.

At the outset, the war on erosion faces three main difficulties. The island's experts are ill-armed with cash, equipment, and vital statistics. The director of agriculture has tstated that Cyprus at present has only 24 tractors used in anti-erosion measures.

A full-scale campaign may easily cost $2,500,000 or more, but farmers in Cyprus have never been rich and in the present economic crisis it is doubtful whether their contribution towards costs could be anything but nominal.

As an alternative, agriculture experts in Cyprus think an appeal might be made to, for example, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations for technical assistance in the anti-erosion campaign.

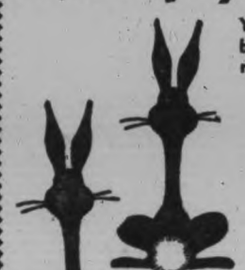
Pacific Islanders Form erly Dying Out Now So Numerous, O vercrowding Homes

LONDON, Nov. 9 (Reuters).—South Pacific islanders, on their way to becoming extinct 100 years ago, now are so numerous they are overcrowding their homes.

A colonial office guide to the British South Pacific islands, published today, said almost all the native peoples are increasing in numbers and have reached a total of nearly 500,0000.



The islands, ranging from massive volcanic mountains to tiny coral atolls barely breaking the surface of the ocean, are peopled with three main groups, the report said.

These are the Micronesians of the "small islands," the Polynesians of the "many islands" and the Melanesians of the "black islands."

In the Melanesian group, the islanders use pidgin English to overcome the medley of dialects spoken there. The guide gave these examples of pidgin: grass belong face—whiskers; tick-ticky-water—oil; lamp belong Jesus—the sun; haus moni gammon, banknotes; basket belong trousers—pockets; and paper talk—a letter.

Newspaper Calls Ruling Callous

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Church of England newspaper today termed "inhuman, callous and cruel" a recent pronouncement by the pope that a baby should not be sacrificed to save the life of a mother in a difficult childbirth.

The newspaper, a weekly journal of opinion, is privately owned, but reflects views of the church.

"Never was the need more urgent than now for insistence upon the sanctity of marriage and respect for the sexual function," the newspaper said in a front-page editorial. "The pity of it is that the pope has so far overstepped the limits of common sense that his statements are irrevelevant. He has brought discredit upon the Christian faith instead of honor."

In a talk to Italian obstetricians at Rome Oct. 29, the pope said that in childbirth "to save the mother's life is a very noble aim: but the direct killing of the baby as a means to that end is not permitted."

Woman Fined $200 In Currency Case

GUELPH, Nov. 9—(CP)—Mrs. Jean Brickman, of Guelph, convicted of attempting to export Canadian currency without a permit, today was fined $200 and costs or three months in jail.

The charge arose, court was told, in Sarnia Aug. 7 when $249 in bills wast found in a special pocket of Mrs. Brickman's purse.

Mrs. Brickman said she had forgotten she had the money when she declared the amount of money she was taking on a visit to Port Huron, Mich.

BETHANY, Nov. 9 (ENS). — Harry B. Preston was appointed to fill the vacancy on the board of commissioners of the Manvers municipal telephone system at the township council meeting Nov. 6.

Feels Its Insult

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 8 — (Reuters)— Industrialist F. C. Hooper said today it is "false", misleading and impertinent" to tell British industry that the way to get back on its feet is to copy American methods. Hooper, chairman of Schweppes Mineral Water Manufacturers, described the stream of British productivitiy teams which had studied American methods as "an egg-sucking course for grandmothers."

GRAND MASTER of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, IOOF, Dr. J. H. McKinney, Brooklin, will speak to the Peterborough IOOF members Tuesday at a dinner-meeting in George St. United Church. Countries To Widen Definition Of Fraud

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—Canada has agreed with the United States to broaden definitions of fraud and false pretences under a Canada-US extradition treaty, it was learned today.

The agreement, aimed at so-called "stock-pushers" who attempt to defraud speculators, will be incorporated in a treaty amendment to be placed before parliament at the next session. The U.S. will seek approval through the U.S. Senate early next year.

Informants said a "narrow" definition of fraud and false pretences in the extradition treaty had resulted in numerous complaints by the United States that it could not lay charges against persons in Canada who might misrepresent stocks because it could not extradite the men.

$2,000 Fines Follow Raid

BRANTIFORD, Nov. 9 — (CP) —Fines totaling nearly $2,000 were imposed Thursday on nine persons charged after a Sept. 1 anti-gambling raid that netted four pinball machines, one slot machine, three radios and $564 in cash.

For paying off on pinball machines, Leonard Smith, Thomas Lalor, Walter Vinall, George Koster and Patrick Marco were fined $100 each. On charges of keeping a common betting house, Lalor, Marco, William Haines, Cecil Marsh and Wilfrid Morrice were fined $200. Marsh paid another $200 on a gaming house charge. Joseph Cioch was fined $200 for bookmaking.

Report Oil Discount Delays Agreement

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 —(AP) The dispute over what discount might be offered British buyers of Iranian oil was reported today as one of the main stumbling blocks of possible settlement of the Anglo-Iranian oil controversy.

Reliable informants said Iran has offered to sell Britain up to 70 per cent of its oil production at a price about 15 per cent below the world market level.

Britain was reported holding out for a discount of about 40 to 50 per cent before it consents to recognize Iran's decision to nationalize the billion-dollar Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran, who has been conferring here with American mediators, is reported anxious to reach an understanding with Britain before he returns to Tehran.

Mossadegh has been criticized by some pro-government newspapers at home, and apparently fears political and economic repercussions if he returns without definite plans to unblock the flow of Iranian oil.

NATO Plans To Meet In Rome Next

Pearson Announces Decision To Halt Speculation

PARIS, Nov. 10. (Reuters)—Canada's Minister for External Affairs, L. B. Pearson, said today the next meeting of the North Atlantic Council would be held in Rome Nov. 24.

Pearson made the announcement as chairman of the North Atlantic council "to set at rest speculation on the subject."

Speculation arose Friday when usually-reliable diplomatic quarters said the council meeting would be held in Paris, provided the Italian government agreed.

It was believed Paris had been proposed as an alternative meeting-place so the Atlantic council meeting could follow without delay on the talks the big-three foreign ministers will have with the West German chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, Nov. 21 and 22.

Sharp Defeat

Russia suffered a sharp defeat today in its campaign to seat Red China in the United Nations. The 14-nation steering committee refused, 11 to 2, to put the question on the agenda of the General Assembly. One nation abstained.

Observers do not expect the Soviet Union to give up, however without a final fight on the floor of the assembly itself to have the question reinstated on the agenda as an amendment to the steering committee's report.

The committee was voting on a resolution, submitted by Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand, calling for rejection of Russia's demand that the assembly consider the question of Chinese representation.

US delegate Warren R. Austin said the Soviet move "is a proposal which has been considered and rejected nearly 90 times."

The fifth assembly beat down a Soviet proposal to have the undecided question transferred to the sixth session.

The steering committee also will decide whether to admit Yugoslavia's complaint that Russia and her European satellites have been exerting pressure on her.

Storms Batter Italy

MILAN, Italy, Nov. 10.—(Reuters)—Fresh storms today swept over northern Italy, where at least 24 persons have been killed and thousands of dollars of damage caused by floods and winds in the last three days. At the same time, emergency relief supplies were being flown from Rome to Southern Italy, Sicily and Sardinia — devastated 10 days ago, with 110 persons killed. In practically the whole of northern Italy men were desperately trying to dike dangerously swollen rivers.

Noted Composer Romberg Dies Suddenly

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) — Composer Sigmund Romberg, 64, whose operettas and songs are loved by millions, died Friday night of a cerebral haemorrhage in his Ritz Tower hotel suit.

Romberg wrote such musical play favorites as "The Student Prince," "Desert Song," "Maytime," "Blossomtime" and "New Moon." In 40 years he turned out 78 operettas and more than 2,000 songs.

Apparently in good health, Romberg arrived in New York Nov. 3 from his home in Beverly Hills, Calif.

His body was found on the bathroom floor by his wife, Lillian Harris Romberg, whom he married in 1925. Before he collapsed, she said, her husband had not complained of feeling ill.

Romberg always called his music "middlebrow—music too lowbrow for a symphony conductor and too highbrow for a jazz conductor."

His music has a mass appeal, with melodic love songs and romantic themes.

Other Works

Other of his famous operettas are "Sinbad," "Her Soldier Boy" and "The Blue Paradise," the latter containing the waltz, "Auf Wiedersehn." He collaborated with George Gershwin on "Rosalie" for Florenz Ziegfield.

Born in Hungary, Romberg came to the US in 1909. Two years later he published his first song, "Memories."

A musical prodigy, Romberg studied violin at the age of seven, the piano at eight. In a few years he had mastered almost every orchestral instrument.

With the coming of talking pictures, Romberg spent a great deal of time in Hollywood. His film scores included "Girl of the Golden West," "Up In Central Park" and adaptations of a number of his Broadway musical hits.

Romberg is survived by his widow and a brother, Hugo, in Los Angeles. The Rombergs had no children.

Man Tossed 20 Feet Into Snow

Taken To Hospital But Dies Few Minutes Later

LINDSAY, Nov. 10. (Staff)—Struck down by a passing truck as he walked south on Highway 35 Friday night, Russell Irwin, 57, RR 1, Reaboro, died shortly after he was admitted to Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay.

Coroner Dr. W. R. Crowe, Lindsay, said the cause of death was multiple internal injuries. Irwin also had several ribs broken.

There will be an inquest.

Irwin, a bachelor farmer, was walking or hitch-hiking a ride home from Lindsay when he was struck by a southbound one-ton panel truck, driven by Lawrence C. Moore, Coboconk. Irwin has a 200-acre farm on the 7th concession of Ops township, eight miles southwest of Lindsay.

The accident was a mile south of Lindsay, almost opposite Bob Miller's garage.

He is believed to have been tossed about 20 feet, into a pile of snow on the west side of the highway. He was taken to hospital by ambulance but died a few minutes later.

Moore was on his way to Peterborough when the accident ocurred at 6:30 pm.

OPP Constable F. N. Linklater, Lindsay, investigated.

Big Three, Turkey Agree To Set Up Special Command

PARIS, Nov. 10. (AP)—The Big Three and Turkey joined in a four-power declaration today that they would set up an Allied Middle East command, despite Arab objections. The statement said the US, Britain, France and Turkey had decided to go ahead with the Middle East Allied Defence Organization because "defence of the Middle East is vital to the free world and its defence against outside aggression can be secured only by co-operation of all interested states."

Some Arab states have said they are unwilling to join any Allied defence setup in the Middle East, and have insisted that the Arab bloc of states themselves could provide adequate defences for that area against possible Communist aggression.

Seven delegations from Arab states to the United Nations General Assembly called a closed meeting today to consider the defence role of the Middle East.

The four-power declaration said the Middle East command is "intended to be the centre of co-operative efforts for defence of the area as a whole. Achievement of peace and security in that area through the command will bring with it social and economic advancement."

The four powers added that one of the Middle East command's would be to assist and support "the states willing to join in the defence of the Middle East and to develop the capacity of each to play its proper role in the defence of the areas as a whole against outside aggression.

"It will not," added the statement, "interfere in problems and disputes arising within the area."

This part of the statement was construed to be a reassurance to Egypt that the Middle East command would play no part in Egypt's current fuss with Britain, one of the four-power statement signers, over the Suez Canal and the abrogation by Egypt of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty two weeks ago.

Islands Vie Show Princess Best Hospitality

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 10—(CP) — There's a question they often ask in the Maritimes: Where is the greater hospitality—Cape Breton or PEI?

The Royal tourists will have a chance to answer that today when they arrive at Sydney aboard the cruiser Ontario after a free-and-easy visit in Prince Edward Island that left them obviously happy.

Industrial Cape Breton and agricultural PEI are opposite in topography but they share honors in hospitality. So it's fairly certain the new island welcome will be like the one the Princess and Duke got here Friday, a warm-hearted, friendly visit.

Guns boomed, crowds yelled, fireworks shot into the sky as the islanders made the most of the one-day stay of Elizabeth and Philip. They were delighted when the Royal couple showed a keen interest in their fur industry, which Phemier J. Walter Jones described earlier as one of his pride and joys.

Enjoy Joke

The Duke and the Premier, both of whom enjoy a joke, parried at an official dinner Friday night to the delight of the guests.

When Mr. Jones said jokingly that half of traditionally-dry PEI's population had never tasted a drink, the Duke replied: "Judging by the way you have responded to the toast, I don't think that any of that half is here."

The Princess showed a lively feminine interest in furs and their origin during a hectic visit to an experimental farm. A host of youngsters broke through police lines during the visit and swarmed around the visitors.

At the official welcome, Princess Elizabeth was presented with $1,000 for the charity of her choice, a Royal sapphire fox cape, and an illuminated scroll which she is to take to her father, the King.

The couple took time out to thank the train staff which took them across Canada. They presented each with a royal picture.

Radio Licence Fee To Stay In New CBC Deal

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP)—Parliament Friday set up the machinery to consider a new deal for the CBC, but with one foregone conclusion—the annual $2.50 radio licence fee will stay.

Opposition parties in the Commons suggested abolition of the fee, along with plans for a special television licence fee when TV comes to Canada next spring. They also urged that control of Canadian radio should be taken from the hands of the CBC board of governors and placed with an independent body.

Revenue Minister McCann, who reports to parliament for the CBC, said he is not in favor of elimination at this time of the radio fee which yields $6,000,000 a year. As for a new regulatory body, he noted that the Massey Royal Commission on arts, letters and sciences, had recommended against it as well as against private radio stations establishing their own networks.

He said these latter matters could be taken up by a special committee to study changes in the CBC setup proposed by the government. The committee was approved at the end of more than four hours of debate on Canadian radio, all the time available at parliament's short Friday sitting.

Generally Good Job

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said he didn't go for "singing commercials" but generaly the CBC did a good job. He favored the broadening changes proposed by the government, though he thought the $2.50 licence fee might be suspended.

The bill setting out the changes, including an annual $6,250,000 grant to the CBC for each of the next five years, was introduced and given first reading. It will go to the committee along with sections of the Massey commission report dealing with radio.

Some of the changes will embody the CBC's control over private broadcasting. For instance, a private station can appeal suspension of its licence to the exchequer court of Canada and it must be given a hearing before such suspension can take place.

Under the legislation the CBC board of governors will be increased from nine to 11. Dr. McCann indicated this was to give further representation to the west and to the new province of Newfoundland.

Truck Decides To Pay Call But Too Early To Get In

A dump truck with seven and a half tons of sand aboard tried to come into The Examiner business office at Hunter and Water Sts., about 7:45 am, but it was too early. The door was closed and the truck succeeded only in breaking off its left front wheel and putting a dent in the brick wall beside the door. It also cracked the inside wall beside the door.

Driver Wally Steenburg, RR 6, Peterborough, driving his father's truck, said he had no intention of making an early-morning call.

He was driving south on Water St. and started to turn left to go east on Hunter St. His truck began to skid on a thin coating of ice on the road and he tried to straighten it up, but saw that he was heading straight toward a northbound car.

Up Over Curb

He turned his wheel again to the east and hit the curb on the south-east corner, bounced up over, hit the building and bounced back about three feet.

"I was only going about 10 miles an hour," Steenburg said. "That's the city streets for you. They should have been sanded."

A good part of the morning was spent transferring the load of sand to another truck and getting a tow truck to haul away the crippled visitor.

The mother college of the 73-year-old University of Western Ontario for the first time was host to one of the university's convocations.

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr of New York's Union Theological Seminary, a world-renowned theologian received on honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Chancellor A. R. Ford of the University.

The Rev. J. L. Patterson, rector of All Saints Anglican Church here and a graduate of the college, received an honorary degree of Bachelor of Divinity.

Reds Unwilling "Party" Guests

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 10 (AP)—North Korean troops on the eastern front were unwilling "guests" of United States 1st Division Marines celebrating the corps' 176th birthday today.

The Marines marked the anniversary with a terrific aerial and artillery attack on a line of Communist-held hills.

Another anniversary—Remembrance Day, Sunday — will be "business as usual" for the eighth army, its commander, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, said in a statement.

Elsewhere on the quiet, cold battle front, United Nations command patrols met only light, sporadic resistance Saturday.

Allied jet fighters swept the North Korean skies without spotting a single Communist plane up to noon today, the air force said.

AP photographer George Sweers reported from the front that the Marines' celebration opened with 83 planes unloading explosive and fire bombs on the Red hill positions. Then virtually every artillery piece in the 1st Division opened up.

For several days Marine planes dropped pamphlets on North Korean lines inviting Communist troops to the birthday party. After Saturday's barrage, the Marines cut big birthday cakes flown in by helicopter.

UN Approves Plan To Continue Talks

PARIS, Nov. 10 — (Reuters).—The United Nations Security Council today approved an Anglo-American resolution calling for further negotiations to solve the four-year-old Kashmir dispute between India and Pakistan.

The voting was nine in favor, with one abstention. Russia abstained.

The resolution calls on the UN representative for Kashmir, Dr. Frank Graham, a Canadian, to continue talks with India and Pakistan for a further six weeks.

Border Trouble Reported Worse

PARIS, Nov. 10 (Reuters). — The situation in the Israeli-Egyptian border area has "taken a more serious turn" in the last four months, Brig.-Gen. William Riley, United Nations' chief of staff in Palestine, said today.

In a report to the UN Security Council he said there has been an increase in complaints about armed robbery and attacks on Israeli settlements by Arab bands from the Gaza strip.

There had also been complaints that roads were mined in Israel-controlled territory, while the Egyptians had accused the Jews of making retaliatory raids.

Riley reported conditions were comparatively quiet in the Israeli-Jordan border area.

Charge Detroit Mother Tortured 4 Children

DETROIT, Nov. 10 (AP) — A thrice-married mother of four was charged today with cruelty to children, the state claiming that she had set fire to the hands of one and later hanged him from a wall by his thumbs. The cruelty, police claim, was included in forms of punishment Mrs. Ethel Lashbrook, 30, gave her children.

Prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien said she admitted holding "court" around the dinner table, with her husband, Clifford, 48, as judge and she as prosecutor.

Any of the four children—all by previous marriages—found guilty of misbehavior or disobedience were sentenced to kneel bare-legged on popcorn kernels for long periods with their hands upraised or to scrub floors nightly for a week.

Police ordered the children cared for at a juvenile detention home.

UN Negotiators Vary Proposal

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 10 — (AP)—United Nation truce negotiators again today proposed that a cease-fire buffer zone be created wherever the battle line happens to be when a Korean armistice agreement is ready for signing. "Minor and local adjustments" could be made.

An Allied spokesman said this would permit the UN to maintain military pressure on the Communists while agreement was sought on the three remaining points to be decided.

There was no immediate indication of communist reaction. The Reds rejected a similar proposal earlier this week.

The Reds Saturday submitted a rephrased version of their demand that a cease-fire line and buffer zone be created right now.

The UN spokesman, Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, indicated it would be rejected.

Both proposals were submitted in Saturday's afternoon session. Negotiators agreed to meet again Sunday morning at 11 (9 p.m. EST Saturday).

Say West's Peace Plan Three-Act Comedy

MOSCOW, Nov. 10 (AP)—The West's disarmament proposal to the United Nations was described in the Russian press today as a "smoke-screen." The way it was presented was called a "three-act comedy."

It was the first press reaction to the American-British-French proposal for a census of the world's arms — including atomic weapons—made two days ago in Paris before the UN General Assembly.

Said Moscow's Literary Gazette: "Every time the Western diplomats try to lull the vigilance of the peoples they resort to a smoke-screen of peace proposals. This is what happened as the sixth session of the General Assembly of the UN got under way."

"A three-act comedy was played out," said the Gazette, "consisting of the so-called three-power declaration by the USA, France and Britain, (President) Truman's radio speech (on the night of Nov. 7) and (State Secretary Dean) Acheson's address at the General Assembly."

Union Manager Lapedes Fired

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP). — Samuel Lapedes, general manager of the 1,200-member local of the United Garment Workers' Union (AFL), was dismissedd today. The office and records of the union were seized under a sheriff's order taken out by order of the union's international headquarters.

Louis Isaacs and Company, chartered accountants, has been called in by the union to audit the books. Mr. Isaacs said two other members of the office staff, both women, were also dismissed.

The order gave "subversive activities" as the reason for the seizure, Mr. Isaacs said.

Sergeant Killed On Manoeuvres

CAMP BORDEN, Nov. 10 (CP)—Sgt. Edward Francis Smith, 29, of Ericson, BC, died here Friday a few minutes after he was shot through the head while taking part in a mock infantry attack.

A court of inquiry will investigate the accident but considerable difficulty is expected as more than 100 infantrymen were firing live ammunition and tanks were throwing up protective fire with machine guns at the time.

An instructor at the Royal Canadian School of Infantry, Sgt. Smith was co-driver of a wasp flame-thrower in a demonstration put on for the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association.

Mustang fighter planes had strafed the target and tanks and flame-throwers were advancing to complete the attack on a strong post at Camp Borden when Sgt. Smith was hit.

Sgt. Smith was married and the father of two children. His wife is expecting a third.

Speculation Grows In Iran Mossadegh May Lose Job

TEHRAN, Iran, Nov. 10 (Reuters)—Speculation grew in Tehran today that Mohammed Mossadegh might be replaced as prime minister if he returned empty-handed from his oil mission in Washington.

(It was announced in Washington Friday that Mossadegh has extended his stay until the end of next week. Some observers felt he was staying on to make a last determined bid for American backing in the oil-nationalization dispute with Britain.)

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi cabled Mossadegh two days ago wishing him success, but expressing hope that he would return soon.

Three former prime ministers are being mentioned as possible successors to Mossadegh.

Ghavam Es Sultaneh, who was once accused of "collaboration" with Russia, had an audience this week with the Shah. He is believed to have the support of several deputies and senators.

Another is Seid Zia Ed Din, said to be supported by some members of the senate and a strong lower-house faction. But his chances are considered small because of his pro-British reputation.

The third is Hussein Ala Khan, the present minister of court and former ambassador to Washington. He has a reputation of great integrity but observers said the two houses of parliament did not consider him the strong man "so badly needed in Iran today."

Acting-Premier Baqir Kazemi announced today that Tehran university students will be prevented by the government from taking part in any political activity in the future.

The authorities closed the university a week ago after a clash there between Communist and anti-Communist students.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 10 —(CP)—Textile manufacturers, employing half the workers in the Sherbrooke region, have curtailed operations and laid off hundreds of employees due to a sales decrease blamed on foreign competition.

A spokesman for Dominion Burlington Mills here said today that 150 employees have been laid off and that work was curtailed for the remaining 650 workers.

The nylon-manufacturing Bruck mills recently dismissed about 100 workers and closed down its dyeing department which employed 155.

May Change History

Believes Romans Landed On Iceland In 300 AD

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP). — A University of Toronto professor says he has found evidence that Romans landed on Iceland as early as 300 AD., at least 500 years before the Vikings claimed discovery of the island.

Prof. Fritz Heichelheim, internationally-known specialist in ancient economic history and ancient coins, said Friday that his discovery leads him to suspect that Iceland was found perhaps 600 years before the Romans landed and that sailors of the Greek Empire roamed the Atlantic and knew of North America in 300 BC, 1800 years before Columbus sailed.

His findings are soon to be published in Antiquity, British archaeological journal.

Prof. Heichelheim bases his theory on three Roman coins found in Iceland about five years ago.

Offering To Gods

Working in Toronto with large-scale photographs of the silver-coated bronze coins and from descriptions of them and articles in archaeological journals, he decided they had been buried as an offering to the gods by a Roman why turned seafarer upon discharge from the army after the reign of Emperor Dioletian. He believes the Roman's ship was wrecked on a desolate coast of Iceland and that the Roman hoped, by burying the coins, to obtain divine help in his distress.

Until now, it has been generally believed that the first persons to reach Iceland arrived there about 800 or 900 AD. Some were Scottish Eremites dissatisfied with conditions in their homeland and others were Vikings, who later came west to North America.

Prof. Heichelheim thinks that, if his theory is correct, Iceland may be the mysterious Isle of Thule, as scholars have long suspected. Thule was mentioned in reports of the Greek explorer Pytheas about 300 BC.

Suggests Veterans Help In Civil Defence

WINDSOR, Nov. 10 (CP) — Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, head of Canada's Civil Defence Organization, suggested Friday night that veterans too old for active service "supply the impetus and example in civil defence and provide the stability of discipline should war come again."

Addressing men he once commanded, he told the sixth annual reunion of the Canadian Armored Corps it has become necessary to think of national defence in terms of civil defence as well as military force. In some respects civil defence was more important than the military effort.

"The country that cannot be defeated on the home front cannot be defeated on the battle front."

First In 11 Months UK Forced Request Dollars

LONDON, Nov. 10. (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill broadly suggested Friday night that the United States give the "fullest consideration" to Britain's need for financial help for her rearmament program and her sagging economy. "I feel sure this will not be denied us," Churchill said, speaking at the annual dinner given by the Lord Mayor of London. As the wartime leader's suggestion's were being made, a British treasury official said his government will ask—for the first time in 11 months—for fresh dollar aid. One informant estimated Britain will ask for $300,000,000.

HEADS UN ASSEMBLY — Louis Padilla Nervo, of Mexico, above, is the new president of the United Nations General Assembly. He was elected in Paris to succeed Nazrollah Entezam of Iran.

Churchill based his belief that Britain will get American consideration on the fact that his country has provided the principal forward US atomic base.

"It must not be forgotten," he said, that under the late (Labor) government we took peculiar risks in providing the principal atomic base for the US in East Anglia, and that in consequence we placed ourselves in the very forefront of Soviet antagonism.

Every Right to Help

"We have, therefore, every need and every right to seek and receive the fullest consideration from Americans for our point of view, and I feel sure this will not be denied us."

Churchill's reference to Britain as the principal US atomic base pertained to the 20,000 American men at air bases spread all over the country. But no British or American official would say whether any atom bombs actually are stored in England.

On the plains of Eastern England there are five huge US bomber bases, and further inland four more are nearing completion. These bases will be capable of handling the huge A-bomb-carrying B-36 bombers.

Churchill said he wants to see Britain "play her full part" in the anti-Communist world. But he said the country first must regain financial solvency.

Ask For Money

The Treasury official said the request for aid will be made to the financial and economic board of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The plea will be for money rather than military goods and equipment, and the official said Britain also expects to share fully in the new $4,800,000,000 military-aid program authorized for Europe by the US Congress.

The request will be a reversal of the former Labor government's policy which, after suspending Marshall aid last January, also decided to try to carry out its $13,000,000,000 arms drive without American help.

Turning to the international situation, Churchill expressed fear last night that, although neither Russia nor the West wants to fight, they may "tumble or drag each other to their common ruin" in a third world war.

Car Trapped In Rut, Crashes

Two car accidents that reulted in property damage but no injuries were investigated Friday by Peterborough provincial police.

A taxi, driven by John Leahy, 39, Burnham St., was unable to get out of wheel ruts in time and collided with the eastbound car of David Schellenberg, 44, Wallace St. The accident was on Park Hill Rd., a quarter of a mile west of the city.

Neither driver was injured but about $300 damage was caused to the two vehicles.

OPP Constable Jack McKendry investigated.

Duncan McRae, 20, RR 3 Keene, bent a couple of fenders on his car Friday night when the steering gave way and the vehicle ran into a pile of snow, a mile and a half south of Highway 7 on the old Keene road.

A broken tie-rod caused the steering to become useless, and the car ran into the snow-filled ditch.

OPP Constable Russ Pollard investigated.

CAR RECOVERED

Local police received word from the Toronto police department Friday that a car owned by Steven Scott, R.R. 10 Peterborough, which was reported stolen from the CGE parking lot Hallowe'en night has been recovered in Toronto.

THE MOST LAVISH ARRAY OF FOOD AND DRINK ever to be handed out in party-happy Washington comes when the Russian Embassy celebrates the anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution. Here is a general view of the Reds' elaborate buffet that included turkey, chicken, ham, duck and lobster salad—with vodka, champagne and whisky flowing from adpacent bars. High Washington officials generally snubbed the Soviet affair, but were hardly missed in the mob that turned out in an assortment of evening clothes, gold-braided uniforms, street clothes and sports outfits. Surveying the scene (from a portrait on the wall) is Lenin, father of the revolution.

West Indies Take Cricket Lead

BRISBANE, Australia, Nov. 10 (Reuters)—The West Indies, challenging for world cricket supremacy, today wrested the initiative from Australia on the second day of the first test.

Australia, tied up by some fine spin bowling by Sonny Ramadhin and Alf Valentine, were dismissed for 226—a first-innings lead of only 10 runs. West Indies, 214 in their first innings, scored 88 for four in their second innings and finished the day 78 runs ahead.

The match looked like being over well within the allotted five days.

If the pitch remains as helpful to spin bowlers as it was today the West Indies could well force a win.

Only mighty hitting by Ray Lindwall, who rattled up 61 in 65 minutes, saved Australia from complete rout.

The contrasting styles of Ramadhin and Valentine completely foxed the batsmen, who had no answer to their spin.

Ramadhin appeared more hostile with his quick approach to the crease and fast action, but Valentine was more effective with his steady, accurate length. He finished with five wickets for 99.

The call was completed in a matter of seconds.

1st Commonwealth Division Held Off Chinese, Bore Brunt Of Big Attack

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 10. (CP)—Eighth Army Headquarters today disclosed that the 1st Commonwealth Division was the one which withstood last Sunday's assault by a Chinese Communist division northwest of Yonchon. The Chinese, blowing bugles and whistles and supported by about 20 tanks, hit the division in waves for hours Sunday and continued sporadic attacks thereafter. The brunt of this Red assault, due north of Seoul, was borne by the King's Own Borderers and the Royal Australian Rifles.

The enemy lost heavily, but they captured two hills which they still retain.

The Communist tanks and self-propelled guns — probably 76-millimeter — made several appearances within 1,000 yards of the battle line.

The Communist armor was engaged at long range by Commonwealth tanks. Allied officers made no claims of damage.

Couldn't Tell

It was even possible, the officers said, that the heavy Commonwealth tanks in the darkness may have engaged Red self-propelled guns rather than tanks.

No estimate of Communist casualties was released, but they were believed to be severe. Officials at the front said Chinese corpses were piled on allied barbed wire at some points.

In a report from the front line, Reuters correspondent John Ulm said 600 British troops of the Boarderers suffered heavy casualties in the shell fire. He said the Britons were outnumbered 10 to one.

Peiping radio, which first identified Commonwealth units in the line, said two companies of Britons were annihilated, with 450 killed or wounded and 25 taken prisoner.

A United Nations' officer called the claim "fantastic and untrue."

Hakim Gov't Resigns In Row

DAMASCUS, Syria, Nov. 10 — (Reuters). — The government of Hassan Hakim resigned today after cabinet differences on Syria's attitude to the Western plan for a Middle-Eastern defence command.

Hakim said his resignation was due to the recent statement by Foreign Minister Faydi Atassi, which bitterly criticized Western policy and which had not been approved by the cabinet.

Political observers here have suggested that Atassi had the support of many of his cabinet colleagues in calling for the rejection of the Western pact offer.

The Prime Minister said Atassi had made a hasty statement, since the cabinet was still considering the defence plan and consulting with other Arab governments.

In a written foreign-policy statement, Hakim gave his backing to the proposed command.

All three opposition parties urged elimination of the $2.50 licence fee established years ago to finance CBC operations.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said now that a departure was to be made from this policy and CBC financing to be done out of revenue, the government should go the whole way and eliminate the fee.

IN THE RACE OF WORLD POWERS to bolster their merchant fleets, the U.S. and U.S.S.R. lag far behind pace-setting Norway and the United Kingdom. Surpassed by even land-locked Switzerland (not shown) in construction of freighters, the U.S. also trails the major powers represented above in the building of passenger-carrying vessels. As a result of construction now on order or underway, the world's merchant fleet will be 29.4 per cent higher than it was before outbreak of World War II.

No Shortage Of Butter This Winter

Sees No Recurrence Of Runaway Prices Up To 90 Cents Pound

OTTAWA, Nov. 10. (CP)—A dairy industry spokesman Friday cast his eye over recent butter trends and forecast there will be no shortage this winter.

W. K. St. John, national council secretary-treasurer, predicted also in an interview that there will be no recurrence of "runaway" prices which pushed butter up to 85 and 90 cents a pound nine months ago.

Creamery butter currently is selling at about 70 cents a pound.

Mr. St. John based his predictions on unexcelled pasturelands during the summer production months, increased production and a slight decline in consumption, taken up by increases in margarine sales.

Up Nine Per Cent

Reflecting the brighter trend in Canada's butter situation, the bureau of statistics reported Friday that creamery butter production increased nine per cent during October. Consumption declined two per cent. The stockpile on Nov. 1 was slightly higher than at the same time last year.

Margarine production and stocks showed sharp increases.

Ottawa's butter production totalled 23,565000 pounds, up from last year's 21,537,000 but due mainly to a slow start, output fell slightly in the first 10 months of 1951 to 234,119,000 pounds from 238,755,000.

Consumption declined to 26,260,000 during the month from 26,794,000 last year and in the 10-month period dropped to 220,710,000 from 228,346,000.

Stocks on Nov. 1 which included some foreign purchases, totalled 66,257,000, up from last year's 64,946,000.

Mother Names Daughter In Odd Marital Triangle

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10—(AP)—Shaking with emotion, mother and daughter met in court Friday for a hearing occasioned by the mother naming her daughter, the "other woman" in a marital tangle.

Helen I. Cosgrove, 39, petitioned for the guardianship of three-year-old Vicki Diane, who she said was fathered by her husband, Albert and born to her daughter, Joan Lee Ervin, 19. Miss Ervin is Mrs. Cosgrove's daughter by a previous marriage.

Mrs. Cosgrove testified that early in 1948 she learned that her daughter, then 16, was pregnant. Her efforts to learn the father's identity were futile.

She decided to pass the child off as her own.

But last June, she said, she learned her daughter was pregnant again. This time, Mrs. Cosgrove said, her daughter confessed that both babies were Cosgrove's.

Mrs. Cosgrove seeks guardianship on grounds that the child's natural parents are not fit to rear her.

When the hearing was adjourned until Tuesday, Vicki Diane was sitting on Mrs. Cosgrove's lap. As Miss Ervin walked by, the little girl held out her arms and shrieked:

"There goes my sister Joan!"

Says CBC Men Seem Leftist

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP)—Solon Low, Socialist Credit leader, charged in the Commons Friday that CBC commentators are "pretty well weighted to the left."

Mr. Low, speaking on a bill to set up a special radio committee, said he has heard "complaints of red and pink propaganda that finds its way into our airways." The news itself was factual and objective, but "news commentators over the years have somehow been selected so that they are pretty well weighted to the left."

Freedom of speech was commendable, he said, but it was not freedom of speech when commentators were weighted towards one side. He objected to "the continual pounding of indoctrination to sway the people."

He referred to Dr. Brock Chisholm, former Canadian deputy minister of health and now head of the World Health Organization. In Mr. Low's home Peace river district, he said, if a man like Dr. Chisholm "tried to impose his poisonous mind," the people would see that the local station put on a speaker to counteract him. But that was impossible in the CBC because of "the gross centralization of power."

TRAVEL—with Jean Stenton

Find Lovely Cape Breton Little Piece of Scotland

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of travel stories which The Examiner is presenting to take its readers to delightful and sometimes far-off places.)

When the early Scottish settlers journeyed across the Atlantic to find new homes in Canada, they must have tucked part of their beautiful Highlands in their baggage and replanted them on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, in a beautiful spot known as the Cabot Trail.

Here the rugged grandeur of rocky parapets, numerous coves and beautiful lakes and mountains reminiscent of Ben Lomond and Loch Lomond, beckon invitingly for many miles along the 185.4 miles trip around the northern half of the island. You will find no big night clubs or city glitter here. Instead the traveller sees nature at its best in quaint villages which have woven the fabric of early Canadian history. This area is accessible only by car or bus and along the coast by steamer.

For those with cars, the most beautiful way to see the island is to make headquarters at Baddeck and from there swing on a circular tour to the west of the island, then to the north and finally down the east coast.

Each section is a little different in scenery and atmosphere. Around Cheticamp, the Norman influence is still noticeable and the people there do beautiful rug making. Visitors are always welcome to watch them at work. There are wonderful fishing spots along the whole trail and down the east coast is found the part most similar to Scotland.

The small village of Baddeck is one of tranquil beauty, often regarded by visitors as one of the world's scenic gems. The name is Indian and means "place with an island near" and the island is Kidstone's. There are many fine beaches and another claim to fame is that Alexander Graham Bell and his wife are buried there.

French Touch

The French influence is extremely noticeable at Belle Cote swinging to the west of the island. It is the southern limit of that section of the county and is known as the "Acadia of Inverness." From Margaree Harbor to Cape Rouge (26 miles), the inhabitants are of Acadian descent. They speak French and possess all the outstanding traits and culture of their Norman ancestors.

The next place of note on the circular route is Cheticamp, 57.5 miles from Baddeck. There is a sheltered harbor here and guides and boats are plentiful if the traveller wants to try his luck at a little fishing. Rug making is done extensively in the neighborhood and the workers are delighted to have visitors.

Six miles from Cheticamp, the Cabot Trail enters the Cape Breton Highlands National Park. Hills here are the highest in the province of Nova Scotia. From Little River to Pleasant Bay, the trail winds over picturesque country with lofty peaks and deep streamlined valleys. Hills are steep and careful driving is necessary. An experienced driver is advisable and brakes and steering gear should be in first class condition.

After leaving Pleasant Bay, the trail swings eastward up the slopes of North Mountain, gradually rising to levels of 1,550 feet. Crossing the height of land it descends into Sunrise Valley and a beautiful view is offered from the summit of Big Intervale—a vista of rolling hills and fertile valleys with Cape North Mountain and Aspy Bay beyond.

Beautiful Area

The Ingonish area is considered one of the most beautiful spots in North America. The name is believed to be of Portuguese origin, as tradition says the Portuguese had a settlement there as early as 1521.

What is considered by experts as the best scenery is found in the next few miles beyond North and South Ingonish. At the foot of Little Smoky, near Ingonish, is one of Nova Scotia's magnetic hills. Motorists who place their cars in neutral are amazed to find they are apparently rolling uphill.

Cape Smoky is a massive headland towering 100 feet above the sea and often split half way up by a fleecy cloud bank—hence its name. Along the Trail are many attractive fishing villages. For a sea view try Englishtown and for a visit to the only Gaelic school in North America, the tourist must visit St. Ann. The school is operated in the summer and visitors are invited to attend the open sessions each day.

Travellers who have their own cars make this trip in one day and carry picnic lunches. There are attractive huts along the Trail for people to stop for meals. However, to get the most enjoyment from it, one should make two or three overnight stops in the villages. By making reservations in advance at the small tourist homes or hotels in these places, accommodation is no problem.

The Highland Games are the event of the season in many communities, above all the Gaelic Mod held at St. Ann on Aug. 9-11. Sword dancing, the Highland Fling, the wail of pibrochs, throwing the caber and declaiming Gaelic poetry are among the contests of the colorful gathering in the natural ampitheatre of hills at the foot of St. Ann Bay.

Bus Trips

Buses must be used by those without their own cars. There is no complete bus trip around the northern part of the island, but all but 45 miles of the least interesting territory is covered in two separate trips . . . one up the east coast and one up the west.

Up the east coast, buses leave Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from Sydney to Dingwall and Cape North, returning on alternate days. This trip, return, costs $8.45. There is a daily bus service around the western side of the island from Sydney to Cheticamp. Both these trips are worth while because there are two entirely different sets of views.

For those who like boat travel, there are coastal steamers running from Sydney to Cape North and Bay St. Lawrence. These ships cruise along close to the coast and afford a splendid view of the passing country as well as wonderful opportunities for the camera fan in the quaint outports they visit every few miles en route. Spots on the itinerary include: Englishtown, Baddeck, Whycocomagh (pronounced Wh'-cog-a-mah), St. Ann, Ingonish, Neil Harbor, Dingwall, Aspy Bay and Bay St. Lawrence.

Aspy Bay was chosen by John Cabot in 1497 as a landfall and this trim community was the first settlement of the great British Empire. All Northern Cape Breton is full of interesting history. Nearly 50,000 Highland Scots settled on this island and as a race they have clung to language and tradition.

Good Fishing

The Cabot Trail is also a fisherman's paradise. In the Margaree Valley, the river is famous for salmon and trout fishing and Lake Ainslie is the district for trout. Little River is noted as a fine salmon stream and at Neil Harbor, from July 25 to September 10, visitors can take part in the thrilling sport of sword fishing.

Another recommended trout stream is Clyburn Brook in the Ingonish area. The North River flowing into St. Ann Harbor and Bay has trout and sea trout. If one is fortunate enough to take a trip in the months of July and August following a heavy rain, they will likely find large sea trout abundant in many streams along the Trail. These fish go up stream quickly after a freshet and you must be on the ground at the time for a good catch.

Some of the most beautiful scenery in Canada is found here in the summer or late in September when the leaves are turning. The land and way of life is very different from that of Ontario and its fishing enough to lure the most ardent angler. But it should be stressed this is a place for those who love wild, rugged country and scenery and who don't pine for the bright city lights.

THIS IS THE SWEEPING panorama the motorist seen on the Cabot Trail from the top of Cape Smoky on the east coast of Cape Breton Island, N.S. This section of the trail is at an elevation of about 1,200 feet and is country very like Scotland—(Nova Scotia Bureau of Information Photo).

Market Changes Blamed On World Events

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock market observers are becoming cautious about linking international developments with price fluctuations. This week, however, most professionals agreed that Wednesday's sharp recession was more than part of the pattern of recent irregularity.

Great Britain's proposal to reduce Canadian trade was considered the greatest factor. Although the Toronto market generally follows New York's, it was noted that on this occasion Canadian losses were disproportionately high.

Reports of proposed negotiations to relieve world tension were cited as another cause. New York observers attributed their market's nervousness to speculation of armament reduction. Poor third-quarter earning reports were considered more technical and long-term basis for uneasiness.

One factor brokers found difficult to reconcile was the decreased volume. When Toronto's industrial index dropped more than five points Wednesday, only slightly more than 1,500,000 shares changed hands—a small number compared to recent turnovers ranging to 7,000,000. Selling pressure was light and brokers reported no rush to "get out from under."

Opinion Optimistic

Overall opinion, however, was optimistic. Observers thought that, barring a "hot war" or a "cold war" peace, prices would resume a general advance.

Toronto opened the week with a moderate decline that was reversed by a mid-session rally. Most losses were regained by the close. Base metals and Western oils made little headway. In Montreal, papers and industrials eased.

Toronto established little trend Tuesday as Monday's mild rally faded. Base metals and Western oils eased. Industrials were steady in Montreal while papers weakened slightly.

Toronto industrials tumbled Wednesday for the sharpest dip since June 25. Base metals and Western oils weakened. Industrials slid in Montreal while papers edged lower.

Early support Thursday checked Wednesday's decline but Toronto industrials made little headway in slow trading. Base metals and Western oils were irregular. Montreal papers and industrials weakened.

Post Best Gain

Industrials posted the best gain in more than a week in Toronto yesterday. Base metals and Western oils climbed more than two points on the exchange's indices. Papers and industrials strengthened in Montreal.

New York showed little trend Monday in the slowest trading since Aug. 27. The exchange was closed Tuesday. Prices declined to the lowest point since midsummer Wednesday as the Associated Press average dipped 90 cents to $94.60. A late push Thursday steadied a wobbly market and continued yesterday to send prices for the best gain in more than four months.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 4.35 at 341.75, golds down .33 at 83.01, base metals down .20 at 193.28 and Western oils down .30 at 125.68.

Five Charges By Guild Against CP Are Dismissed

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP). — Magistrate Thomas Elmore has dismissed all five charges brought against the Canadian Press by the American Newspaper Guild (CIO CCL).

Thursday he dismissed a charge that the national news-gathering agency failed to make "every reasonable effort" to negotiate a collective agreement. Guild counsel John Osler then withdrew a similar charge against Press News Liimted, CP's radio-news subsidiary.

Friday, the magistrate dismissed four other charges.

One, on which evidence was taken, alleged that the CP interfered with the formation of the Guild by refusing to let Guild members in CP's Ottawa bureau work in the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

The other three, to which the same evidence was applied by agreement, alleged that the CP thus sought to impose a penalty on Guild members; that it sought to restrain them from joining the union, and that it discriminated against four Guild members.

To Appeal Decisions

Guild representatives said all five decisions will be appealed.

The charges resulted from an 18-month collective bargaining dispute.

In the three days of hearings of the private prosecution, the Guild called five witnesses. They were J. K. Mitchell of Montreal, former president of the Guild unit in CP, who now is employed elsewhere; Edgar Simon, of Toronto, now president of the unit; H. Dent Hodgson, of CP's Ottawa Bureau; Mel Suffrin, of the New York Bureau; and Steve Ripley of Toronto, Guild international representative.

Magistrate Elmore decided it was not necessary to hear any CP defence and no CP witnesses were called.

Farewell To 'Dominion'

So this country will be the Dominion of Canada no more? Very well, let the word go. To keep it on the statute books for a few more years at the expense of a long wrangle with those who hate it and want to be rid of it is hardly worth while, and would serve only to bring the old and honoured denomination of our country into disgrace. And those who hate the word 'Dominion' have something to be said on their side; they want Canada to be proud and independent, and do not care if that independence is a little strident and a little ungrateful in its expression. Many of them are imperfectly acquainted with the English tongue, and have no appreciation of its overtones; nor do they savour the Biblical ring of the word 'Dominion'. "Some of us rather like the name of Canada", said our Prime Minister, with an affectation of English under-statement. Let it be so. The Indian word, the meaning of which has never been finally decided—it is sometimes said to mean a village, or collection of huts—is now the only name our country owns. Shall we, in future, write and speak of the Federal Government? That would please those who are eager to tighten the bonds which bind us to the U.S.A. . . . Or may we still speak of the Dominion Government? We shall wait for the proud lexicographers at Ottawa to instruct us in this matter.

* * *

The Dominion of Canada . . . . Odd, that in all the years that we used and heard that name, we never felt second-rate, or colonial, or anything less than free and proud of our country. How stupid we must have been! How fortunate we are now that men have arisen in our country who are able to instruct us in our duty, and even to make their wisdom law. It is true that they had to—we shall not use the word 'sneak', let us rather say insinuate—the new official designation of our country into official documents. These gentlemen are, we are certain, excellent Canadians. We may be excused, however, for feeling that they lack a sense of gratitude and a sense of tradition—of the Canadian tradition, that is to say, which is not specifically French.

* * *

Thus the name of 'Dominion' passes, bustled from the laws and official pronouncements of our country. How easy it is to banish it from print! But we do not think that it will be so easily banished from the hearts, or erased from the memories, of those who loved it, and never found any echo in it that was not sweet and noble.

Undermining The Woods With Taxes

The Ontario Royal Commission on Forestry and the Select Committee on Conservation have both studied the dwindling woodlots in southern Ontario and the idle land which once bore valuable timber. They have urged better cultivation of the existing woodlots and reforestation of the submarginal land, once cleared for agriculture and since found unsuitable for it. The Departments of Land and Forests and of Agriculture are actively encouraging afforestation by farmers and other private individuals, through providing trees, supervision and advice. But the departments and farmers and the people who have planted or want to plant woodlots are being foiled by taxing and assessing methods—usually at the local level.

* * *

In the third Annual Report of the Research Council of Ontario, the Advisory Committee on Forestry Research plainly states the harassing effect of taxation: "It may be noted that, at the present time, the farmer pays an annual tax on his trees as part of his property and woodlands may be assessed as much as $75.00 per acre. If the trees are completely removed, reassessment may be for as little as $2.00 per acre. In other words, the crop is being taxed rather than the crop-producing nature of the land, as is generally the case for agriculture. Both the very high and very low assessments have a bad influence on forestry practice, the latter because it permits forest land to be utilized for low-grade pasture or left in idleness or near-idleness."

* * *

Thus, the assessment regulations are defeating the efforts of the Department of Lands and Forests, and discouraging farmers and others who might risk the long-term investment of planting a woodlot or reforesting a useless pasture. The regulations and tax officers are actually encouraging farmers to cut down what woodlots they have and to let waste land capable of producing valuable timber remain idle. The Ontario Assessment Act contains a clause providing for partial relief from taxes on woodlots, but in effect this relief is not gained. As soon as young trees show green in a formerly idle lot, up goes the assessment.

* * *

A case in western Ontario came to our notice. A well-intentioned man, an ardent conservationist, bought a tract of waste land and set out trees, at considerable expense. He did not expect to make money—not in his lifetime—on a tree crop; but he hoped not to lose too much. In three or four years, as the trees took hold, so did the assessor and local taxing authorities. His taxes on the land were increased so heavily that he was forced to mow down the young trees on half the land and return it to its former idle condition.

* * *

There are many problems to be met before southern Ontario will recover its woodlots and before submarginal farm land will become valuable producers of fine timber, as it was a hundred years ago. (Even during the last fifty years the proportion of wooded land in southern Ontario has dropped from sixteen to nine per cent.) There are many problems but the first one to be dealt with—and it can be done quickly and simply—is to stop penalizing people who want to grow trees. The Assessment Act must be changed and municipal taxing authorities must stop taxing woodlots as a crop. A farmer's assessment is not increased because he grows ten acres of strawberries in a field which was formerly pasture. His assessment should not be increased because he grows ten or fifty acres of maple or pine on abandoned ground.

Old Morning Smile

The Toronto Globe and Mail's front page joke-box, called "Your Morning Smile" had this delightful story in it Friday morning:

"The bullet went right through my chest and came out my back"
"Didn't it touch your heart?"
"Certainly not. My heart was in my mouth".

When we read that on Friday morning, our morning smile was a frozen one. We seemed to have heard it before. As a matter of fact, we had. On this page on the preceding Wednesday, among our "Unconsidered Trifles" below the Bible Message, we printed this more delightful version:

Irish Corporal: "That's how 'twas. The bullet went in me chest and came out me back".
Newsman: "But how did it miss your heart?"
Irishman: "Me heart was in me mouth".

Coincidence, the Globe joke? Not at all. Deliberate stealing. And we confess that we lifted it from the Montreal Star before that. The Montreal Star probably purloined it from the same 1918 Old Bill's Tales from which Bennett Cerf got it for one of his joke books—attributing the Corporal's wit to Walter Winchell's bravery. Before that is was printed, in an altered version, in the fat, green-covered volume, published in the 1890's, called Irish Wit and Wisdom. If we mistake not, the story first appeared in English in Aelfric's Colloquy, an Anglo-Saxon version dating from the early eleventh century, and it goes something like this:

Magister: The heoru-scearp arrow y-faran richt thurh min breost, ond ut min baec.
Discipulus: Ne teran heo heorte?
Magister: Min heorte waes in minum mael-muth
Discipulus: Swa hwaet swa!

This dialogue attributed to Aelfric was of course a plagiarism of a Latin fragment from the first century B.C., and now reposing in the British Museum, MS Cotton Titillatus B.IV.

Jokes have a hardiness which age does not weary nor the years condemn. We would never think of condemning the Globe for using our Wednesday joke as its Friday morning smile. It is probably brand new to Toronto.

A Word About Garters

The Windsor Star, which has a range of comment breezier than is possible to a paper so old and sober-sided as the Examiner, has recently published an editorial headed, simply; Women's Garters. It says, somewhat nostalgically, that women no longer wear those pretty garters which were bands of shirred silk, and which were even decorated with rosebuds or little silver hearts; such garters were worn above the knee. The Star pretends that it does not know what women wear now, but we can lighten its darkness; they wear odd looking little rubber nubbins, attached to their stays.

The Star says that it has asked several women why they no longer wear pretty garters, and the women have said that such garters encourage varicose veins. We simply do not believe this; men wear garters which clasp their legs tightly, and men do not have varicose veins in greater numbers than women.

We know why women have given up wearing attractive garters. It is because they care less about what men think of them than they formerly did. A pretty silken circlet was a valued keepsake. But who want a depressing gadget made of wire and pink rubber?

BIBLIOMANIA

Novels, New And Good

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK will be observed during the week we now enter, and many are the groans from habitual groaners that children are now seduced from the reading of books by the easier delights of radio, television, movies and the comics. We beg leave to doubt that such pessimism is justified. There are more good books for children now than ever before; the preparation and illustration of books for children has never received so much attention; this would hardly be so if parents did not buy these books, and parents would not buy them if children did not read them. Pessimists love to recall that in childhood their favourite evening pastime was to lie before the fire, engrossed in a volume of Dickens or Scott; we think that Time may have worked her accustomed enchantment upon such recollections. There is no way to prove it, but we have a strong conviction that more children are reading, and reading with intelligent enjoyment, than was the case fifty years ago. Radio and comics do not wholly satisfy an intelligent child, and they will no more displace books in their diet than pop and popcorn will displace meat and vegetables at the table.

THE END OF THE AFFAIR, by Graham Greene (British Book Service).

AN INTERESTING DEVELOPMENT in the literature of our time is the emergence of the Catholic novelist. Although religious thought from the Protestant point of view has been at the root of many fine novels in English literature the Catholics have not, until quite recently, had any spokesmen. But now a school of Catholic novelists has arisen, with Graham Greene at their head, and everything that they write is coloured by their religion; even so uproarious a satire as Evelyn Waugh's "The Loved One" is Catholic at root, and a fine antidote to one phase of Protestant sentimentalism; just when a Catholic writer will deal equally sharply with Catholic sentimentalism remains to be seen, and we may expect an uproar when it comes for the Catholic skin is the thinnest in Christendom. Meanwhile we must be grateful for many excellent novels with the refreshing element of a solid moral foundation.

Greene's latest book is about a cynical and superficially disagreeable novelist who has an illicit affair with the wife of a civil servant; during an air raid on London he seems to be killed, and his mistress makes a vow to God that if he is spared she will give him up, thus sacrificing her love for his life. God drives a hard bargain with her, for he at once recovers, and she keeps her word. She then becomes deeply religious; in her own phase, she "catches faith like a disease"; she also catches pneumonia, and dies. It then appears that she was baptized, unknown to herself, as a child, in the Catholic Church, and has thus been a Catholic all her life without knowing it. The novelist, mourning her, blasphemously hates God for having taken her from him.

This is a good story, brilliantly told, without a word too many in its 237 pages. The theme is a large one and it is handled in a big way. The dose of Catholicism in the last thirty pages will stick in many a Protestant throat, but there will be other Protestants of sterner mettle who will read it attentively, recognize the truth in it, and thoroughly comprehend and enjoy it, without finding it necessary to yield a jot of their Protestantism. For Catholic as Mr. Greene is, he has a fine artistic universality, and is no pamphleteer for the Catholic Truth Society. I recommend this highly to all readers who demand quality in a novel. R.D.

SHADOWS MOVE AMONG THEM, by Edgar Mittelholzer (Lippincott).

IN THIS BEAUTIFULLY WRITTEN NOVEL a young Englishman in a condition near to nervous collapse, goes to visit relatives in British Guiana. These relatives are missionaries for a curious faith called the Brotherhood of Christ the Man; they permit themselves a remarkable freedom of conversation and action; the nineteen years' old daughter has had several lovers, in order that she may not marry unwisely; they admit a considerable degree of fantasy into daily life; the Rev. Gerald Harmston reads ghost stories to his congregation in order to stimulate their imaginations and give them interesting dreams; they insist upon a high level of humanistic education among the natives; and with this liberality of belief and action they combine a sharp discipline in personal living, and a strong reliance upon work and simplicity. They regard themselves as highly civilized in comparison with the barbarians of the Western World.

The nervous relative understandably finds this confusing and the comedy of the book arises from his resistance to the local way of living. At last he succumbs to it, and marries the elder daughter; the reader is led to believe that this is the end of his nervous trouble. This novel is in the tradition of "South Wind", and has much of the comic charm of that book. But inherent in the comedy are many home truths and it is plain that Edgar Mittelholzer, whose second book it is, must be watched for something very good in the future. O.D.C.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK should not be allowed to pass without some reviews of books for children. Allow us to recommend McWhinney's Jaunt by Robert Lawson, whose lovely illustrations for Ferdinand will be remembered. It is an unusually good story for children from nine to twelve about a professor who invents a flying bicycle; it pays children the compliment of being written in a less restricted vocabulary than is usual in such books. Children from eight upward will welcome Freddy Rides Again, another of Walter R. Brooks' funny stories about Freddy the pig; the grown-up who will probably have to read it aloud will enjoy it, too. Torten's Christmas Secret by Maurice Dolbier is about a gnome, one of Santa Claus' helpers, who secretly takes presents to bad children for fear that they will otherwise not get any; but he finds that Santa is not so stern as he had feared, and receives a promotion in the Claus organization. Children from four to eight will like this story which is endearingly told. All three books are published in Canada by McClelland and Stewart. O.J.R.

LET US CONCLUDE as is our custom, with a quotation from a neglected work, this time Spencer's "New Things and Old": "When the Queen of Sheba came to hear the wisdom of Solomon, the more to search out the same . . . . she dressed Boyes in Womens apparell, and Girls in Mens apparell, asking him which were the Boyes, and which the Girles; whereupon he bids them all to wash their hands and faces, and those which he perceived to wash the more, he judged to be boyes, the other girls". If any of our female readers dislike this, let them remember that Solomon knew a good deal about girls, one way and another.

Prefabricated U.N. Palace

By NORA BELOFF (In Paris)

PARIS is still rubbing its eyes in astonishment after suddenly waking up to discover a spotless, white and brand new palace sprung up in the middle of the city.

This prefabricated phenomenon is the home of the sixth session of the United Nations General Assembly. It sits on the opposite side of the river directly facing the Eiffel Tower. At the first of the week painters, electricians and plumbers were still jostling with advance-guard diplomats and international secretariat members to get things ready for the ceremonial opening Tuesday.

France, internationally famous for her culture and her cooking, has never ranked especially high for industrial efficiency. Nevertheless this billion-franc (million pound) four-storey building with its hundreds of well-lit, well-lighted rooms, may induce the thousands of international pundits now pouring into Paris from the four corners of the world to revise their judgment. For the prefabricated structure stands out as one of the highest peaks of technical and engineering achievements in our time. The steel structure is removable and there are no underground foundations so that the French Government to which it belongs can, and certainly will, re-erect it anywhere it likes once it has fulfilled its international function in the middle of the capital.

The walls are built of "Isotherm", a synthetic material made of squashed straw which goes through a special process making it 100 per cent non-inflammable. The new material has often been used in small prefabricated cottages, but this is the first time it has been employed on a palatial scale. The methods of heating and painting the new building are likewise the latest in modern invention. The inside walls have been sprayed to make them a pleasing pale blue, and the ceilings radiate a comfortable and all-pervading warmth.

The palace, designed by the French architect M. Jean Carlu, is strictly what experts call "functional" which means that every scrap of it serves some practical purpose, with no frills for beauty or ornament. Seen from either side of its long arms the rectangular structure produces a dreary barrack-like effect. A taxi-driver, proud, as all Parisians are, of the beauty of his city, apologized for its dull and flat appearance; "It looks much better", he said, "floodlit at night". But seen from the river the palace is far from ugly. Carlu has built it beneath the theatre and museum which he also designed and it occupies the three sides surrounding the park and fountains which permanently adorn the Trocadero Hill. The river side is left open so that you look up at the white palace with its mainly glass front, across the green and symmetrical gardens. This gives the palace a dignity all of its own and reconciles Paris to its provisional presence.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou are loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God. And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Jesus had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering? And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him. (Luke 13: 11-17.)

Letter To The Editor

LAW LAX IN ACCIDENT CASES?

Sir: In view of the proceedings of the trials recently reported in the Examiner in the cases of outstanding fatalities I cannot but infer that any person may kill another and expect a penalty of six months imprisonment. They need only arm themselves with an automobile and a state of intoxication.

The law makes great point of intention. If a person does not intend to kill and yet does so while intoxicated what deterrent does the law offer if he chooses an automobile as his instrument of death? It literally slaps his hands and tells him not to do it again until his licence is returned in a few weeks.

Many aspects of these and other recent trials are startling, particularly the treatment of evidence given by the constabulary. Surely it behooves us to remove those responsible for this shocking laxity in our laws as they affect this problem. The snap of enough spines and the crunch of enough skulls may awaken them from their legal lethargy—but whose skulls? Whose spines?

'Salvage' The 'Child Criminal' And Forget His Victim!

(Ottawa Journal)

As was to have been expected the Government has commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence imposed in Vancouver upon a lad of 17 who had raped and murdered a young girl.

We trust this action was taken on purely humane considerations, trust that in no respect did it have its origin in bathos and sentimentality expressed in letters to the Vancouver newspapers.

A sample of these letters is before us. It refers twice to "this child criminal", wants somebody "to salvage this young life", thinks parents would "cringe" at the thought of the death penalty imposed on a "teen-ager" even for murder.

Nowhere in the letter, and nowhere in most such letters, is there a word of sympathy for the girl so brutally murdered, or for her family, nor any recognition of the right of society to be protected from the violent impulses of monsters whether 17 or 70.

The deplorabe thing about a "life" sentence is that ordinarily it means about 20 years. This young girl-killer may be turned loose when he is under 40, and he is an optimist who believes that even then it will be safe to give him his freedom.

Queer Football

(Montreal Star)

Canadian football is getting into a queer stute. In Toronto last Saturday an Ottawa player sitting on the bench, saw a Toronto man running clear for a touchdown. He tossed off his parka, ran on to the field and and tried to stop him. This performance threw the bemused officials into a state. They didn't know what penalty to impose. The Ottawa coach applauded his player and said it showed he had his heart in the game.

This opens the door to far wider and more spectacular developments. If it is all right for one extra player to move in on the game, why not two, three or more? Why shouldn't the whole bench throw itself into action?

If this seems cumbrous there is an even simpler and more effective possibility. This is to bring a tommy-gun to the bench; and riddle any dangerous opponent with bullets.

This may be frowned on, but the Ottawa team has opened the door and the Big Four can follow through. The only flaw is that football ceases to be a game. But that may not worry the promoters, so long as the gates hold up.

WHO'S THE BOSS?

1st Man: "Do you run things at your house?"

2nd Man: "Yeah, the washing machine and the furnace!"

In the opinion of veteran hunters who have roamed in all directions, the Eel's Creek Crown Game Pr[illegible] deer factory attracts more sportsmen to its borders than any other spot in the province. It is accessible from all directions. This year there are more cars, more camps built and more one-day gypsy hunters than ever before.

Naturally this great pressure is decreasing the animal population at a fast clip but it has not reached a dangerous low, yet. In fact, experts feel that it is a good thing to keep their numbers down since any given area will support just so many winter feeders.

Some seasons there has been nothing but a grand slaughter of game on opening day. News of easy-to-get meat in these parlous times has travelled along the deer hunters' moccasin telegraph in record time and the Red Shirts poured north all last weekend along Highway 28 from Haultain to Whitney.

But veteran hunters with established camps fooled these Johnny-come-latelys. They kept their hounds kennelled up at the start. They were wise. Why let their hounds flush game for any Tom, Dick and Harry to shoot at, they reasoned. The strategy worked and opening day's kill was light.

The hardiest gypsy hunters stayed on for 24 hours and pulled out in disgust. Most of the early shooters were funnelled through the game-count road block at the Burleigh-Oregon Trail intersection on Monday night. A quick estimate showed that every four hunters took a deer and that all the animals examined were does.

Does, mark you.

This sort of unbalanced shooting may put a crimp in things sooner than we expect. And some of the killing was mighty amateurish stuff.

They're Shooting Elk, S-A-A-A-Y . . . .

No matter how often I have written in this column and in general news stories about the privilege of shooting either a deer or elk, to many people it is amazing news. Had they been downtown about 5 pm on Tuesday they would have seen a small truck with a splendid bull elk head lashed to top and tail gate and a large pile of dressed meat in the load box. Ross and Herb Foster of Ida shot a bull and cow early Monday morning. It took eight fellow huntsmen to carry the meat out to camp.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

Poacher's Fate

Familiarity breeds contempt, of game laws, it seems. Two north county men were nabbed by conservation officers on Saturday last with a deer hidden in their truck under a pile of wood and the rifle under the front seat. Both truck and gun were seized in addition to the payment of stiff fines in Peterborough court. It ain't wuth it.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

A few more American hunters showed up this year and some of them were met by guides and taken to the deer camps. There were others, though, who drove up without making any plans whatsoever. Our experience with most Americans is that they leave no item to chance when planning a trip and, in truth, know more about our neck of the woods than we do.

But these plan-less visitors. If we publicize fishing more than hunting, it is our fault. On the other hand a letter from them, well in advance of the deer season, to the Chamber of Commerce would give them all sorts of information. Guess we shall leave it that we'll help them if they will help themselves.

Some Americans arrived in Apsley planning to camp and hunt on Jack's Lake. The only trouble is that this is well inside the boundaries of the Game Preserve. They were cheesed off.

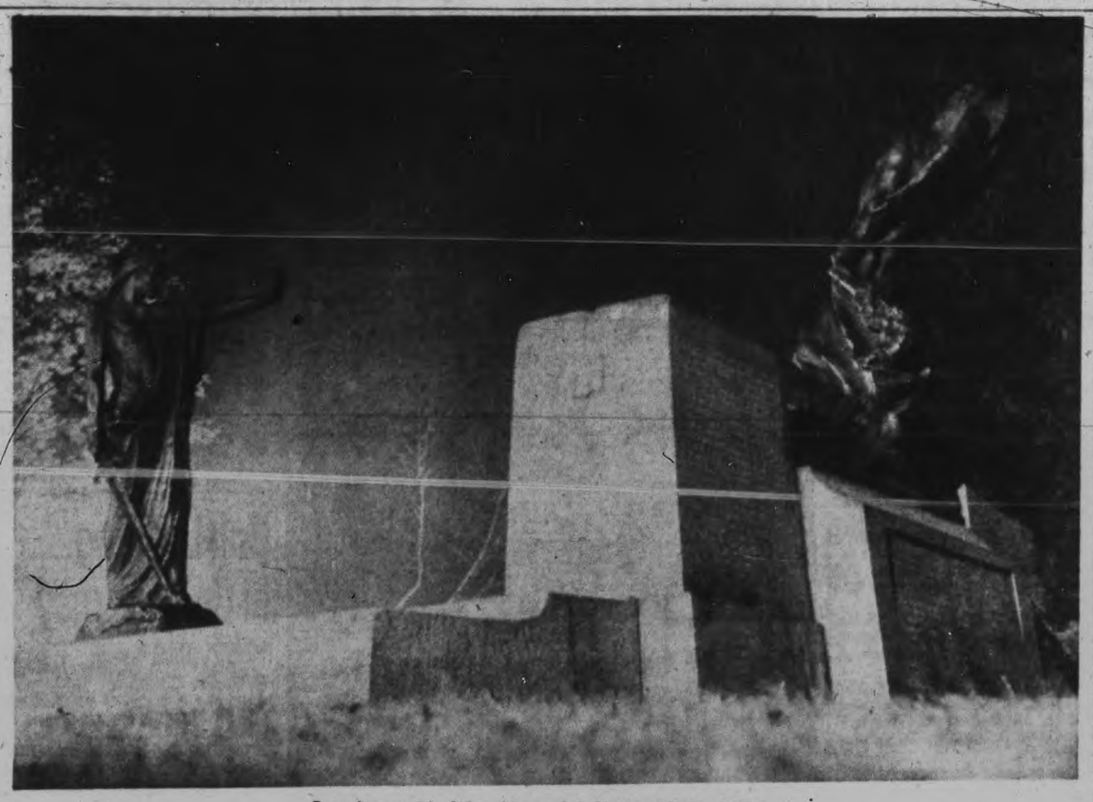
Deer Camp Pot Shots

Grim tales of lost lives in the deer country point to man's carelessness. One hunter died through over-exertion and exposure during a boat dumping on Elephant Lake, east of Bancroft. His companion was found in time and revived....A Lindsay man in the Nogies Creek area on Monday slipped on the ice and fell, his gun discharged and he was fatally wounded....Two hunters sleeping in a car near St. Ola were ashyxiated....The ratio of accidents to the number of hunters is very small, so far, but any of these might have been prevented.



In lighter vein. Jack Paris of Young's Point shot his deer from a garden chair on his watch near Haultain....North of Havelock, Bob Groombridge went to get a pail of water for camp. He saw a deer coming through the bush, dropped his pail and hiked to camp for his gun and shot the animal, a doe that dressed 130 pounds....Some unnamed hunter shot a moose in self defence near Monmouth Lake, Anstruther township. He reported the case to game headquarters in Lindsay and when driving conditions permit in the bush, the carcass will be brought out....East of Stony Lake in the newly-opened hunting grounds, guides Clarence and Goldie McIlmoyle and party of ten shot nine deer on opening day....The McGregor Hunt Club, "near Apsley", shot ten deer in the first two days of the chase ....When I think of hunters in tents these soggy, miserable days trying to keep warm with wet wood, working over an air-conditioned typewriter has its compensations....No deer hunting in Durham County. Northumberland wide open, Nov. 12-17, except in South Monaghan township.

Ladle In A Pot Of Gold

On The Elgin Marbles

MY spirit is too weak; mortality
Weighs heavily on me like unwilling sleep,
And each imagined pinnacle and steep
Of godlike hardship tells me I must die
Like a sick eagle looking at the sky.
Yet 'tis a gentle luxury to weep,
That I have not the cloudy winds to keep
Fresh for the opening of the morning's eye.
Such dim-conceived glories of the brain,
Bring round the heart an indescribable feud;
So do these wonders a most dizzy pain,
That mingles Grecian grandeur with the rude
Wasting of old Time—with a billowy main
A sun, a shadow of a magnitude.

Peterborough's War Memorial Under Night Lights

Peterborough's Famous $32,000 Allward Sculpture Erected In 1929 To Memory Of 717 Killed In Great War

By DONALD SWAIN

The story behind the building of Peterborough's war memorial in Confederation Square is a story of community co-operation and achievement.

The monument was paid for largely through the small donations of individual citizens and dedicated to the memory of the 717 men from this district who were killed serving overseas with the Canadian forces during the Great War of 1914-1918.

Immediately after World War 1, communities all across Canada began raising money to erect suitable monuments in memory of the men from those communities who died helping to defeat the Germany of Kaiser Wilhelm.

Peterborough was one of those communities. The city and surrounding county had made an impressive contribution to the war effort in proportion to its population.

Not Stereotyped

Consequently, it was felt that rather than erect a conventional type of monument similar to hundreds of others that were being built at the time, it would be better to go slowly, plan carefully and build a memorial truly worthy of the sacrifice of local boys who died on the battlefields of France and Belgium.

As a result, more than a decade passed before the memorial in Confederation Square opposite the city hall was unveiled.

Appropriately, the unveiling ceremony coincided with the opening of the centennial celebrations during Old Home week on Sunday June 30, 1929.

In the 22 years since the memorial was unveiled by Canon F. G. Scott, Archdeacon of Quebec and Director of Canadian Army Chaplain services, a new generation has grown up.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning there will be a civic ceremony at the cenotaph when wreaths will be laid on the memorial. Many of the younger people attending that ceremony, and likely older residents as well, may wonder about the meaning of the two bronze figures facing each other on the memorial's granite base.

These two figures symbolize the victorious Canadians and their allies, and the defeated Hun.

The enemy, still carrying the torch in his left hand which fired the villages of France and Belgium has dropped his sword and stopped short, throwing his head back and covering his eyes with his right arm as he sees the tall figure of a knight before him. This figure, represents the chivalry and valor of those from this district who died fighting the enemy.

Standing calm and dignified, this symbol of Canadian bravery extends a strong left arm in the direction of the enemy which conveys the unspoken warning and command "Come no further or take the consequences."

The sword is ready at his right hand and the enemy representing the hate, and blind fury of the foe, covers his face in despair, unable to face the consequences of defeat.

Distinguished Sculptor

This design was submitted by the distinguished Canadian sculptor, Walter S. Allward, and was approved by the Peterborough and County Citizens Memorial Committee early in June 1921. The first citizens' meeting to get the memorial started was held on December 11, 1920. The Peterborough and District Citizens' Memorial Committe was formed with the late Judge E. C. S. Huycke as chairman and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner as secretary.

The following June, Mr. Allward's design was approved and a finance committee was set up with G. H. Thompson being named treasurer. Other members of this committee were the late W. G. Morrow, the late Henry Rush, George A. Macdonald who later moved to Chicago and the late Ronald Denne.

At the same meeting, a committee of Miss L. Davidson, Mrs. R. Denne and Mrs. Robert Hartstone was named to obtain the names which were to be engraved on the pedestal of the memorial.

The wisdom of the committee's choice of Mr. Allward's design was confirmed shortly after, when he was commissioned by the Canadian Government to design the Canadian War Memorial at Vimy Ridge. However, this proved to be one of the factors which delayed the completion of the memorial until 1929.

Assistant Sculptor

For a time, it was feared that Mr. Allward's duties at Vimy Ridge would prevent his finishing the job for Peterborough. However, at the urging of the memorial committee, Mr. Allward obtained the assistance of Gilbert Bayes, a well known English sculptor to help him finish the contract according to the original plan.

The committee accepted this arrangement at a meeting on April 20, 1926. On May 21, 1928, the committee selected Confederation Square (then Central Park) as the site for the memorial, and council approved the committee's choice at its next meeting.

Plans then went ahead for completing the financing of the project, and arranging a program for its unveiling.

The local branch of the Red Cross started the ball rolling to raise money for the memorial. The city was divided up into districts and the ladies made a monthly door to door canvass. This practice was carried on over a period of two or three years. In 1921, the city council chipped in with a donation of $2,000 and the old 57th regiment contributed $1,500 to the fund. However the bulk of the money for the memorial which amounted to nearly $32,000 was raised through small individual contributions.

Today, a different type of memorial is being erected to commemorate the sacrifice of those who lost their lives in World War II: Recreation centres, community halls and arenas are being built instead of the stone and marble monuments which were dedicated to heroes of the first world conflict.

However, it was no ordinary memorial that the Peterborough and District Citizens' Memorial Committee presented to the city and county on June 30, 1929. It was in the words of Colonel Henry Osborne of the Imperial War Graves Commission who spoke at the unveiling " a valuable contribution to Canadian art and a memorial that will be increasingly cherished as the years pass."

It is, and will continue to be, "a thing of beauty" the committee intended it to be and which the sacrifice of those whose memory it keeps alive merited.

Money Sunk In Railways Lost By Rural Townships

By W. J. COTTRELL

Marmora and Lake township council was interested in two railroad projects in 1878 and 1872.

An application by H. Scott, of Peterborough and president of the Toronto and Ottawa Railway, asking for a council grant of $15,000 to this railway was the reason for a special council meeting in 1878.

This meeting, called by Reeve Thomas P. Pearce, was presented with Mr. Scott's application worded as follows: "to take into consideration the propriety of submitting a by-law to the electors of the united townships of Marmora and Lake to grant a bonus to said railway to the amount of $15,000."

This application was shelved due to a lack of co-operation in this issue by the Peterborough County council.

However, in 1872 the townships did make a railroad grant. The recipient was the Ontario and Quebec Railway. A by-law granted them $10,000.

A considerable portion of the Toronto and Ottawa railway was laid out between Madoc and Perth but was never destined to function. The fate of the Ontario and Quebec railway project is not revealed in subsequent council minutes.

Thomas Warren, one of Marmora's older residents, recalls accompanying one of the railway surveyors on his eastward trips from Marmora during his boyhood

The CPR coming into the picture at this time probably spelt the fate of other railroad projects.

Applications for shop and tavern licences received attention at the 1875 February council meeting. The following were given licences: G W. Bleecker and company, shop licence for village; James Barleysen, shop licence for township; Edwin P. Forde, shop licence for village; Gordon McWilliams, tavern licence for New Dominion Hotel; Richard Jones (father of Archie Jones) tavern licence for Provincial Hotel; W. W. McWilliams, tavern licence for McWilliams Hotel.

It was decided not to assess Marmora Cheese Factory at the May 25, 1875, court of revision. This factory was on the same site as the present one built in 1901.

A. W. Carscallen became a councillor in 1878. Election expenses for that year totalled $38.32.

Daddy-Long-Legs Predicts A N-E Wind At Sturgeon Pt.

By MILLER STEWART

Like any summer colony, Sandy Cove gets pretty pre-occupied about the weather, and weather predictions. There are two schools of thought. One puts it's faith in the CBC predictions from the Dominion Meteorological bureau —when these go astray, this school insists that we're not in Haliburton, but in Southern Georgian Bay region, or vice versa. There's another lot that put their money—and plan their picnics—on the pronouncements of Danny Riordon, the farmer who peddles vegetables, gossip, and folklore to the cottagers twice a week.

Danny's weather predictions are based on a great series or very equivocal proverbs—and on his "sciences". It took some careful and persistent probing to find out that Danny's "sciences" weren't learned disciplines, but his sinuses, which apparently give him trouble when the humidity gets close to precipitation. Any physicist will agree with Danny when he claims that it will soon rain when the milk bottles sweat, but Dan insists that a "daddy long legs" will always tell you where the wind is coming from if you hold it on your hand, and say "Greybear"—this is apparently an old Irish name for daddy-long-legs—"Greybear tell me where the wind'll come from, or I'll kill you quicker than grit"—whatever that means. Then Danny says that the insect will point with his legs to the quarter the wind will come from. Since the daddy-long-legs has eight legs, he's pretty sure to be close to the source of the next wind, if you wait long enough.

The Riordon folks came out from Ireland over a hundred years ago, but Dan still predicts that kind of summer weather we'll get, by feeling a flat rock on St. Patrick's Day. If the top of the stone is warm—that means that saint has turned the warm side uppermost, and the summer will be hot. On the other hand, a bad, rainy summer is pretty sure to be the result of someone giving away fire—even offering a man a light for his pipe—on Mayday. That's giving away the luck of the whole community for the whole summer long.

As early as midsummer, Danny can tell you what kind of a winter is going to follow, for he has a whole series of prognostications based on "the way how things grow". If the early onions have thick scales, that proves a hard winter is in store. If the lowest leaves of the corn are high on the stalk, the snow will be deep. If the squirrels start gathering nuts early—it will be a long winter. If the cabbage heads lean, it will be a windy one—and so on. But Danny will give up all his predictions if they run counter to what Old Billy Stonefish, the Indian, has to say.

On Thanksgiving week-end, we drove up to the cottage, and stopped off at Danny's for milk and potatoes. Danny was sure we were in for a long, tough winter, because he'd seen old Billy just before he went into the bush to guide some duck hunters, and Billy had told him all the signs were for a long, early winter. We passed Billy on the road a few minutes after leaving Danny's, so we stopped to pass the time of day. I told him that I had heard he predicted that we'd have an early winter, and asked him why he was so sure. "When the Department of Highways put up their snow-fences early—you can be sure of lost of snow—early," said Billy.

THE FAMILY SAVE 1862 ALL

ECONOMY IN BUTTER AND CHEESE

IN Germany the people of the humbler classes economize their butter, and render it more nutritive, by incorporating with it a certain quantity of potatoes. The process is to dress them by steam, then mash them with pestle or roller, mix them with the cream and churn all together. The butter comes as usual, and is made up in the ordinary manner, and salt is added to preserve it.

The addition of Potatoes to Cheese renders it not only more nutritive, but more easy of digestion. When the milk is set or curdled and has been drained from the whey for some hours, then take well-dressed potatoes, put them into a copper cullender, and force them through the holes, and then knead up the potatoes with the curd. When they are well mixed together, allow the mass to remain untouched for two or three days. Then work it up again, and put it into the moulds or vats commonly used.

A retired cheesemonger, who hated any allusion to the business that had enriched him, said to Charles Lamb, in the course of a discussion on the Poor Laws—"You must bear in mind, sir, that I have got rid of that sort of stuff which you poets call the "milk of human kindness" Lamb looked at him steadily, and gave acquiescence in these pithy words, "Yes, I am aware of that,—you turned it all into cheese several years ago".

Small Chance Geraniums Will Bloom Again During This Year

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Geraniums apparently were most flourishing this past summer, judging by the many requests from the gardeners who would like to continue growing them indoors.

Well, there are some indoor gardeners who, possessing the green thumb, will be successful, but I am afraid that failure will be the result in most cases.

Geraniums must have a sunny window and, while the window situation is not serious, the sunny situation offers quite a problem sometimes.

Geraniums must have a rest period between seasons. Therefore, the gardener cannot expect flowers both in summer and winter. The plant will continue to send out new leaves but, as a rule, growth is rather straggly unless the branches are pruned or the tips nipped back.

Winter-flowering geraniums are started from cuttings made in late spring and grown in pots during the summer.

The large geraniums one sees in bloom during the winter were not permitted to flower during the summer. Just as soon as the buds appear during warm weather madame gardener nips them right out.

So, if you have a few geranium plants which, for some reason or other did not bloom, you can hope for some flowers this winter if you keep them well-moistened and in a sunny window.

Do not allow the soil to become water-logged or soggy. Once a week, especially on a sunny day, soak the plant. The rest of the time water it only enough to keep it from drying out.

Do not feed unless the plants have stopped growing or the foliage is too pale. Use any good fertilizer. We like to use a liquid fertiliizer. Do not over-feed—geraniums do not require heavy fertilization.

Geranium benefit by a daily shower and the easiest method is to give them a thorough wetting under the kitchen sink faucet or perhaps a shower in the bathtub. They do not need rich soil nor a pot larger than an inch beyond the spread of the roots. Rich soil and a large pot combine to force a green growth at the expense of flowers.

Give them lots of light, water them carefully—don't oversoak.

Geraniums used for summer blooms may be kept over during the winter. Bring them indoors and cut back to six or eight inches and let stand in a cool, light room, watering lightly about once a week, until November. Then place them in a cool place in the basement for winter, away from light.

Water occasionally, about once in three weeks, to keep the plant from drying out. Next spring, repot and place the plants in a sunny window, feed and water until it is time to place out-of-doors again.

Care must be taken not to disturb during repotting. The possessor of an earth-covered cellar can resort to the old method of hanging the plant heads down from the cellar ceiling. To adopt this method in the basement today with its concrete floor and warm, dry atmosphere is to kill the plant through dry rot.

Gardening Questions

Q—Our teacher has us all stumped with this question, "How much water does a tree require each day?"—L. S.

A—The answer is much too complicated to print because the type of tree, its size, location, environment and soil are determining factors. However since a tree with a spread of 50 feet will throw off about 100 gallons of water a day through evaporation at least that amount must be available to the roots.

Q—How should daphne cneorum be pronounced and what sort of care do daphnes need?

A—Cneorum is the difficult part of this name. It is pronounced as though the "e" were omitted, ne-or-um. This is a capricious plant, thriving in some gardens and not in others. It seems to prefer good drainage. Use light soil or add sand and try growing it in several locations. Rock gardens usually prove best, probably because of the better drainage.

Q—My creeping-bent lawn, two years old and thriving up till two months ago, is now almost full of clover.—R. T.

A—Clover encroaches on weak turf and is seldom found in a vigorous well-established lawn. There is no specific remedy for clover. The best way to fight it is to increase the acidity of the soil by mixing sulphur with fertilizer, equal parts, each spring, feeding three or four times a year to encourage thicker growth and not cutting too close. If you do not watch out, clover will crowd out the bent.

The Torch of Freedom was Passed to Us

Remembrance Day 1951

As we pay silent homage to those who gave their lives that we might continue to enjoy Democracy, let us rededicate ourselves to a continuation of the principles for which they fought. We have freedom at the polls, freedom to participate in civic activities and, above all, freedom of thought and speech. Let us exercise these privileges of democracy wisely and to the fullest of our abilities — for this is the best way we can prove they did not die in vain.

A new pro mat character to Peterborough comes here for a main bout next Tuesday night. He is known as the Zebra, a grappler sporting a striped mask, who is rated as quite a villain in Toronto rings. He scales no less than 325 pounds but is fast for his bulk and he has never read a rule book. This Zebra is meeting Zorra, the French Tarzan, in the top bout and it's a cinch that the Frenchman will be getting the fan support. Colorful Zorra has become quite a popular guy in these parts, being a muscular, speedy husky who can use his feet "savate" style as easily as his hands. Lou Newman tackles Myron Cox in the semi-final, while newcomer Mike Padousis, chunky Greek, goes against Lou Sjoberg in the prelim.

Comes a booklet to the desk, published by the Canadian Standard Bred Horse Society and the Canadian Trotting Association, which at one time had Jim Coleman on the payroll. Devoted to the harness horse races, it's an interesting issue for those who follow the pacers and trotters. Quite a few do in this district. The standard bred now leads the thoroughbred in breeding figures in Canada, and harness meets have muscled in on the running races at Woodbine and other tracks. These heats are gaining much popularity in the States, also. Several owners of good harness horses live in Peterborough, and others are sprinkled throughout the district.

Pilot Patrick Does Oke

Coach Lynn Patrick of Boston Bruins comes in for a shot of praise from Scribe Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star. It may be of interest to hockey folks up this way on account of George (Red) Sullivan plays for Bruins, Davey Casey is with the chain on Boston Olympics, and the local junior "B" Oddfellows are also in the Bruins' fold. As are Kingston Vics, a junior "B" squad. Baz says Patrick has the Bruins in top condition and he gets a lot of mileage out of his players. "They work for him," says Baz, "which after all is the secret of successful coaching, we would think." It may be some time yet ere Milt Schmidt takes over as Boston coach, and then Lynn will be kicked upstairs to the front office.

Showing their oldtime hustle and scrappy spirit, the McGillis Eagles got off to a neat OHA senior "B" hockey start here last e'en, pasting Queen's 11-3. Plenty of scrambly hockey dished up but the polish will be acquired ere long. Ross Nicholls made some fine stops in the net and the defence got settled away after a shaky start to check well. Forwards were all over the ice at times but kept boring in. Queen's tried hard but were well beaten on the evening's play. While the Eagles' scoring was well spread over the lineup, we liked the work of Reg Stewart, Buck Legrow, Bert Hill, Doug Mortimer and Jim Munroe especially. Wilson and Brabin as newcomers showed promise, too. A little early to gauge the players and club, but the Eagles have one tilt tucked away that they won't have to worry about later.

Petes Suffer Bad Break

Down in Bella Villa last p.m., the Petes suffered a sad setback, losing their opener 11-3 to the Hawks and losing Goalie Camille Tremblay. The youthful cage custodian had two tendons cut in his wrist in the first period and was sent to hospital. A nasty accident. Ray Harding, who hasn't been out to practices, had to fill in, but the Hawks were hotter than halfway through a brush fire, with big Vern Goyer roaring down the lanes to notch five himself. Rest of their tallies were spread about, as West, Wade and Fryia scored for the Ellis outfit, Mason and Fryia each having an assist. A rough enough tilt with 17 penalties given. Mason and Barrett drew majors for fighting in the second. Petes' passing game was off. They're at Queen's on Monday.

A couple of colleens' cage contests in the YW gym last gloaming with plenty of wide-open play dished up. Neill's kept up their winning ways with a 35-11 decision over the CGE-ers, main snipers being W. Byers, S. Bestard, J. Castle and P. Stewart for them. D. Jackson led the losers. In the closer nightcap, Nurses broke into the victory column in their season's debut by beating Lindsay Grads 31-23. J. Plunkett was the Nurses' big gun, with J. Whiteside also effective. M. Owen, who plays softball summers, topped the losers at bat. Games next Friday: Black's vs. Normals, and Lindsay vs. CGE.

Neill's downed CGE 35-11 as Nurses defeated Lindsay Grads 31-23 in the YWCA last night in two lively girls' basketball fixtures. The nightcap saw the seasonal debut of these teams, both showing up well for an opening encounter. It was Neill's third win in as many starts of the young campaign.

Neill's rolled to a 20-6 margin at the half and had a 15-5 edge in the second stanza. W. Byers led them in scoring with eight points, six each going to Shirley Bestard, Jean Castle, and P. Stewart. Four apiece were gained by Joan Dunk and G. Poast, while M. Borland clicked on a free throw. They were sparked by Joan Plunkett, who counted no less than 15 points, all but one on baskets. Pat Martyn accounted for seven, Sue Slater four, Betty Taylor and Anne Matthews two each, and Lois Stackhouse one. Leading Lindsay was Marg Owen with seven, S. Algar clicking for four, as B. Green got three, two apiece being sniped by Ruth Beard, D. Copp, M. Vanstone, and S. Robertson. A single was tallied by R. Gilson. Teams

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

With all seven sheets of ice occupied, particularly with new members the 1951-52 season of the Curling Club was ushered in in grand style Friday evening.

There were no games scheduled—it was just an opening get-together night. Some of the older boys took many of the new ones in hand and gave 20-minute instructions. Then another group would try their luck and it went on that way from seven o'clock until 10:30. President F. Stenson was on hand, welcoming all and at the conclusion of play coffee was served by the ladies in the club's parlor.

Too much credit cannot be given to the committees, who, for the past month have worked hard preparing the club rooms and the rink in general.

Herb Bradburn, chairman of the property committee, did one swell job on the rink and Mrs. R. Morgan and her house committee exceeded all expectations in doing over the club parlors.

You'll have to come and see for yourself. Other committees have worked hard as well, but we will deal with them later on.

Tonight's mixed at 7:30 o'clock.

Bill Cribbis Leading

Bill Cribbis led men this week in the Mercantile Bowling League with an 852 triple and a 340 single. Kay Lowes topped the girls with a single of 324 and an 806 threesome. Loblaw's 2905 pinnage was best. Austin's blanked Bond's, as 3-1 wins went to Crowe's over Neill's, Utilities against A&P, and Braund's No. 2 over Prudential. Loblaw's and Braund's No. 1 split.

Kay Lowes had high average of 228, followed by Verna Hopkins 213, Shirley Bagnall 205, Zita Spencer 202, Marcelle Lake 189, Gladys Hamilton 188 and Elsie Penrose 188. Men's high: Bill Cribbis 238, Jack Martell 219, Bob Wilshaw 207, Gord Leonard 201, Harold Cawker 201.

Bombers Roll High

Glengarry's, Aces and Bombers shut out Corvettes, Tigers and Hurricanes respectively, while Lucky Strikes could garner only two points from Commandos this week in the YMCA senior girls' bowling circuit.

Flaherty 251, Dorothy Woods 250 and N. Hepburn and Shirley Heckman with 240 each. Bombers had high game of 1197, with Aces rolling 1111.

Hawks Defeat Petes, 11-3 As Losers' Goalie Injured

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 10—Maintaining a terrific 60-minute clip, the Belleville Hawks inaugarated the Senior "B" hockey season before nearly 1,500 fans here last night by handing the Petes, last year's group winners, a decisive 11-3 defeat.

The Hawks, flashing a hard-checking brand of hockey, were masters of the situation throughout the rugged battle, scoring three goals in the first period, outscoring the Petes 6-2 in the second and 2-1 in the third.

The game was halted 15 minutes late in the first period when Tremblay, youthful Peterborough goalie, sustained severed tendons in a wrist following a Hawk scramble near his goalmouth. He was rushed to the hospital here and underwent an operation; the tendons were joined sucessfully and the youngster will be alright, doctors said.

Vern Goyer picked up where he left off last season and the big Hawk centre had a field day. He scored five of the Hawks' goals and starred on a team that fairly scintillated throughout. The rest of the Hawks' goals were distributed with Coach Red Doran, Bastedo, W. Ardaugh, Day, Desjardins and Barrett getting singles. MacDonald was credited with three asists.

Scored In Second

The Petes did not enter the scoring picture until midway in the second period when Fryia blazed a shot past Leforte in the Hawks' net. Wade combined with Mason three minutes later when the Hawks were shorthanded to score the Petes' second marker. With four minutes to go in the third period West blasted Fryia's pass from well out high in a corner for the Petes last goal.

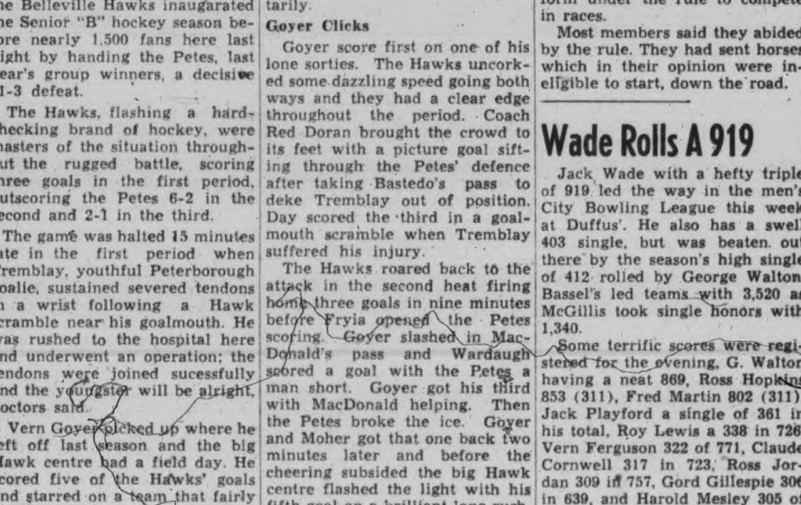
The game was rugged with both teams using the body. Checking was hard and Referee Art Casterton handed out 17 penalties with the Hawks getting the odd one. Majors were given Barrett and Mason for a rhubarb in the second period. Tempers flared in the third when seven sentences were dished out by the official but no damage resulted although fights threatened to break out momentarily.

Goyer Clicks

Goyer score first on one of his lone sorties. The Hawks uncorked some dazzling speed going both ways and they had a clear edge throughout the period. Coach Red Doran brought the crowd to its feet with a picture goal sifting through the Petes' defence after taking Bastedo's pass to deke Tremblay out of position. Day scored the third in a goalmouth scramble when Tremblay suffered his injury.

The Hawks roared back to the attack in the second heat firing home three goals in nine minutes before Fryia opened the Petes scoring. Goyer slashed in MacDonald's pass and Wardaugh scored a goal with the Petes a man short. Goyer got his third with MacDonald helping. Then the Petes broke the ice. Goyer and Moher got that one back two minutes later and before the cheering subsided the big Hawk centre flashed the light with his fifth goal on a brilliant lone rush. Wade reduced the score to 8-2 but Bastedo and Wardaugh raced in near the period end to add another Hawk tally.

Play was closer in the third heat with both teams checking hard and feelings beginning to crop out. The Petes gave Leforté some busy moments with the Hawks goalie kicking them out on several occasions. Harding too was hard pressed. Goyer hit the post twice while Doran sent the puck skidding by an open corner. Barrett fired home Dejardins' pass after four minutes and Desjardins added the final Hawk tally just before West fired home the Petes third goal.



Belleville: Goal, Leforet; defence, Semark and Schreider centre, Goyer; wings, Moher and MacDonald; subs, Jones, Desjardin, Barrett, Day, Doran, Wardhaugh, Bastedo, Greenblex:

Peterborough: Goal, Tremblay; defence, G. Leonard and E. Leonard centre, Wade; wings, Mason and Wyatt; subs, Collins, Garvey, Floyd, Fryia, West, Mortimer, Dugan, Wasson, Harding.

Referee, Art Casterton, Kingston; linesman, Dick Fitzpatrick, Belleville.

Bolt Leading In Golf Tourney

By KEN ALYTA

PINEHURST, NC, Nov. 10 (AP) —Tommy (Thunder) Bolt, who has made a habit of playing his best golf late in the year, is at it again.

The 33-year-old shotmaker from Houston, Tex., was a stroke ahead of his 50 rivals after 54 holes of the North and South Open Golf Tournament.

With today left open to avoid collision with college football, Tommy's successive rounds of 71-72-71—214 left him two under par and one stroke ahead of Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn.

Middlecoff, 36-hole leader at 142, slipped to 73 yesterday for 215.

The freckled Tennessean, winner of this tournament while an amateur six years ago, has won six tournaments and finished second in three others this year.

Discuss Regulations Barring Cheap Horses

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP). — Regulations which bar cheaper horses from competing on Ontario tracks are to be discussed at a special meeting of the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association.

They came under discussion Friday night as well at an association meeting during which members charged that the Ontario Racing Commission has been making a mistake or acting wrongly through misunderstanding in allowing horses not eligible to perform under the rule to compete in races.

Most members said they abided by the rule. They had sent horses which in their opinion were ineligible to start, down the road.

Wade Rolls A 919

Jack Wade with a hefty triple of 919 led the way in the men's City Bowling League this week at Duffus'. He also has a swell 403 single, but was beaten out there by the season's high single of 412 rolled by George Walton. Bassel's led teams with 3,520 as McGillis took single honors with 1,340.

Some terrific scores were registered for the evening, G. Walton having a neat 869, Ross Hopkins 853 (311), Fred Martin 802 (311), Jack Playford a single of 361 in his total, Roy Lewis a 338 in 726, Vern Ferguson 322 of 771, Claude Cornwell 317 in 723, Ross Jordan 309 in 757, Gord Gillespie 306 in 639, and Harold Mesley 305 of 654.

Shutouts were prominent with Bond's Teenagers rolling along to blank Kawartha. Clapper's did likewise DeLaval, as did Bassel's over Madill & Post, and Moore's against McGillis. The latter and Madill & Post continue to battle for the leadership, each with 36 points, as Clapper's and Bassel's are holding 28 each in next position, followed by Moore's 26, Sunoco's 24, Pin Boys 22, Anthony's 18, DeLaval 16 and Kawartha with six points.

Eagles Open Puck Season With An 11-3 Victory Over Queen's University

The local Eagles made their 1951-52 OHA senior "B" debut in auspicious fashion here last night by trimming Queen's of Kingston 11-3 before a fair-sized crowd in Civic Arena. It was a fast, lively tussle but marked with the usual early-season scrambly style of hockey with not too much polish in evidence. Play was generally clean but 15 penalties were handed out, eight to the visitors. Majors in the third period went to Stewart and McCormack for a brief flurry of fists. The latter player sat it out five times in the sin bin during the joust.

Eagles swept to a 5-2 lead in the first frame, and tallied the only two counters of the middle heat. They had a 4-1 margin in the third, outplaying their opponents in every period. They showed more hustle and drive from the enemy blue line in and checked in their oldtime boisterous manner. Goalie McIntyre went off with a two-stitch cut over the eye for 10 minutes in the final frame.

Show Balance

Despite the earliness of the season, Eagles showed a lot of power and balance, being solid from the goalie out. Their scoring was well spread around, two goals going to Buck Legrow and Reg Stewart, as singles were notched by Joe Rochetta, Jim Munroe, Doug Mortimer, George Brabin, Bill Crowley, Dootch Vitarelli and Bert Hill. Doug Mortimer also had three assists in a fine showing, two apiece being counted by Munroe, Jim Wilson and Hill. Single assists went to Rochetta, Legrow, Freddy Mortimer, Keith Montgomery and Vitarelli.

Wagar tallied all three counters for the visitors, as Brown, Robertson and McGaughey each rated an assist. The University boys were minus two subs, one player (Bourgeois) left early in the third after getting a bang on the head, and they ran a bit out of condition in the late stages. They battled hard and never quit trying, but were outclassed on the night's play. Penalties to them also proved costly.

Early Penalties

McCormack drew an early boarding penalty and Crowley followed for crosschecking. They were back when Montgomery got it for holding, and each side counted a goal in his absence, Wagar deking the defence out to score from Brown and McGaughey, but Rochetta getting it back with Munroe's rebound. McCormack went over again for interference and Munroe backhanded home a beauty on a solo rush. Stewart followed it up on a deflected shot with Montgomery and Wilson fashioning the play. Later, Wagar's partly screened shot caught the corner with the defence pulled aside. McCormack hit the trail again for tripping and Stewart scored neatly from Doug and Fred Mortimer with Doug getting another fast one from Wilson. All were back when Crowley drew a minor for slashing and a misconduct for arguing the point.

It was fast and scrambly in the second. Brabin tallied the sixth for Eagles on Hill's passout and, after Legrow had served a cross-checking penalty, Crowley whammed home a hot one from Rochetta after a corner faceoff in enemy territory. Rochetta was gated later for charging and play was speedy and even the rest of the route.

Came a Fight

Queen's pressed for a time in the third till McIntyre drew a tripping penalty which Shisko served for the netminder. Hill cashed in fast in a scramble, aided by Vitarelli and Legrow. The goalie went off for repairs and on his return, Legrow banged another by him, Doug Mortimer and Hill helping on it. Vitarelli added one from Doug Mortimer. Sliter was gated for elbowing, followed by McCormack for hooking. They were shy two for 12 seconds, Sliter then getting back and McGaughey going for elbowing to leave them short two again. Legrow scored Eagles' final marker from Munroe. All were back when McCormack and Stewart mixed it briefly and drew majors. Wagar wound up the sniping in a nice effort in close with a pass from Robertson. Legrow drew an interference penalty just before the gong. Teams:

Queen's: Goal, McIntyre; defence, Rudiak and McCormack; centre, Wagar; wings, Brown and McGaughey; alternates, Bourgeois, Wild, Sliter, Shisko, Murray and Robertson.

Eagles: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Munroe and Montgomery; centre, Rochetta; wings, Brabin and Crowley; alternates, Hill, Stewart, Vitarelli, Legrow, F. Mortimer, Wilson, D. Mortimer and Wootton.

Referee, J. Crombie; linesman, R. Quimet.

Junior Dukes Team To Beat Wallop Greenshirts 8-3

By The Canadian Press

With a month of Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" series action gone by, Coach Reg Hamilton's Toronto Marlboros have stamped themselves as the team to beat. The Junior Dukes ran their unbeaten streak to 12 games on Friday night, defeating Kitchener Greenshirts 8-3 in Kitchener. At the same time, second-place Guelph kept within striking distance, handing Toronto St. Michael's a 6-3 setback while Waterloo Hurricanes edged St. Catharines Teepees 4-3 in a second division battle.

All six OHA senior teams saw action Friday night, with the pace-setting Hamilton Tigers registering their fifth straight win, 4-2, over Stratford Indians. Other games saw Owen Sound overpower Sarnia Sailors 9-1 and Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen defeat Brantford Redmen 4-3.

Chalk Up Goals

Winger Eric Nesterenko, Marlboros' top scorer fattened his point total Friday night, scoring three goals. Chuck Lumsden scored a pair and Parker MacDonald, Ron Ingram and Ron Stewart added one each to the Marlboros' cause.

Kitchener scoring was taken care of by defencemen, with Jim Farrelli hitting for two and Simon once.

Ron Murphy, battling Nesterenko for the goal-scoring lead, drilled two goals in a space of 12 seconds to pace Guelph Biltmores. Other goals for the winners were added by Chuck Henderson, Ray Ross, Dean Prentice and Aldo Guidolin.

Jim Logan, Mike Ratchford and Bill Lea scored for Toronto.

Sensational netminding by Norm Defelice enabled Waterloo to eke out their triumph. Defelice blocked 41 shots as compared to 12 by Bud Smith, St. Catharines' goalie.

Teepees built a 3-0 lead on goals by Hank Ciesla, Wilf Roberts and Gord Myles, all in the opening period. Paul Oliver, Gerry Horton and Jack Wood evened the count for Waterloo in the second before Brooker scored the winner in the finale.

Sparks Mercurys

Veteran Tommy Burlington, the top scorer in the senior ranks, added two goals and three assists to his total in leading Owen Sound to victory. Roy Leckie and Gino Antoniazzi also fired two goals each and others went to Andy Grant, Ray McCallum and Doug Gillespie.

John Shedden spoiled Bob Gillson's shutout bid with Sarnia's only goal at 10:13 of the final period.

Kitchener-Waterloo overtook a two-goal lead, both goals tallied by Don Oberholtzer, then scored the winning marker in the final period. Wally Hnatiuk accounted for the other Redmen's goal while Maurice Levesque, with two, Ed Stankiewicz and Doug Verity, with one apiece, scored for the winners.

At Hamilton, the Tigers took their fifth game in a row with Doug Maher, Murray Comfort, Ron Kemp and Frank Liscombe doing the scoring. Jack White and Dinny Flanagan scored for Stratford in a game that featured rough play.

Five games, three tonight and a doubleheader in Toronto on Sunday, will make up junior action at the weekend.

Leafs Hoping To Break Jinx

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto Maple Leafs, out to bust a home-rink Saturday jinx, go gunning for the league leading Detroit Red Wings tonight. The game gives the second place Leafs an opportunity to bite into Wings' three point lead.

If they fail to do that tonight, coach Joe Primeau may have to join other coaches in buying field glasses to follow the Wings' progress at the top of the heap.

A win for Leafs tonight would bring them to within one point of Tommy Ivan's Red Wings. In the league's only other game tonight, Chicago Black Hawks will meet Montreal Canadiens in Montreal.

A Chicago triumph would break a last-place deadlock between Hawks and New York Rangers. Should Canadiens win, they will move into third place, one point to the good over Boston Bruins.

Leafs will have Tod Sloan back at his right wing slot on a line with captain Ted Kennedy and Sid Smith.

Sloan skated his way back into the Toronto lineup last night, about the same time as Rudy Migay, injured in a game at Chicago Thursday, learned he'd be out for as long as a month with torn ligaments.

Sloan was out of action for Leafs' two mid-week games because of an ankle sprain suffered in last Saturday's game at Toronto.

Red Wings will show up with their latest scoring threat—rookie Alex Delvecchio. The smooth ex-Oshawa junior player has labelled himself as a strong contender for rookie honors.

Richard Hit With Princess

CHARLOTTETOWN, Nov. 10—(CP)—Maurice (Rocket) Richard the fiery forward of National Hockey League fame, can take a bow; then curtsy with dignity.

Princess Elizabeth said Friday she's one of his fans.

This came out while the Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh were chatting during a Maritime Major Hockey League game between Charlottetown Islanders and Moncton Hawks.

Elizabeth referred to the National League game they saw between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers and said it was "a bit quiet." She would have liked to have seen the later game in which the Rocket scored a knockdown, the Princess told Mrs. Leo Lamoureux, wife of the Charlottetown coach.

(The later game was Wednesday's clash between Toronto Maple Leafs and Canadiens. Richard delivered a knockout punch to Bill Juzda, Toronto defenceman.)

The couple watched the first period of Friday's game. Moncton ended up with a 5-3 victory.

The Duke took a keen interest. He jumped up at the goals. He broke into a wide smile when a defenceman bowled over a couple of opponents.

Vancouver Team Hopped Up By Hypnotism Chalk Up Second PCHL Victory In A Row

By The Canadian Press.

Vancouver Canucks, hopped up by hypnotism, won their second Pacific Coast Hockey League victory in a row by blanking the league-leading New Westminster Royals 2-0 Friday night.

In the other league matches, Seattle beat Victoria 4-2 and Calgary edged Edmonton 5-3.

Ray Munro, professional hypnotist, again took the Vancouver team under his spell before game time and the boys came through again before a sell-out crowd of 5,500. Larry Popein scored both goals in the last period.

Munro first gave Canucks the treatment before Vancouver's game last Tuesday and they came up with their first win in 17 games, a 4-3 decision over Victoria.

Seattle's win over the Cougars Friday night enabled the ironmen to take over sole possession of second place. Cal Starns, George Homenuke, Stan Maxwell and Walt Samanski scored the Seattle goals. Bob Frampton and Ed Dorohy counted for Victoria.

Remember When—

The Canadian army team of officers won the International Military Team Jumping championship at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Gardens, New York, 14 years ago today, to climax a successful invasion of the big US meets. The Canadians defeated teams from the United States, Eire, the Netherlands and Belgium.

Strengthening Free Nations By Moral Re-armament

Cabinet ministers, members of parliaments from every political party, representatives of employers' federations and trade unions have been attending the 1951 World Assembly for Moral Re-Armament at Caux, Switzerland, which concludes this week.

Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, initiator of MRA, has been presiding over the sessions at Caux.

Congressman Charles B. Deane, of North Carolina, who headed an American delegation which included West Coast shipping and Longshoremen's representatives and delegates from the airlines in Miami, declared, "I have learned more about Europe and Asia in one week at Caux than in five years in the American Congress."

A former communist, a member of the old guard of Lenin, and once a close associate of Stalin, said of Caux, "This is where all fighters for a new world belong." He was supported by Hans Bjerkholt, a founder of the Norwegian Communist Party, who resigned from the party after attending last year's Caux Assembly. He said "MRA is a supernational thinking above all groups, nations and parties. It will give every man the kind of world he is longing for."

Eight thousand from 77 countries have attended this year's sessions at Caux. They have included 213 official industrial delegations, representatives from 13 airlines, longshoremen from 14 countries and students from 75 universities.

The conference presented evidence of Moral Re-Armament as a satisfying alternative to the sterile doctrines of communism and Maxist materialism, and emphasized the need for creating a world wide renaissance of moral and spiritual forces. Speakers stressed that the lack of international moral standards is due to the lack of individual moral standards.

Said a Philippine cabinet minister, "Here at Caux I have found what we need to strengthen the free nations."

Plan Mission At St. Paul's

A Bible Teaching Mission is being planned in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, November 27 to 30, with evening services at 8.00 o'clock and an afternoon service on Wednesday and Thursday at 3.00 o'clock. Rev. Robert Barr, M.A. minister of Knox Church, Toronto, will conduct the mission. An invitation is being extended to members of other churches in Peterborough and surrounding district. Mr. Barr is an outstanding preacher and Bible teacher. He was born in Scotland and there he commenced his ministry. He served in South Africa before coming to Toronto.

Petite Musician

VANCOUVER—(CP) — Miss Audrey Piggott, who will occupy the first cello position with the Vancouver Symphony this winter, is five feet 3½ inches tall, and so is her instrument. But Miss Piggott is a lot slimmer than the cello.

Sick Hunter Flown To Hospital

Gets Ulcer Attack At Long Lake, Now Recovering

LINDSAY, Nov. 10—A Lindsay hunter, Harry Hall, RR 4, Lindsay, took sick at a deer camp at Long Lake and had to be flown out by a Department of Lands and Forests aircraft.

He was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay and operated on for an ulcer. His wife said today he was getting along fine after the operation.

Hall's companion at the camp, Harry Murdock, tramped out to Nogies Creek for help Friday after Hall took sick Thursday.

From there he called the Lindsay office of the Department of Lands and Forests. District Forrester A. B. Wheatley called George Phillips at Algonquin Park headquarters and a pilot flew in Friday at noon and landed on the lake.

Mr. Hall was flown to Cameron Lake at Fenelon Falls, 18 air miles equivalent to 50 overland miles away. A Lindsay ambulance met the aircraft and rushed the man to hospital in Lindsay.

Magistrate Suggests Accused Bill Town

An irate Lindsay citizen who was billed for poll tax appeared before Magistrate E. A. Gee on Friday. He claimed, and proved, that he should not have to pay the tax and produced a ratepayer's tax receipt to prove it.

Tax collector F. Williamson collaborated this statement but showed from Town records that the accused had been notified three times and that he had not taken the trouble to clarify the matter.

What burned the accused more than anything was, he said, that he had lost two days work, and pay, over the matter. And he wanted to know how he was going to collect the amount. Magistrate Gee suggested that the accused bill the town of Lindsay for his loss.

"CREDENTIALS CORNERS" FOR DEER HUNTERS, at the Burleigh-Oregon Trail intersection, Highway 28, is a busy spot this weekend. A road-block manned by conservation officers of the Department of Lands and Forests stops all southbound traffic to gather statistics and check licenses of hunters. Ninety went through the net during four and one-half hours on Friday. In the Left photo, hunter Ray Denham of Owen Sound, watches officer Stanley Windsor examine his official box-car deer tag; officer Reginald McCullough makes notations on his report file. A small traffic jam of hunters' cars, shown in the Right photo, is being quickly checked by one of the wardens.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Hit-Run Rash Damages 4 Parked Cars

Four minor hit-and-run collisions were reported to city police Friday night.

Geoffrey J. Robinson, 716 Romaine Street, told Constable Harold Mesley that between 8:30 and 11:30 Friday evening, a passing car had struck his car, damaging the left front door. Mr. Robinson said his car had been parked on the south side of McCannan Avenue, in front of house 577.

At 11 pm, Constable Sherman Keliele was called to a Water Street address just north of London Street, where Edgar K. McLellan, 243 Wolsley Street, told him that an unknown car had struck his car which had been left on Water Street, and almost torn off the left rear fender.

Lost Fender

Donald Foster, 174 Aylmer Street, reported that at 7 pm he had just stepped out of his father's truck which had stopped for a red light at Hunter and Water Streets when he heard a crash. Looking around, Foster said he saw an auto fender spinning around on the road. He said the car had been coming north on Water Street, and had made a right hand turn on to Hunter Street without stopping, and in doing so had struck the front bumper of the truck. Foster took down the licence number of the car. Sergt. Gordon Puffer is investigating.

Richard Doris, 747 St. Mary's Street, reported that at 11:30 pm, he was driving east on Highway 7, a car came north, on Short Street, failed to stop at the intersection, and collided with his car, then drove off.

Later, a witness who had picked up a hub cap at the scene, gave police the licence number of the car. Constable Wilfred Perry is investigating.

A Gimmick

"You can't play on our hill," chorused a gang of Ashburnham youngsters on Friday evening when one lad appeared at their toboggan slide on Burnham St., with a bobsleigh. A confusion of youthful voices explained that his sharp runners would chop up the slide and it was simply no dice. He was about to press the point but the numbers apparently discouraged him. He was just turning sadly away, when one opportunist and his pal who appeared to be hitching rides with their friends suggested: "If you let us ride, we might be able to fix it."

NO COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Pending the return of Mayor Swanston and some of the aldermen from chasing deer with guns through the deep snow in the wilderness, meetings are suspended at the city hall. That announcement cancels the usual meeting of the finance committee on the second Monday of the month.

3,500 Small Fry To Take Part In Book Week

Approximately 3,500 Peterborough children are expected to take part in Young Canada's Book Week activities at the public library.

Young Canada's Book Week begins Monday.

Monday the special feature will be the film, Heidi, which will be shown to the youngsters after school. Tuesday, a puppet show will be presented.

The highlight of the week will be a visit by Mrs. Babs Brown of the CBC Cuckoo Clock House. Mrs. Brown will speak to the parents over CHEX Thursday afternoon and then to the children at the library. She will tell stories and also explain the story behind the sound effects used on her radio programs.

Book Fair

Friday a library book fair will be held. There will be five booths and children in the booths will be dressed to represent book characters. The book fair is the project of Grade 7 students at Queen Mary School.

Saturday the special activities will end with another film.

One of the special features of the week will be a magazine with illustrations, stories, articles and poems contributed by the children.

The original magazine with a cover made by Carl Dunford, a student of Central public school, will be on display in the boys' and girls' department of the library throughout the week.

Deer Hunters Checked By Game Wardens As Cars Start Stream South

By NICK NICKELS

The weekend road-block for deer hunters was set up at the Burleigh-Oregon Trail intersection, Highway 28, by the Department of Lands and Forests on Friday. It did a steady business as all south-bound cars and trucks were waved to the shoulder of the highway to declare what game, if any, they were carrying.

Friday afternoon it was evident that no one objected to being stopped. Indeed, many would have thought it odd, had they not been flagged down.

The cars came in singles, three and, sometimes, six at a time and they hailed from deer camps as far north as Killaloe and south along the highway from Bancroft, Lake St. Peter, Maynooth, Chandos, Apsley, Paudash, Big Cedar and Haultain.

Game Count

During the four and one-half hours, or up until mid-afternoon Friday, conservation officers Stan Windsor and Reg McCullough compiled the following figures: Seventy-seven resident and 12 non - resident hunters passed through. They carried a total of four bucks, ten does, 11 fawns and one bear. There were no elk during that period.

A short road-block session Monday afternoon showed a total of 44 deer going through the net. All of them were does.

Some carloads of hunters were coming south to Peterborough for supplies and would return to their camps for the start of a second week of hunting.

The officers expected the largest group would come south today and would dwindle off a bit on Sunday. There would also be several second-week parties going north this weekend.

No Slaughter

It was evident from the count that there had been no great deer slaughter this year. The wet weather on Wednesday and Thursday kept most hunters in camp and since few hounds were run on the two opening days,

Garage Workers Ask Conciliation

Peterborough garage employees, members of Local 234, Industrial Union of Automotive Employees (CCL), have applied to the department of labor for conciliation in their contract dispute with nine garage owners.

About 130 employees are affected. They want higher wage rates and improved working conditions.

The union was certified in August and since then they have been negotiating on a master contract. A conciliation officer has been unable to arrange an agreement and he is expected to recommend the appointment of a conciliation board.

$1.20 Minimum

During negotiations the union has been asking a minimum of $1.20 an hour for garage mechanics. But as this rate was set two years ago they also want an extra 15 cents to compensate for the rise in the cost of living.

Bargaining will begin anew when the conciliation board is appointed.

Garages affected are Cliffe Towle, Deeth & White, Reuben Wilson, Lillico, McWilliams, Gray's, Gillespie, Duffus and J. K. Hughes. Two other garages—Williamson's and Irwin-Godson, have not yet started negotiations though the local is certified at their garages.

L. A. Johnston is president of Local 234. The union is being assisted by Jim Murray, CCL representative.

Tax Collections Lagging Says Treasurer

City Treasurer A. S. Couper reports a slight decrease of 1.6 per cent in tax receipts up to October 31.

It may not be forgotten since budgeting time last February and early March, that the total of the 1951 tax roll moved up over the $2,000,000 mark for the first time in Peterborough's history. That means more money than ever collectible from the ratepayers.

Total of the 1951 tax roll money due and payable to the city treasury, is $2,235,323.42.

Up To 91%

The amount paid into the treasury at the end of October was $2,051,627.34, which is 91.78% of the roll.

Mr. Couper also quotes for comparison the corresponding figures for 1950:

Total of the tax roll $1,907,823.46

Total collected (Oct. 31) $1,781,619.80

That percentage of payment is 93.38.

"Of course we have two months to the end of the year," Mr. Couper said Friday, "and there is no doubt that tax payment for this year will continue. Total collection for 1950 was 95.8% at Dec. 31 last."

The receipts mentioned by Mr. Couper in his comparative statement are confined to the taxes due in each of these years. For instance, some of the outstanding 1950 taxes have been paid this year, but that sum is not included in the present totalling of 1951 receipts.

Mr. Couper's summary is reported for the information of the public. Possibly it may also serve as a reminder to some of those whose postponement of payment has caused the 1.6 per cent in decline for the period of 1951 to Oct. 31.

On the side of actual increase in the amount of receipts. Peterborough's taxpayers have paid at Oct. 31 this year $270,007.54 more than a year ago.

"Our tax arrears are low compared with the amount of the roll," Mr. Couper commented.

Hugh Stewart Builds Top Racing Stable

"The Stewart Story" in the second issue of Canadian Trotter and Pacer, a new monthly journal published in Toronto, is a sketch of "the man behind the success of Hiltop Farms" at Peterborough. This magazine is devoted to the interests of standardbred horses.

Written by the editor, Purvis Lawrason, it mentions the fact that Hugh Stewart has fitted 25 yearlings for the current fall sale at Harrisburg, Pa. Most of them were bred by Prince Direct of Hilltop stud.

"In his first venture a year ago at selling colts at the Standardbred Sales, Mr. Stewart found it to be greatly gratifying. He sold ten yearlings for an average of a little under $1,000."

Mr. Stewart left at the beginning of this week with his second consignment from Hilltop Farm. It has been generally realized here that Hilltop has been developing into one of the prominent standardbred establishments in Canada.

"Anyone wishing to buy a standardbred horse, farm, an interest in an airport, or a location for a summer cottage on beautiful Lake Chemong, would be well advised to journey up Peterborough way and stop for one or two days' visit. It takes two days to see everything fully at Hilltop Stock Farm which Hugh Stewart calls home.

Total Of 1,100 Acres

"Hugh and Mrs. Stewart, along with their four strapping sons, Hugh Jr., Jimmy, Alex and David, will be delighted to take you on a tour of the surrounding countryside to show you their extensive holdings which include six farms totalling an acreage of 1,100 three of which are used for pasturing mares and colts."

Mr. Lawrason writes that the first horse he saw was Prince Direct, a full brother of the world champion pacing gelding. Winnipeg, 1.57¾.

"That Prince Direct is a sire of fast and hardy racehorses there is not much doubt, with his sons Stewart Direct 2.03 and three-fifths separately timed in 2.00 in a race in California two years ago; Buddy Direct 2nd, 2.04 and three-fifths; and Stewart Worthy, 2.07 and two-fifths, a model pacer now retired to roam the lawns at the home farm.

"Prince Direct has several promising two year old pacers in training, Goodwill Jay, who had the railbirds gasping with his bursts of speed at Thorncliffe, and Stewart's Worthy Sister, regarded by the owner of Hilltop as "the best Stewart has ever had".

Trotting Division

"Second stallion at the farm is the trotting bred horse Big Gnu, a truly fine looking individual. If his first foals are any criterion of what is to be expected in the future, then Big Gun will be one of the best trotting sires in Canada. He is sired by Guy Abbey, sire of the world champion trotter, Greyhound, 1.55¼, and has as his fourth dam, Margaret Parrish, the foundation mare of the great Walnut Hall Farm.

"When Hugh Stewart bought Peter Brooke Jr., 2.04¼, the Peterborough breeding establishment added to its stallion roster one of the most popular sires ever to stand in the province of Quebec. A great race horse in his day, this good son of Peter Brooke 2.06½ and Miss Mehaff, 2.12¼, has stamped himself as a sire of speed and is now mated with aristocratic matrons at Hilltop.

"The broodmare ranks at the Stewart farm total 63 mares of which thirty have foals by their sides. Some of them are: Miss Iowalta 2.07 and three-fifths. In a two year campaign in Western Canada she was victorious in 193 dashes out of 197 starts, a feat that few horses have ever accomplished. This mare now has at her side a prodigious foal by Prince Direct.

"Katharine Tipton, another top notch race mare, sports a record of 2.06 at Roosevelt Raceway, where all the elite of the harness world hold forth.

"Betty Bars by Gratton Bars is a full sister to the great mare Merry Bars who, in turn, is the dam of the roan champion White Mountain Boy, 1.58 and one-fifth; and Victoria Grattan who is dam of four with records, including Betty Todd 2.07 and three-fifths and Diane Gratton 2.10 and two-fifths.

"Many sires are represented among the matrons, Grattan Bars, Lee Harvester, Bert Abbe, Mc I Win, Cardinal Prince, Abbedale and Billy Direct."

Mr. Lawrason discusses in several paragraphs, Stewart Direct, Beth Direct and Stewart's Worthy Sister.

"Hugh Stewart, a husky, good looking man in his early forties, takes a deep pride in his farm and horses; and well he should for it now ranks with the leading breeding establishments south of the border. You will find a total of 125 standardbreds in the barns and roaming the pastures of the farm. Each horse receives an individual inspection twice a month by the owner when he checks to see that they have not been injured while running loose with the other horses in the fields.

"One of the busiest men you will meet, Mr. Stewart must find 24 hours a day rather short, but on any visit to the farm you will find that he always has time to be the perfect host."

Overcoming Architectural Defects In Proper Selection of Wallpaper

Here are some questions and answers to help you overcome architectural defects and to make the most of attractive features in your home with wallpaper.

Q.—What type of wallpaper treatment will add to the apparent size of a small room?

A.—Wallpapers in the cool colors—blues, greys and greens—will add an air of spaciousness to a room. Have as few breaks in the room as possible—paint the woodwork to match the background color of the paper.

Three plain walls and one patterened wall will often add considerably to the illusion of size. Avoid vertical stripes in a small narrow room—this will only make the room appear narrower and higher.

If you have "flush" doors these might be papered to make them look in one with the walls. Wallpapers creating horizontal stripes around a room are also often effective in making a room appear larger.

Q.—How can a large barn-like room be made to appear smaller and more friendly?

A.—Wallpapers in warm colors such as pink or rose will give a large room a more inviting and intricate appearance. Large, bold patterns will help bring the walls closer together.

Q.—What type of wallpaper will help make the ceiling appear higher?

A.—Light ceiling tones do not necessarily make ceilings look higher. If the ceiling is low, the less attention called to it the better. If you have chosen a sidewall paper with a pink background for a low ceilinged room, put a plain pink paper on the ceiling. Then the background color of the walls flows up onto the ceiling, making it a part of the room instead of a separate surface.

Q.—What type of ceiling paper is most appropriate for a greater than normal room?

A.—Considerably more freedom may be taken in choosing a paper for high ceilings. If your sidewall is yellow with gray top colors, a gray ceiling may be desirable to accent the top color in the sidewall. Or should you have a sidewall of soft green with yellow flowers it would be perfectly fitting to use a yellow ceiling.

Q.—In what rooms are bold, large patterns most appropriate?

A.—Large patterns are generally best confined to large rooms—but there are plenty of exceptions. As the housewife may want a large-scaled design dress as a dashing extra for certain occasions—so may a large patterned paper be used for special spots in the home such as the breakfast nook, the bathroom, powder room, small sewing room, etc., which have limited use.

Conversely, there are large rooms where large patterns are out of place—as in rooms that are very broken up with doors, windows, fireplace, etc. In such a room, a large scale paper will be constantly interrupted. Here is a simple and safe rule—if a majority of the walls provide an opportunity to hang four or five widths of paper without interruption you can safely use a large design—if not, it is safer to stick to the small-scale design with over-all effect.

Q.—What to do with dormer windows?

A.—Avoid wallpapers with vertical lines in a room with a dormer—this would only emphasize the window's drawbacks.

Best choice of papers is a small over-all non-directional pattern with unobtrusive design—used on both walls and ceilings to check the irregularities of the dormer's cut—up space. Inside woodwork of the dormer should be painted in plain color which picks up the color of the paper. It is usually best to avoid papers with a striking or bold pattern in a room with a dormer.

Q.—What about woodwork?

A.—If you have a soft blue wall, paint the woodwork a matching blue, or a blue in a tone or so lighter or darker. If you have a predominating red or deep green or blue wall background, you will hardly choose red or green woodwork. You will find some interesting light top color in the wallpaper that can be picked up for the woodwork. If the design of the wallpaper is all in deep color tones, you can arbitrarily paint the woodwork an off-white, a pleasant gray or a warm beige.

If wallpapers colors are well related, you may be sure woodwork colors will harmonize.

HISTORIC WALL

The wall of the Vatican gardens at Rome contains part of the wall built by Pope Leo IV in AD 850.

HOUSE No. 1007. — Stone has added much to the charm of this one-storey home. It has given the facade a degree of solid dignity often lacking in small houses in a suburban development. One look at the floor plan will tell you that the architect produced a design that has apartment-like efficiency, with a liberal dash of "luxury living" for the homeowner with a medium income. Look at the handy position of the kitchen! It is close to the front door, service door and the dining room. Perhaps one of nicest features of the house is the ample living room, with the dining room separated from it only by an arch. This great sweep of room is unusual for a house of this size. The master bedroom is roomy, light and has "husband and wife" closets. The other bedroom is smaller, but has cross ventilation, and a door leading to the back terrace. Strange Meteors Puzzle Experts

ALBUQUERQUE, NM, Nov. 10 —(AP)—Unusual meteors flashing through southwestern skies have the experts puzzled.

In the last 11 days, seven fireballs of exceptional size—and with some other exceptional aspects—have zipped over a seven-state area. The Institute of Meteoritics at New Mexico University said that frequency has never been equalled in history.

"In fact," said Dr. Lincoln La Paz, head of the Institute, "there has never been a rate of meteorite fall in history that has been one-fifth as high as the present fall.

"If that rate should continue, I would suspect the phenomenon is not natural."

The fireballs reported by observers in Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, Utah and Nevada, don't behave like ordinary meteors, Dr. La Paz said.

They travel in straight lines when they should follow a curved course. Frequently they are silent although meteors of that size should make a definite noise. They have a greenish color not previously reported outside the southwest.

At Washington, the defence department was asked if the objects might be rockets or guided missiles fired from test areas at White Sands, NM, or elsewhere. A spokesman said the department knew nothing of any tests in the southwest at the time the flying objects were seen.

Mr. Justice Joseph Jean granted the injunction to Telesphore Gagnon to halt the opening of the picture scheduled for today.

Germany Chooses Envoys To Big Three Carefully

By HERMAN TIMM

BONN, Germany—(AP)—Western Germany's top diplomats have been chosen with one main idea in mind, making a hit with the big three allied powers.

Officials in the new foreign office at Bonn admittedly took great care in selecting diplomatic representatives in Washington, London and Paris. As representatives of a defeated nation, they must win confidence for the young German republic in the victor countries.

This requires tact, poise and determination.

The men are selected to suit the special tastes of the Americans, British and French.

To Washington has gone 45-year-old Heinz Krekeler, a newcomer to government service. Krekeler made his deputation as a chemical company executive. The foreign office hopes the Americans prefer a smart businessman to a career diplomat.

Krekeler first went to America 25 years ago for visits to New York and Albany. He returned in the 1930's and toured the south.

Probable Ambassador

After the war Krekeler joined the right-wing Free Democratic party. He was named consul-general in New York and then charge d'affaires in Washington. He is likely to become ambassador when the western powers scrap their occupation.

In London, Germany's diplomatic representative is a different type. Dr. Hans Schlange-Schoeningen, 65, is a professional politician and a member of the old Junker class of landholders.

Stout and balding he likes to drink port and lately has developed a strong interest in British boxing.

An agricultural expert, Schlange-Schoeningen joined Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's cabinet as Reich commissioner for settlement problems in Germany's eastern territories.

Hitler sent him back to his estates, where he continued agricultural study and wrote scientific books. When the war ended, he was called out of retirement to organize food distribution in the British zone and later West Germany.

He is a member of Adenauer's right-wing Christian Democratic party. In 1950 he became consul-general in London and was made charge d'affaires in June 1951.

Something New

New in the German diplomatic tradition is the German representative in Paris, Professor Wilhelm Hausenstein. The 69-year-old Hausenstein is an author, journalist and member of literary academies in Munich, Mainz and Sao Paulo. He lived for a year and a half in Paris and spent two years in Brussels. He has a fluent command of the French language.

Officials here hope the selection of Hausenstein will demonstrate that Germany wants to establish spiritual as well as political and economical relations with the French.

An official here commented wryly that Hausenstein knows nothing about strategic planning, another reason for the French to like him.

Hold Little Hope

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10 —(AP)—Scant hope was held today for the recovery of Mrs. Theresa Butler, whose life flickered again after she was pronounced dead. The 60-year-old widow was receiving treatment at the San Francisco Hospital, where doctors pronounced her condition as "very critical."

"He taught me a lesson"

"The other day my neighbour confessed to me that he was a bit upset. The doctor had told him that he had a heart murmur or something . . . and he was worrying about whether or not he could get more life insurance.

"Now I'm a pretty healthy fellow myself but he set me thinking. I want to save for my own future . . . and provide properly for my family, just in case.

"So I had a talk with The Mutual Life representative. 'There are plenty of ways to save' he said, 'but there's no way except life insurance that will provide both saving and protection. The thing to do is to be sure you've got enough for your needs, and to take it out while you are sure you can get it'."

"I learned about saving"

For many people saving is a tough job . . . unless a systematic plan is used. That's what life insurance does for you. It puts your saving programme in a definite place in your budget . . . makes you save.

Roebuck Praises Hospital Plan

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP) — Senator Arthur W. Roebuck said Friday night that the Liberal proposal for an Ontario hospital plan is sound because it calls for spreading the risk.

Speaking in a free-time broadcast over a CBC Ontario network in a Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign address in support of the Ontario Liberal party, he said:

"Mr. Thomson's proposal is something of a flash of genius, but it is really quite simple. He says let us spread the risk. That is the sound fundamental principle of all insurance arrangements and he finds that under government supervision and some contribution from the public purse, a complete coverage for hospital service for men and women and their families can be afforded at a remarkably low annual cost."

Alex Goldie Dies

GALT, Nov. 10 (CP)—Alex R. Goldie, 78, who represented Canadian manufacturers at several international labor conferences at Geneva, died Friday night. He was manager of the Goldie, McCullough Company, manufacturers of safes and office equipment, chairman of the board of Babcock Wilcox, steam power plant company and president of the Gore Fire Insurance Company.

Stockpiling Plan

OTTAWA, Nov. 10—(CP)—A plan has been worked out for the procuring, distributing and stockpiling of essential medical supplies for emergency use in Canada, Health Minister Martin said Friday night. This plan provides for the storing of these supplies in strategic locations across Canada and suggests ways of rotating perishable stocks to prevent spoilage, Mr. Martin said in a prepared talk to the Defence Medical Association of Canada.

Second Arrest

SYRACUSE, NY, Nov. 10 (AP) —Authorities announced the second arrest Friday in connection with a $250,000 diamond smuggling case. The diamonds were found earlier this week in a hotel toilet at Rouses Point, NY. Archie R. Denner, in charge of the United States customs station at Ogdenburg, said that Abram Winnik, 44, of Brussels, Belgium, had been arrested in New York City. Mrs. Adele Meppen, 41, a Brooklyn housewife, has been charged with smuggling the fortune in diamonds into the United States.

Won't Work Overtime

WINDSOR, Nov. 10 (CP)—A mechanized breakdown and a union refusal to allow its members to work overtime idled 1,800 men on the afternoon shift at the Ford Motor Company Friday.

Opposes Private Ownership Of Chains Of Newspapers

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, told the Commons Friday he is opposed to private individual ownership of chains of radio stations or newspapers.

"I do not think it is a healthy thing that one group of individuals should control four, five or six or even more stations like the Thomson group in Ontario, which also controls many local newspapers," he said.

Speaking during a debate on new CBC legislation, he said he thought the Massey Royal Commission report on arts, letters and sciences might have said more about concentration of ownership and control of radio stations in Canada.

"One of the menaces to freedom of speech and freedom of news and all the rest of it is the concentration of control over news services and facilities. It is noted in the report that 41 stations are owned in whole or in part by newspaper interests."

Strange Statement

He noted that Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) had suggested that facsimile broadcasting "should be most carefully controlled as it might compete with newspapers."

"I am always interested in hearing persons who believe so completely in free enterprise indicating how anxious they are to prevent competition with facilities of which they approve and sometimes—of course I am not saying this of the honourable member from Eglinton—in which they are directly interested.

"The concentration of the ownership of newspapers and radio stations means that the traditional freedom of the press is losing much of its meaning these days.

Yugoslavia Complains Against Pressure

PARIS, Nov. 10 (AP)—Yugoslavia formally complained to the United Nations assembly Friday that Russia and her satellites have been exercising aggressive pressure against Marshal Tito's land.

A memorandum submitted to the assembly said this pressure was "for the purpose of encroaching upon her sovereignty and threatening her territorial interegrity and national independence."

Yugoslavia often has complained about political and economic pressure against it by the Cominform countries since Tito withdrew from the block of people's democracies. This, however, was the first formal Yugoslav complaint in the United Nations against their former friends.

Export Goods Burned

BRANTFORD, Nov. 10—(CP) —Farm machinery for export valued at $300,000 was ruined Friday when fire razed the former army drill hall in which it was stored just outside Brantford. Low water pressure delayed firemen until booster pumps could be attached but Fire Chief Gordon Huff said he did not believe the building could have been saved even with higher pressure at the start.

Reserves Judgment

GODERICH, Nov. 10—(CP)— Judge T. M. Costello reserved judgment Friday on a partnership dispute which was handed down for final settlement in a previous supreme court ruling. In the action, plaintiff Fanny Schodler of Kitchener was found by Mr. Justice J. P. Kelly to be entitled to a joint interest in an Ashfield township farm owned by George Essery. Mr. Justice Kelly ordered that a settlement be worked out in a lower court.

Bonarlaw WA Meets

BONARLAW, Nov. 10 (ENS)— The November meeting of St. Mark's WA was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Stanley McInroy. Canon J. M. Brownlie opened the meeting. Mrs. Heath presided. Mrs. Wellman read the scripture lesson.

BROTHER AIRMEN—Air Marshal Sir Basil Embry, right, presently on a brief tour of Canada and the U.S., is shown above telling G. A. Monty, president of The Air Force Veterans' Association of Montreal of the records established by the Canadian Red Indian fighter squadron now in England for training purposes. He said he could not wish for a better squadron and stressed the value of Air Cadets and of exchange visits by Commonwealth and U.S. airmen.

Want Details Of Fees Paid Thomson

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP). — Attorney-General Porter Friday night repeated a demand for Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, to give details of "more than $340,000" he received as solicitor for handling Veterans' Land Act cases.

Speaking in support of John Yaremko, Progressive Conservative candidate for Toronto Bellwoods in the Nov. 22 Ontario general election, Mr. Porter said:

"The man (Thomson) said he thought he would have a clean election. A question I asked the other night appears to have made it an unclean election. I think it is strongly in the public interest that they should learn what sort of a transaction the man has entered into with Ottawa."

Mr. Porter made his original demand last week in a speech at Brantford. Mr. Thomson issued a statement in reply in which he said he handled many Veterans' Land Act cases for only one-fifth of the normal fee.

Mr. Porter also asked Friday night whether there is "a promise, a secret partnership" between Mr. Thomson and The Toronto Star. Referring to the prominence the paper gave a Thomson assertion that the government passed up $30,000,000 in federal health grants, he said:

"They now are accusing Premier Frost of responsibility for the deaths of thousands of people in this country. We cannot take this lying down from a man with his background."

Open Investigation

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 10—(CP) —Canadian National Railways Friday opened an inquiry into Wednesday night's accident at Brantford in which an employee was killed by a freight train which roared through the station past an unloading freight train. Julian Gumerniak received fatal injuries when the fast-moving freight struck a small tractor on which he was riding.

Request Inquiry

LONDON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Labor party sources said today the party has called for a government inquiry into the part played by some pro-Conservative industrial companies in the general election campaign. These informants said Morgan Phillips, general secretary of the party, has sent a letter to the director of public prosecutions questioning the role of these companies in the campaign.

Acknowledges Debt

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP)—Solon Low, Social Credit leader, told the Commons Friday that parliamentarians owe a "debt of gratitude" to the Canadian Association of Broadcasters for making free time available for broadcasts over their private stations.

Homes For Aged Policy Callous Thomson Charge

By The Canadian Press

Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal, Friday night attacked the Ontario Government's policy on homes for the aged as "callous, heartless and penny-pinching." In a Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign address in St. Catharines in support of Mayor Richard Robertson of St. Catharines, Liberal candidate for Welland, he accused the government of committing elderly persons to mental hospitals because they are destitute and have no place to live but are not mentally ill.

He said the Liberals, if elected, will replace the homes for the aged system and raise pensions by $10 a month.

The administration had undertaken a multi-million-dollar project of building homes for the aged across the province. It tried to give the public the impression that it was generously providing "palatial country homes" for pensioners.

"But it does not tell the public that it is collecting from every pensioner almost the entire pension cheque, of which 75 per cent is paid by the Dominion. Can anything be more heartless than this callous, penny-pinching policy of a government which has every year declared a multi-million-dollar surplus?"

Premier Frost spoke in the steel-producing city of Sault Ste. Marie in Northern Ontario. E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, on a swing through an industrial section of the Niagara peninsula addressed campaign rallies in Niagara Falls and Welland.

Answers Accusation

The premier replied to an accusation by Mr. Thomson Thursday night that the government passed up $30,000,000 in federal funds available for health purposes. Mr. Frost said the funds were provided specifically for the improvement of certain health standards. Ontario, which already has the highest standards in the country, had less access to them than some other provinces.

Mr. Frost said he is convinced that the greatest potential iron ore development in all Canada lies in the rugged Algoma district of Northern Ontario. He said the potential of the iron and steel industry in the Sault Ste. Marie area is "enormous" and that his government is doing everything possible to help it along.

Blames Government

Mr. Jolliffe, in his Niagara Falls speech, blamed a shortage of doctors and nurses in Ontario on "mismanagement" by the government. Because the government kept subsidy payments low, nurses in training had to work long hours at "slave wages" and few girls were attracted to the nursing profession. Doctors were scarce because few young men could afford medical training.

At Welland, he called the government "the hardest-hearted in the country" for refusing to supplement old-age pensions to keep pace with advances in living costs. If elected, the CCF would increase pensions, workmen's compensation and mother's allowances.

AB JOHN J. Church Plans New School For Women

TORONTO, Nov. 10. — A national financial campaign to raise $60,00 for a new training school for women workers of the United Church of Canada was discussed when representatives of the Woman's Missionary Society, the Woman's Association, graduates, presidents of conferences of the United Church and others met in Toronto. Representatives were present from Churchill, Sudbury, Ottawa, Sarnia, Cobalt, Hamilton, and Toronto.

The campaign will be launched in March, 1952, Mrs. A. Roger Self, chairman of the executive of the National Campaign Committee, announced and will be conducted by the women of the church. Committees will be set up in every conference of the United Church of Canada, and every congregation will be given objectives. Ministers and local presidents of the WMS and WA will set up committees of women in every congregation to conduct the campaign.

Mr. J. D. H. Hutchinson, principal of the United Church Training School, said that the campaign is made necessary because it is impossible for the school to remain permanently in its present buildings. Victoria University has provided a site for the new school on its campus.

The 300 graduates of the training school have pledged to assist in the campaign. Dean of the school, Miss K. Harriet Christie, is campaign executive secretary, and shortly leaves for the Maritimes to assist in organizing local committees.

Rev. J. Lavell Smith is chairman of the board of management of the school. Students are from all parts of Canada and overseas. Present enrolment of the school is the largest since church union.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

President Frank Shaughnessy of the International Baseball League said Friday the New York Giants "won't have a team in Ottawa next season" and no other sponsor of the triple-A baseball appears interested in coming to the capital.

(In their one season in the International League, Ottawa Giants this year finished second last in the eight-team loop. Attendance —about 135,000—was little better than for the capital's previous entry in the Class B Border League.)

"The New York Giants have told me definitely they will not operate a club in Ottawa again," he said in telephone conversation from New York to Ottawa.

"We are now negotiating with Newark and we have a couple of other offers for the franchise and at present it is only a question of a park," Shaughnessy said.

At Montreal, Leo Dandurand announced Friday night he had sold his share in the Montreal Big Four football Alouettes to Lew Hayman, coach and general manager.

Dandurand, who recently resigned as Als president, said Hayman bought his share under an understanding reached in 1948 by Hayman, Eric Craddock, Toronto sportsman and broker, and himself.

Dandurand did not mention the amount of cash involved.

Detroit Tigers of the American Baseball League Friday unconditionally released pitcher Frank Borowy and outfielder Charlie (King Kong) Keller. Tigers obtained Borowy from Pittsburgh in August of 1950. Keller came to the Detroit club in December, 1949, after he was released by New York Yankees.

Vatican Gives Explanation Of Recent Ruling

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 10. — (Reuters) — Authoritative commentators here said only mistranslation of the Pope's Italian speech, or complete misunderstanding of its sense, could have led Church of England authorities to charge that he insisted the child's life must be preferred above the mother's.

Professor Luigi Cattaneo, Roman Catholic director of the obstetric and gynaecological clinic of Rome University, said:

"The Pope was referring solely to abortion, deliberate and direct abortion, when he laid down that in no circumstances may an innocent human life, born or unborn, be done away with."

In the passage of his speech 10 days ago which aroused the controversy, the Pope said: "Every human being, even the baby in the mother's womb, has right to life immediately from God—not from the parents, nor from any human society or authority.

"Therefore there exists no man, no human authority, no science, no medical, eugenic, social, economic or moral 'guide' which can show or give valid jurisdicial title for direct, deliberate disposition of an innocent human life, that is to say, a disposition which aims at its destruction either as a goal or as a means to another goal which may be in no way illicit.

Gives Illustration

"Thus for example, to save the life of the mother is a most noble end; but the direct killing of the baby as a means to this end is not lawful."

Cattaneo said the Pope's meaning could be illustrated as follows: "If I, as a doctor, am confronted by a pregnant woman suffering from cancer of the uterus, I operate on her.

"Her pregnancy will be interrupted by the operation, but as an indirect result. This does not amount to the direct action condemned by the Pope."

Cattaneo added that modern doctors are rarely faced with a case of equal choice between the lives of mother and child, since Caesarian section made it possible in most cases to have both, or at least to save both.

The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Roamano, in an obviously highly authoritative article, said that in a case of equal choice between the two lives "the decision belongs to the doctor, who must do everything to save both mother and child."

1950 Spending In Peterborough At High Level

(Special to the Examiner)

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—With incomes high in Peterborough, local families were able to allot a greater part of their earnings toward more luxurious living in 1950. This was noticeable, in large measure, in more liberal spending in food stores.

It was also observed in the ability of Peterborough residents to indulge more freely in automotive purchases, which correlates closely with living standards in normal years. The spending increase was greater than was called for to meet the rise in living costs.

The facts are brought out in Sales Management's current copyright study, covering Canada and the United States, showing how money is spent in each community.

Food Bill

The food bill in Peterborough in 1950 came to $7,832,000, as against $7,491,000 the previous year. Divided by the number of local families, this represented purchases in grocery stores, meat markets, delicatessens and the like of $750 per family.

This was more than the average Canadian family spent for food, $545 a year. It was greater, too, than was spent generally in the Province of Ontario, $575 per family.

How much emphasis is placed on food locally is shown by the fact that stores selling edibles receive 22 per cent of all the city's retail business.

An examination of other categories of retail business, used as indexes in the study, also bears out the indication that Peterborough is a flourishing market.

Local sales of automotive equipment, including cars and parts, farm machinery and such, amounted to $5,301,000 last year, or 15 per cent of the total retail business. General merchandise purchases totalled $3,355,000, more than 9 per cent. Drug store sales came to $672,000, taking 2 per cent of the consumer dollar.

Better earnings made possible the greater retail activity. Local residents enjoyed a net income last year, after taxes, of $40,295,000, compared with their 1949 income of $36,116,000.

Get Too Weak To Hang On Some Die As Rescue Near

By IVERS KELLY

PORT ANGELES, Wash., Nov. 10 — Survivors of the burned freighter George S. Walton reached land Friday. The first 12 men ashore were from a lifeboat that had originally held 13. The 13th man died with his hands on the rungs of the ladder that led to safety.

Some men who bailed all night to keep heavy steel lifeboats afloat were drowned while rescue ships stood beside them. In all, 30 were saved by various vessels from the grain ship which started to burn Tuesday in a freezing gale. Six died in one of the west coast's worst sea disasters of the past decade.

Survivors were taken to this port instead of BC ports so medical aid might be provided more quickly.

Ralph E. Pedersen said after he was brought here aboard Kenkon Mau: "I watched four of my buddies drown within reach of the Kenkon Maru. They were too cold by just a few minutes. One man had his hand on the rung of the ladder reaching to safety when he slithered exhausted into the sea and drowned.

"The Japanese captain made two passes at Second Mate Johnson's lifeboat near us. On the third try he was successful. Seven of the 11 men came up the Jacob's ladder.

"The other four were too tired. They just sat in the boat, which capsized when another pass was made. Only Second Cook Olsen could scramble on to the overturned boat.

Beautiful Cast

"A Japanese sailor made a beautiful cast to him with a line. It fell on Olsen's hand but he was too weak and could make only what you might call a lazy wave at it. Then he went down.

"The men in the third mate's boat were lucky. They could hear planes but they weren't seen. They watched a Greek ship pick up their buddies in another boat but their rockets were too wet to signal her. They gave up hope of rescue and huddled under canvas.

"Meanwhile Coast Guard Skipper B. P. Clark plotted eight different positions where they might drift and he started out to check each one. The men under the tarpaulin had to crawl out to bail their boat and that happened at one of the plotted points. They saw the Coast Guard cutter's light and attracted the crew's attention. They had been adrift 36 hours."

Two Old Parties Battling For Northumberland Seat

Representatives of Canada's two oldest political parties are contesting the Northumberland county seat in the provincial legislature.

For the Progressive Conservatives is the Hon. William A. Goodfellow, minister of public welfare, who won the seat in the 1948 election with a majority of 3,047.

Liberal candidate Charles Johnston is making his first bid for the provincial legislature. His will be a tough battle against Mr. Goodfellow, a popular veteran of municipal and provincial elections.

CONTESTING NORTHUMBERLAND RIDING for Progressive Conservatives and Liberals are these two candidates: the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow (LEFT), Minister of Public Welfare, and Charles Johnston (RIGHT), member of Cobourg town council. This is Mr. Johnston's first attempt to be elected; Mr. Goodfellow has been a member of the provincial house since 1943, a cabinet minister since 1945.

William Arthur Goodfellow celebrated his 50th birthday this year as Minister of Public Welfare for the province of Ontario. Mr. Goodfellow was born in 1901 in Brighton township, a son of Charles Goodfellow and Martha Valleau.

His life in the municipality after he graduated from Warkworth high school was a busy one. He was one of the youngest township councillors in the province, being elected to Brighton township council at the age of 21, in 1922.

A successful farmer, his agricultural interests were not specialized, and his farming could be described as "general." Poultry and dairy cattle, grain and fruit, none to any large degree, were the crops from his farm. For several years, he was a vice-president of the Northumberland County Federation of Agriculture.

From the position of councillor he moved up to deputy-reeve, and then to reeve, spending in all eight years in the political life of Brighton township, and serving on the Northumberland county council. At other times he served as clerk and treasurer of the township.

In 1943, he was nominated as Conservative candidate in Northumberland riding, and was elected. He was a member of the short-lived Drew administration of 1943-45, and was re-elected in 1945.

That same year, he was elevated to cabinet rank, taking the post of Minister of Public Welfare, which he has held and administered capably since.

To return to his private life: in 1942 he married Dora Philp (a sister of Magistrate W. R. Philp of Peterborough) and they have five children—four daughters and one son.

Liberal candidate Charles Johnston, opposing the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow in Northumberland county, is a native of Cobourg, being born there in 1917. He was educated in Cobourg public school and collegiate.

A Navy veteran of the Second World War, he was at one time president of the Cobourg Allied Labor Council. His interests in athletics led him to become a member of the famed Cobourg Galloping Ghosts and of that town's champion softball team of 1946-47.

In addition, he played on a number of Cobourg lacrosse teams, and at present referees town hockey games.

For the past several years, he has been a member of Cobourg town council, and at present is chairman of the council's fire, water and light committee.

Mr. Johnston was nominated as Liberal candidate at a party rally in Warkworth several weeks ago.

He is married to the former Olive Lee of Harwood, and they have four children, all girls.

4 Youths Sent To Reformatory In Rape Case

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP). — Four youths Friday were given reformatory terms for raping a 15-year-old girl. Five others were acquitted on similar charges in a different case.

The four youths convicted were charged with raping the girl in a west-central park, Christie Pits, last May. They were tried Tuesday.

One juvenile, termed the "admitted leader" of the gang by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale, was sentenced to 18 months' definite and one year indeterminate.

His companions, Robert Blair 21, and another juvenile were each sentenced to one year definite and six months indeterminate. Donald O'Brien 17, on the same charge, was given four months definite and two months indeterminate. A fifth person, a juvenile, will appear for trial on December 3.

In the other case, the five youths were charged with attacking a girl, also 15, in a car last May. They were found innocent yesterday and freed. The youths are William Coutts 18, Harold Ashby 18, William Morton 17, William Bartlett 19, and Joseph Sweeney 18.

Group Capt. Newson Transferred To Trenton

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP). — Group Capt. William Newson, DSO, DFC, 34, of Victoria, commanding officer of the RCAF station at Centralia, has been transferred to training command headquarters at Trenton, air force headquarters announced Friday.

Group Capt. Newson has been commanding officer at Centralia since 1949. He will be succeeded by Group Capt. Wilfred Bean, OBE, 39, of Kitchener.

During the Second World War, Group Capt. Newson won the Distinguished Service Order and the Distinguished Flying Cross for gallantry against the enemy during two tours of operations.

A native of Calgary, he was educated at the Royal Military College at Kingston, and is a graduate of the RCAF Staff College at Toronto.

Group Capt. Bean has served at air force headquarters for the last three years in a senior staff officer position. During the war he commanded 415 Torpedo-Bomber Squadron in England.

Approve Pensions

QUEBEC, Nov. 10—(CP)—Quebec Legislative Assembly approved unanimously Friday a government bill for old age pensions at 65. The Liberal opposition in the elected Provincial house accepted the bill with reservations. An independent member of the House thought the term "Old Age Pensions" was not appropriate for the 40,000 Quebec citizens aged 65 to 69 who will get the $40 monthly allowances from Jan. 1.

Chinese Crew Without Country

VANCOUVER—(CP)—A Chinese ship with a crew of 38 "men without a country" arrived in Vancouver recently.

She was the S.S. Hai Lieh, the first Chinese ship to enter port of Vancouver since the Communists took over the country. She flies the Nationalist flag.

The trim 10,000 tonner is one of a dozen tramp freighters owned by the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company, an 80-year-old firm, now set up in exile headquarters in Taipeh, Formosa.

None of the crew has seen his home on the mainland for more than two years.

The only contact now with families and loved ones is by letters smuggled out of the country. Any hint of how they are transmitted could lead to death or imprisonment for the couriers.

And the members of the crew don't know when they will see their homes again.

"No one knows for sure what they would do to us," said Ho Tsun, second officer of the ship," but we can imagine. It will be many years before we see our homeland again, maybe never."

Hundreds of everyday uses for Nickel have been developed by the Nickel industry through a planned program of research. Today a large share of Canada's Nickel production is being diverted from peacetime uses into channels for preparedness. So the Nickel mine facilities, greatly expanded over the past decade, are again being operated at peak capacity. Toronto Speaker At St. Paul's WMS

Thankoffering meeting of the senior society of St. Paul's WMS was held on Friday afternoon. It was opened by the call to worship by the president, Mrs. W. M. Perks. Mrs. E. Howson took the devotions, her subject being "Our Blessings".

Mrs. Don Hendren of Lakefield sang two beautiful solos with piano accompaniment by Mrs. G. W. Craw.

Mrs. O. M. Steer gave the offertory prayer. The special speaker, Mrs. A. J. Cherry of Toronto, was introduced by the president. Her enthusiasm for her subject, "Christian Literature" held the hearers attention throughout. She likened it to an open door, which proves to be a golden opportunity to send the gospel to millions in other lands. Miss Mary Lees voiced the appreciation of the society, to the speaker, the singer, and her accompanist. The meeting closed with benediction by Mrs. C. A. Boyd.

Tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. A. Sollitt, Mrs. John McIntyre, Mrs. L. R. Mitchell and Mrs. H. A. Marsh.

Curling Club Tea Held In Newly Decorated Lounge

Opening business meeting and tea of the Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club, Friday afternoon, announced the beginning of the '51-'52 curling season. New members will be given lessons during the coming week and the scheduled games will begin on Monady, the 19th.

President Mrs. T. F. Doughty introduced the new curlers and the social and unattached members for the tea.

Special mention was made of the newly decorated lounge, now with walls painted a soft rose shade and with gay chintz drapes at the front. The painting was done by the members of Mrs. R. Morgan's committee. The ladies are also well pleased that window space has been extended making lots of room to watch the games from the gallery. Alterations in the downstair lobby are also highly approved.

Tea arrangements were in charge of the social convener Mrs. L. H. Bearne and her committee of Mrs. J. Wocker, Mrs. R. Dixon, Mrs. R. Green, Mrs. W. Archibald, Mrs. H. M. Yelland, Mrs. H. Dulmage, Mrs. M. Crough, and Mrs. H. Inman.

Past presidents Mrs. R. H. Turner and Mrs. J. C. Green presided at the tea table on which there was a bouquet of bright chrysanthemums. Assisting to serve were one-year players, Mrs. R. Faryon, Mrs. H. Northrop, Mrs. A. Neal and Mrs. A. Clark.

WHEN PRINCESS ELIZABETH arrived at Dorval Airport to begin her Canadian visit, she wore black suede oxfords which have since been duplicated by a Canadian manufacturer. Bound to be popular in Canada, the Princess Elizabeth model, above, is available in black or color, a suede, six-eyelet tied oxford with scalloped topline and delicate cutout design on vamp and quarter.

Coiffure Ball Is Showing Of Hair Stylings

The Coiffure Ball might also be called The Show of Fashionable Hair Stylings, for, at this event Friday evening the ladies were looking like models with "hairdos" created for this special occasion and in keeping with their lovely formal attire. Usually the hairdressers of Peterborough are too busy to do elaborate coiffures for themselves, but a little overtime for their own dance had very desirable results.

However, the customer looking out for a new hair style idea would have some difficulty choosing from about 200 variations to be seen at the Club Aragon. Some salons would seem to favor the short "bang" style, others the "upsweep" for short or long hair, and still others the very trim cut which can be enhanced with glittering crystals for the evening.

The good permanent is still the basis for most hair stylings, such as worn by Mrs. Eva Clark, president of the Hairdressers' Association, who drew the tickets giving away five permanent waves to lucky guests.

To help the "in between" care at home, the hairdressers gave out bottles of shampoo and hair lotion as favors at the door. Prizes for the spot dances were products donated by the beauty salons and their business friends.

Two radios were given away as door prizes.

Attractive decorations were indicative of the sponsorship, with silhouettes framed in silver showed beautiful line and contour of a well-coifed head.

Mrs. Fred Chase Hostess To WMS

HAVELOCK, Nov. 10 (ENS).— "The Church Serving the Nations" was the theme of the study at the November meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Havelock United Church held at the home of Mrs. Fred Chase on Thursday. Mrs. H. R. Haacke was in charge of the study assisted by Mrs. H. Agnew and Mrs. A. Anderson. The worship period was led by Mrs. C. Spencer. A splendid report of the WMS district rally held recently at Cottesloe was given by Mrs. R. G. Newman.

The president, Mrs. G. W. Chiles presided for the business period when arrangements were made for the annual fall thankoffering service on Sunday evening, November 18, when the Rev. R. G. Newman will gave an address on Japan, illustrated with lantern slides. Mr. Newman has served a number of years as a missionary in Japan and will thus be able to give authentic information on conditions in that country.

A solo was sung by Mrs. Chase. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

Meat Cutting Added Feature At Cooking School

Looking forward with anticipation to next Monday and Tuesday evenings are those with tickets to the cooking school sponsored by the Peter Robinson Chapter, IODE, which is being held in the Collegiate auditorium.

They not only anticipate picking up some useful knowledge on cooking but also learning something more about meat cuts and how to buy advantageously. A specialist in the butchering art will come from Toronto to demonstrate the proper cutting up of a beef carcass.

Then there will be more than 50 door prizes given to lucky ticket holders each evening, and it is rumored that the cuts of meat are also to be given away as draw prizes. The prizes donated by local stores and business men range from perfume to lamps and electric appliances.

The cooking instructor will be assisted by several senior girls, and Andy Rutter will be master of ceremonies.

Regent Mrs. Harold Baker will also assist on the stage, and Mrs. D. Munro will be pianist.

Chapter members assisting with tickets and ushering on Monday evening will be Mrs. K. Tedford, Miss Doris Burgess, Mrs. R. Lewis, Mrs. H. Chown, Mrs. S. Braund, Miss Rachel Young, Mrs. N. Hamley, Mrs. G. Coleman Jr., Mrs. W. Hinds, Mrs. P. Roper, Mrs. F. Buckland, Mrs. J. Heffernan, Mrs. M. Hardill and Mrs. D. Ketcheson. Treasurers will be Mrs. F. Jobbitt, Mrs. C. L. Upper, Miss Rose Mulholland and Mrs. H. Buller.

Those taking over the duties on Tuesday evening will be Mrs. H. I. Keefer, Mrs. R. Gamble, Mrs. W. Jeffries, Mrs. W. Fitzgerald, Mrs. L. Mitchell, Mrs. L. Ingram, Mrs. P. Sanders, Mrs. G. Hill, Mrs. K. Tedford, Mrs. N. Gell, Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. M. Hardill, Mrs. E. L. Sackville, Miss Mildred Bailey, and as treasurers, Mrs. C. L. Upper Mrs. N. Hamley, Miss Rose Mulholland and Mrs. W. L. Hardwicke.

Gifts, Prizes At Sacred Heart Christmas Bazaar

The first Christmas bazaar to be held by the Catholic Women's League of Sacred Heart Church opened at six pm Friday and continued with splendid success until late evening. It will reopen at the same hour tonight.

President Mrs. H. J. Masterson originated the idea of the bazaar at this time of year, instead of in summer as formerly. Members co-operated in every respect and assisted with decorations that turned the church basement into a combination of Christmas toyland and fall fair. Articles suitable for gifts were featured at most booths.

Men of the parish took over operation of the wheels of chance and the prizes were donated by business men of the city. Mrs. Masterson reports she found everyone approached very willing to contribute and more generous that she dared to hope.

The tea garden—an area roped off with Christmas streamers with Santa Claus figures at the entrance inviting guests to the small tables, each with a Christmas tablecloth and pretty table decoration—provided supper to many of the Friday evening attendants who came directly from work to the bazaar, wrapped sandwiches and cookies were supplied with the tea. Mrs. M. Viscoff was convener and her assistants were Mrs. Jos. Stewart, Mrs. R. McCabe and Miss Helen O'Toole.

The conveners of the various booths were as follows: Mrs. M. Sheehan, home baking; Mrs. V. Flynn, the "white elephant" table, Mrs. E. Hickey, potted plants; Mrs. John MacCallum, sewing; Mrs. N. Collins, the "Three B. Booth" (baby, bedroom and bath); Miss Anne LaPlante, the CYO candy booth; Miss H. Kubica, St. Peter's High School booth with statutes and figurines for sale; Mrs. S. Gilmour, fish pond; Mrs. O. Hallihan, raffle wheel for large articles; Mrs. V. Shaughnessy and Mrs. W. Meagher, the doll booth.

Attending the various games were Messrs. Neil Collins, Clare Grady, Fergus Moher, F. Heary, H. J. Masterson, V. Flynn and Ray Fitzgerald.

Fashion Flashes

Lots of fashion in many of the new short coats, both straight and on barrel lines. Yarn dyed gray chinchilla cloth is used for a good knee-length coat, marked by a distinctive yoke cut straight across in front and pointed at the back, with triangular inserts at the shoulders. One-button closing beneath a high, wrappy collar. High-placed slit pockets.

✧ ✧ ✧

It's a big season for good and inexpensive basics. One such is a wool jersey, the deep oval neckline, short sleeves and curved hip pockets, all velveteen-bound, with matching velveteen belt. Full skirt is perfect for crinoline petticoats.

✧ ✧ ✧

It's magic! That's the only word for a new convertible wedding dress. The design is in white silk satin with all-over lace. It is basically strapless, being done on princess lines with a full skirt. A tiny jacket with a standaway neckline covers up for semi-formal wedding wear. Then a solid overskirt train can be fastened on at the waist for a formal wedding.

✧ ✧ ✧

New attention to Hudson seal has resulted in very attractive coats and wraps in inky-black dyed muskrat. Smart in a short-length stroller coat with an intricate braided frog closing the mandarin neckline, and huge sleeves with very deep turned-back cuffs.

✧ ✧ ✧

Discreet glitter marks many of the new short-skirted dinner dresses. In one dress, a high-necked, long-sleeved dull silk jersey top is worn with a full skirt of black Chantilly-type lace all-over embroidered in tiny sequins and jet beads. Hips are lightly padded, and there is a silk faille underskirt A band of tiny rhinestones marks neckline and cuffs.

✧ ✧ ✧

A bargain for the restricted wardrobe is the blouse that is good with a dressy skirt or with dressy at-home slacks. Shantung taffeta in wide range of beautiful colors, is used for a blouse with a dropped shoulderline and full sleeves scattered with tiny black silk cord tassels. Collar and front closing are piped in black velvet.

✧ ✧ ✧

No need of a collar on your coat if you don't want one. Many of the nicest coats manage to do without collars, as does one good model of deep-textured velvety, greenish-blue woollen. A pleat falls on either side of the high-placed closing from neck to hem. There are huge patch pockets, and the full sleeves, with narrowed cuffs, are push-up.

✧ ✧ ✧

In the shops right now are copies of beautiful clothes adapted from those worn by a beautiful young star in her latest picture. An evening dress of white nylon net over pale green taffeta has a floorlength full skirt. The strapless bodice is covered with green-centred, tiny white velvet flowers, some of which are sprinkled over the skirt.

National Council President Speaks To American Women

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (CP)— The part women can play in helping prevent war was outlined today before a United States gathering by a Canadian woman.

Causes of war are "hunger and homelessness," said Mrs. Allan Turner Bone of Montreal, and is offsetting these "we can help keep the peace we all crave."

Mrs. Turner Bone, recently-elected president of the National Council of Women of Canada, spoke before the American section of the Canadian-American women's committee at the annual fall luncheon.

She told of the work of the International Council of Women, which met in Greece this year, and of its stand for peaceful settlement of disputes. But "it agrees it is necessary to rearm to keep the peace" and to uphold the United Nations charter and the declaration of human rights.

Immediately after the war, "the Canadian government was prevailed upon to embark on the finest immigration policy of our times."

"We have brought into our country from 1946 to 1950 between 400,000 and 500,000 immigrants from Europe and Britain.

"The first were wives and children of our service men. Then came the families and relatives of Canadian residents. The next were the homeless from the DP camps of Europe—the Balts, the Yugoslavs, the Czechs, the Poles, the Hungarians, the Italians, the Dutch, the British and finally the Germans."

Then followed the problems of "how to receive them, place them, care for them, get them jobs, houses; teach them the language; make friends; help them with the legal steps for citizenship."

"This all follows in a fascinating tale of co-operation between government bodies—departments of labor, citizenship, external affairs, health and welfare—working with voluntary and professional groups of citizens."

Mrs. Turner Bone told of the work of the National Council of Women which she heads and its federated societies.

The business and professional women's federation works closely with the international labor office in striving to improve working conditions, status and wages of women. It subscribes to the doctrine of no discrimination because of sex, race, color or creed.

The Federation of University Women helps spread "international knowledge and truth, through scholarships, to advanced students and helps professional persons newly arrived in Canada.

The Young Women's Christian Association has collected "thousands of dollars" to carry out staff work in many parts of the world and restore YWCA buildings in Burma and Greece.

The Jewish Council of Women and the Hadassah and B'nai B'rith Societies have done "outstanding work for their own people in Europe and Israeli, "providing hostels, schools, colleges, hospitals and training schools.

The Ukrainian Women have been largely concerned with the plight of Ukrainians in Europe, sending food, clothing, school books, periodicals and Ukrainian-language newspapers.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This Syrup, at Home

You'll be surprised how quickly a bad winter cough can be relieved when you try this well known recipe universally used throughout Canada. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle.

Into a 16 ounce bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then fill up with granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes four times as much cough medicine for your money. Never spoils and tastes fine.

Quickly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the phlegm, helps to clear the air passages, and soothes the irritated membranes. This explains why it brings such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat irritations. Money refunded if it does not please you in every way.

FOR EXTRA CONVENIENCE GET NEW, READY-TO-USE, PREPARED PINEX.

Overlook Fine Workers Shunning Oldsters

DEAR MISS DIX: Through the recent death of my husband, I have been forced to get out into the world to make my own living. I am 46, but everyone thinks I am in my late thirties. My problem is: Why don't people have jobs for those over 35? Thirty-five seems to be considered the age at which one becomes too infirm to handle a job. I have three years of high school which surely should be enough for a file clerk. What am I supposed to do-retire to an old ladies' home? I have been thinking of taking a business course but if I can't get a job when I finish, what good is it? I am neat, dress well, am in good health—in fact, the only thing wrong with me is that I'm five years too old.

W. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By overlooking the potentialities of good workers in the middle-aged group, employers are doing themselves and their would-be employees a great disservice. Our increased life span has added more years to a woman's life than to a man's, with the result that most women are left widowed and must be self-supporting or dependent upon their children.

Most women prefer independence and rightly so since today a woman in her forties fifties and even sixties is definitely not in her dotage. She is on the contrary, usually a chic, well-dressed, poised creature of intelligence, efficiency and ability. What more could an employer want? She lacks only youth and years of recent experience. Yet her fine qualities will be passed over time and time again, in favor of inexperienced help.

It's Easy For The Young

Young workers, of course, need their chance too, but for them the road is easy. The older woman needs encouragement and a chance to show what she can do.

There is a secondary problem that comes out in this letter. To be successful in job-hunting, one must have something to offer. Young or middle-aged, there is little opportunity for workers who have had no training whatever. This is why I campaign so ardently for every woman to learn some profession, or trade. So I urge you W. R., to take the business course you contemplate. At least with typing and perhaps shorthand to offer as your entry into business, you have something to combat the bug-a-boo of years. If you go to a qualified business school, they may have an employment service that will help you make contacts with various firms. Naturally, any prospective employer will lose interest in you immediately if your answer to the question, "What can you do?" is "Nothing"!

It is always more difficult for an older woman to get a job, but once she has one, she proves by loyalty and competence that she can hold her own with younger girls.

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother thinks it is a disgrace for a 15-year-old girl to wear shorts in public, such as going to the library or shopping in our small town. All my friends wear them and I have seen ladies up to 40 years of age in shorts.

I also have a dating problem. All my friends are permitted to go out with boys alone, but my parents go by and pick up my boy friend, take us where we want to go and call for us later. My boy friend doesn't like this but puts up with it.

ALICE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Living by the high standards your mother is setting for you will be much more productive than following the gang and blindly doing "what all my friends do," which, I know, is the accepted code for teenagers. Shorts are an appropriate costume for beaches or sports, not for strolling around town. You are being taught the valuable lesson of keeping things—and costumes—in their rightful place; profit by it.

The supervision exercised by your parents over your dating is another evidence of the good bringing up you are fortunate enough to have. Your boy friend is getting good service and cheap transportation through your parents' generosity; I think he can put up with it a while longer. By the time you're 16 mom and dad will probably let you have your dates alone.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: When a fellow breaks off his engagement with a girl, is she supposed to return his ring? If she refuses to return it, does that mean that the man is not free to go with another girl?

JOHN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Once an engagement is broken, regardless of who keeps the ring, both parties are absolutely free to go out with anyone else. The girl is supposed to return the ring when an engagement is broken, but if she refuses, there's nothing you can do about it without causing a great deal of unpleasantness to all concerned.

Readers' Saturday Column
Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION: Thank you for the information and pointers you so kindly gave me during the summer. I requested a recipe for date cookies a (date in the centre and the outside coated with graham wafers rolled fine). I do not know the name of these cookies or small cakes, but they have dates in the centre and are oblong in shape. A few weeks ago you published a recipe for corn flake cookies. I cut same out and have mislaid it. Would you kindly publish same again. Mrs. Gordon C.

ANSWER: The closest thing I have to what you describe is

Graham Cracker Roll

Put through food chopper or crush with rolling pin enough Graham crackers to make 1 cup. Reserve one-third of these crumbs. To the remainder add ½ cup dates stoned and cut in small pieces, 8 marshmallows cut in fine pieces with scissors dipped frequently in hot water, and ½ cup chopped nuts. Add 2 tablespoons thin cream or evaporated milk, mix well, form into roll and cover with the reserved crumbs. Wrap this in wax paper, place in refrigerator and chill for several hours. Slice to serve. If to be served for dessert garnish with whipped cream.

I hope to hear from other readers about this. Does anyone know of the graham-cracker coated date cookie Mrs. G. C. wants?

Another Graham cracker cookie I know of is more of a chocolate confection and is called—

Mandarins

Put 1 can condensed milk in bowl. Add 30 extremely fine Graham cracker crumbs. Stir to a paste 5 tablespoons cocoa, 1 teaspoon butter, and one-third cup boiling water. Add it and ⅛ teaspoon salt to first mixture. Chill. Form into 1-inch balls, and dip in cocoanut.

I hope you saw the recipes for cookies in last week's column, and that they were helpful. Write to me whenever you need cooking help.

QUESTION: Some time ago I noticed something about an "Old Mennonite Cook Book" mentioned in your column. If there is such a book would you please let me know how I could purchase one and where. Mrs. John L.

ANSWER: The name of the book is "Mennonite Community Cookbook", and is by Mary Emma Showalter, published by John C. Winston Co. in Philadelphia and costs $4.50 US funds. Your local bookstore would order it for you.

QUESTION: We cannot find in our cook book a way for canning garden huckleberries. We read your column all the time. Mrs. W. T.

ANSWER:

Canned Huckleberries

If appearance of whole fruit is not important, when these are to be used for pies, it is advisable to precook the fruit, after it is washed and picked over, in a syrup of 1 cup sugar to every 4 cups water, for 3 minutes at boiling point. Pack the fruit hot into sterile jars, putting on sterile rubbers, and tops. Process in hot water bath for 5 minutes, for both quart and pint jars. Tighten seal when jars can be removed from hot water bath and invert to cool. Never loosen the seal to fill jars in which fruit has shrunk.

OR if you prefer to pack the fruit raw, wash it well and drain. Pack into sterile jars, cover to overflowing with boiling hot syrup (1 cup sugar to 4 cups water), seal with sterile tops. Process in hot water bath 20 minutes at boiling point. Finish as in the precooked pack (above).

6—In Memoriam

GROUTER, Luella, who passed away November 10, 1947.
Today recalls sad memories
Of a dear mother gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.
—Remembered by daughter, sons, daughters-in-law and grandchildren.

HOLMES—In fond remembrance of Jessie, beloved daughter of Albert Holmes, who died Nov. 8, 1950.
Thy hands are folded on thy breast,
We kiss thy marble brow,
In our aching hearts we know
We've no dear Jessie now.
—Deeply mourned by dad and sisters.

LASHBROOK—In loving memory of a dear husband and dad, Albert Lashbrook, who passed away suddenly Nov. 11, 1948.
Servant of God, well done;
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy.
The heavenly summons came
He started up to hear;
And death's sharp arrow pierced his frame,
He fell—but felt no fear.
—Sadly missed by wife Jean, daughter and son-in-law Esther and Vic.

PHILLIPS—In loving memory of a dear wife and loving mother, Mrs. Mabel Phillips, Hastings, who passed away three years ago today, Nov. 10, 1948.
God made a wonderful mother,
Our Mom who never grew old,
He made her smile of sunshine,
He made her heart of pure gold,
But God knew that she was suffering
And the hills were hard to climb,
And he closed her weary eyelids
And whispered, "Peace by thine."
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by husband and family.

SANDERSON—In loving memory, Mrs. Wellie Sanderson, who passed away four years ago today.
May the wind of heaven blow gently
On that quiet and hallowed spot,
Where the one we loved is sleeping,
And will never be forgot.
—Ever remembered by daughter Florence and family.

SCOTT—In memory of Mrs. Joseph Scott, who died six years ago, November 11, 1945.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear mother, how we think of you.
Friends are friends, if they are true,
We lost our best friend when we lost you.
—Sadly missed by husband and family.

Reformatory Term For Theft Of 3 Cars

COBOURG, Nov. 10 (ENS). — Harry Dove of Oshawa, who pleaded guilty to three car theft charges, was Friday sentenced to reformatory terms of two years less one day, definite and six months indefinite, on each charge the terms to run concurrently. Arthur Rozell of Stratford, charged with the same offences received 12 months definite and six indefinite on each charge, to run concurrently. Dove has an extensive record which included five car theft convictions. He completed a three year penitentiary term, less time off for good behavior in April of last year. Rozell has no record.

Deer Hunters

game was shot in fair quantities only.

Most of the hunters homeward bound on Friday appeared to have worked the pioneer urge from their joints from violent exercise and sleeping in not too comfortable bunks.

And it is quite possible, too, that their digestive systems were a bit upset from a steady diet of camp grub. They talked of the bad weather and seemed glad to be on their way home.

Sporting Poppies

WITH THE 1ST COMMONWEALTH DIVISION, Korea, Nov. 10 (AP)—Poppies bloomed today on sweaters, battle jackets and jeeps. The red paper poppies, sold for the benefit of veterans and hospitals, popped out a day ahead of Remembrance Day, anniversary of the end of another war half a world away.

Narrow Escape

GRIMSBY, Lincoln, England, Nov. 10 (Reuters)—Irene Dodge nearly put a quarter-pound stick of dynamite on her fire Friday night. She was just going to place some fresh coal on the fire when she noticed a dirty brown package among the lumps. Inside was the stick of dynamite. An official of the state-run coal board declined to comment.

3 Local Nurses To Learn Job In Atom Warfare

Three Peterborough nurses are going to Toronto next week to learn how to care for casualties in tomorrow's type of warfare. The course includes nursing training in atomic, biological and chemical warfare.

Altogether 75 nurses from all over Ontario will attend. Four will be from this district Harriet McGeary, in charge of Victorian Order of Nurses; Mary Nesbitt, instructor of nursing arts at the Civic Hospital; Dorothy Walker, public health nurse; and Lorena Sine, Belleville, clinical instructor at Belleville Hospital.

The course will be November 13-16, and the nurses will receive lectures from a doctor, physicist, and two nurses qualified to instruct in this new type of warfare.

The teaching team is being paid for by the Federal Government. And the whole project is sponsored by the Canadian Nurses' Association in conjunction with the civil defence organization.

After they have completed their course, the nurses will return home and pass on their information to their colleagues in the nursing profession.

A Tough Time

LONDON, Nov. 10 (Reuters) — A girl train announcer practically talked herself silly over the public address system Friday when a lightning strike at Waterloo station put the arrivals board out of action. Margaret Wilson, 19, became a talking timetable for 50 minutes when operators of the arrivals board, ticket collectors and porters walked out at 4:15 pm in protest over new duty rosters. A promise by the station's personnel manager to change the rosters brought the men back to work.

Chinese Find Canadians Too Tough, Try Elsewhere

By BILL BOSS

WEST SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 10 (CP)—The Eighth Army today let correspondents tell a story that has been piling up for days—the rugged defence of Canadian and other Commonwealth units, night after night, against furious Communist assaults.

The assaults had more punch than any since last spring.

The Reds lashed unavailingly against Canadian positions early in their latest campaign but found them impossible to take or too costly to keep.

A solid week of attacks on the Commonwealth front—west of the Imjin river line in the area west of Majon—left it largely unchanged, except that a long salient of dominating ground was captured from the King's Own Scottish Borderers.

Part of the story of Canadian participation in the week's operations was reported earlier, but relaxed censorship today permits publication in more detail.

Two Attacks On Canadians

Two main attacks were made on the Canadians—one on the Royal Canadian Regiment the night of Nov. 2; and one on elements of the 1st and 2nd battalions of the Princess Patricias the night of Nov. 4.

But the Reds found the main Canadian line impregnable. Not only is it thoroughly wired, mined and booby-trapped, but it is manned by troops eager to have the Communists come in on them.

And it has a unique feature: tanks of the Lord Strathcona's Horse are sitting out on spurs ahead of the main defences, guns trained menacingly at the enemy.

Maj. Victor W. Jewkes of St. Johns, Que., commander of the Lord Strathconas, admits the position of his tanks is unorthodox. But, he said Friday night, "It does seam to have a deterring effect on the enemy—and the tanks are a terrific morale-booster for our infantry."

The Red attack on the RCR fell on an outpost of the company commanded by Maj. Dick Medland of Toronto. The platoon leader, Lieut. Ed Mastronardi of Toronto, fought off three attacks Bugle-blowing Chinese came in wave upon wave, through gaps blown in barbed wire by bangalore torpedoes.

Gets Troops Back

When the platoon's ammunition was almost gone and the outpost surrounded, Lieut. Mastronardi fought his troops back to the main Canadian line.

Later 43 Chinese dead were found hanging in the wire and half-buried in the outpost position. Many other Chinese were killed in no-man's-land by artillery shells, mortar bombs and shrapnel.

Earlier reports said Lieut. Mastronardi called for artillery fire on his own position during the time he was surrounded, but the request was refused and the platoon got back to the Canadian lines.

(At one time Lieut. Mastronardi's flare pistol was shot from his hand. When his revolver jammed, he snatched a burp gun from a dying Chinese to continue the battle.

(Pte. Johnny Johnson of Windsor, calmly stripped two jammed bren guns in the heat of the action and put them back in service.)

Hit Two Companies

The attack on the Patricias fell on two companies. One was the 2nd Patricias Company commanded by Maj. Eric J. H. (Paddy) Ryall, of Hamilton, soon to return to Canada. The other was the 1st Patricias Company commanded by Maj. Jack George of Edmonton—spending its first night in the line.

The fighting was at close quarters on both sectors. Next morning 36 enemy bodies were found strung on the barbed wire and uncounted others were in no-man's-land.

Casualties suffered by the RCR and PPCLI were relatively light.

"This is the way we like it—why go out and chase the enemy when he wants to come in so generously," said Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of the Canadian brigade.

However, after the two experiences with the Canadians, the Communists switched their attention elsewhere on the Commonwealth Division's plant.

It became so boring in the Canadian sector that Brig. Rockingham Friday night had the Royal 22nd Regiment raid a high ridge in front of the Canadian positions.

A Van Doos company under Maj. Bill Sutherland of Quebec went out several thousand yards in bright moonlight—and with a searchlight above the Panmunjom cease-fire conference site clearly visible far to the west.

Financial Difficulties Hound Young Immigrant From England

COBOURG, Nov. 10 (ENS). — Robert Underwood of Peterborough, recent arrivee from England pleaded not guilty to a charge of false pretences Friday and Magistrate R. B. Baxter reserved his decision. He was charged with obtaining $450 by false pretences on October 1 from Arthur Ash of Grafton and as the transaction took place in Port Hope, the charge was laid in that town.

Ash testified that he had known Underwood as Bob Johnson and that he had visited his place on several occasions, becoming a friend of the family. Underwood, or Johnston as he knew him, told him that he needed $450 to pay off the bond he had posted when he came to Canada or otherwise he might be deported to England. Ash borrowed the money from a finance company in Port Hope and the arrangement was that Underwood would send along the first instalment as soon as it was due. He had told Ash that he had $1,200 coming to him from the Old Country but that it would not arrive in time for him to meet his obligations in regard to the immigration board. However the instalment was not paid and he had not seen Underwood in four weeks.

Given Job at CGE

H. Perks, personnel manager at the Peterborough CGE explained the set-up in regard to hiring English workers. The company would apply to the British immigration office where it would learn how many were available. Then the company would send a representative over to England to interview the job applicants, paying half their fare to Canada and deducting it on the basis of 52 weekly deductions from their pay envelopes. It was under such a scheme that Underwood was brought over and given a job in the Peterborough plant of the CGE. Underwood had a wife and two children in England and witness said that he had been advised that, being destitute, Mrs. Underwood and the children were sent to Paris, Mrs. Underwood being French.

The accused testified that he had incurred considerable debt after arriving in Peterborough. He needed the money obtained from Ash to pay off some pressing debts. Underwood admitted that he had misrepresented the situation when he told Ash that he needed the money to discharge his immigration bond but denied that he had intended to evade repayment of the loan. He said that he had been in the hospital at the time the first instalment was due. Underwood testified that he had purchased French bonds in 1946 and their value was around $1,000 but so far he had been unable to have them sold and the money transferred here. He had been in touch with Barclay's Bank to that end, and he was hopeful of getting the money transferred.

Under cross-examination by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, the accused admitted that he had borrowed about $885 from the CGE, $175 from a finance company and $325 from banks, all in a space of 16 weeks.

"That is about $1,385 you borrowed in 16 weeks, plus $450 from Mr. Ash," said Mr. Deyman.

At one point in his evidence, Underwood said that his wife had given cause for complaint, according to information received by him, and that he no longer felt obligated to her.

"This sounds a little variation of the old Spanish prisoner gag, only this time it is money in France," commented the Crown Attorney.

"I am going to reserve judgment and remand you for a week," said the magistrate.

"The last spark of hope I have to pay Mr. Ash back and the others is what I get at my job, if Ihave a job now," said Underwood.

"You would have stood a better chance if you had not made that last remark. You spoke about having bonds in France and now you say that your last spark of hope is what you make at your job," declared the magistrate.

"I didn't mean it that way," said Underwood.

Concert To Aid Hospital Fund

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 10 — (ENS)—Music lovers of Campbellford were treated to an enjoyable program on Wednesday evening when the Bemersyde Chapter of the IODE presented a theatre concert. Lloyd Zurbrigg, noted Toronto pianist, played to a large and appreciative audience. His piano stylings were roundly applauded, and he was generous with encores.

Francis DeCarrol, of Campbellford, a vocalist who is always popular with local audiences, rendered several classical numbers, accompanied by Mr. Zurbrigg at the piano. His vocal numbers were well received, and he was called on repeatedly for encores.

The Campbellford Choralians, under the direction of Mrs. A. C Watson, added a lighter touch to the otherwise heavy or serious program, with their choral numbers. Mrs. George Nicholls accompanied the Choralians at the piano.

The proceeds realized from a collection will be used for the local hospital fund.

Most Found Loyal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Solicitor-General Philip B. Perlman said Friday night that of the 3,883,000 government employees checked by the Federal Bureau of Investigation since the loyalty program started, 99.5 per cent of them have been found loyal. During the four-year period of the loyalty program, he said, 343 persons have been dismissed because of loyalty checks.

Varied Concert Presented By Local Artists

A varied and enjoyable concert of music was presented in Queen Mary auditorium Friday nig

An Evening with Peterborough Artists—Donald Kennedy, Anne Nickle, Mignon Mayneord, Gwen Craw and Mary Baker, presented by the Young People's Club of Trinity United Church—was well received by an audience of approximately 200 people.

Donald Kennedy, well-known Peterborough pianist, capably started the evening with Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, and the Polonnaise Militaire in A major by Chopin. Later in the program he returned to play Mouvement Perpetual by Poulenac, Malaguena by Lecuona and The Little White Donkey by Ibert.

Vocal soloist for the evening, Anne Nickle, charmingly sang By the Bend in the River by Clara Edwards, The Lord is My Light by Oley Speaks and the Scottish Folk Song, Comin' Through the Rye.

Duet Team

The duet team of Mary Baker and Gwen Craw gave pleasing presentations of Military March, Opus 51, No. 1 by Schubert; Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring by Bach; Hungarian Dance No. 5 by Brahms and the Hubert Foss arrangement of Waltzing Matilda.

A double girls' trio brought reminiscences of the splendid vocal work of the Collegiate girls' choir. The group, Anne Grant, Anne Gordon, Barbara Woodcock, Anne Webb, Mary Louise Waterman and Catherine Waterman, first sang Passing By, by Edward C. Purcell and Linden Lea by Vaughan Williams. Later they gave two entertaining novel presentations of Leslie Bell's arrangement of Skip to My Lou ranged by Arol Fletcher.

Barbershop Quarter

Bill Fridken, Roger Ingall, Phil Chevalier and Ron Wilson, the quartet of youths from PCVS well earned their membership in the Peterborough branch of the Barbershop Quartet Association. They sang I Love the Way You Roll Your Eyes and In the Evening By the Moonlight.

Mignon Mayneord brought an unusual touch to the evening with her whistling interpretations of Valse Parisienne by Roberts, Pizzicati by Lois Delibes, 'Neath the Autumn Moon by Vanderpool and Bird Songs at Eventide by Eric Coates.

Accompanists for the evening were Betty Lapp, Mildred Hubbel and Donald Kennedy.

Bancroft Women Plan Bazaar

BANCROFT, Nov. 10—(ENS)—The Evening Auxiliary of St. Paul's United Church held its November meeting Monday night at the new parsonage, with Mrs. Ellis Mather in charge of the business session.

Final plans were made for the bazaar to be held in the church basement on Saturday, Nov. 24.

Mrs. Harold Watson and Mrs. A. Hewitt, the visiting committee for October, reported a busy month of sick visits.

The parsonage committee report was read by Mrs. C. A. Eddy in the absence of Mrs. J. N. Brown, stating that $1,035 had been spent on furnishings for the new parsonage. The Detlor charge had requested that one of their group represent them on the pasonage committee and Mrs. W. C. Smith, of Detlor, was named.

The women of the auxiliary were invited to take part in a joint social evening with the Afternoon Women's Association on the evening of Monday, Nov. 12, in the church, when Miss M. M. Willows and Miss A. Coultes, of Maynooth, will show colored slides taken of this area. Mrs. Alexander Smith will speak of her work in Indian missions in the western provinces.

Following the business session the members present waxed new hardwood floors, set up furniture and made as much preparation as possible to ready the house for the Rev. K. Cutler and his family to move in the next day.

Mrs. H. Watson and Mrs. J. Follis served refreshments at the close of the work session.

Gets Leave of Absence

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10 (AP)—Clark Gable has requested and been granted a leave of absence from his movie work, his studio said Friday. "Clark just asked us to give him time to get his personal affairs straightened out," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spokesman said. The "personal affairs," of course, are the divorce and alimony suits filed by his fourth wife, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley.

Closes Border

LONDON, Nov. 10 (Reuters)—Turkey has closed her border with Bulgaria because Bulgaria refused to readmit 126 gypsies who entered Turkey with forged documents, Ankara radio said Friday night.

Arrest Red Suspects

SINGAPORE, Nov. 10 (AP) — Thailand police, co-operating with Malayan authorities against Communist territorists, Friday raided a Red camp along the border of the two countries. Several terrorist suspects were arrested.

MRS. ADELE MEPPEN, centre, 41-year-old Brooklyn housewife, has been taken to Syracuse, N.Y., recently to face charges of hiding $250,000 worth of smuggled diamonds in a Rouses Point, N.Y. hotel. In the above photo the accused smuggler is being led from police cells in New York by U.S. Marshals Eugene Smith and Mae Mahar. George W. Percy, assistant U.S. attorney, said Mrs. Meppen is a member of an international ring which has been smuggling cut stones into the U.S. from Montreal.

Drew Charges Broadcast Anti-Religious

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP). — Progressive Conservative leader Drew suggested Friday in the Commons that the government should take steps to cut off what he described as an anti-religious blasphemous and indecent program carried by the CBC.

He did not identify the program, but he told a reporter later he was referring to a series of Sunday night talks over the CBC by various speakers, to which objection has been taken for some time by religious groups of various faiths.

It is not logical, he said in the Commons, that "we should make available a publicly owned system for the purpose of undermining the religious convictions of the people of this country. The CBC was limiting the use of radio for public discussion of democracy itself, but it would be on much better ground if it said it was prepared to stop this mental poison being carried over the airwaves of Canada."

Subtle Danger

There had been protests against the program, Mr. Drew said, from the Roman Catholic, Anglican, United, Presbyterian, Baptist Churches, and most of the other denominations.

The blasphemy of the program was much worse than ordinary blasphemy because it was a subtle dangerous type which sometimes is not detected for what it really is, he said.

Mr. Drew said radio does not permit indecent broadcasts in the usual sense of the term.

"We should not permit indecent broadcasts when the indecency relates to religious beliefs" he said.

Norwood WI Hears Rev. R. D. Duncanson

NORWOOD, Nov. 10 (ENS). — The November meeting of the Norwood Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Gardner with 18 members present and five visitors.

A letter was read from an Institute worker in England. It was moved by Mrs. G. Baker and seconded by Mrs. McPherson that $10 be given to the Board of Trade to help them with a swimming pool fund.

Mrs. Gordon Parker is to place the wreath on the cenotaph on Sunday on behalf of the Institute.

It was decided to send gifts to two children from Norwood in the hospital in Toronto.

Mrs. William Golloher read an interesting article on "How good it is to be an Institute member." She then gave a reading "In Flander's Fields."

The Rev. R. D. Duncanson was introduced by Mrs. Golloher and took as his topic, "Making Historical Data Line." He said history is the story of man, of what he has done, when he did it and why he did it. History is only vital as it is related to the present.

We read history to get pleasure, to pass the time and for information. If writing history to make it live and make people want to read it you should be sure of three things, accurate information, material of general interest, arrangement of material in definite order. We should find out why churches were built and large homes and also a community hall.

Mrs. Gardner moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Duncanson.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Duncanson, Mrs Oltment and Mrs. Gardner.

Patricias Exchange Flags As Veteran Troops Relieved

By WILLIAM BOSS

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN KOREA, Nov. 5. (Delayed) (CP)—A dirty shabby flag was hauled down today and seconds later a new maroon and gold one was put up in its place.

A bugle band played and two honor guards snapped to the general salute.

A colonel received the pennant that had flown outside his headquarters, night and day, in training and in battle, since his unit came to Korea.

Another saw hoisted the flag that henceforth will mark his headquartefs, wherever they are, in Korea.

The simple ceremony marked the formal relief of the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, by the unit's 1st Battalion. The 1st Battalion's movement to Korea was completed today by arrival in the regiments area of its last two companies.

Actually, Lt.-Col. Norman Wilson Smith of Winnipeg took over yesterday the regiment's Korean responsibilities from Lt.-Col. J. L. (Big Jim) Stone of Salmon Arm, BC.

Unit Praised

Earlier today, 200 officers and men representing members of the 2nd Patricias still in the theatre paraded for the UN army commander, Gen. James Van Fleet. He had expressed a wish to meet "the heroes of Kapyong before they leave Korea."

Gen. Van Fleet congratulated the battalion on its record, and read aloud its presidential citation for conduct which set it "apart from and above" other units of the 8th Army.

He said the US and Canadian Governments still must rule officially whether the citation is to be added to the unit colors and whether the men may wear the individual distinction which accompanies it.

Have Turkey Dinner

Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of the 25th Canadian Brigade in the Commonwealth Division in Korea, urged the troops to remember that they have established a reputation for citizenship which now must be maintained in civilian life or in service elsewhere if they stay in the army.

After the parade, the Patricias were given a turkey dinner at the brigadier's headquarters.

As they later piled into buses for a dusty ride to rear headquarters beginning of their trip to Canada, the men passed a large sign "Farewell 2 PPCLI."

The guard at the flag ceremony was drawn from both the 1st and 2nd Patricias. While the 2nd Battalion's flag was flying, the guard was commanded by homeward-bound Lieut. Lee Hill of Windsor, with Sgt. Nick Oshamski of Winnipeg as non-commissioned officer.

When the 1st Battalian's flag went up, Lieut. Bill Jones of Calgary took over command with S.-Sgt. Jack Atkin of Calgary. RSM Les Grimes of Edmonton hauled down the old pennant. RSM O. Gardiner of Calgary hoisted the new one as bugles under Drum-Major Jock Mackie of Calgary sounded the salute.

Friday night, while Col. Stone was Brig. Rockingham's guest, Corps Commander Maj.-Gen. Mike O'Daniel telephoned he was sending a token of his personal esteem. Col. Stone was Gen. Van Fleet's guest at dinner on Tuesday night.

Arrangements have been made to remove the remaining 2nd Patricias to Japan in company-sized drafts quickly on their way to Canada for Christmas.

Judge Blames Cow As Owner Convicted

NEW WESTMINSTER, BC, Nov. 10 (CP)—A dairyman, fined $10 because the milk he sold was too good, has challenged the powers of the British Columbia milk board.

William E. Crawford of Cloverdale, BC, was convicted of selling milk at 4.2 butterfat. The milk board regulations offer butterfat content not to exceed a percentage of 3.6 for standard raw milk.

He appealed his conviction, claiming the board's order conflicts with federal and provincial legislation.

Judge H. R. Sullivan, who reserved judgment on the appeal, told him: "It seems as if the cow is the guilty one. You might put a governor on her."

Sextuplets Calves Live Short Time

MIDDLEVILLE, NY, Nov. 10—(AP)—Farmer Frank Snyder reported that a cow had given birth to six calves Friday but that all had died. Dr. Glenn Robens, a veterinarian at near-by Poland, said six might be a world's record. He said he had heard of five births at one time, never six.

Are you in the know?

To revive that vacation-time romance, try—
☐ A long distance call
☐ A short note
☐ A torchy letter

Has distance made your summer-resort Romeo forgetful? Don't phone! To recall those happy days, try a short note—about a book, movie or platter he'd be interested in. A light approach is the safest "reminder". So too, when your calendar reminds you it's that day—get Kotex. For that special safety centre and soft, moisture-resistant edges give you extra protection. What's more, those flat pressed ends of Kotex keep your secret safe!

Three guesses what's in this refrigerator?
☐ Apple pan dowdy
☐ An angora sweater
☐ A sweet treat

Think she's searching for a snack? Guess again! She's retrieving her best angora sweater. If your sweater's a fuzz shedder, wrap in a hand towel and pop it into the "cooler", overnight. Makes angora fuzz stay put. And here's another tip: At certain times, you needn't be befuzzled as to which Kotex absorbency to choose. Just try all 3 (different sizes, for different days). You already know that Kotex is specially made to stay soft while you wear it.

3 ABSORBENCIES: Regular, Super, Junior
More women choose KOTEX* than all other sanitary napkins!
*T.M. Reg.

How to prepare for certain days?
☐ Circle your calendar
☐ Perk up your wardrobe ☐ Buy a new belt

Before "that" time, be ready! All 3 answers can help. But to assure extra comfort, buy a new Kotex sanitary belt. Made with soft-stretch elastic — this strong, lightweight Kotex belt's non-twisting... non-curling. Stays flat even after many washings. Dries pronto! So don't wait till the last minute, buy a new Kotex belt now.

KOTEX SANITARY BELT . . . Buy two — for a change!

P.S. Have you tried Delsey*? Delsey is the new bathroom tissue that's safer because it's softer. A product as superior as Kotex . . . a tissue as soft and absorbent as Kleenex*. (We think that's the nicest compliment there is.) Won't you try Delsey, next time?

Bears Saunter On Streets Of Banff Viewing Sights

Written for The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Mother bears sauntering along the main or side streets of Banff showing the sights of the mountain town to their cinnamon-brown cubs is a memory cherished by hundreds of tourists, for it happens often enough.

Elk and red deer with a taste for ice-cream cones and chocolate bars often appear at Banff station and it is not unusual to see a coyote beside the Bow river that runs through the town.

Grizzly bears, however, are another matter.

Last month a Banff woman and her son leaving the Upper Hot Springs pool were startled —to put it mildly—when a mother grizzly with two cubs stood in the road a few yards away. Hurrying back to the Hot Springs office, they telephoned a warning to the folk at their own house nearby.

Hurried Off

The woman's husband discharged a shot gun into the air to get the bears heading for the mountain bush again. This they did, and in a hurry.

They were not the only wild animals with a yen for town and city exploration.

On a summer morning in Victoria, BC, a man was astonished to see a handsome mountain lion — puma — panther — cougar — by whatever name you like, strolling along a suburban street. A phone call brought an eager Mountie, but the big cat vanished before he reached the scene.

Panthers provide good hunting in the interior of the island, but this was the first record in years of one of them coming to town.

Pygmy Owls

Though of chunkier build, that smallest of Canadian owls, the pygmy, is not much bigger than a street sparrow. It is found in British Columbia exclusively and both in the interior and on the coastal regions of the province has a far northerly range.

Pygmy owls make up in courage what they lack in size. Their appetite for small birds and field mice is amazing and they are swift and deadly in attacking their prey.

Woodpecker Nests

X-raying a section of a hemlock tree in which a hairy woodpecker of Algonquin Park had excavated its nest, the writer was impressed with the symmetrical cutting and smoothness of the wood, and the graceful curving at its base. Nearly 16 inches deep and from five to six inches wide, the nest, with the grain of the surrounding wood well shown, made a fascinating picture.

Plans Appeal

TORONTO, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Joseph Latimer one of two guards dismissed from Don jail after the escape of three prisoners last weekend, said in an interview Friday that he will ask Reforms Minister J. W. Foote to investigate operation of the jail. Mr. Foote said Friday it was proved to his satisfaction the turnkeys did not carry out their hourly inspection of the corridors as required.

Forecasts Meeting

SAINT JOHN, NB, Nov. 10—(CP)—Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born British newspaper publisher, Friday night forecast a meeting between Churchill and Stalin. In an interview shortly after his arrival from New York, he said only that some good would come from such a meeting because the Russian prime minister had great respect for Churchill.

Legion Asks Conscription

OTTAWA, Nov. 10—(CP)—The Canadian Legion urged Prime Minister St. Laurent and the cabinet Friday to impose compulsory training for Canadians to prepare them for 1952 and 1953 which may well be "fateful years" in a deteriorating international situation.

The request was contained in a Legion brief submitted to the cabinet. A Legion spokesman said later that Mr. St. Laurent believed the Legion had over-emphasized the international situation.

The Legion, in its brief submitted by Group Capt. Alfred Watt of Vancouver, Legion president, also urged the government to increase war pensions by 33 1/3 per cent, and that they be paid to pensioners regardless of country of residence.

The brief said the government's war veterans allowance was "altogether inadequate" and urged that some emergency increase be made to tide war veterans over the period during which a parliamentary committee will study the situation.

Regarding preparedness, the Legion said it "is a matter of urgent concern and requires immediate attention by those charged with this responsibility."

AS GENERAL EISENHOWER reportedly was asking President Truman to speed up arms shipments to Western Europe, there was pictorial evidence that much has already been done to bolster Europe's defense with U.S. arms. Above, at Istanbul, Turkey, American-made tanks, manned by Turkish troops, parade past a reviewing stand during celebration of the Turkish republic's 28th anniversary. Since 1948, Turkey has received about $700,000,000 in U.S. military aid to reinforce her position as the keystone of Near East defense against Red aggression. NOBEL PRIZEWINNER — Leon Jouhaux, veteran French labor leader, above, has been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1951, it was announced in Oslo, Norway. Jouhaux was credited with saving the French labor movement from being subverted by Communist leadership. The cash award, totalling $32,432, will be given in Oslo Dec. 10.

Holden Gets New Contract At Paramount

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10 (AP)—William Holden doesn't need to worry about his future.

The actor has his next 14 years of employment assured, and with a handsome salary. Holden recently arranged an extension of his Paramount contract.

"I have to do one picture a year for 14 years, plus an option for another," he said. "I also have the freedom to do an outside picture on my own."

Holden, long overlooked in the box-office sweepstakes, is building into a strong attraction.

Morals Attacked

The Roman Catholic Legion of Decency placed a "condemned" rating on "La Ronde," the sexy French film which is expected to have a year's run at a theatre in Beverly Hills.

Incidentally, the Legion is reported preparing a blast at the "low moral tone" of recent Hollywood films. It will probably cite such pictures as "Streetcar Named Desire" and "Place In The Sun" as being too censorable.

Capsule Review

"Quo Vadis" is the most spectacular film since "Ben Hur" and "Intolerance." But as an epic it hasn't the corn of De Mille—nor the excitement. It is blessed with some highly-competent acting and a well-written script.

The picture is satisfying but not perfect. There are dull sports and too much dwelling on the tortures of the Roman circus. Robert Taylor as the soldier and Deborah Kerr as the Christain maid are forceful and convincing.

Free Sight Tests Offered For Hunters

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Nov. 10—(AP)—Vermont hunters will have scant excuse for mistaking their fellows for deer if they take advantage of Friday's offer of free sight tests.

Optometrists throughout the state offered anyone with a current hunting licence a free check.

Hunters will be warned of any sight flaw but they won't lose their licences. The eye specialists said that would be up to the hunter's conscience.

The deer season opens next Wednesday.

Destroy Headquarters

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 10—(AP)—The secret military headquarters from which Hitler and his generals plotted the war and directed the battle of the bulge is going to be demolished, US army authorities disclosed Friday. The headquarters is an elaborate underground system of tunnels and rooms built into a hill near the small town of Ziegenberg, about 30 miles north of Frankfurt.

For Parents Only

He's So Stubborn

By NANCY CLEAVER

"I'm at my wits' end to know what to do with Tommy! He's so stubborn—and the more battles I have with him the worse he gets. If I thought he would grow out of this obstinate streak, I wouldn't worry. But Tommy just seems to have been born contrary!"

Did you ever hear parents talking like Tommy's mother? A very stubborn child is certainly a trial. He is far from "easy to live with" because of his unyielding, inflexible attitude. He knows what he wants to do and he resolves wholeheartedly to follow his own path, and listen to no one.

Parents often are baffled by a son or daughter who is intractable. If they let their child always have his or her own way, happy home-living is out of the question. If they continually try to correct and punish him, he meets force with force or retires into a sullen, sulking mood.

The underlying causes of a child's stubborn streak should be sought. Why does he behave this way? Underneath his bold front, is he really quite unsure of himself? Is he battling to assert himself and win his place amongst older brothers and sisters or companions?

The stubborn child is not at peace with himself. His obstinateness is a form of anger. He is waging war against his environment.

Puzzled mothers and fathers of a stubborn youngster should examine their own handling of his small world. What about the child's routine? Are there too many "musts," and not enough freedom in his day?

The reverse may be the case. The child may lack a definite pattern of happenings. A small child likes to know what to expect and a lack of order and system makes him uncertain and sometimes obstinate.

Special occasions do arise which interfere with the usual routine. But parents will have less trouble with stubbornness if they consistently follow a planned day.

Once parents have revised the child's schedule so that there are a certain number of minimum requirements, they should also decide how they are going to get more co-operation from their child. The impersonal suggestion, "The clock says almost twelve o'clock, let's start getting ready for dinner," is much to be preferred to "You must come to your dinner at once"—(in a tone which implies, Just dare resist me and you will soon find out what will happen to you!).

The friendly approach often works wonders with a stubborn child. It need not lack firmness. But a child needs to know that no matter how difficult he is, his parents love him. They believe he is really trying to do his best, but they dont' expect perfection either.

The stubborn child does not forfeit his mother's affection by his contrariness. Perhaps he is making a bid for a little more demonstration of her love. His mother may be very busy, and this is his way of getting her attention.

The latter part of the day is the time when mothers and children get into the greatest number of tangles. Likely mother is fatigued—but the child is probably tired too.

Occasionally observing a longer rest period after the noon meal, or an earlier bed-time will reduce the number of clashes between the child and adults in authority. More sleep is good medicine for many minor childish problems of behaviour.

Parents should receive some comfort from the knowledge that most children pass through a longer or shorter period of resistance to adult authority. Children who are high-spirited may really amount to something. Plutarch commented that "the wildest colts make the best horses."

Stubbornness is not completely to be deplored. Lord Erskine pointed out "that which is called, firmness in a king is called obstinancy in a donkey." The stubborn child may, as he grows, stop his battles with individuals. He may re-direct his energy into struggling with real problems.

Some of our greatest reformers, some of the most brilliant research scientists, were likely dubbed "stubborn" in their childhood. But they learned, by wise guidance and their own experience not to be easily discouraged. They managed to persevere, in the face of obstacles, until they reached their goal.

Hold Husband For Murder In Kingston

Police Say Wife Stabbed During Minor Row

KINGSTON, Nov. 12. (CP)—Allan V. Lyons, 33, is scheduled to appear in court today on a charge of murdering his wife with a butcher knife during a suppertime argument arising from late delivery of a newspaper.

The aluminum plant supervisor was taken into custody in the living room of his suburban Kingston Heights home a few minutes after he pounded on a neighbor's door and frantically asked him to call a doctor. A policeman, called after Lyons' stepson ran to another neighbor's home, found Lyons slumped in an easy chair and staring at his 31-year-old wife's body on a chesterfield.

Police said the slaying climaxed a domestic quarrel touched off by a telephoned complaint that the stepson, Howard Joyce, 12, was late in delivering a metropolitan newspaper on his route.

Reprimanded Boy

It is reported that Lyons reprimanded the boy, his wife's son by a former marriage. Mrs. Lyons took the boy's part and the couple, said to have been drinking during the afternoon, argued in the kitchen, where Mrs. Lyons had been preparing a late supper.

The couple, married several years, moved into the small house in the wartime housing district about two years ago. Neighbors described them as friendly.

The marriage was the second for both. Each of their wartime unions ended in divorce. Mrs. Lyons, whose maiden name was Elda Thompson, came from the northern part of Frontenac county, served four years in the Canadian Women's Army Corps during the Second World War. Lyons also is a war veteran, who took part of his training at Petawawa, in 1939.

Lyons has a son and a daughter from his previous marriage.

Takes First Walk

LONDON, Nov. 12. (CP)—The London Evening Star reported today that the King took his first walk since his lung operation Sept. 23. The newspaper said the King and Queen strolled for about 20 minutes in the sunshine in the Palace grounds. It added that doctors were discussing arrangements for the King's convalescence.

H & PE Company Leaves For Germany

QUEBEC, Nov. 12 — (CP). — The first infantry unit of Canada's 27th Brigade sailed today for Europe.

The battalion with a field squadron of engineers, workshops personnel and an advance party of the 79th Field Artillery Regiment left Quebec aboard the 15,000-ton Greek liner Fairsea.

There was little in the way of ceremony. The band of the First Canadian Infantry Battalion played farewell tunes from the deck of the white ship as it pulled away.

Maj.-Gen. S. F. Clark, the Canadian Army's Quartermaster-General, and Brig. Frank Lleury, Commander of Eastern Quebec Military Area, watched the departure.

The battalion's A Company, men from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is commanded by Maj. G. E. Baldwin, Northport, Ont. CSM is P. V. Fitzpatrick, Havelock. The Eastern Ontario troops are from Madoc, Frankford, Belleville, Bancroft, Picton, and Wellington.

The soldiers, bound for a Canadian camp set up in the British sector of Western Germany near Hannover, lined the rails cheering.

Go To Rotterdam

The Fairsea, will take them to Rotterdam and they will be moved by train to their German camp put in readiness by advance parties of the 27th Brigade which sailed earlier.

The 1,500 men aboard the Fairsea will bring to about 2,350 the strength of the Canadian force in Germany and en route.

Further sailings within the next few weeks will complete delivery overseas of the 5,000-man brigade which Canada is putting at the disposal of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in command of General Eisenhower.

Wide Representation

Cities and towns in many parts of Canada are represented in the first Canadian infantry battalion, made up of companies from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Les Fusiliers Mont Royal, the Algonquin Regiment, the Loyal Edmonton Regiment and the Carleton and York Regiment.

The infantry battalion trained at Valcartier camp on the outskirts of Quebec and its men were taken by truck from their barracks to Wolfe's Cove where they boarded the Fairsea carrying full kit.

The engineers came from Petawawa, the workshops unit from Kingston, and the advance party of the 79th Field Regiment from Shilo, Man.

These groups were brought to Quebec by train for their embarkation.

During their voyage, the Canadians will be under the command of Lt.-Col. J. E. L. Castonguay of Montreal, who heads the infantry battalion.

May Meet With Stalin Hint From UK

Churchill Goes To Washington Early In January

LONDON, Nov. 12. —(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill will leave for Washington in the first days of January for talks with President Truman, it was announced officially tonight. He will be accompanied by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Churchill's chief adviser on atomic research, Lord Cherwell, and Lord Ismay, Commonwealth Relations Minister, will also make the trip.

The announcement came shortly after Churchill told the House of Commons that the possibility of a high level meeting with Truman and Stalin "should not be excluded."

He said there were at present no plans for such a meeting but there was a possibility when circumstances improved.

Churchill was answering a question on when he proposed "to make a new bid for peace by initiating fresh negotiations with President Truman and Marshal Stalin."

Possibility Not Excluded

Churchill's reply was: "There are at present no plans for negotiations on general problems with the Soviet Union, but the possibility of a high level meeting should not be excluded if circumstances are favorable."

Labor member of parliament Norman Dodds, who asked the question, said tens of millions of people were looking to the Prime Minister to reduce "the icy temperature of the cold war."

Did he know that on Friday Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born newspaper magnate, forecast

Pearson Stresses If Split Deepens UN May Disappear

PARIS, Nov. 12. (CP)—Canada today urged Russia to reconsider its rejection of the western plan for disarmament. Canada's External Affairs Minister, L. B. Pearson, warned in a hard-hitting address delivered before the United Nations assembly that if the East-West split deepens, the western world must be prepared for the disappearance of the UN as now known and replacement by regional pacts to preserve peace. While there are no signs of a Soviet peace move visible, Pearson said, United Nations members should meet any genuine peace attempt "half way or even more than half way."

Pearson's major policy speech, spiced with sharp answers to Russia's Andrei Vishinsky, reflected western delegates disappointment at the Soviet foreign minister's sneering attitude toward the arms reduction plan presented last week by the United States, Britain and France.

After Pearson's speech, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain and State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States stepped over to the Canadian section to congratulate him.

Last Hope

Pearson said the United Nations remains the last and best hope for peace but the "emphasis is shifting from best to last."

He added, however, he is "not prepared to abandon all hope of negotiations within the UN for an effective and controlled reduction of the heavy bruden of armaments."

He made these other major points:

1. Collective security measures is one of the most important subjects at the current session.

2. The Korean war has shown what collective action can do but there is a need for more UN members participating.

3. The increasing strength of the Western World is giving greater confidence and should be used as a basis for east-west negotiation.

Soviet Stops Trying

Taking Vishinsky's tirade apart piece by piece, Pearson said if taken at face value the Russian's statement would show his government had decided to abandon the effort to bridge the east-west gap.

Pearson said he hopes the Russian attitude "will be reconsidered so that when we sit down in the

Canada Says Farewell To Princess

PORTUGAL COVE, Nfld., Nov. 12 — (CP). — The Royal tourists sailed from here at 12:20 pm today aboard the Empress of Scotland on the return trip to England after 15,000 mile tour across North America.

Guns boomed a salute as the Princess and the Duke embarked from this tiny fishing village. The Royal couple had a last triumphal drive through nearby St. John's on this wild November day.

Then they motored to this village, boarded the tender Menaco and surrounded by a flag-bedecked fleet of 20 fishing vessels moved across a mile patch of rough water of Conception Bay to the big liner that will be their home for the next few days en route to England.

Escorting the liner on the first stage of her voyage was the cruiser Ontario which had taken the Royal couple on the last three island stops—Prince Edward Island, Cape Breton, and Newfoundland.

The Ontario will be relieved at dusk by two British destroyers—Creole and Zambezi.

Taste of Winter

On the final day of their visit, the Royal pair got a taste of the Canadian winter's beginning. A wild northwester churned the sullen waters off this ancient island, which was known as Britain's oldest colony before its union with Canada only two years ago.

Mystery Man Of Navy Reaches Canada

ESQUIMALT, BC, Nov. 12 (CP) —Lieut. Joseph Cyr, called a "mystery man" of the Royal Canadian Navy, landed at this Pacific naval base today.

Listed on many rolls as a surgeon-lieutenant, he has been accused of being a medical impostor and was recently relieved of his duties aboard the Canadian destroyer Cayuga in Korean waters.

Cyr, who won praise for his operations while he was serving aboard the Cayuga, faces an investigation into his identity and his qualifications to practice medicine.

The investigation will be held at naval headquarters here during the week. Naval authorities, however, said no statement will be issued here on the findings of an inquiry board.

The report of the findings must come from Ottawa.

Arrives In Vancouver

The lieutenant arrived at Vancouver early today from Tokyo, accompanied by two naval officers.

His identity was kept secret until his arrival here.

Cyr, who joined the navy last March, claimed he was a doctor from Grand Falls, NB. He was suspended from duty after New Brunswick authorities said there was a record of only one Dr. Joseph Cyr, whao now has a practice in Grand Falls.

Dr. Cyr said his medical identification papers disappeared last winter.

Cyr arrived here under escort but not under arrest. No formal charges have been laid against him.

Allied Troops Seize 2 Hills

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 12 (AP) —Allied troops today seized two hill positions southwest of Kumsong in an attack which pushed the Reds back three-quarters of a mile.

The Eighth Army said the attack began at dawn, and both hills were secured by 1 pm. The Allied infantrymen ran into light to moderate fire from a Communist platoon on each peak.

Kumsong is an old Red supply base, 30 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

Patrols clashed sharply southwest and southeast of Kumsong Sunday. An Allied feeler thrust northeast of the shell-torn central front town was driven back by heavy mortar and artillery fire.

The Reds staged a series of sharp assaults on the eastern front Sunday. In the rugged region northwest of the Punchbowl, the Communists attacked six times, twice in more than company strength.

F-86 Sabre jets patrolling northwest Korea sighted red-nosed MIG-15 jets at a distance but the Communist pilots avoided combat.

Danger Of Third World War Shadows Remembrance Day

Mental combat against that sombre possibility—a third world war—was urged on hundreds of listeners Sunday at the Remembrance Day service in Confederation Park. Three clergymen representing the major faiths of Peterborough, struck that same, grim note in their November 11 sermons.

The first speaker, the Rev. W. C. McCarney, referred to it as being already in progress, when he said that in addition to remembering those who died in the wars of 1914-18 and 1939-45, "Today we include those who have died in World War Three.

"Those of us who are at home, where things are complacent, do not realize, the same thing is going on in Korea as went on in France. Men are sacrificing their lives for the same cause today," declared Father McCarney — "Peace."

Father McCarney said that "we too can carry on the mental war in ourselves by combatting all the 'isms' that make war throughout the world."

Must Gain Brotherhood

Countless generations have suffered war and strife, catastrophe and horror because man having forsaken the brotherhood of man has himself given rise to despotic aggressors, declared Rabbi J. Meyer. Terming the era between the two world wars an "interlude of intrigue and international deceit," Rabbi Meyer expressed a hope "for the rebirth of a new world, where war and its horrible consequences would never again invade the homes of men." This he said would be "an everlasting memorial to their lives."

"As we remember those who paid the supreme sacrifice in two world wars, it is a fitting time to ask everyone to unite in a common cause and forget their differences," said Marwood Patterson, a University of Toronto theological student who spoke at the service. "We must all join hands to assure there is not a third world war," he said.

Most church services did not start until 11:15, Because of Remembrance Day falling on Sun-

Piper Winner By Half-A-Head

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (CP)—Senator Tom Reid, parliament's top bagpiper, scored a neat half-a-head victory today in one of the zaniest pipe-playing contests ever staged in this capital.

The Vancouver piper, smartly outfitted in formal Robertson clan attire, downed challenger Alec Finlay, Scottish comedian, in a screechy half-hour match, adjudicated by non-player Tom Ross, Liberal member of parliament for Hamilton East who has just returned from a trip to Scotland.

Senator Reid, assisted by two lucky grouse feet on his red, green and blue kilt, entered the sixth-floor parliamentary musicale, with two old favorites—Cock o' the North and Road To the Isles.

Challenger Finlay, in his walking out Finlay clan dress, replied with a jazzy "in the mood" number, accompanied with some neat tap-dancing, and followed through with "Misere" from the opera Il Trovatore and March of the 42nd Highlanders.

Adjudicator Ross, however, decided that Senator Reid had more decorum about him than his challenger and beside he was half-a-head taller, which made him the winner.

Mechanical Trouble

LONDON, Nov. 12 —(AP)—Mechanical trouble forced a Sydney-bound airliner with 29 passengers aboard to dump its gasoline in the English Channel and return to London airport today. Among the passengers were three members of the House of Commons bearing gifts from the British parliament to the parliaments of Australia and New Zealand.

Taking No Chances

Police Investigate Recluse Too Interested In A-Bomb

OAKLAND, Calif., Nov. 12 — (AP)—A recluse with a strange interest in the atom bomb, national defence and kindred subjects was held for the Federal Bureau of Investigation today — just to be sure he was as harmless as he sounds.

For the last two years Otto F. Maynard has been living in a shack under an approach to the San Francisco Bay bridge; amid the darndest collection of photographic and written matter police had ever seen.

There were photos of industrial plants and bridges, reams of notes on the atom bomb and hundreds of carefully written papers dealing with defence matters.

And, in the rude shack, police found: one expensive Graphic camera, one long-range lens, 33 other pieces of photographic equipment including filters, and a magnifying glass.

"What's all the fuss about," the 42-year-old Maynard inquired when police booked him for vagrancy.

Maynard said he lived in the shack because "rents are too high." He said he is a camera fan and naturally spends all the money he gets for photographic equipment. Police checked and found he worked off and on as odd jobs gardener and restaurant worker.

He pointed out that his notes on the atom bomb all dealt with its effects; not with its construction. He said they had been taken from civilian defence pamphlets available to anyone.

Jury Decides Yule Insane

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (CP) — Edwin Yule, confessed knife-slayer of a child in suburban Verdun last summer, today was found insane and unfit to stand trial.

A court of King's Bench jury returned its verdict after hearing testimony by Dr. J. E. Huard, superintendent of a hospital for the criminally insane, who testified Yule was awaiting admission to an asylum at the time of the slaying.

Yule gave himself up to police shortly after the slaying.

Second Village Ordered Evacuated

KUALA, LUMPUR, Malaya, Nov. 12 (Reuters).—The second village within five days has been ordered evacuated by the British for supporting Communist terrorists, it was announced here today.

Villagers of Bukit Changgang, in South Selangor, were ordered to leave after the government charged them with supporting and supplying terrorists in the jungle.

Five days ago 2,000 villagers at Tras Pahang, which harbored the gang that killed High Commissioner Sir Henry Gurney of Britain, were arrested and moved into detention camps.

The announcement said that the inhabitants of Bukit Changgang were being given a second chance to co-operate with authorities.

May Visit Ottawa

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (CP) — Prime Minister Winston Churchill may visit this capital when he crosses the Atlantic in January to confer with President Truman, it was reported in official circles today. There has been no definite statement on the question, but it is believed Prime Minister St. Laurent may issue an invitation to Mr. Churchill to make his first visit to Ottawa since the war.

Battle Of Tickets Boomerang For Police

YONKERS, NY, Nov. 12 (NY) —The battle of tthe traffic tickets threatened today to boomerang on Yonkers police.

Since the voters last Tuesday turned down a proposed $500 a year pay boost of the police, the officers have issued 1,934 traffic summonses compared with only 73 on Monday and election day.

Now embattled citizens are considering another election on policemen's pay—this one a referendum to repeal a $500 raise voted two years ago.

"Any move in this direction," said a former member of the common council, who refused to be quoted by name, "will stop this spite drive in its tracks. The whole city is stirred up."

Official action already has been started to find out why the police have been so zealous in their traffic enforcement duties.

Use Strong Talk To Communists

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 12 (AP) —Allied truce negotiators in strong words today accused the Communists of insisting on a phoney cease-fire line likely to stall the armistice talks.

After the sub-committee had wrangled for 4¼ hours, an Allied spokesman said they were no closer to an agreement on the thorny buffer zone issue. They will meet again in Panmunjon at 11 am Tuesday (9 pm EST Monday)—their 20th session.

Maj-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, chairman of the two-member UN Command sub-committee, minced no words in telling the Communist negotiators:

"You intend to establish a presumptive demarcation line and demilitarized zone, which will release you of any necessity to settle the remaining items of the (armistice) agenda with speed and equity."

Special Court Acquits "Burma Surgeon"

RANGOON, Burma, Nov. 12 — (AP)—A special Burmese court acquitted "Burma surgeon" Dr. Gordon S. Seagrave today of aiding a rebel leader, and set aside his conviction by a high court.

An earlier appeal court already had freed him from jail by commuting his sentence to the seven months he served while awaiting trial. Seagrave sought reversal of the treason conviction so that he could return to his hospital work among the tribesmen of north Burma.

Answer To Financial Plea

Senator Urges US Abandon Atomic Bases In Britain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP) — Senator Edwin C. Johnson, (Dem. Colo.) said today the United States ought to abandon any atomic bases it has in Britain.

Johnson, a member of the Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Energy committee, said there is "no excuse for making the British people a target" for enemy attack. He suggested American bases in the British Isles might provoke an attack.

Johnson told a reporter that in any event no consideration should be given to such bases in any study of whether the United States should extend additional financial help to Britain.

Prime Minister Churchill suggested last Friday that the United States give the "fullest consideration" to Britain's need for further dollar aid for her rearmament program and her limping economy. A London source said a request for about $300,000,000 in new aid would be made.

Churchill said Britain has "every need and right to seek and receive" American help because "we took peculiar risks in providing the principal atomic bases for the United States" in East England. The Prime Minister added that is a result Britain has placed itself "in the very forefront of Soviet antagonism."

Johnson said however, that the issue of additional financial assistance for the British "will have to be considered strictly on its own merits—divorced entirely from the matter of atomic bases." He added:

"We should be very cautious in extending more aid. The help we have given Britain in the past has only aggravated her long-range problems."

Johnson indicated criticism of the socialization program of the Labor government, which Churchill's Conservative party ousted from power in the recent elections.

During the weekend Senator McKellar (Dem. Tenn.) also took a dim view of more United States dollar aid to Britain.

Foil Terrorists In Suez Area

CAIRO, Nov. 12 (CP).—British security forces have completely disrupted Egyptian attempts to organize terrorists operating in Suez Canal Zone, Lt.-Gen. Sir George Erskine, British commander in Egypt, said today.

Speaking at a press conference, Erskine said the underground movement in the zone consisted of "only a few individuals" and he was satisfied that security precautions were preventing them from organizing.

Erskine added that Egyptian "liberation battalions" though not organized in the Canal Zone, have set up a roadblock on the Cairo-Ismailia road.

In Alexandria, Egyptian officials today persuaded striking dockworkers, who refused to handle ships flying British, American, French or Turkish flags, that their action was "harmful to national interests." The dockmen went back to work this morning.

Iranian Troops Nip New Plot By Reds

TEHRAN, Nov. 12 (AP).—Iranian troops and police claimed today to have nipped a plot by the outlawed Tudeh (Communist) party to seize its former national headquarters in the heart of Tehran.

Acting on a telephoned tip, some 700 heavily-armed troops threw a cordon around the big two-storey building. Up to noon there had been no disorders, but traffic in the area was badly snarled.

Police Chief Mansoor Mozayani told reporters the Reds had planned to seize the building this morning. Since the Tudeh was outlawed in February, 1949, after an assassination attempt on Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, their former headquarters has been occupied by a tailoring concern.

Mozayani said Tudeh leaders had arranged for a strike of the tailoring concern's 150 workers so the building would be unoccupied when the Communists moved in.

Trapped By Ice 19 Hunters Reach Safety

WEBBWOOD, Ont., Nov. 12—(CP)—Nineteen of 26 hunters isolated when the Spanish River and Lake Agnew 14 miles north of here froze over Tuesday, reached safety during the weekend after abandoning their equipment. Seven others were still in the bush.

The hunters were trapped on the north shore of the lake when ice prevented them using the boats in which they originally crossed. Most of those who escaped crept across the rubbery ice to safety.

Names of the seven still isolated are not known but they are believed to be from Blenheim and Chatham. The 19 who reached safety were from Sarnia, Watford, Bracebridge. Three different parties of hunters were trapped.

Tom Kemsley, 60, of Sarnia, walked across the ice of the lake Saturday afternoon with Bill Kelly and Cec Waldeck also of Sarnia. Jack Galloway, George Houston and Earl Dixon, all of Sarnia, found their way out by crossing an unfrozen section of the Spanish River on a raft of logs.

Seven men joined by a 100-foot safety rope also walked across the ice. They were Wilbert Callum of the Imperial Hunt Club, Sarnia; Roy Cook, reeve of Watford; George Houwt, Harold Kelley, Bill Guilfoyle and Albert Heather of Sarnia; and George Blenkin of Bracebridge.

Safety Rope Helps

Callum fell through the ice on the way across but the safety rope and a 10-foot pole he was carrying, saved him from going under the ice.

Other members of the Imperial Hunt Club of Sarnia who escaped were: Bob Sokol, a football player; Bill Kelley, Jack Galloway, George Houston, Cec Waldeck, Lloyd Gibb, Earl Dixon and Reeve Roy Cook.

Another party was made up of William Tingey, 76, and his son, Clifford of Bracebridge; George Beer and Tom Young of Espanola.

The trapped hunters lived in makeshift shelters while they were stranded, and lived off the food they had with them and deer and partridges they shot. The seven men left behind the ice barrier are believed to have a number of deer and to be in no danger of starving.

Provincial police aided some of the men to escape. A tug owned by the Kalamazoo Parchment Company was used in an effort to reach some of the men but could not break through the ice.

Those who escaped left behind their equipment. "They (the seven men left) told us they wouldn't come out without their deer or their equipment," said Provincial Police Corporal Harvey Lapp.

Soldiers Give Lives For Pals

BRITISH COMMONWEALTH DIVISION, Korea, Nov. 12 (Reuters)—The two Chinese grenades came hurtling into the British lines and landed fizzing among a group of soldiers. Like a flash, two of the troops threw themselves on the grenades. There were two muffled explosions . . .

The two dead men are unnamed but honored. Men of the Royal Leicester Regiment—The Tigers—just back from the lines told Sunday how the pair died to save the lives of their buddies.

It is just another of the disjointed stories which go to make up the history of three days of battle when the Leicesters and King's Own Scottish Borderers fought a gallant stand last week against 6,000 Chinese who outnumbered them 10-1.

As the censorship is gradually lifted from the action, the details of the battle are becoming known.

A battalion of the Leicesters went into the battle line to relieve the few hundred Borderers who had held their ground from one of the biggest artillery barrages of the war and a suicidal bugle-blowing attack by the Chinese.

The plan was to hit the Chinese as hard as possible before they had a chance to consolidate their newly won positions.

And there the security veil comes down again, except for the terse report that the Leicesters came through with flying colors.

Moderator Reports Morale Excellent

HONG KONG, Nov. 12 (AP)—A Canadian religious leader who has just completed a tour of Korean battlefronts said Sunday the morale of British and Canadian troops there was "excellent."

The Right Rev. Norman B. Kennedy, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada and minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Regina, arrived in Hong Kong Saturday. He was accompanied by Canada's chaplain of the fleet, E. G. B. Foote.

The two represented the Canadian Government Sunday at Remembrance Day rites here honoring the dead of both world wars.

Three Drivers Face Drunk Driving Counts

"That's the third drunk driving charge this morning," said Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today as he granted Charles W. Baker, 29, RR 2, Norwood, a week's adjournment on a charge of driving while he was intoxicated.

"If this keeps up," added Magistrate Philp, "the minimum sentence will have to be raised."

At present, the minimum sentence for a drunk driving conviction is seven days in county jail for the first offence. Any one convicted of drunk driving with one prior conviction against them faces a minimum of 30 days in jail.

After pleading not guilty to driving while he was intoxicated, Edmund J. Dionne, 26, of 8 Edgewater St., was granted an adjournment for two weeks on consent of crown attorney John A. Bradshaw.

Also charged with drunk driving, Maurice Coe, 38, of Young's Point was granted an adjournment until November 19.

Cadet Honored By Air League

OTTAWA — (CP) — Dale Morley, 15-year-old member of the 217th Air Cadet Squadron at Princeton, B.C., has earned the title of Canada's "most enthusiastic cadet," it was announced at Air Cadet League headquarters here.

Young Dale lives on the 4,400-foot summit of Allison Pass, 50 miles west of Princeton on the new Hope-Princeton highway which connects Vancouver with the southern interior of British Columbia.

But only rarely does Dale miss the weekly parade of the 217th squadron. He hitch-hikes to Princeton and after the parade he waits at the bus depot for the 1:30 a.m. westbound bus, which does not reach his home until 3 a.m.

Last year Morley missed only a single parade, and on that occasion a huge snow slide had blocked the new highway.

There is no school at Allison Pass so Dale is obtaining his formal education by means of a correspondence course. He surprised his officers and instructors by getting the highest marks of the squadron in the annual examination on meteorology, navigation and airmanship.

Canada Says

It was at St. John's Sunday that Princess Elizabeth said adieu to Canada. She and her sailor husband found a "second home in every sense" in Canada and hoped to come back again.

Their lusty welcome here Sunday was one of the heartiest of their tour, which took them to Washington as well as coast-to-coast in Canada.

Arriving early from Sydney, NS, aboard the spick and span cruiser Ontario, they went through a busy round of functions, including participation in Remembrance Day ceremonies.

Wonderful Memories

The Princess, in a country-wide radio farewell message, said she and her sailor husband were taking with them memories "that will always draw us back to this country."

Canada had a great future. "I have seen this future in the eyes of hundreds of thousands of your children and have heard it in their voices . . . .

"Destiny has given me the great privilege of being able to live my life for their service . . . in these five weeks you have given me new strength and inspiration which I know will always help me in the future."

The Duke gave his farewell address earlier in the tour at Halifax. He concluded then by saying he was taking with him a message that "Canada is a good investment."

Attend Service

Earlier in the day the Princess and Duke attended service in the Anglican cathedral where the Duke read the lesson.

Aboard the Ontario, Canada's second largest warship, the royal couple seemed completely at ease.

They visited the galley, attended a formal mess dinner and looked in on the gun room, retreat of the junior officers. It was here that they had their happiest time. Young subbies and middies surrounded the Princess and plied her with questions about the tour. In another corner others raised their voices in some old songs.

The Duke took advantage of his title to seek and obtain amnesty for five young middies who had their leave stopped for being late returning to ship on a recent Sydney trip. The amnesty was also extended to some ratings in a similar category.

The Princess, ashore, wore a legion poppy when she placed a wreath of lilies and poppies at the cenotaph and inspected long lines of bemedalled veterans of the First and Second World Wars.

At the provincial dinner featuring Newfoundland codfish and caribou steak, Premier Joseph Smallwood presented the Princess with a native otter cape.

Two Banks Held Up

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (CP) — Two banks in Quebec province were held up during the weekend for a total of nearly $6,000 but the loot of one was recovered when two youthful bandits were captured Saturday night.

Peron Returned By Big Majority

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12 — (AP). — Argentina has returned President Juan D. Peron to another six years of power in a record-breaking election which gave him a thumping majority over his main opposition.

Peron's chief opponents, the Radical Party, conceded his overwhelming victory on the basis of government figures and unofficial incomplete returns from Sunday's election.

With about one-third of the votes counted, the Interior Ministry announced early today that Peron had a total of 1,503,161 votes 719,253 for Dr. Ricardo Balbin, Raidical party candidate.

The pro-government press hailed Peron's victory as a vote of confidence by the people. It said his final majority will be bigger than in his first election in 1946, when he polled 55 per cent.

Radical leaders declared that women voting for the first time in an Argentine general election, were the main instrument in the Peron victory.

The opposition claimed there had been some irregularities in the vote counting. They said that, according to their own count, at least five and possibly seven of their candidates won congressional seats in the capital, which sends 30 deputies to Congress.

day, the wreaths were laid on the War Memorial before the service began.

Large Turnout

A parade, described by Legion officials as the "largest turnout of legionnaires in years" formed up at the Armouries and marched through the downtown section of the city, returning to Confederation Park just prior to the opening of the service which started at 10:40. After two minutes' silence and the sounding of the last post at 11 parade reformed under parade marshal James Weyer and marched down McDonnel St., along Water St., to Murray St., and down Murray St., to the Armouries where it broke off.

Four bands were included in the parade: the 52nd Heavy Anti-Aircraft RCA band and Regiment which led the parade, the CGE Pipe Band, the Citizens' Band and the Salvation Army Temple Band.

Included in the parade were the 28th technical squadron, the Legion veterans, (Red Patch and Duffy Club), and units representing CGE veterans, RCAF veterans and Naval veterans. Veterans from the police and fire departments also marched in the parade.

The color and wreath party consisted of the Citizens' Band, Branch 452, Canadian Legion, Westclox veterans, the Salvation Army Band, 2nd naval cadets and air cadet squadrons.

Before the service at the War Memorial began, chairman Lou Durkin, called on Legion president F. P. Burke who announced that Miss Patricia Johnson had won this year's Legion scholarship awafd. "There is no such thing as luck in winning this award," said Mr. Burke in making the announcement. It is awarded entirely on the amount of effort the student puts into working for the scholarship.

Pearson Stresses

political committee to examine this question the Soviet delegation may be able to negotiate rather than laugh at the deepest hopes of mankind."

He said that the UN is not bankrupt but is losing some credit.

The Canadian diplomat said that if the East-West split persists "and grows deeper and more dangerous then the UN as we know it now, as we formed it in San Francisco, may well disappear."

Regional Arrangements

In the event of such disappearance the world would have to rely on regional arrangements for security, he declared.

He said the study of collective security measures in the UN may show whether the UN Assembly will be able to use its new authority more effectively against threats to peace than the Security Council has done.

If such a development is opposed, he said, the UN might become merely an agency for debate and an instrument of negotiation only in disputes not affecting the Great Powers.

No Contribution

Reviewing UN accomplishments in the economic, social and humanitarian fields, Pearson slammed Russia for making practically no contributions in these areas of UN work.

Pearson lit into Vishinsky's speech of last week with the statement that "even as propaganda it is poor stuff."

He said of the Soviet disarmament proposal that the assembly itself is a disarmament conference.

The west doesn't believe Vishinky's avowal that Russia has no thought of attacking anyone because, he said, the facts are against him.

No words of Viskinsky will deter Canada from building up its strength because nothing the Soviet foreign minister said or Russia has done has "lessened the burden of our fear."

"The only peaceful co-existence we can accept and which we must never cease to search for is one in accordance with the principles of the charter of the UN."

The UN could grow in strength if that goal was reached, Pearson said.

"But the vision which once inspired such world-wide and such fervent hope has been dimmed by the dark clouds of political conflict between the great powers," he declared.

Friendly Relations

Pearson touched on relations between Canada and the United States.

"No country," he said, "is closer to the United States geographically and in every other way than Canada. Our relations with the most powerful nation in the world, based on friendship, confidence and mutual respect, are not, as in some quarters, those of master and servant.

"We in Canada occasionally criticize frankly, but, I hope, reasonably, the policies and attitudes of our friends to the south.

"This, I think, reinforces the value of the support which, of our own free will, we give to her as, with the United Kingdom and France, she gives leadership to those countries which are trying to preserve the peace, uphold the principles, and fulfill the purposes of the United Nations charter.

"That is what we are doing in Korea today, and thousands of Canadians, fighting there as soldiers of the United Nations, are proud to share in that high endeavor."

See Weaknesses

But, Pearson said, "the hastily improvised" UN action in Korea "has not, even yet, a broad enough basis of participation. It has demonstrated weakness, as well as strength in our organization."

"International relations are now, in a very real and dangerous sense, centred on the conflict between two great blocs . . . with the chasm between them growing wider, and the efforts to bridge that chain becoming less effective.

"Indeed, if we took the statement of the Soviet delegate on Thursday last at face value, it would show that the Russian government has now decided to abandon the effort completely, and to use the United Nations, not for the removal of differences, but merely to vilify, sneer at and attack those with whom they disagree."

Eden Asks Reconsideration

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain also called on the Russians to put aside major world issues and seek a step-by-step solution to the cold war.

Eden, the dapper foreign secretary of the new Churchill government, made what was considered a conciliatory speech. "Let us grasp the definite and limited problems, and work for their practical solution," he pleaded.

"That is the real road to peace. That is the way to make a fresh start," he said.

Eden was greeted with a great burst of applause when he took the rostrum to speak. The public galleries were jammed.

Backing up US State Secretary Dean Acheson's policy statement last week on every point, Eden cited the British-French-American disarmament proposal as one example of how the East-West disputants could work from the small issues to the large.

"We suggest," he said, that disarmament "should begin with the less important categories of armed forces and armaments, then move on to those that are more important and secret, and therefore more difficult to handle . . . .

Sooner The Better

"The sooner we can agree on the simpler categories, the sooner we shall have confidence to tackle more complex tasks."

Eden appealed to Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia to reconsider his scornful rejection of the Western proposals. The Russian had submitted, instead, his own disarmament plan calling for a world arms conference.

Eden also urged, as Acheson had before him, that agreement be reached to:

1. End the war in Korea;
2. Reunite Germany through free democratic elections;
3. Give Austria a treaty ending the occupation by France, Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States;
4. Admit Italy to the United Nations.

Eden implied that the time was not yet ripe for a conference of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill, Marshall Stalin and French Premier Rene Pleven, as French President Vincent Auriol suggested last week.

UK War Office Orders Inquiry On Censorship

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP)—The British war office has ordered an investigation into alleged anti-Commonwealth bias by United States Eighth Army censors in Korea.

A war office spokesman disclosed today that British military authorities in Korea have been instructed to carry out the inquiry following complaints from two British news organizations.

One of them, he said, was the London newspaper, The Daily Telegraph. The identity of the other was not disclosed.

The Daily Telegraph carried a long dispatch on page one today from Eric Downton, its correspondent with the US Eighth Army in Korea. He wrote:

"The need for Commonwealth representation on the censors now operating at Eight Army headquarters in Korea has become unpleasantly obvious. Commonwealth correspondents here have lost confidence in the efficiency, consistency and fairness of the existing all-American censorship."

Downton said the censorship today is "more rigid and unpredictable" than ever before, and added "reluctantly British, Australian and Canadian correspondents have been made to feel there is in it some degree of anti-Commonwealth bias."

Reports Held Up

Downton alleged that Eighth Army censors held up British reports of last week's battle between Chinese Reds and the King's Own Scottish Borderers from Monday to Saturday long after "the Chinese knew exactly whom they were fighting."

"This is in strong contrast to the treatment accorded to reports of an operation by American Marines November 10," Downton added, "a spectacular air-ground action to mark the Marine Corps' '176th birthday.' Reports of the action were passed immediately."

Downton also said that last weekend the American censor at Eighth Army headquarters tried "to prevent the representative of a British news agency from dispatching a report of operations which had already been sent by American agencies."

Minister's Chauffeur Charged Second Time

Brooke Claxton's chauffeur appeared in Police Court again this morning.

On October 31, Thomas Douglas, 22, of 464 Somerset Street West Ottawa, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol. The charge was dismissed. Douglas told Magistrate W. R. Philp he was a chauffeur for Defence Minister Claxton.

Today Douglas pleaded not guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. He was remanded until November 19 on $200 bail.

Douglas was dressed in naval uniform today and was wearing a hat with the name HMCS Bytown on the band. He gave the same Ottawa address as before.

at a public meeting that Churchill would meet Marshal Stalin? Was this a good or bad forecast, Dodds asked.

But Churchill would not be drawn out. "I have nothing to add to my answer," he said.

On Agenda

Shortly before Churchill's statement in the Commons, a qualified government official pictured the Prime Minister as willing to go alone to see Stalin if Truman should reject the idea of a big three meeting on world tensions.

The official indicated the question of the desirability of a big three meeting would be high on the agenda of the Washington meeting.

In addition, the President and the Prime Minister are likely to go over the whole range of Anglo-American political, economic and military relations, including a full US-British partnership in the atomic energy field. They are expected to talk over US military and economic aid to prop up Britain's safety and solvency.

Churchill pledged during the British election campaign that he would do all in his power to end the cold war. He committed himself to try to see Stalin with the goal of bringing about a live-and-let-live arrangement between Moscow and the west.

Campbellford Hunter Strays From Camp, Lost Overnight

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 12 — (ENS)—Deer hunters from the Campbellford district will remember the 1951 season as one of the worst they have ever experienced, at least the many who have come to grief in the bush recently.

Donald B. Bennett of Campbellford was the centre of interest locally on Saturday, when he failed to return to his own hunting camp and efforts to locate him were unsuccessful. He had strayed from his hunting camp 12 miles north of Marmora.

When Mr. Bennett failed to return Friday night, members of his party became worried. Saturday morning Russell Young, a member of the party, got to a telephone to notify relatives that the man was missing.

Arrangements were made to organize a search party from Campbellford and a jeep was hired to transport the men into the bush. Provincial police of the Madoc detachment, as well as Campbellford police, were alerted to aid in the search.

Walks Into Camp

Later in the day Mr. Bennett walked into his own camp. He denied being lost but said that while hunting on the previous day apart from others in the party, he had travelled a considerable distance from his camp. As darkness approached Mr. Bennett found the going quite heavy and he thought it advisable to travel another few miles to the site of another camp which he knew, rather than attempt to travel the much greater distance of its own camp.

Apart from being tired from his long tramp through the bush, he was none the worse for his experience. He had spent a comfortable night in the neighboring camp but was unable to get word back to his friends as to what had happened to him.

There was a great feeling of relief when the people of Campbellford learned that the search party had been called off and that Mr. Bennett was safe.

The second party of Campbellford hunters and their wives have been marooned since Wednesday on an island in Lake Weslemkoom, about 85 miles north of this town.

The heavy snow storm and below-freezing temperatures made it impossible for them to reach the mainland. The ice was too thin to walk across and yet too thick to use their motor boat. Their predicament was not serious however as they were quartered in a good house with plenty of fuel and provisions. They had two deer among the 10 in the party. The party managed to reach the mainland by boat on Sunday and are back in Campbellford now.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Campbellford Pays Tribute To Its Fallen

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 12 — (ENS)—A large number of people from Campbellford and the surrounding district turned out on a bright, warm fall day to pay tribute to the dead of two wars at the cenotaph here Sunday afternoon.

Campbellford Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion, marched in a body, led by the Campbellford Citizen's Band in their new uniforms. Following were the color party of the local Legion and of the Frankford branch as well as standardbearers of the Ladies' Auxiliary of both branches.

Members of the Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion helped swell the ranks of the marchers. Members of the local clergy, including the Rev. A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of St. John's United, the Rev. H. S. Staples and the Rev. James McAvoy of Burnbrae were in charge of the service.

Mr. McAvoy was guest speaker and told the large crowd of the heritage of freedom that was theirs, bought for them with the lives of many young men of the community who had fallen in combat. "They have thrown the torch to us, it is our duty never to fail them," he said.

The Citizen's Band played for a number of hymns which the entire group sang. Wreaths were placed on the cenotaph by Legion members, town officials, and private individuals. Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Bandsmen Walter Lowe, Elmer Kelly, James Baker and Bob Nicholls.

Ten Million Dollars' Worth Of Wheat

Readers of our Third Column interpretative articles on India and Pakistan which we have carried from time to time during the last two years as they have been cabled from the Far East, will know how many and serious are the problems facing those two countries. One of the most pressing is the basic one of feeding the people. Millions are perpetually on the verge of starvation; tens of thousands do starve to death. There are two ways for India and Pakistan to get the food they need: import it, and secondly, so improve industrial and farming methods that more can be produced by the people themselves. Canada's gift to India of ten million dollars' worth of wheat helps in both ways.

* * *

The millions of bushels of wheat are being sent direct as first aid and sent free because India does not have the Canadian dollars to pay for it. The gift of wheat is also indirectly helpful. It will be sold by Indian food dealers to their customers and Canada has stipulated that the money from these sales be used by the Government of India to finance projects designed to raise the standard of living. The ten million dollar gift forms part of Canada's $25,000,000 share in the Colombo plan to strengthen south and southeast Asia. India is to get $5,000,000 more, and Pakistan a total of $10,000,000. The Colombo Plan is not intended for immediate relief, but to assist these countries to develop industrially and economically.

* * *

Sending millions of bushels of wheat to a rice-eating country will not, by itself, keep the Indians from starving. Many of the poorest people neither eat nor know how to use wheat. So ingrained are their dietary habits that they are suspicious of a foreign, strange food like wheat flour or meal. Indian Government welfare officials will have to make propaganda for even the best Canadian Number 1 hard, to persuade the people to eat the stuff and show them what to do with the flour.

* * *

Is Canada being quixotically generous in giving away ten million dollars' worth of wheat? No. It is better to give it away, out of our surplus, than to burn it, as surplus coffee was burnt in Brazil in the thirties, and as farm produce was turned back into the soil in the United States. The wheat should help feed the Indians and foster good relations with that country. In time India can become a very good customer and powerful ally of Canada and the West. The best justification for the gift is that Indians and Canadians are fellow-humans; prosperous Canadians have a humanitarian concern for impoverished Indians. It is a matter of the heart to which our dollars and food can give expression.

Secession Postponed

The opening of a secession movement of the Southern States has been postponed, and the postponement was caused by the factor which has divided the United States Republican Party—uncertainty about a Presidential candidate. The Southern Democrats, like the Republicans, are certain that they are opposed to President Truman, but they do not know whether Mr. Truman intends to seek renomination. Their future course apparently will be decided by either the identity of the Democratic nominee, or the identity of the Republican nominee, or both.

If Mr. Truman decides not to seek renomination, and names in his place a candidate committed to the Truman Fair Deal program, the Southern Democrats will oppose him at both convention and election, if the first test is passed. If, however, the Presidential nominee were Chief Justice Frederick Vinson, the secessionists might change their attitude. Judge Vinson, although a strong Truman supporter, is a near-Southerner from the border State of Kentucky and a moderate in political and economic philosophy. He might possibly enlist the support of the Southern Democrats, but that would also depend upon the identity of the Republican candidate.

If Senator Taft became the Republican nominee, the Southern Democrats would oppose him strongly—except, of course, in the event that Mr. Truman became the Democratic nominee. But if General Eisenhower became the Republican nominee, the Southern Senators would be quite content to sit back and let the Democratic party take a beating. They could justify that conduct on patriotic grounds, yet still show their importance to the Democratic Party. This, they argue, would strengthen their position within the party and enable them to force elimination from its platform of the anti-racial legislation to which they are opposed. Finally, if General Eisenhower should by any chance accept the Democratic nomination, they would clamber whooping on the band wagon.

General Eisenhower, therefore, may perhaps be regarded as the cause of more political uncertainty in the United States than any other man in its history. However, since this situation is due to political considerations influencing the politicians themselves rather than to any action of the general's, it is unlikely that there will be overmuch sympathy with the former in their trial of indecision.

Big Time Towns

Preliminary census figures show that there are now thirteen Canadian cities with populations above 100,000. When the last census was taken (1941), there were only eight with 100,000 or more people in their metropolitan areas. The increase indicates the rapidity of the growth of population all over the country. In 1931 seven cities had 100,000 or more people; in 1921 six. Not only has the number of cities which have gone into the six-figure bracket increased; those within it have had very large accretions. Montreal, for instance, has gained 225,000 people in the last decade, Toronto 200,000 (it is now the second Canadian city of more than a million people), Edmonton 75,000 (it is now the eighth largest city in the country with a population of 172,112), Ottawa 53,000 and Quebec 47,000.

Canada's thirteen cities of a hundred thousand or more are: Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Quebec, Hamilton, Edmonton, Windsor, Calgary, Halifax, London and Victoria.

Education Is Not Intelligence

Hill-billies are uneducated, and it is widely assumed that they are also stupid. But recently a hill-billy who had arrived, shoeless and unshaven, to join the U.S. Army, underwent intelligence tests at San Antonio in Texas. His I.Q. proved to be 113, which is far higher than is needed to qualify him as material for officer's training; in one test, in which high school graudates usually score about 35, the hill-billy scored 93. And yet this man cannot read or write and has had no schooling at all.

This surprises us, though it would not have surprised our great-great-grandfathers; they were not, as we are, the victims of a delusion that intelligence and education are virtually the same thing; they knew many men who were illiterate, or near it, but who were unusually capable and intelligent.

When we read about the hill-billy who confounded the psychologists at San Antonio, we recalled some lines from The Task, a poem by that quiet and wise man William Cowper. They run thus:

Knowledge and wisdom, far from being one,
Have oft-times no connexion. Knowledge dwells
In heads replete with thoughts of other men;
Wisdom in minds attentive to their own.
Knowledge, a rude unprofitable mass,
The mere materials with which wisdom builds,
Till smoothed, and squared and fitted to its place,
Does but encumber whom it seems t'enrich.
Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much;
Wisdom is humble that he knows no more.
Books are not seldom talismans and spells,
By which the magic art of shrewder wits
Holds an unthinking multitude enthralled.
Some to the fascination of a name
Surrender judgement, hood-winked.
Some the style
Infatuates, and through labyrinths and wilds
Of error leads them by a tune entranced.
While sloth seduces more, too weak to bear
The insupportable fatigue of thought,
And swallowing, therefore, without pause or choice,
The total grist unsifted, husks and all.

To know a great deal is a very good thing; we would not say a word against the acquirement of knowledge, which is not as popular a pursuit as it should be, in this country. But we must always bear in mind that it is a man's wisdom, and not merely his knowledge, which makes him good or bad, great or small, generous or mean. And wisdom is likely to turn up in the most unlikely places.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We read of a woman who wants a divorce because she didn't notice before marriage that her husband lacked two fingers on one hand. What's she complaining about? Short weight?

Somebody, working upon we know not what statistical material, says that the meat hunters bring home at this time of year works out at $9 a pound. That's a little dearer than buying it, but perhaps it won't be by next year.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

I WOULD like to draw my readers' attention to the current series of programmes on Monday night on the local radio station sponsored by this newspaper. The Searles trio, who will be giving their third concert tonight, is composed of three thoroughly competent and experienced players, who have a wealth of great music to draw upon. Amongst those who have written trios are Haydn, Beethoven, Mozart, Brahms, Schubert, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Dvorak, not to mention Bax, Bridge, Chausson, John Ireland, Novak, Parry, Reger, Saint-Saens, Scott, Stanford, Tchaikovsky, Tovey and Ravel. Obviously three players cannot hope to match the iridescent colouring of the modern orchestra, the brilliant contrasts and the impressive volume of sound, but they can bring to their performances the intimate and personal touch that is absent of necessity from orchestral music. Trios are particularly suited for broadcasting: in a concert hall they usually sound rather thin, as they are essentially music of the home, whereas they lose little of their warm and intimate nature in broadcasting. This is the paradox of radio: a modern medium admirably adapted to mass dissemination of information, it is better suited for "Fireside Chats" than for rhetoric, which falls rather flat when broadcast. The motion pictures afford an interesting parallel. The legitimate theatre demands a technique "larger than life", each gesture and intonation broad enough to make its effect in every part of the theatre. The cinema, on the other hand, with its close-ups and magnified whispers can convey a world of meaning with the flicker of an eye-lash—normal stage acting must be toned down in order to seem natural on the screen.

* * *

RETURNING for a moment to the subject of trios, I would like to make it quite clear that I was talking about compositions written for violin, cello and piano. There is no end to the combinations of instruments used, and some of them are very delightful. The vocal trio, with or without accompaniment, is deservedly popular. Years ago vocal trios were called terzets, but this useful distinction has become obsolete. There is another and rather confusing meaning of the word trio, when it is used to denote the middle section of a minuet or scherzo. This section is usually in a contrasting mood and frequently in a contrasting key also, but usually in the same rhythm. It was originally called the trio because it was played by three players, usually picked instrumentalists, who could manage more difficult music than the rest of the band, but by the middle of the eighteenth century this distinction had been lost, and the trio, though still called by the same name, might be played by any number of instruments. It is interesting to note, however, that the trio section is nearly always more lightly scored, thus preserving the spirit, though not the letter of the older custom. Sometimes one will find two trios, or else the trio is repeated, in which case the main section is sandwiched in between the two trios as well as played at the beginning and end. In Beethoven's Seventh Symphony the trio is repeated, and then after the main section is played for the third and final time is sounds as though we are going to have the trio all over again for the third time: but no—there is an unexpected modulation to tonic minor and the movement closes abruptly with five orchestral hammer-strikes—a typical example of Beethoven's humour. Beethoven, the inventor of the scherzo as we know it, always bore in mind that scherzo is the Italian word for joke, and though the jesting is often grim and macabre the humorous character of the scherzo is never out of sight. As Max Beerbohm put into the lips of Matthew Arnold's small niece, Miss Mary Augusta (later Mrs. Humphrey Ward), "Why, Uncle Matthew, Oh why, will not you be always wholly serious?"

* * *

MUSIC-LOVERS will be pleased to hear that the gramophone record collection at the Public Library will shortly be open to the public as a lending library. This development has been held up for some time, because permission to start a lending library of records was not forthcoming, and secondly owing to changes in the staff, which held up cataloguing. I believe that miniature scores of some of the works may be available, so that borrowers will be able to study the score in conjunction with the recording. This is a most valuable and rewarding study, and I recommend it to all. Miniature scores of all the standard works and a surprising number of others are available at moderate prices. It is quite a commonplace in Europe to take these scores to a concert and following the programme with them: this is one reason why the fashion of darkend auditoriums has never caught on there, and I hope that it never will.

* * *

THERE is still a great shortage of tenors in this part of the world. This is strange in view of the considerable Irish element in our population, not to mention our fellow-citizens of Italian origin. Of course really exceptional voices are scarce: everywhere they always have been—that is why they are exceptional. But the shortage of good average singers who can comfortably manage the tenor part of most choral works, which is much less exacting in compass than operatic solos, is most disturbing to local choirmasters, as the tone of a choir depends so largely on a good balance. It is my impression that this state of affairs is by no means confined to Peterborough. I am inclined to believe that climatic conditions in this country may have something to do with it. It seems as though a cold climate tends to produce low voices, as in Russia, though in Canada we mitigate the effects of the cold weather to a great extent by our steam heating and air conditioning. Still our average annual temperature of 40 degrees or thereabouts is some ten degrees lower than Ireland and twenty degrees lower than Italy. One thing is certain: all this shouting at football games and the like can have very serious effects on the voice, especially at the time of the change of voice. The damage done by shouting can be irreparable.

* * *

THE syllabus of the Kiwanis Music Festival is due out very soon. This time one of the main and most justifiable complaints of teachers and competitors will be removed by the prompt appearance of the syllabus. In my opinion it should make a considerable difference to the number of entries and the general level of proficiency. The return of Alec Redshaw as adjudicator will be welcomed by many who appreciated his work four years ago.

Letters To The Editor

LESSON IN RHYME

Sir: I have lately heard so much about inflation, efficiency and production etc., I was inspired to write a little poem hoping it may catch the eye of those concerned with some of the factories which still lag a little behind. I would appreciate it if you could find space in your paper for it. Thanking you.

SUBSCRIBER.

Did This Happen At Your Factory?

Our Albert at supper last Friday,
Explained to his wife how he'd earned
An extra fifty dollars and fifty,
And without overtime she soon learned.

"They tried an experiment Gladys,"
He said as he passed her his cup,
"They could not get any skilled workers,
Yet production had to go up.

So the bosses and us go together,
And I gave them a hint now and then,
'Cause you've got to combine your brain work,
To make five as efficient as ten.

In turn we discussed each department,
And worked out its profit and loss,
And, believe it or not if you like Gladys,
Some workers knew more than the boss.

We looked at the employees records,
And the jobs they were doing just then,
And those with the brains and experience,
Got jobs as responsible men.

We arranged the machines a bit different,
To cut down the walking they said,
I was moved from sweeping and such like,
To do a more skilled job instead.

We also invited suggestions,
And offered rewards for the best,
Because after all you know Gladys,
Results count when put to the test.

When we had figured out all the answers,
Even the Union agreed "it's not bad,"
The experiment went into action,
All in it from bosses to lad.

Right away the costs started falling,
And the best of it was that this meant,
Extra dollars in wages and bonus,
And production up twenty per cent.

MORAL

With experience and with skilled labour,
And co-operating as never before,
There's factories all over the country,
Could raise their production still more.

LATE HOURS AND JUNIOR HOCKEY

Sir: I am writing in protest at the hours the boys have to play hockey in the Civic Arena and I feel that it is time that this was altered. Not so long ago a few people like myself knocked on doors asking the people in the city to donate funds for a rink for the boys and girls. Through the kindness of these people, the municipal government, the provincial government and the manufacturers of this city enough money was donated to have a rink built. Owing to the weather conditions the taxpayers of the city have put artificial ice into the arena, of course the taxpayers are people like myself. A rink board has been appointed by the City Council, and through them this rink has been managed. In the meantime instead of the boys and girls having the monopoly of this rink the main thing is "How much money can be made out of the rink?" The only night all last winter that the minor hockey could play their hockey games on was a Thursday night. The hours were from 6 p.m. until 12 p.m. Every hour the minor hockey had this rink on the Thursday nights, they paid $10 per hour. Is it right that boys between the ages of 16 years and 18 years should have to play hockey between 11 p.m. and 12 p.m.? That is what happened all last winter and remember folks the money for the rink was given for the boys and girls in Peterborough.

What can be done, that is the question. I suggest that the City Council should allow Armar Butcher to run this rink as he does all the outdoor rinks in Peterborough. The senior and junior teams are to be commended for their kindness in donating their services to raise the money that the minor hockey owed to the rink, but it is their place to see that the Memorial Centre is built and not take the easiest course and use the Civic Arena as their ice. I know that they have to pay plenty for it but I still think that the boys and girls in Peterborough should have this rink because that was what the money for the rink was given for. You cannot get people to pay money to see juvenile hockey between 10 p.m. and 12 p.m. and I'm sure the most of the people in Peterborough do not know that the boys have to play hockey at these late hours. I thank you for the use of your columns.

Yours truly,
(MRS.) JEAN LUNDY.

"Yes, sir! This preparation is sure to do the trick."

"Okay, good enough. Wrap me up a brush and comb with it."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version).

Light is sown for the righteous, and gladness for the upright in heart. Rejoice in the Lord, ye righteous; and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness. (Ps. 97: 11, 12.)

* * *

The thoughts of the righteous are right: but the counsels of the wicked are deceit . . . In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death. (Prov. 12: 5, 28.)

* * *

For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace. Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God.

But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you . . . .

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. (Rom. 8: 6-9, 14.)

Hex And Murder

(Brantford Expositor)

There is a widespread belief that superstition and witchcraft are characteristics peculiar to backward and ignorant people. In fact, many people believe that witchcraft went out with the middle ages or, at the very latest, with the pioneer days on this continent. But superstitious beliefs have persisted in modern times and every once in a while a story involving what some people believe to be supernormal happenings breaks into the news.

The latest incident of this nature occurred on Manitoulin Island and concerned the most dreaded of all Indian hexes, the Bearwalk. According to legend, the Bearwalk is a spell cast upon a person by a witch who chooses a herbal mixture and spits in the path of the intended victim. Thereafter, he is visited by the Bearwalk demon which may appear in the form of a bird, a bear, a mouse, fowl or any wild or domestic animal. Result of the Bearwalk, according to those who believe in it, is lingering illness, insanity and death.

The Bearwalk figured prominently during the murder trial at Gore Bay, Manitoulin, of Frank Debassige, 38, who was charged with the pistol-slaying last June 21 of Levi Bob, 54, at Little Current. In a statement presented as evidence by Corporal Lewis Needham of the Ontario Provincial Police, Debassige said that Bob was killed during a scuffle in which the latter had declared Debassige's mother was a witch. Bob had claimed his brother, Peter, died by poison as a result of the Bearwalk.

If this statement of evidence is true, the Indian curse has indeed claimed another victim. By poisoning the minds of its believers, it has so destroyed their reasoning powers that emotion has superseded common sense. To these people, the hex is not something to be dismissed lightly but is a living unreal thing to be greatly feared. In trying to escape from this something, which probably began innocently but which has assumed the proportions of an obsession, any person eventually found guilty of the murder could be said to have carried out the terms of the curse.

In any event, the Bearwalk has its roots deeply implanted in Manitoulin Indian legend and it is doubtful whether the inroads of civilization will entirely eradicate it.

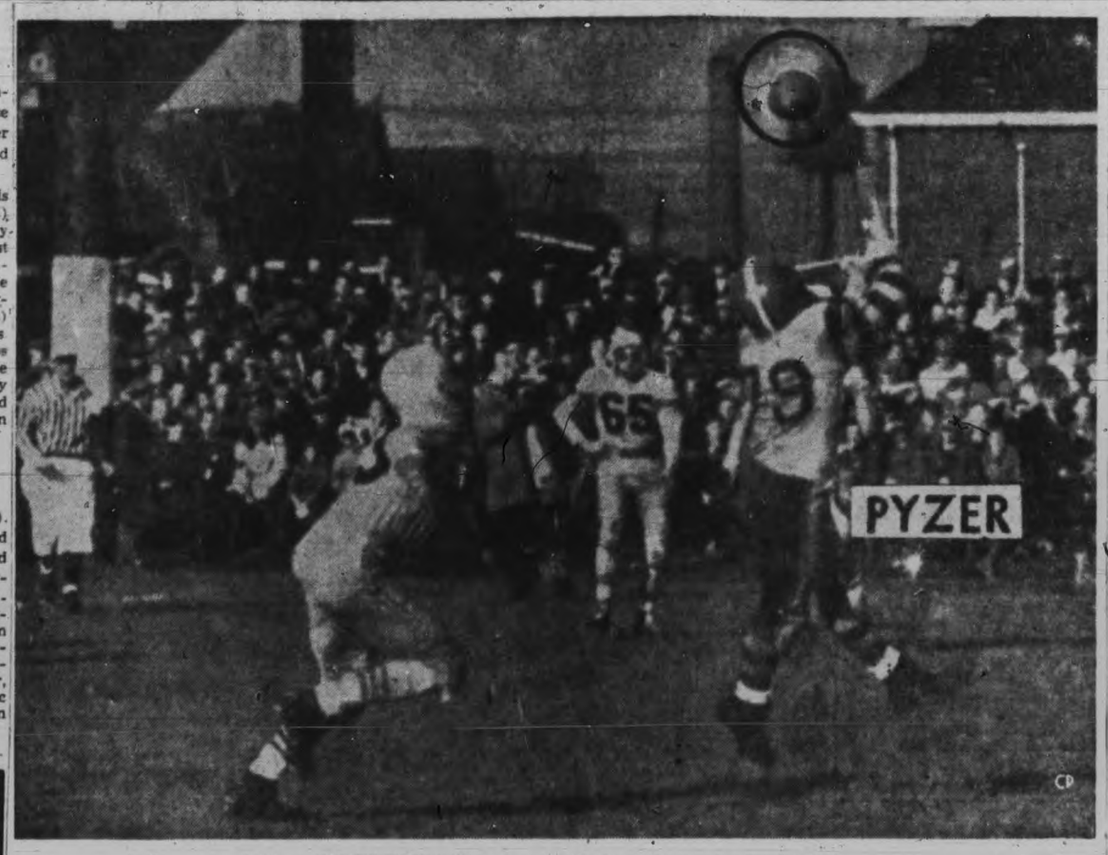
Arthur W. Blade Dies In Sleep

Arthur W. Blade, son of an old west end family of Peterborough, died suddenly at his home in Ottawa early Sunday. It was reported that he had struck his head in a fall on Saturday, and although no serious injury was indicated during the day he was dead in his bed when his wife entered his room Sunday morning. He had died in his sleep.

Mr. Blade was born in Peterborough 61 years ago, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blade. His father was for years a florist with greenhouses on Park St. north, near Parkhill Road.



Resigning from the Peterborough police department, of which he had been a sergeant under Chief Constable Daniel Thompson, Mr. Blade was appointed manager here of the wholesale plant of Imperial Oil Company. The office and warehouse was on the north side of Perry St., immediately east of Canadian Raybestos Company. Mr. Blade was the district manager here when the company transferred their business and storage plant to the southwest corner of Park and Romaine Sts. He moved to Ottawa in the promotion to supervisor for Imperial Oil in the district of eastern Ontario.

Mr. Blade had become interested in standard-bred horse racing, and presided as starter both in Peterborough and throughout the Ottawa Valley.

Mr. Blade is survived by his wife, one son, Henry (Hank) Blade, playing coach of Calgary Shamrocks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, and five daughters, [illegible] Clark, wife of Col. M. Z. Clark, of Peterborough; Mrs. Stuart (Barbara) Williamson, of Peterborough; Mrs T. Tressler (Doris), Mrs. R. Epps (Helen), and Mrs. H. McKenzie (Lenore), all of Ottawa, also by his brothers, Percy, Henry and Edmund, and sister, Miss Helen Blade, of Peterborough.

Three-Man Mission

HONG KONG Nov. 12,—(AP). A three-man mission of the Ford Foundation leaves for India and Pakistan to start work on the foreign aid grant to the under-developed Far East. They are Douglas Ensminger, representative in India and Pakistan; John D. Howard, in charge of international activities, and Dr. Raymond Moyer, former chief of the PS economic co-operation administration in Formosa.

PYZER RECEIVES—Argonaut's Doug Pyzer reaches high in the air to take Nobby Wirkowski's touchdown pass as Tiger Cat Hal Waggoner closes in behind him. This was Argos' first touchdown in the second game of the home-and-home total points series between Hamilton and Toronto to pick the team to meet Ottawa in the Big Four football final. Hamilton won the first game in Toronto last Wednesday and took the round 31-28. Toronto won the Saturday game 21-7.

Young Liberals Approve Flag

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12 (CP) — The national convention of the Young Liberal Federation of Canada Saturday resolved Canada should have a distinctive flag and then accepted a proposed design for one.

In other resolutions which came at the end of the three-day convention, delegates asked for penalties for officials of corporations found guilty under the Combines Act, an independent administration to control radio and television, including the CBC, and aid for prairie parmers whose crops were hard hit by bad weather this year.

Delegates suggested a four-point plan to combat the rising cost of living and rejected a resolution calling for Canadian recognition of Communist China.

The proposed national flag is blue with a horizontal white stripe, 10 blue lines representing the 10 provinces and a green maple leaf superimposed on the blue stripes.

The convention approved action of the federal government in appointing a committee to investigate retail price-fixing.

Timely Departure

GERALDTON, (CP).—It was lucky that Dick Taylor decided to go out for supper, because shortly after he had left his home the water boiler exploded, wrecking the kitchen stove and damaging the house. The resulting fire was quickly extinguished.

Argos Crush Tiger-Cats 21-7 But Lose On Grey Cup Playoff

By JACK SULLIVAN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The usually - jovial Annis Stukus and studious Frank Clair probably are feeling as limp as a Monday-morning wash today as they ponder the woes of a football coach. Both are perplexed by weekend developments.

At Regina, the Roughriders snarled up the best-of-three western Canada finals at one game each with a 12-5 victory over Stukus' Edmonton Eskimos. And what bothers Stuke is the manner in which they did it — by discarding their powerful aerial threat and relying on what was believed to be their least effective offensive weapon, a ground attack.

At Hamilton, Toronto Argonauts practically pushed Hamilton Tiger-Cats out of Civic Stadium to win the second of their total-points Big Four semi-final 21-7. And all the Blues got for it was an also-ran role—they lost 24-7 in the slush and ice at Toronto Varsity Stadium last Wednesday and stepped out of the Grey Cup picture by a 31-28 margin on the round.

Two Titles Decided

Two titles were decided in the weekend action.

At Sarnia, the all-Canadian Imperials won the Ontario Rugby Football Union title and a spot in the eastern Canada final against the Big Four winners. The Imps going into the game with an eight-point deficit in the home - and - home total - point series with Toronto Balmy Beach, romped over the Beaches 26-7 to take the round 41-30.

The University of Toronto Blues turned back the challenge of McGill University Redmen 11-7 to win their first intercollegiate championship since 1948. The other college game at Kingston saw Queen's University Gaels end the schedule on the short end of a 20-13 score to the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Great Performance

At Hamilton, Clair's Argos put up one of the greatest one-team performances in years. The defending Big Four and Grey Cup champions pecked away at the Hamilton 17-point lead in the first half and then powered through for a converted touchdown and two singles in the third stanza to lead 21-2 on the game and 28-26 on the round.

Riding high on what appeared to be the greatest comeback of the year in Canadian sport and sparked by the tremendous forward passing arm of forward Nobby Wirkowski who completed 20 of 32 tosses, they whomped the Tigers unmercifully with an explosive offensive that stunned the 15,000 crowd.

Then the Tigers got up off the ground for a 50-second aerial offensive that shot them into the lead with only minutes remaining in the game. Two passes from quarterback Bernie Custis turned the trick with Spider Gibson completing the drive, taking a 30-yarder behind the Toronto line.

That was the ball game and the series, although the Scullers battled to the final minute and only a pass interception behind the Hamilton line by Bob McDonald saved the day.

The Riders, rested since Nov. 3, go to Hamilton Wednesday and close out the home-and-home total-points series at Ottawa on Saturday.

Football fans followed with interest the odd autumn career of George Ratterman. He jumped the U.S. pro loop to play for Montreal Als for something like $17,000, proving quite a flop, and now he's back with the N.Y. Yanks. Had to pay a fine of two grand to get back, but he's still ahead of the game financially. A U.P. dispatch from New York said he was happy to be back, saying that while Canada wasn't exactly a foreign country, still it wasn't the good old States. He maintained that's why he returned and that other USA gridders in Canada would be returning, too. He didn't admit that he flopped badly at the Canadian game.

* * * * * *

Ratterman, sporting a split lip, a gashed cheek and a bruised ear, took some kidding from the Yankee players on his return. One asked: "They play too rough for you up there, George?" Ratterman replied: "No, they just thought I ought to have a few going-away presents. I got that split-lip going down under a punt. Some guy stepped on me." But a Montreal note puts it this way: "George got his facial cuts on the train returning to Montreal from Saturday's game in Hamilton. And who can recall seeing him go down under a punt?" Apparently, other Als figured this import had let 'em down and did them out of a lot of oughday, so they gave him a working over.

Four In Junior Group

At a hockey meeting here Sunday, OHA member Frank Buckland arranged two groupings. The junior "B" setup has Oddfellows, Lindsay, Belleville and Kingston in—the latter replacing Oshawa, while Port Hope hasn't a team this season. IOOF-ers open the quadruple schedule Nov. 17 in Kingston and are at home to Belleville the next Friday. The lakeshore intermediate group includes Lindsay, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Lakefield, the latter as a "B" entry. A quadruple schedule—meaning four home games 'gainst each club—for Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg, as they've artificial ice, while Bowmanville and Lakefield will play a double schedule with games counting four points. It opens Nov. 16 with Port Hope at Cobourg. First tilt in Lakefield is Dec. 27 with Cobourg the visitors.

* * * * * *

OHA senior "B" puck action concerning our clubs this week has Petes tonight against Queen's in Kingston, the ex-Nylons of Kingston playing Eagles here Wednesday, and the Eagles meeting Petes here on Friday. Off to a losing start in Bella Villa last Friday, the Petes hope to knock off the University boys this eve. The Wednesday tilt will be interesting as no one sees to know just what the Kingston SAC (guess it means Social and Athletic Club) has this semester. The Eagles are after their second win of the young season. A natural comes up Friday with two local rivals clashing for the first time since last hockey semester. That should bring out all the fans.

* * * * * *

Ray Back In Harness

Goalie Camille Tremblay of the Petes will be out of action for some time, following his wrist injury in Belleville in the opener. So, veteran Ray Harding will be pressed into service in the Limestone City this eve. Centre Stan Groshak, who buzzed back to Kirkland Lake more than a week ago for a visit, hasn't returned to this city—and he may be lost to the Petes. Latter club hasn't released Honey Tompkins yet, nor have Eagles released Andy Milne. Quinte scribe said the Petes' defence was below form Friday while the forwards were off in their passing and shooting. Of course, he was very high on Coach Red Doran and the Hawks, sparked by big Vern Goyer.

As expected, PCVS senior "A" gridders romped through Oshawa here for a 24-0 win Saturday on a snowy field. Counted three touchdowns directly on passes and another as the result of a forward flip. That's the sixth time in a row for the PCI-ers to make the COSSA senior final and the seventh time under Coach Bev Goulding, whose team won the title four years. They'll be playing the winner of Stamford-Welland vs. Orillia-Barrie at 2.30 next Saturday in Morrow Park for the COSSA championship. Coach Johnny Lynch's St. Peter's junior "B" crew will be playing at 12.30 that day on the same gridiron in the COSSA final, also, against Alliston or Welland. Two big football playoffs looming.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

Tonight the men commence their schedule games—and that means from now until the end of March, 1952 (four months and a half)—we will have continuous activitity, sometimes afternoon and evening and occasionally a morning.

Curling is one of the best of the indoor winter sports. With the advent of artificial ice the whole setup has been changed. No games postponed on account of soft ice. You know when you are called to play everything will be ready; no disappointments. It is played under ideal conditions, by gentlemen with gentlemen. It is one of the few Canadian sports that is strictly amateur.

You get out of curling just what you put into it. It is all right in front of you, no packed deck or loaded ice. Let's play it hard, but let's play it clean.

We all like to win, but in order for some to win, some must lose. "Anyone can win a game, but it takes a good man to lose one."

And if I should win, let it be by the code,
With my faith and honor held high.
And if I should lose, let me stand by the road,
And cheer as winners go by.

Need 128 Runs For Victory

BRISBANE, Australia, Nov. 12 (Reuters)—Australia, with eight second-innings wickets left, needed 128 runs for victory today over the West Indies after another day's grim battle between batsmen and bowlers on the tricky Brisbane pitch.

The West Indies today brought their overnight second innings score of 88 for four to 245, and Australia replied by the close with 108 for two. First innings scores were West Indies 216, Australia 226. The match is scheduled to finish Wednesday.

A brilliant 70 by Everton Weekes, a sound 55 by Gerry Gomez and a good innings of 30 from Roy Marshall enabled the West Indies to set Australia to get 236 for victory in their second innings.

Doug Ring, Australia's leg spinner, made good use of the pitch, taking six wickets for 80 runs.

West Indies made a good start when Australia batted again, Gomez getting Ken Archer's wicket with only eight runs on the board.

Patient play by Lindsay Hassett and Arthur Morris redeemed the early loss. Hassett made 35 before he fell victim to Sonny Ramadhin, and after his dismissal Morris and Harvey kept the West Indies attack at bay to the close. Morris was then 40 not out.

Marlies Crush Hurricanes In 10-2 Triumph

By The Canadian Press.

For 20 minutes — one period—it looked as if superstition and adds had finally caught up with the high-flying Toronto Marlboros, Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series leaders.

Waterloo Hurricanes, with some stellar netminding by Norm Defelice and a goal by Chuck Wood, took a 1-0 lead in the first period.

The Junior Dukes caught fire in the second, however, rapping in six goals and then scored a 10-2 win, running their unbeaten streak to 13.

A Remembrance Day crowd of 4,186 saw Toronto St. Michael's, held scoreless for two periods, explode for a 4-2 victory over Kitchener Greenshirts in opener of a Sunday twin-bill at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

Take First Game

Saturday night Windsor Spitfirts captured their first game of the season, defeating Barrie Flyers, Galt Black Hawks won over St. Catharines Teepees and Oshawa Generals downed second-place Gelph Biltmores. The scores were identical, 5-3.

In OHA Senior A action Saturday, Stratford Indians handed the pace-setting Hamilton Tigers a 5-2 setback and Owen Sound Mercurys piled up a 6-2 win over Sarnia Sailors.

The high-scoring Danny Poland-Eric Nesterenko - Parker MacDonald line paced Marlboros with Nesterenko, the team's top scorer, collecting three goals Poland added a pair with MacDonald, Chuck Lumsden, John Lumley, Ron Stewart and Ted Reid adding one each.

Chuck Wood and Connelly connected for the Hurricane scores.

The opener of the Sunday doubleheader saw Kitchener take a 1-0 first period lead on a goal by Orv Tessier and enlarge it to 2-0 as Greg Hicks scored in the second.

Take Over

St. Michael's took over in the final frame as Bob Sabourin, with two, Marc Reaume, Murray Costello and Bill Lee scored.

Two goals by Bob Dunham and one each by Larry Thibeault, Jack Miller and Al Arbour gave the Spits their first win in 12 tries. They remain in the league basement, however.

Hillary Menard, Don McKenny and MacDonald potted the Barrie tallies.

Galt strengthened their grip on third place in the league by whipping the Teepees. Tommy Fyles led the Galt scoring with two counters with Bill McIntosh, Pete Conacher and John Sleaver chipping in one each. Buddy Boone, Frank Martin and Gerry Foley tallied for St. Catharines.

Oshawa's surprising win over Guelph was their third straight but they remain in ninth place in the ten-team loop. General netminder Bobby Shropshire starred in the Oshawa win.

Tom O'Connor notched two goals for the winners with singles added by Herve Dejordy, Doug Durston and Bob Attersley. Dean Prentice, Ken Lauwman and Harry Howell hit for the Bilts.

Tommy (Thunder) Bolt, Durham (NC) professional, saved his best round for the finish, a three-under-par 69, for a total of 283 to win the North and South open golf tournament Sunday by three strokes over John Barnum, husky Grand Rapids, Mich., pro.

Bolt's first major victory brought him the top prize of $1,500 in this $7,500 tournament at Pinehurst, NC, on rounds of 71, 72, 71, 69.

Former Masters champion Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, NY, closed with a five-under-par 67 for 287.

University of Toronto's senior soccer team defeated McGill 4-3 Saturday, but lost the championship of the eastern division of the Intercollegiate Soccer League by a round score of 8-6 for McGill. Blues' edge Saturday at Toronto was not big enough to overcome the three goal lead McGill snatched when they won the opener of a home-and-home series 5-2.

Hamilton Panthers will carry an 11-point lead into the second game of the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate A final. Panthers rolled to a 12-1 triumph over Oshawa Red Raiders in the first game of the two-game, total-point series played here Saturday. Second game will be played in Hamilton Saturday.

Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers blanked Stratford Rams 6-0 at Kitchener Saturday to retain their Ontario Rugby Football Union Junior B championship in a sudden-death final.

Henry Couch barged over for the only major of the game, which went unconverted. Henry Holdenmeyer booted a first quarter single, accounting for the other Panther point.

At Montreal, Fred S. Urquhart resigned Sunday night as manager of Canada's Olympic ski team because of ill health. Urquhart is past president of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association.

COSSA-BOUND PCVS — Coach Bev Goulding's PCVS Garnet and Greys will play in their sixth straight COSSA game Saturday at Morrow Park by virtue of a 24-0 win over Oshawa Collegiate's Combines Saturday. Murray Grafstein (white helmet, upper photo) has just gathered in a 15-yard pass from Bryan Young at the two-yard line in the final seconds of the game. In spite of the Oshawa player (black helmet) draped over him, Grafstein scored. Dave Langhorne (lower, extreme left in white helmet) clutches the ball as he pounds to the Oshawa one-yard line. But there the Motor City line held the Garnet and Grey from scoring.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Deny Hurricanes Likely To Fold

WATERLOO, Nov. 12 (CP). — W. H. Timmins, chairman of the Waterloo Arena Commission, on Sunday denied rumors that this city's Ontario Hockey Association Junior A team will fold, but admitted that the Hurricanes may have a new coach soon.

Bob Kinnear has been coach of the Hurricanes since they entered the league last season but recently has been under fire by Waterloo fans for what they feel is inadequate coaching.

Last year the Hurcs finished last in the 10-team loop and are presently mired in eighth place.

Speaking for the commission, Timmins said members of the commission have been severely criticized by Waterloo hockey enthusiasts who did not approve of Kinnear's coaching. He said that since the people would not attend games while Kinnear was coaching the club must either fold or "make a change."

The average crowd this season numbers 600.

Norm Cook, manager of the Arena here, has been mentioned as a successor to Kinnear, but selection of a new coach would depend partially upon the decision of Harold Cotton, chief scout for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. Bruins have a working agreement with Waterloo.

Dot Millar In PWSU

Mrs. Dot Miller of Peterborough, has been returned for the fourth straight year as treasurer of the Provincial Women's Softball Union. The annual meeting was held yesterday in Hamilton. Mrs. Miller's sister, Gladys Mortimer of this city, previously held the presidency of the provincial body.

President is Miss Joan Rapsavage; vice-presidents being: Mrs. Mae Brown, Mrs. Kay Zeroski, and Mrs. Jerry Copps; secretary is Flo Scott. The Union is planning next season to sponsor juvenile playdowns as well as the higher brackets.

Ex-Hungarian In Hamilton Fencing Star

HAMILTON—(CP)—When the Russian army marched into Budapest on Christmas night, 1944, Dr. Paul Szabolczy-Szmolar decided it was time for him to leave.

With the Russians just a mile away he threw some baggage into his car and drove to his summer home 100 miles nearer the Austrian border. When the war ended, Dr. Szabolczy-Szmolar made another decision. He emigrated to Canada, at the age of nearly 50, and settled in Hamilton.

This decision gained for Canada one of Europe's finest athletes.

The doctor represented Hungary in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin and walked off with all the fencing honors. He is also an expert golfer, won many swimming and diving titles, was at one time lightweight wrestling champion of Hungary, a champion gymnast and won a number of track and field titles.

Swimming Director

Dr. Szabolczy-Szmolar is also a graduate of Budapest University in medicine and law.

He now acts as swimming director at Hamilton's new YMCA and instructs in fencing. He has also given a number of golf lectures here.

Since coming to Hamilton four years ago he has won the Ontario, Eastern Canada, Western New York and international fencing championships. He was elected chairman of the fencing committee for Southwestern Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

He feels Canada's chances in the Olympic Games in 1952 are very good.

Weekend Stars

By The Canadian Press.

Edgar Laprade of New York Rangers who scored the winning goal and assisted in another Sunday night as his team edged Chicago Black Hawks 3-2.

Ken Mosdell of Montreal Canadiens who tallied once and assisted in two goals Saturday as his team routed Chicago Black Hawks 4-2.

Rookie Bob Solinger of Toronto Maple Leafs, who scored his first National Hockey League goal Saturday with less than four minutes to play and pulled his team into a 3-3 tie with Detroit Red Wings.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

University of Western Ontario Mustangs from London climaxed a successful season by defeating Queen's 13-8 to win the eastern inter-collegiate senior football title 12 years ago today. The Mustangs were undefeated and untied in that last season before the college circuit closed for the duration.

PCVS Seniors Whip Oshawa To Take Group Title Right To Enter COSSA Final

Through snow and slush PCVS' Garnet and Greys ploughed their way Saturday to their sixth and successive COSSA championship game by drubbing the Oshawa collegiates' Combines 24-0. The victory allows the Garnet and Grey to enter the COSSA final next Saturday at Morrow Park as representatives of the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario districts. They will be playing the winner of the Niagara-Falls-Georgian Bay districts series, likely Stamford from the Niagara peninsula.

During the eight years under Coach G. B. (Bev.) Goulding, the PCVS senior have played in the championship game six times and next Saturday, their seventh, they will be after their fifth COSSA championship.

The 24-0 win over the Motor City footballers was expected even though the field was covered with a mucky mixture of three inches of snow and two of slush. Some fans expected, due to field conditions, a much closer game and perhaps an upset by Peterborough's annual rivals.

But a superior line, both on the offence and defence, stopped Oshawa cold on the ground and in the air. The centre of the line such as Paul Frise, 210-pounder, insides Hugh Outram and Larry Forbes, middles Jim Telford and Stan Facendi, proved fatal to Oshawa.

Line Held Well

As in last week's 39-0 victory over Belleville the line never gave an inch on the defensive and took yards on the offence. Only once in the game did Oshawa plungers make more than five yards on a dive through centre and on all three passes thrown, the linemen hurried the passer, to make his throws ineffective.

The line's blocking reached a season's peak of perfection on the sloppy field.

In fact the blocking gave passers Bryan Young, Bus Jensen and Dave Langhorne more than the required time to pick out receivers who were bothered only by the slippery footing and greasy ball.

Behind the steady blocking, the PCVS backfielders accounted for four touchdowns on the six completed passes out of 12 thrown. An excellent record for any football team.

The same blocking also helped the plungers who, although they were better than average, did not show as well as last week.

Warren Brown, during the first three-quarters, led the Garnet and Grey ground attack assisted by Murray Grafstein, a graduate from the 1950 junior COSSA champions. Another former junior champion, but last year a lineman, Don Scriver, now a senior backfielder, showed promise with a fine last quarter performance on several plunges.

But PCVS, in spite of the superior line, were equalled in the kicking department by Oshawa's Ford, who saved the visitors on many occasions throughout the game. His calmness, while PCVS tacklers were bearing down on him, helped get his punts away.

Early In Game Took Lead

PCVS lost little time in taking the lead. In the first two minutes they drove up the field 35 yards in three plays from the Oshawa 54 with Bus Jensen, Murray Grafstein and Bryan Young carrying the ball. Young then passed to Bob Craw in the clear on the five-yard line and he crossed easily. Young converted.

A 15-yard plunge by Grafstein late in the first set Dave Langhorne up for a kick to deadline for a point early in the second quarter.

Ted Sanders recovered an Oshawa fumble on the 21-yard line, but plunges by Langhorne and Brown were blocked at the one-yard line. A short kick by Oshawa again put PCVS in possession, this time at the Oshawa 25. Young passed to Clapper for 15 yards, Jensen plunged for three and Grafstein plunged across standing up. Young made the half score 13-0 on the convert.

Late in the third another short Oshawa kick gave PCVS possession at the 35. Immediately Bus Jensen, with time to throw several passes, threw to Bob Craw, alone on the 15-yard line. He sped across for his second major score. Young again made the convert good.

PCVS pounded down to the three-yard line in the third but were foiled by a fumble.

In the late stages of the fourth, penalties shoved Oshawa deep into their own territory and PCVS finally took over. Young, with time to spare, passed to Grafstein at the two-yard line and he went across to score. The convert attempt sailed under the bar and the score was left at 24-0.

Lineups:

Oshawa—Flying wing, Varga; halves, Langmaid, Hart, Harris; quarter, Kellar; snap, Edwards; insides, Matthews, Higham; middles, Ford, Clark; ends, Walker, Drew; alternates, Pratt, Edgar, Ruskay, Majoras, Ashley, Innes, Patterson, Olynik, Goodfellow, Yeo, Sciuk.

High Scoring At YMCA In Cage Frays

Dan Griffin's Hounds chalked up a 60-43 victory against the Terriers Saturday night in the YMCA cage league for their second win in two starts. In the first game the Bulldogs, under Vern Butcher, won their first game over the Collies 46-31.

Butcher, Galvin and Jamieson each scored four baskets in the first half of the Bulldogs-Collies game to give the Bulldogs a healthy 24-10 lead. Butcher continued to lead his team in the second half scoring five more baskets while Cunningham, Galvin and Jamieson brought the score up to 46 with other field shots.

Ash, the Collies' captain, kept his team in the game throughout with a 19-point total. He edged Butcher by one point for the scoring honors. Galvin with 12 and Jamieson with 10 were other top scorers.

A Late Drive

The Terriers were swamped by a second-half drive by the Hounds. Cranfield and Carleton led the Terriers to a 14-8 score in the first quarter and on the strength of five baskets by Dave Langhorne and several by Cranfield, were ahead 30-22 at the half.

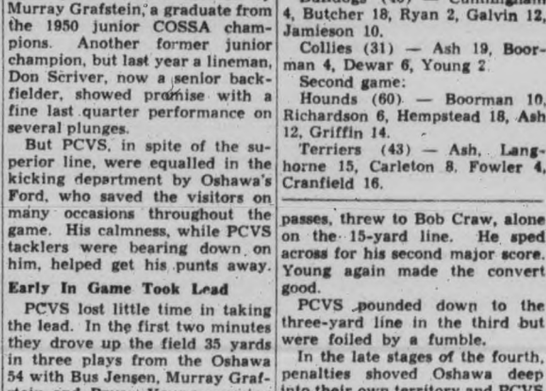
But there the Terriers were stopped. Dan Griffin, Ash, Hempstead, Richardson and Boorman sank 10 baskets in the third quarter for the Hounds, while the best the Terriers could do was six points. Hempstead continued to lead the Hounds in the final quarter as they racked up 18 more points against the Terriers' seven for a final score of 60-43.

Lionel Hempstead, for Hounds, led the scoring with 18 points, while Ted Cranfield, for the Terriers, notched 16 and Dave Langhorne, also for the Terriers, 15.

First game:

Bulldogs (46) — Cunningham 4, Butcher 18, Ryan 2, Galvin 12, Jamieson 10.

Collies (31) — Ash 19, Boorman 4, Dewar 6, Young 2.



Second game:

Hounds (60) — Boorman 10, Richardson 6, Hempstead 18, Ash 12, Griffin 14.

Terriers (43) — Ash, Langhorne 15, Carleton 8, Fowler 4, Cranfield 16.

Wings Tie Leafs and Habs In 3-3 Deadlock, Bruins, Leafs Play To Draw

By The Canadian Press

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League will quote you scads of figures to prove that the 10-minute sudden-death overtime periods aren't a solution to tie games. But the advocates of these extra sessions might argue its worth a try following the weekend results. Three of the games ended in ties, making four in the last 10 games. The league-leading Detroit Red Wings participated in three of the four—a 4-4 tie at New York Wednesday and 3-3 stalemates against the Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday and at home against Montreal Canadiens Sunday.

The other was played at Boston Sunday where 13,121 fans, the largest hockey crowd in nearly two years at the Garden, watched the Bruins and Leafs end 60 minutes in a draw. In other games, Canadiens whipped Chicago 4-2 at Montreal Saturday and New York Rangers made it 3-2 over the hapless Hawks Sunday.

The weekend action left Detroit with 19 points, three more than Toronto and five ahead of Canadiens. Boston, a threat most of the still-young season, holds the fourth slot with 13 and Rangers follow with 10, two up on Chicago.

Draws Well-earned

The Red Wing draws were well earned. They came from behind a 2-1 deficit early in the second period at Toronto Saturday, rapped in two and yielded the tie on Bob Solinger's tally with less than four minutes to go.

And they roared from behind 3-0 Sunday to gain the point with one marker in the second and two in the roaring third stanza.

At Boston Sunday, Harry Watson put the Leafs ahead at 10:17 of the second period and Adam Brown evened it at 6:14 of the third.

The Hawks who have won only three games in 13 to date, made it close at New York Sunday but they just didn't have the power to catch up to the Rangers.

After a scoreless first period, Jackie McLeod sent Rangers ahead at 8:44 of the second and less than two minutes later Fred Hucul made it 1-1 on assists from Jim McFadden and Al Dewsbury.

Rookie Wally Hergesheimer broke the tie early in the third and Edgar Laprade made it 3-1 at 7:48. Bill Mosienko reduced the count at 14:03, the Hawks pulled goalkeeper Harry Lumley out of the nets in the last minute but a solid Ranger defence held them out.

Lewicki Scores For Hornets

By The Associated Press.

Danny Lewicki, left winger of the Pittsburgh Hornets, is making a bid to return to the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

The Leafs recently sent Lewicki down to their American League farm club in Pittsburgh. Sunday he scored two goals for Pittsburgh as the red-hot Hornets nipped the Cincinnati Hohawks, 3-2. The triumph was Pittsburgh's 12th in 13 starts.

Cleveland's defending champion Barons remained six points behind Pittsburgh by downing third-place St. Louis 4-1. The Barons scored four times in the second period on goals by Steve Wochy, Fern Perrault, Joe Lund and Fred Thurier to win.

Meanwhile, the Hershey Bears pulled six points ahead of the Buffalo Bisons in the eastern division by swamping the Indianapolis Caps, 7-2. The Bears rammed home five goals in the last 13 minutes to clinch the game.

Buffalo dropped a 6-2 decision to the Providence Reds. Jack Stoddard and Jack McGill scored two goals apiece to lead the Reds to victory.

Clippers Tie Muskies Before 600 Puck Fans

LINDSAY, Nov. 12—Stouffville Clippers and Lindsay Muskies continued in their rough exhibition series where they left off in the rugged opener by battling to a 5-5 draw before 600 fans here Saturday night.

The local hockey intermediates and the senior Clippers both counted twice in the first period before the Muskies to a 5-3 lead in the second with Lindsay's playing coach Al Burns sidelined due to an old injury. The visitors skated through the weakened Lindsay defence for two goals in the final period.

Ron Bell scored two goals, Bob Bangay one and Gabby Gibson added a pair before being tossed out of the game on a match penalty. Sixty Coombs, Stu Hicks, Bill Parker, Sapper Abercrombie and Sliver Donohue split the Lindsay markers five ways.

Toronto Blues Whip McGill Capture Title

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (CP). — University of Toronto Blues, climaxing one of the best seasons in the college's gridiron history, Saturday won the senior intercollegiate football championship by beating McGill University Redmen 11-7 in the "big game" of the college campaign.

Bob Masterson's powerful and well drilled Blues rose to the occasion to turn two of Redmen's six fumbles into two payoff scores and prevent the Montreal squad from forcing a sudden-death playoff for the crown.

Redmen, beaten 15-7 earlier in the season by Blues, tried desperately with a fourth-quarter rally to turn the tide but Varsity held and Redmen had to be satisfied with the runner-up role for the third successive year.

The Blues, who finished last in 1949 and third the following season captured the championship they last held in 1948 by sweeping through their six-game schedule without a loss. The only game they didn't win was a 13-13 tie against the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, who held the title the last two seasons. They also scored three pre-season exhibition victories.

Ontario Needs Schools Will Keep Building—Frost

By The Canadian Press

Premier Frost says Ontario needs schools during this period of rapid expansion and his government will continue to build them. In a Nov. 22 Ontario general election campaign speech Saturday night in Sudbury, he criticized a Liberal proposal that school construction be halted temporarily as an economy measure that would aid in tax reduction.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, criticized the government's farm policy in a speech at Hanover and in Owen Sound again challenged Mr. Frost to a public debate on the administration's record. Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal chieftain, demanded at Dunnville that the government release a Federal report of a survey of the province's mental health program.

Mr. Frost, completing the northern Ontario part of his campaign for re-election, said new schools are needed in a period of rapid population growth if children are to have equality of opportunity.

"To say, as does the Liberal leader, that we can't afford to do this reminds us that our party is the party that does things for this province. In a great province like this, we can afford to do these things and we are going to give our people the schools they need."

Asks Report Publicized

Mr. Thomson took issue with the Premier's statement last week that the Ontario mental health program is superior to those of the other provinces. He asked that the federal report be made public, because "therein lies the answer."

He said the election issue is clearly whether the voters of Ontario want his proposed provincial hospital care plan. He again predicted a Liberal sweep in the election and asked that his party be given "a second chance, a new opportunity to institute a great new era of freedom and security for Ontario."

Today he starts a three-day swing through eastern Ontario.

Mr. Jolliffe, speaking in a farming district, accused the government of giving farmers the least assistance of any provincial government. He said it now spends less on agriculture than the Liberal government spent in 1936. Farm groups repeatedly went "cap in hand" to ask the government for improved marketing and collective bargaining legislation, but all they got were a few minor changes and no major improvements.

Help For Farmers

He said his party, if elected, will help farmers by establishing a central hog marketing agency, revising the Milk Control Act and extending the agriculture department's services.

He repeated his challenge, originally made a week ago in Peterborough, for a public debate with Premier Frost on the record theadministration.HesaidMr. of of the administration. He said Mr. Frost ignored the previous suggestion because he knew the government's record would not stand examination in public.

18 Fatalities Occur Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press.

Eleven traffic fatalities brought the number of persons killed in eastern Canada to 18 during the Remembrance Day weekend.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed three persons drowned and two persons burned to death. One was fatally stabbed and one killed with a rifle.

Ontario had 12 violent deaths and Quebec six.

Two persons killed in Ontario during the weekend were not identified. The bodies of a man and woman were found in the burned-down watchman's hut at a housing development north of Toronto, burned beyond recognition.

At Kingston, Mrs. Elda Lyons, 31, was stabbed to death in an argument. Her husband faces a murder charge.

Three members of one family were killed in an auto accident near Glencoe, Ont. Dead are John Frena, 48, of Windsor, his wife, Anne, 46, and daughter, Anne, 7.

Francis Franks, Jr., 22, of Niagara Falls, NY, was fatally injured when his car rolled over near Oakville. Two pedestrians were killed crossing streets: Mack S. Carpenter, 73, at Ottawa and Walter Kwasek, 24, near London.

Three Drowned

Harold Johnson, 20, of Chatham and an Indian guide, Mike McGregor, 40, of Manitoulin Island, were drowned when their boats capsized.

Two-year-old John William Leuge fell into a creek and drowned in Rawleigh township near Chatham.

In Quebec, three persons were killed when the taxi in which they were riding overturned in a field near Lacadie 30 miles south of Montreal. They were Lise Gendron, 24, and Jeannie Laflamme, 21, both of St. Johns; and Gilles Lariviere, 23 of Iberville.

Richard Wise, 19, of Montreal was fatally injured when his car rammed a tree near Cascades, 30 miles from Montreal. Mrs. C. Faber, 50, died at Montreal of injuries suffered when hit by a truck.

Gordon Mulcahy, 22, of Montreal was killed 20 miles north of Lachute when his rifle accidentally discharged while he was hunting.

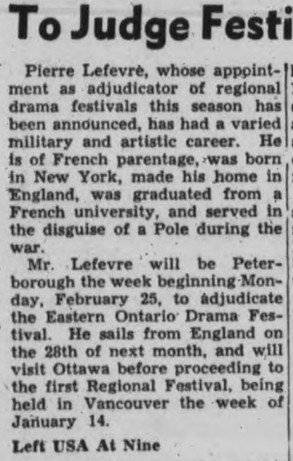
Old Vic Actor Pierre Lefevre To Judge Festival In City



Pierre Lefevre, whose appointment as adjudicator of regional drama festivals this season has been announced, has had a varied military and artistic career. He is of French parentage, was born in New York, made his home in England, was graduated from a French university, and served in the disguise of a Pole during the war.

Mr. Lefevre will be Peterborough the week beginning Monday, February 25, to adjudicate the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival. He sails from England on the 28th of next month, and will visit Ottawa before proceeding to the first Regional Festival, being held in Vancouver the week of January 14.

Left USA At Nine

Pierre Lefevre was born in the city of New York in 1914, of French parents. At the age of nine, he left the USA to make his home in England. He was educated at the Lycee Francais in London and subsequently graduated from the University of Lille with a degree in philosophy.

His first professional stage appearance was in Michel St. Denis' production of Cocteau's "Antigone," which was performed in French at the Institut Francais in London; it decided him to train for the stage under St. Denis at the London Theatre Studio.

PIERRE LEFEVRE

On completion of his training, his first job was at the Old Vic under the artistic direction of Tyrone Guthrie. As he had served in the French army from 1932-4, he was recalled in September, 1939. He was caught in the retreat of May 1940 but managed to join a Polish division and, disguised as a Pole, escaped in the "Arandora Star" in a British convoy from St. Joan de Luz.

Demobilized by the French Consulate, he joined a group of journalists organized under Michel St. Denis by the BBC to make daily broadcasts to France. Then, he trained as BBC war correspondent (with Gillard, Dimbleby, MacPherson and Maxted), landed in Normandy on D plus 12 and remained overseas until Christmas 1944.

With Canadian Army

He was accredited to Canadian Army Headquarters during the fight for Boulogne and Calais, and made many Canadian friends during that period. Rejoining the French army, he served in Alsace, South Germany and Austria, transferring to Radiodiffusion Francaise in the spring of 1945.

Returning to the English stage in the summer of 1946, he played the role of Alyosha in Alec Guinness' version of "The Brothers Karamazov." He had already, while in France, discussed the formation of the Old Vic School and Theatre Centre with Michael St. Denis, Glen Byam Shaw and George Devine. He remained as Shaw's assistant for two years, planning the school, teaching and producing. He then joined the Young Vic Company as touring actor-manager, remaining with it for two seasons and being in charge of the company during tours to Holland, Belgium and Scandinavia.

During 1950-51, he was a member of the Old Vic Company for its first season in the rebuilt theatre in Waterloo Road. He is married and has a daughter and a son. For his service during the war, he was awarded "la Rosette de l'Ordre de la Liberation."

Deer On Cars Indicate Fair Shoot

Haliburton Snow Keeps Hunters Inside Their Lodges

Sunday drivers were intrigued by the number of cars coming down from the deer country with game strapped to fenders and roofs. One citizen counted 15 deer in one-half hour of driving on cars coming west along Highway 7.

Hunter checking stations manned by conservation officers of the lands and forests department had a busy time of it. Points checked were at Burleigh on Highway 28, south of Kinmount on Highway 35, and at Norland and Millbridge. Special flying patrols covered many lesser byways and this week will have the County of Northumberland added to their driving.

In the Haliburton district, game officials report 27 inches of snow which curtailed hunting last week to three days. There is also two feet of snow in the Lake St. Peter country. One hunt club in Haliburton—and there were certainly many more—got no hunting at all; they did not get out of camp. At this particular spot a snowplow cleared four miles of bush road so their cars could be driven out.

Although several citizens reported having seen a number of bears on hunters' cars on Sunday, game wardens report very few were taken. The reason was that they went into hibernation with the first snow a week ago Friday.

Partridge

Partridge were noted in some areas in abundance; they went unmolested since their shooting season ended on Nov. 3. Game biologists say that partridge are thriving in this district in a 13-year cycle, one of the longest known. They believe the seven-year period is mythical and that nine to 11-year cycles are more in evidence.

Deer dogs fared better than usual this year. Fewer of them were lost since snow prevented them travelling too far from camp.

The district's senior 75-year-old Ketchecum Hunt Club were pleased with their luck during the first week, eight deer and one bear. Included in their roster are V. M. Eastwood, Drs. S. Y. Walsh and N. D. Buchanan, Tom Gentles of Chicago, Max Comstock, Alderman Hugh Waddell, Gordon Dobbin, Dr. A. R. Stevenson, J. H. Turner, Clarence Simpson, Stewart Monro, Jim King and Gordon Monkman.

16 Get Nine

At the Devil Lake Camp in Hastings County, near St. Ola, 16 hunters took nine deer. Mac Cook, Harry Morton and Alex Willis, all of Peterborough, were there with their other members from Madoc, Belleville, St. Ola and Thomasburg.

The Outboard Mariners, who take deer hunting more seriously than any Peterborough industry, have a few reports at hand from various executives and employees. In the former group a total of three deer were shot in the vicinity of Six Point Lodge, Haliburton; hunters were C. B. Neal, L. L. Tremblay, Ernie Estlick, P. P. McMillan and F. Irgens of Waukegan.

Ellis Armstrong, who guides American hunters each fall, reported two deer shot by last Wednesday. Ten hunters in the Gull Lake area got nine. The hunters were Bruce Payne, J. Ferren, G. Patterson, Keith Harris, W. Milligan and five others, not of the plant.

Guide Roy McArthur reported four deer at his North River Club, Methuen township. There was no news from a group at Eagle Lake, including Harry Pinn, Charles Clarke and several others. Six miles east of Apsley the Birch Ridge Club had a total of two deer by the weekend. The club includes Al Metcalfe, Ivan Whitmore, William and Bun Thompson, A. Campbell and Const. Bert Howden of Apsley.

Ignored Advice, Car Caved In

After what happened Saturday morning, Everett Parrington, North Monaghan township will likely take the advice of policemen seriously.

Barricades had been set up on on Simcoe and Aylmer Streets, around the YWCA building, while workmen were shoving snow off the roof.

When Parrington pulled into the curb behind the barricade, Constable Ted Stephen warned him not to leave his car, as there was danger of snow falling on its roof.

However, Parrington did not heed the warning and according to Constable Stephen, he jumped out of his car, and headed up the street, saying "I'll just be a minute."

Two minutes later, a quantity of snow was shoved off the roof and came hurling down, caving in the entire rear part of the roof of Parrington's car.

Twenty minutes later he still wasn't back, Constable Stephen's report concluded.

Hit Parked Car Caught By Police

Local police officers nabbed a Keene man 15 minutes after he had struck a parked car on Aylmer St., just after midnight Sunday morning and drove off without reporting the accident.

While investigating an accident on Otonabee St., just east of the CNR tracks at 12:35, constables Andre Dalton and Harold Andrews saw three men tinkering with the engine of a car parked just west of the tracks.

Noticing that both fenders of the car were damaged the officers found that there were streaks of green paint on the car the same shade as that of a parked car which had been struck in front of 109 Aylmer St., a few minutes before.

After questioning the driver of the car, Richard Steed, 25, RR 2, Keene, he was arrested. He appeared in police court today and pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident. Steed was fined $25 and $2.50 costs or in default one month in jail.

The owner of the car which Steed admitted hitting, R. J. McCabe, 717 Lansdowne St., said he was visiting on Aylmer St., and did not know his car had been damaged until informed by police.

Train Refugees

PARIS, Nov. 12—(Reuters) — A college to train refugees from eastern Europe to take their places in their home countries, if and when Communism is driven out, opens today near Strasbourg. The College of Free Europe is an offshoot of the Franco-American Free European University in Exile in New York city. It will be housed at the Chateau Robertsau six miles from Strasbourg.

Rash Of Crashes Keep Police Busy Saturday

Local policemen were as busy over the weekend as a one-armed paper hanger with his foot in the paste bucket.

They were kept on the hop investigating a rash of minor accidents that broke out Friday night, kept up all day Saturday.

Saturday was the worst. The truck which crashed into the corner of the Examiner building at 7:45 in the morning was the first accident of the day, but a series of others soon followed.

One Hurt.

Icy streets were blamed for most of the accidents. Fortunately only one person was injured slightly.

When his head struck the windshield breaking it, Jim Bonner, R. R. 11 Peterborough, received lacerations to his neck and on his forehead in an accident at Aylmer and Townsend Streets at 5.30 on Saturday evening.

The injured man was a passenger in a car driven by T. Bonner, RR 1, Peterborough. He told police he was driving south on Aylmer St. Just as he crossed the CPR tracks, he said his lights went out.

Edgar Richey, 179 Lake St., was just starting to turn left on Townsend from Aylmer St., as Bonner reached the centre of the intersection and the two cars collided.

Constable W. A. Scott investigated and reported that both cars were damaged considerably.

Four Pile Up.

Like a gang of youngsters playing follow the leader, four cars piled into one another on the north side of Hunter St., west of Jackson Park creek, at 10.30 Saturday morning.

Seeing that he was liable to hit Mrs. Thelma Deck, 754 Walkerfield Ave., who was getting out of a car parked on the north side of Hunter St. west, Leo Gooley, 153 Maria St., told police he applied his brakes.

He said he was unable to stop on the icy pavement before skidding into the left rear corner of the Deck car, damaging the fender and door.

Ronald Gilbert, 127 Sophia St., Don Bell, 184 River Rd., and Miss Isabel Bullock, 364 Mark St., were each driving behind Gooley and all crashed into the rear of the vehicle ahead.

Bell was driving a truck and his vehicle was not damaged. Constable W. G. Scott who investigated estimated the total damage to the other four cars at $170.

$250 Damage.

Approximately $250 damage resulted when one car crashed into the rear of another at Park and Lansdowne streets just before 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Milton Wright of Cavan township said he was driving east on Lansdowne St., and had stopped for the red light at Park St., when a truck driven by Richard Toner, 836 Lansdowne St., struck the rear of his car.

Constable William G. Scott who investigated, reported that Toner said he was also going east on Lansdowne St., and was unable to stop on the icy street.

Wright complained of his back hurting after the accident.

Attempting to avoid hitting a parked car at Charlotte and Reid streets, when an approaching car prevented her going around it, Miss Shirley M. Bagnall, 1205 Grandview Ave., applied her brakes. She was going east on Charlotte St., at the time, and her car went out of control hitting the rear of the parked car. The parked car was not damaged. Approximately $95 damage was done to Miss Bagnall's car. The accident occurred at 9.40 Saturday morning.

Driving east on Lansdowne St., at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Kenneth Hotston, 299 King St., said he signalled for a left hand turn on to George St., and slowed

Veterans Must Not Shirk Duty As Citizens, Padre Warns

A forceful reminder that they must not shirk their obligations as citizens in the community was given to local legionnaires by their padre, the Rev. W. J. Gilling, Sunday. "Members of the Canadian Legion belong to special class and haven't ceased to be citizens," declared Mr. Gilling at a remembrance day dinner in the Legion Hall auditorium. Like everyone else, they have certain obligations, said Mr. Gilling. "If they are not carrying them out faithfully as citizens, they are failing. If they are not carrying them out as members of the legion, they are failing doubly."

Mr. Gilling said, "There is no point in talking about freedom, freedom of speech, freedom of thought and particularly freedom of worship and then not going to church. The local legion padre told his listeners they should all attend the church of their choice regularly.

Defending his recent branding of the legion brief urging conscription as "stupid", Mr. Gilling said, "I said it was stupid because instead the Legion should ask everyone to join some branch of the reserve army."

Referring to some criticism which he said had been directed at his stand, Mr. Gilling added, "If that's a sin, I stand condemned."

Take Active Part

A plea for every member to lend his strength to the legion by taking an active part in the organization was voiced by guest speaker J. D. Burnet, Mayor of Cobourg and district F. Commander of the Canadian Legion.

"Everytime there is a parade or function, every man should consider it is his parade, and do his part to keep the organization functioning," said Mr. Burnet.

Complimenting the local branch on their "magnificent turnout" for the morning service at the War Memorial, the district commander said that this was not always the case at church parades and other ceremonies.

"We are a strong organization. We exert a tremendous influence throughout the country. If we are to remain strong and retain that power, we must keep the public aware of our strength and power. If we are only going to turn out 25 per cent strong, people are going to say we don't amount to much."

Mr. Burnet briefly sketched the events leading up to the formation of the Canadian Legion and the role it has played in helping veterans to obtain their rights.

Turning to veterans of the Second World War, Mr. Burnet said that he believed the provincial command of the legion had fallen down somewhat, because they hadn't taken the proper steps to acquaint the younger veterans with the formation and background of the legion through the years.

Show Strength

Only through strong organization can the veterans hope to secure "what is rightfully theirs," stated G. K. Fraser, MP, who spoke briefly following Mr. Burnet. Freedom is what you fought for, protect it by getting out and showing your strength he advised.

As evidence of what the Canadian Legion has done to promote the interests of veterans, Mr. Fraser said that the efforts of the legion were largely responsible for the formation of the Veterans' Committee of the House of Commons which he said had done much to help veterans.

Mr. Fraser drew strong applause from the audience when he predicted that veterans pensions would be increased up to 18 per cent in the near future. The Canadian Legion has asked the federal government for a 33 per cent increase.

Hon. Harold Scott, Mayor Max Swanston, Marwood Patterson, student minister who spoke at the memorial, and Captain J. D. Sharp of the Salvation Army, were other head table guests who gave short addresses. Colonel Clare Stuart was chairman.

It was announced at the dinner that latest returns for the poppy day tag day on Saturday totalled $1,234.87, as of late Saturday night, with returns still to come in from schools and industries. It was also announced that $1,600 in wreaths had been sold this year.

"There would be no legion without a ladies' auxiliary," said legion president F. P. "Paddy" Burke in thanking the ladies for preparing and serving the dinner. Mr. Burke also accepted a cheque for $200 from the ladies' auxiliary on behalf of the Legion branch.

City Pays $883,174 In '50 On Maturing Debentures

Maturing debentures that were paid by the city in 1950 amounted to $883,174.25. During the year new issues totalled $1,372,712.82, for sewage disposal, schools, waterworks, local improvements, and so on. The city's gross debenture debt was therefore increased last year by the sum of $489,538.57 to the total of $5,474,386.56.

However, the City Trust Commission showed in its surplus account a reserve sum of $629,780, on the credit side.

That left the city's net debt at $4,844,665.69, as against $3,808,342.45 in 1949, exclusive of any sinking fund surplus.

These are paragraphs from the financial statement of the city's business and position at the end of 1950, as prepared by Edward Humpage, city auditor.

Debt Increases

During the last four years, the Auditor's report shows that the net city debt increased from $1,961,871.69 at the end of December in 1947, annually as follows: 1948, $2,190,460.51; 1949, $3,808,342.45; 1950, $4,844,605.69.

A net deficit of $139,074.16 after bringing into the accounts the surplus of $9,861.76 from 1949, is shown in the revenue and expenditure section.

"This deficit," Mr. Humpage explains "is due to the inclusion in the expenditures of an amount of $148,016.92 for Civic Hospital buildings. This amount will be included in the tax levies over the next five year period.

Actual revenue exceeded the estimated revenue by $18,122, while actually ordinary expenditures exceeded the estimates expenditures by $12,110.

Revenue Higher

Net revenue from the municipal taxation has increased from $1,402,683.28 in 1948 to the expected $2,235,323.42, which sum is the total of 1951 tax roll. Up to the end of October this year, Peterborough ratepayers had paid $2,051,627.34 in local taxes.

In the last four years, Peterborough's total of taxes has increased by more than $800,000, according to the Humpage statement.

Try It "No Hands"

Harry Oakman, local pilot and aerial photographer, is getting quite a reputation for his antics with an aircraft. His latest wrinkle was bringing his float-equipped Piper Cub down on a snowy field instead of on Lake Chemong. After landing successfully, he changed floats to skis and took off again. Harry had read about this being done, but never before in Canada. Another favorite dodge of Harry's is to take off from the highway. And this summer he claimed to be the first Canadian pilot to land his aircraft at a drive-in theatre. He taxied into the lot for a night's entertainment and then got away when it was over with less fuss and confusion than many a manoeuvring motorist. So far so good, Harry. Next time try it with no hands!

'Customers' Rob Store Of $700

COBOURG, Nov. 12 (ENS) — Five well-dressed men in their twenties, walked into Earl's Men's Wear store at 6.30 p.m. Saturday and 15 minutes after they had left the store, $700 was missing from the safe.

M. D. Earl and his clerk, Gene Conlin, were on duty, the other clerk being at his supper. The five supposed customers walked in casually and two of them selected some socks and other merchandise near the front of the store. The others walked around toward the rear, looking at suitcoats and windbreakers. While Mr. Earl and his clerk were occupied with two at the front of the store, one of the three slipped into the office and opened the safe door which fice was unlocked. Later the five left and Mr. Earl some 15 minutes later went to the safe to get some change for the cash register. It was then that he discovered that the money was gone.

Apart from the fact that the men were dressed in topcoats and the usual attire of this time of the year, there was little to go on by way of description.

The night before, two strangers, young men, walked into John Ewart's tobacco store and using the old money changing racket duped the feminine clerk out of $10.

Crack Safe Get $75 At Lumber Co.

Rough, Efficient Job On Safe Discovered Sunday

Safe crackers broke into the office of the Beaver Lumber Co., 78 George St., north, sometime early Sunday morning.

Using bars and chisels, the thieves forced the safe and made off with approximately $75 in cash, a quantity of unemployment insurance stamps and some personal efects of Manager F. G. McGavin.

Mr. McGavin discovered the break-in about 10:30 Sunday morning.

It is believed the thieves climbed the wire fence that surrounds the property and gained entry by smashing the lock on a window on the south side of the building where they could not be seen from the street.

A lock was forced on a door leading to the warehouse and it is believed the men left by a door on the south side right next to the window they forced to get in.

Detective-Sergeant Bud Clarke who is investigating described the method of cracking the safe as "rough but efficient".

He said that from the amount and type of work it appeared that two men had done the job.

The office and surfaces of the door and windows have been carefully dusted for fingerprints by Sergeant William Aggas.

Youth Injured As Cars Collide

Injured when two cars collided at the intersection of Reid and Stewart Streets, at 4.45 Sunday afternoon, Robert Kingdon, 17, of Chemong was taken to hospital for observation and treatment of lacerations and abrasions to his head and right knee.

His condition is reported to be good today.

The injured youth was a passenger in a car driven by James C. Middleton, 177 Westcott St., who was driving south on Stewart St., when he said his brakes failed as he approached Reid St., and collided with a car coming north on Reid St., driven by Clifford Hunt, 454 Rose Ave.

Hunt told constables W. A. Scott and Eldon McDonald who investigated that he had stopped for the stop sign at Stewart St., and was moving slowly into the intersection when the collision occurred.

Considerable damage was done to the fronts of both cars.

Fire Delays Uranium Production

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (CP)—Fire has interrupted production of highly important uranium concentrates at the Elorado mining and refining project in Port Radium, North West Territories.

W. J. Bennett, president and managing director of Eldorado, a Crown corporation, got the news by radio while in Ottawa for the weekend. He said the crushing and concentrator mill was destroyed.

He said he would not know until he has made an inspection the extent of the damage or the length of time it will take to resume production of uranium concentrates.

However, the report was that only the mill was destroyed.

$500,000 Damage

It would be difficult to estimate the replacement value of the building and contents but it would be in the vicinity of $500,000, fully covered by insurance.

Production from the plant goes almost exclusively to the United States Atomic Energy Commission. Eldorado is one of the main world sources of the raw material.

Mining will continue and the ore will be stockpiled pending replacement of the mill.

"It is a serious loss but will not necessarily interfere with atomic development," Mr. Bennett said.

Information reaching Mr. Bennett said the first was caused by a spark from a welder's torch.

Ask Consideration Of Surgery Charges

SAN FRANSICO, Nov. 10 (AP) —The American College of Surgeons Friday asked the profession to be more considerate about charging patients for operations.

Surgeons should consult "more freely" with the patient's family doctor about the ability of an individual to pay for his operation, said a report approved by the college's board of regents.

The surgeon also should talk over finances with the patient before the operation, the report said.

"Ghost surgery," one of several forms of fee-splitting among doctors, drew a specific note of disapproval from the regents. In this procedure the patient's regular doctor pays the surgeon for performing the operation. The surgeon may remain unknown to the person upon whom he operates and the patient may be led to believe the family doctor did the work, the regents said.

Gen. Guy G. Simonds Predicts West Armed For 40-50 Years

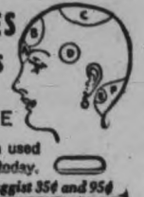
WINDSOR, Nov. 12 (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Guy G. Simonds, chief of staff, told Canadian Legion members here Saturday that there were two alternatives to achieving a lasting world peace: "We can stand under arms for 40 or 50 years, or we can become engaged in a shooting war."

Speaking on the eve of Remembrance Day, Gen. Simonds painted a grim picture of the world today and the world we might live in for many years to come. He said there is no chance of reconciling the differing ideologies of the democratic countries and the nations under Communist domination.

"They (Communists) may agree on a truce," he said, "but they will renew the battle whenever it looks to be to their advantage to do so."

Far From Efficient

"If we should gain some economic advantage in the cold war there is not the slightest doubt that our enemy would resort to arms," he said.



He reminded his listeners, many of whom had fought under his command, that democracy is far from efficient to "the ruthless, systematic approach to the constant goal of world conquest" which those countries under dictatorship follow.

"We don't possess the initiative now and we never shall," he said, "because we are not prepared to fight an agressive war as our enemies are."

Accidents Kill 4

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (CP) — Road mishaps claimed the lives of four youths, three of them on one accident, in the Montreal district during the weekend. Make First Comment On Shackled Crusader

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Reuters)—Lord Beaverbrook's independent Conservative Daily Express today made its first comment on the shackling of the Crusader on its front page.

The Crusader, a drawing of a jaunty knight, "grew" chains and a stake around which they were secured during the general election campaign last month. Speculation was that he would shed the chains when the Conservatives had won.

October 25 Labor government fell—but the chains did not.

Today The Express offers an editorial explanation:

"The Crusader's chains will disappear the moment the new government gives the signal. The Express waits expectantly, hopefully for the moment when Tory principles in relation to the Empire are made clear."

"If the new government can again unite the Colonies and Great Britain in one economic unit and bring the Dominions into the closest possible partnership the Crusader will come out of his chains. And so will Britain," the editorial says.

Urges US Give Lead In Freeing Trade

By FORBES RHUDE.

TORONTO, Nov. 12 — (CP)— Canada's trade was described today as "rosy" by Quintin J. Gwyn of Montreal, president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, but at the same time he outlined "weaknesses" in the general export picture.

Addressing the association's two-day annual meeting, which opened today, he expressed misgiving over the large proportion of exports going to the United States (65 per cent); urged that the United States give world leadership in lowering of tariffs; and Canada should process more of her raw materials and so export more manufactured goods; and expressed surprise that more Canadian firms have not been exhibiting at the Canadian International Trade Fair.

"Can Canada and the United States expand, each to its maximum," he asked, "through their present tendency to take in each other's washing?

"I do not believe it is sound for Canada to be closely tied to the US economy with its past history of fairly violent ups and downs. While continuing to develop our US business, we should explore every avenue so as to extend our export trade in other areas."

Heavy Clamp

Mr. Gwyn said the dollar shortage in the sterling area has set an "iron clamp" on the natural expansion of trade with Europe and the Commonwealth; yet, "we must strain every effort to ease this problem in our own interests.

"It is to be regretted that Canadian exporters have not made the fullest use of such concessions as have already been made available in the West Indies."

Mr. Gwyn declared that the "dead hand of tariffs still clutches the living organisms of international trade.

"It is a great disappointment that the Geneva talks, followed by Havana, Annecy and Torquay, have been so barren of constructive results."

Referring to American Congressional delay in dealing with the US Customs Simplification Act," he added:

"Surely the time has come for our great neighbor to put aside these manoeuvrings in favor of an over-all and courageous plan for lower tariffs, which in its own field would have the grand simplicity and dynamic stimulus of the Marshall plan. I think that if such a bold step were taken we would see tariff walls crumbling throughout the world at the sound of the US trumpets."

Brighter Picture

On the brighter side of the picture, Mr. Gwyn commented:

"Despite the gloomy forecasts of some exporters earlier in the year, I believe we now can look forward to another record year in Canada's foreign trade which may well amount to rather more than $7,000,000,000.

"The over-all picture of Canada's export trade is encouraging. Prices of most basic Canadian materials, which represent a substantial part of our exports, have been well maintained despite the fact that world prices for many basic commodities have fallen....

"Nor is Canada's fortunate position so far as a healthy world demand for her basic products is concerned, likely to change. Actually, our chief exports will be in demand for decades to come and our potential new resources of iron ore, titanium, oil and uranium will fall into the same category."

Report Russians Arrest Leading Atomic Scientist

By STAN SWINTON.

ROME, Nov. 12 (AP). — Two more newspapers gave a new twist to the Bruno Pontecorvo mystery Sunday by saying the missing British scientist had been arrested by the Russians in an effort to plug a leak of their atomic secrets to the United States.

The papers, Il Tempo and Momento Sera, quoted unidentified Russian sources in Stockholm as saying 38-year-old, Italian-born Pontecorvo, who disappeared more than a year ago with his Swedish wife and three children, had been arrested as a western spy in the Soviet Union.

Il Tempo and Momento Sera said the Russians believed the US had a spy among their top ranking atomic scientists and that Pontecorvo may have been the source on which President Truman based his announcement of atomic explosions in the USSR.

The Rome newspaper story was a completely new assessment of Pontecorvo's role. More than a year ago British Supply Minister George Strauss admitted that he had no definite information but said he had no doubt the missing researcher had skipped to Russia.

At the time of Pontecorvo's disappearance from Britain's chief atomic research centre at Harwell he was a British citizen. He had become a citizen in 1948 when he went to the United Kingdom from Canada where he was a member of the joint British-Canadian atomic research team at Chalk River, Ont. British authorities said he had been thoroughly screened.

Deadly Spy

Only a few months ago the US Senate-House atomic energy committee declared Pontecorvo the second most deadly spy in all history, ranking only below his reputed bosom friend, Klaus Fuchs, in passing valuable atomic secrets to Russia. Fuchs, a German-born British scientist, is serving a 14-year prison sentence in England.

Three days ago, a former high Moslem official of China's Sinkiang Province, reported from Cairo that Pontecorvo was a key scientist in a "huge atomic stronghold" Russia is building and operating in the Central Asiatic province.

This official, Issa Yusuf Bey Aliptekin, said his information—which apparently was several weeks or months old, came from refugees from Sinkiang and Soviet broadcasts from Turkestan.

The White House has announced three atomic explosions have occurred in Russia. The first announcement was made by the President on Sept. 23, 1949—nearly a year before Pontecorvo disappeared. The second announcement, specifically mentioning the explosion of "another atomic bomb," was made Oct. 3 this year. The third announcement on Oct. 22, said a third blast was apparently part of a test series.

In addition, the Associated Press quoted competent sources in Washington on Oct. 22 as saying there also had been a "fizzle." If there was a fizzle it might easily have set the Russians to looking for a saboteur or scapegoat.

The Russians confirmed the first two announcements and there there has much speculation whether an espionage network or detection apparatus were responsible for the White House information.

Filipinos Hope Vote To Thwart Red Enemies

MANILA, Nov. 12—(Reuters)—Five million Filipinos vote Tuesday in elections which may decide the future of democracy in the Philippine Islands, whose independence the United States granted in 1946.

They will choose nine senators, 46 provincial governors and a number of city mayors.

Main parties contesting the elections are the Liberal Party—in office with a large majority, headed by President Elipdio Quirino; the opposition Nationalist Party of Eulogio Rodriquez, and the Citizens' Party of Lorenzo Tanada. There are several independents.

It is important that the elections be held democratically to offset attempts by the Communist Hukbalap dissidents (the Huks) to make political capital out of them.

Try To Thwart Voting

The Communists have already shown their intention of making polling as difficult as possible by violence and threats against candidates, especially in provincial districts. Eighty-six slayings have been recorded in three months of pre-election violence.

Service units have been spread throughout the islands, to prevent trouble, but reports of political kidnappings, murders and violence are increasing daily as tension mounts.

The Liberal Party is taking a stand on its achievements during 3½ years of power, claiming the creation of economic stability and the quelling of the Huk rebellion, which broke out after the war.

The opposition parties accuse the government of graft and corruption at all levels.

But all parties agree on the need for a peaceful, honest election, realizing its outcome will probably determine the island's presidential election in 1953.

Say Rational Thinking Won't Deter Russia

STANSTEAD, Que., Nov. 12 — (CP). — Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Canadian Army Chief of Staff during the Second World War, said Sunday night peace could not be assured just because it was rational to believe Russia does not want war.

It's dangerous to think a dictator will act rationally, he told the annual veterans' banquet sponsored by the Canadian Legion here. It is necessary to remember that a dictator is not and cannot be a rational human being.

"And so, when the argument is advanced that, as it most logically can be, that the last thing Soviet Russia wants is war with the Western Allies, I urge that memories of the international careers of Hitler and Mussolini be borne well in mind," he said.

Says Sight Fails From Birth On

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (CP) — The vision of the average man, woman and child declines at a rate of 3 per cent annually. By the time persons reach middle age their sight is only half of what it was when they were born, Samuel G. Hibben, Bloomfield, NJ., president of the Illuminating Engineering Society, said here.

If this process continues unabated, future generations will only be able to see half as well as the present group unless some steps are taken to halt the use of man's eyes, Mr. Hibben said.

"It is the duty of engineers to work to save man's eyesight by improving lighting to lessen strain," Mr. Hibben said.

Eighty per cent of all man's knowledge comes through his eyes, he said. The average man works about 18 years, sleeps 20, and eats and plays 22, he said. He must in the 18 years he works see well enough to earn sufficiently to see him through the other 42, the Bloomfield expert said.

The survey indicated that a woman might shrug off the doldrums if she wore a yellow dress. Bright red also was listed as a pepper-upper.

Maureen Gravelle Bride Of Leo P. Hogan

A double ring wedding ceremony at the Sacred Heart Church on Saturday morning united in marriage Maureen Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gravelle of Peterborough, and Leo Patrick Hogan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hogan of Lindsay. The Rev. Leo Leahy said the nuptial mass and performed the marriage.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mr. Heribert Michel and Mrs. D. Campanaro sang several hymns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in a gown of white brocaded satin, fashioned with stand-up collar, long pointed sleeves and full skirt falling into a graceful cathedral train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion with a satin brocade Mary Queen of Scots halo and carried a cascade of Bettertime roses.

Bridal attendant was the groom's sister, Miss Marie Hogan, nurse-in-training at St. Joseph's Hospital. Her frock was of ice blue net with Chantilly lace jacket and matching headdress and she carried a cascade of white 'mums and carnations.

Groomsman was Jack Hogan, brother of the groom, and ushers were Leo Shine and Lloyd Hancock.

Miss Vivien Sills Weds G. William Fyfe

In St. John's Anglican Church at four o'clock Saturday afternoon Vivien Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ryerson Sills of Peterborough, became the bride of Mr. Gabriel William Fyfe, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Fyfe of Glasgow, Scotland. Ven. Archdeacon C. W. Balfour performed the ceremony.

The altar was banked with bouquets of white chrysanthemums, plams and ferns. Organist Mr. F. G. Mann played the wedding march and as the couple were leaving the church he played the chimes. While they were signing the register Mrs. Stanley Northrop sang "Where 'Ere You Walk."

Mr. Sills gave his daughter in marriage. She was wearing a princess-styled gown of white slipper satin with sweetheart neckline and a full overskirt of nylon net extended over the satin train. Her veil was caught with a cap of satin banded with pearls and she was carrying a bouquet of sweetheart roses and small chrysanthemums.

Bridal attendants were her sister Miss Barbara Sills and Miss Doris Hendry. Their gowns of taffeta were in pale green and orchid and each wore gloves and a hat of deeper tone velvet. The hats were trimmed with ostrich plumes sweping gracefully at the left side, the color matching their cascade bouquets of Johanna Hill roses.

Groomsman was Mr. Alex Wigfield also formerly of Scotland. Ushers were George Sills, brother of the bride, and Frank Hancock.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 542 Gilmour St. For the occasion Mrs. Sills wore navy crepe and a navy velvet hat and her corsage was of Talisman roses.

When leaving later for a honeymoon in New York State the bride wore a royal blue gabardine suit with navy accessories and her corsage was yellow roses.

Fashion Flashes

A break for the budget-minded is found in the form of charming hats put out by some of the leading designers. From one great name comes a budget beauty, one of a series. It is a cap cloche in oxford grey made of a fur-like fabric, tightly curled and with a texture like that of astrakhan.

✧ ✧ ✧

Stripes are starring in the new fashions. A new wool jersey dress is of charcoal, rust and light grey wavy chevron stripes. R new suit is of striped black and white tweed, the nipped-in jacket slit at the sides and bound all around with black silk braid.

Remembrance Day Tea Held By 57th Regiment Chapter

Remembrance Day has a special significance for most of the ladies of the 57th Chapter, IODE, for they are wives of men who served with honor to Peterborough in two world wars. So, each year the Chapter holds a tea on or close to November 11th, date of signing the armistice in 1918, at which time charter members were very active in overseas relief work.

The tea on Saturday afternoon was held in the YWCA Green Room where flags were the keynote of decorations. A lovely, deep-set floral arrangement for the tea table was done in red, white and blue, and highlighted with tapers.

Featured under the bazaar were three draw prizes, an afghan, a painting donated by Mrs. Susan Dobbin, and a cake. Winners were decided at close of the tea when regent Mrs. M. E. Clarke drew tickets, giving the afghan to Mrs. A. H. Heideman of Chemong Park, the picture to Mrs. W. G. Connal, 1043 Water St., and the cake to Mrs. G. S. Rishor, 459 Hunter St. W.

Two tables were used to display the children's knitted garments and a wide variety of hand-made articles and novelties for sale and a third table was laden with delicious home cooking.

Attendance this year was a little larger than last, with weather conditions improving for the day. Mrs. Clarke assisted in receiving by vice regent Mrs. C. E. Newman and Mrs. C. R. Payne and Mrs. R. Williams were taking the tickets.

Tea pourers for the opening hour were Mrs. G. H. Cutmore and Mrs. M. J. Swanston, followed by Mrs. W. G. Hall and Mrs. C. M. Scott. Hostesess in the tea room were Mrs. A. B. Burrows, Miss M. Rush, Mrs. R. E. Clarke and Mrs. C. H. Stuart.

Mrs. James McLeod convened the tea table and had as servers Mrs. G. Stewart, Mrs. D. Miller, Mrs. J. D. Rowlandson, Mrs. W. G. Brown, Mrs. W. G. Howden, Mrs. J. E. Johnston, Mrs. P. Martyn, Mrs. W. E. Franks, Mrs. T. Griffin, Mrs. H. C. Jay, Mrs. H. Willis, Mrs. J. Black, Mrs. R. R. Asselstine, Mrs. E. W. Boyer, Mrs. W. J. Davies, Mrs. P. Latchford, Mrs. B. MacLeod, Mrs. G. Groombridge, Mrs. G. H. Moore, Mrs. E. A. Adams, Mrs. R. G. Brooks, Mrs. T. E. Gilchrist, Mrs. A. Watson, Mrs. L. Groombridge.

The plates were replenished by Mrs. E. Graham, assisted by Mrs. H. Burrows, Mrs. F. C. Haggart and Mrs. H. Willis.

Soft piano music was played throughout the tea by Mrs. R. Y. Kenny, Mrs. L. McNeil and Mrs. V. Read, in turn.

The raffle tickets were in charge of Mrs. L. D. Foster.

Mrs. F. J. Frape convened the bazaar tables and her assistants were Mrs. R. A. Ford, Mrs. C. E. Whatley, Mrs. T. H. Skinner and Mrs. F. Watson. Mrs. W. Hughes was assisted by Mrs. Hurrell Dodds at the home cooking table.

Career Adviser Reached Success After 34 Jobs

By ADELAIDE KERR.

NEW YORK — (AP). — If you want to find the right job, choose the work that comes naturally to you, says Anne Heywood.

She has helped nearly 5,000 persons change careers. In Miss Heywood's case what came naturally was a knack for getting the right person into the right spot.

But she herself tried 34 jobs in many different states before her own career pattern crystallized. Then she launched the career-changing clinic here two and a half years ago, and found herself with so many clinents that now she has adopted a group therapy method.

She has interviewed 5,500 people who wanted to change their careers, and says that 87 per cent of them made the change successfully.

Don't, she urges, choose your life work because you "majored in mathematics," or a big desk goes with it, or it offers a chance to travel or papa picked ft.

What Comes Naturally

"The secret in finding your life work is doing what comes naturally—so naturally you think anybody can do it," says Miss Heywood. "Ask yourself what you remember easily. The things that stick in your mind are the things you have a natural faculty for doing.

"If, after you have finished a piece of work, you get a terrific feeling of virtue and achievement, watch out. You've been doing the wrong work. What you should feel is self-indulgence."

Observation has convinced Miss Heywood everybody has a talent which can be of service to some segment of society, and they can find it if they will keep punching long enough.

Miss Heywood, an Iowan, has boiled down what she learned about job problems in a new book, "There's a Right Job for Every Woman." She has appeared on radio and plans a television show. Every time she airs her ideas she is deluged with pleas for help from people who say they hate their work.

"Society seems to be doing everything possible to louse up the natural magnetism by which the thing that's for you is attracted to you," she said. "People are cracked on the subject of doing 'creative work.' They must be writers or editors or lawyers—or at the least executives. Kids who are geniuses with machines must get a college degree and then try to make like a bigshot in business.

"Wives keep husbands at jobs they hate, because they want 'security.' Husbands keep wives in kitchens they hate, because 'women are really happier at home.' There are a lot of displaced persons like this."

Nursing Shortage Affecting Many Countries

TORONTO — (CP) — Canada isn't the only country with a shortage of trained nurses.

Turkey has enough hospitals but not enough nurses. Syria needs more public health nurses. Egypt is short of general nursing staff and Norway, despite improvement since the war, still needs more nurses.

This was the report given by four nurses from these different countries who now are taking post-graduate work at the university of Toronto. They are part of a group of 12 nurses from many foreign lands in the course; some are sponsored by the World Health Organization of the United Nations.

Lebide Ertuna of Istanbul said that women in her country were allowed to take up nursing and many other professions when the veil was abolished in 1923. The first school was opened in 1925 by the Red Crescent—the Turkish equivalent of the Red Cross—and 800 nurses have been graduated since then.

"We have lots of hospitals in Turkey," she says, "but not enough nurses. We are trying to encourage more young women to go into the profession."

Public Health Need

Haiffa Koudsy of Damascus intends to go back to her home in Syria to train nurses in public health, and set up a public health school.

"Public health is very necessary now with all the refugees there," she said.

Egyptian women like nursing, said Sofia Hanna of Cairo, but few hospitals have enough staff. Nurses in Egypt take a five-year course, the fifth year being devoted to midwifery.

Randi Barlindhaug of Bodo hospital, Norway, said her hospital is financened jointly by Norwegian women's health association and the government. Women in Norway have also set up a school for administration, sociology and financed with government help.

3 Sisters Attend The Bride At Garden Hill

The marriage took place in Garden Hill United Church of Wilma Doretta, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Aiken, to Ray Harold Martinell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Martinell of Kendal. The Rev. Earle Udell officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in traditional white satin and Chantilly lace. The gown was floor length and made on classic lines, high at the neck with a Peter Pan collar. The nylon inset yoke was heavily embroidered with seed pearls and the long sleeves came to a finger length ending. Her imported illusion net veil was bordered in fine French Chantilly lace and caught to a headdress of white ostrich plumes. Her bouquet was of red roses.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Miss Amy Aiken as maid of honor, Miss Lorna Aiken as bridesmaid and Miss Ellen Aiken as flower girl. They were in identically styled dresses, one in claret wine shade silk velvet, made to the floor, with small puff sleeves and sweetheart neckline, and one in midnight navy silk velvet, worn with headdresses of wine and navy ostrict plumes, and carrying little circular muffs on which were corsages of bronze 'mums; and the flower girl's dress was in gold shade, and like her grown-up sisters, she wore gold plumes in her hair and carried a little gold muff.

Groomsman was Mr. Jack Bartley and the ushers were Allen Earle and Ross Patton.

Miss Margaret Aiken was soloist and sang "Because" before the bride came down the aisle, and "Through the Years" during the signing of the register. Mr. Nelson Gardiner played the wedding music.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Her mother received, wearing steel grey crepe with wine accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother assisted wearing a navy suit with pink accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

For the weding trip to Niagara Falls and United States the bride chose a two-piece royal blue dress suit, trimmed with velvet, and she had wine accessories. Her corsage was of Johanna Hill roses.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Martinell will live in Kendal.

Smart Squad Of CWAC'S Train In Calgary

CALGARY (CP)—Some 55 Calgary girls are "Thursday night soldiers"—and from attendance records they thoroughly enjoy their weekly CWAC reserve parades.

Braving the cold, the girls for the last two months been turning out for the weekly parades and special Tuesday parades with a regularity that is the envy of reserve army units.

"Turnouts average from 40 to 50 girls each parade," said Lt.-Col. R. M. Quigly, officer commanding No. 110 manning depot. He is in charge of training CWAC for the depot.

The depot can recruit up to 78 girls. Indications are that the quota will shortly be filled.

Col. Quigly is aided in the training program by six reserve army instructors.

Retain Rank

Girls recurited receive the rank they held in the last war. About 25 per cent of the group now in training are former CWAC members.

Training is divided into two parts. First the basic training and foot drill every soldier takes—then training in specialized fields. The group will primarily be trained for orderly room work, but some will be more specialized, becoming medical and dental assistants.

Former members of the force are not separated from recruits in the basic training period on the assumption that they too must be brought up to date on the latest army techniques.

Some difficuly has been found in training the girls in parade square drill as proper uniforms have not yet arrived.

It is a little hard to train them to march in high heels, chief instructor Maj. F. J. Reynolds said, but when the proper issue of footwear arrives "they'll look as smart as any squad of men."

Mother Lets Son's Whims Keep Family Separated

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem really has me on a fence and I don't know which side to sit on. For the past three years, my husband has been working away from home (in another state). Recently we moved to the town where he lives as he was tired of boarding-house meals and the long trips home on week ends. After we had moved, our 16-year-old son didn't like the place so we came back home.

Dorothy Dix

Being an only child, we try to do everything we can for him to make him happy, but somehow I feel the breadwinner of the family should be happy, too. My husband would feel much better if he had us with him but he doesn't want the boy to be dissatisfied. Do you think a boy of 16 can make new friends easily? Would he get to like these new companions as much as the ones he has had since childhood? The youngster insists he will never be happy away from this town where we have lived all his life.

MRS S. M. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are being a very foolish mother and a very neglectful wife. To put a child's whims before the welfare of the man who is making so many sacrifices to support you is foolhardy in the extreme. You have done a thorough job of spoiling your son, who now needs awakening to his own responsibilities.

Naturally you are concerned about your son's welfare and happiness, but believe me, his best interests are not being served when you permit him to make decisions that rightfully belong to the head of the household.

Most Boys Seek Change

Does the boy expect to spend the rest of his life in one spot? He hasn't much enterprise if he does! Most young men his age are tickled to death at the chance to explore new territory.

Your son will make friends no matter where he is. On that score you may safely put your worries to rest. A 16-year-old boy, provided he has something in the way of personality to offer, can make good friends anywhere. He'll adjust to his new environment readily, possibly liking it better than his present surroundings.

Stop worrying about the boy and give your husband some thought. He has been carrying a heavy load these last three years with no home life and long trips home every week end. It is definitely your duty to establish a home for him, even at the expense of sulking from your son. Have a long talk with the youngster; make him realize the penalty he is exacting from the rest of the family for his convenience, and I think he'll see the light. If not, he must be moved anyway, and it's up to you to make him accept the move with graciousness. End this family separation as soon as possible!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For three years I have been carrying a torch for a boy who is now in the service. I went out with him quite frequently before he went away and he is always sure to call me the minute he arrives home on leave. My love for him is very great. I go out with other boys but they don't seem to interest me. He never writes or tells me how he feels about me. Should I continue to carry this torch or should I try to forget him?

A. C. E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Forget this melodramatic torch you are carrying and settle down to being good friends until your beau decides to get more serious. The important thing is that he calls you whenever he is home, and presumably comes to see you. Don't be upset because he doesn't write love letters every day. He's a bit slow, it's true, but be patient.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 17 years old, a junior in high school. I am in love with a boy whom I plan to marry in the near future. I have met his parents and we get along very well. Do you think I am old enough to know my own mind? My parents say I'm not.

C. J. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Of course you think you know your own mind, but love is a complex affair that is too much for many adults to grasp. Waiting a year or two won't lessen your love for each other, and it will give you a much better foundation for marriage. Finish high school, then see how your parents feel.

Nursing Course Aids Rehabilitation

RENFREW (CP) — Rehabilitation nursing will get what is believed its first test in Canada next year at Victoria hospital.

Dr. W. A. Brown, chairman of the hospital's board of governors, has announced that a grant of $1,500 from the Atkinson Charitable Foundation will make the pilot project possible. The program will be in charge of Mrs. Grace Huggins, first Canadian nurse to take a post-graduate course in rehabilitation nursing when Bellevue hospital at New York offered such training last year.

Funds from the grant will be used to train selected graduate nurses in the principles of rehabilitation nursing. Field for their work will be the separate annex which this hospital has set up for chronically ill patients.

The fundamental of rehabilitation nursing is to consider the patient as a complete person, not just his particular illness; to measure his potential for self-help and usefulness and to direct him toward fullest possible use of the many abilities not shut off by his ailment.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Christmas Candy Recipes Give Attractive Results

During the next two months these columns will burst at the edges with mouth-watering Cristmas goodies. Freda F. has asked for recipes for Christmas candies. These were going to appear after I had given you my new 1951 Christmas cake recipe but I am trusting you to cut these out if you hope to make candy closer to Christmas. If you have a notion for other candy recipes that I have passed over there is still plenty of time to write me—but don't leave it until the last minute.

Christmas candies should look Christmas-y—so I have selected recipes that give attractive results, variety of texture and flavour but above all that are foolproof for both young and old candy amateurs. I can't vouch for them if you do not use a candy thermometer. I can't make candy without one and I have 100 original candy recipes to my credit —made up for a special edition cook book.

Divinity Fudge with Cherries

Two and one-third cups granulated sugar, two-thirds cup white corn syrup, ½ cup water, 2 egg whites, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla and 1 cup chopped drained candied cherries. Combine sugar, syrup and water in a saucepan, stirring constantly over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Cook without stirring to 265° Fahr. or until a little dropped in cold water forms a hard ball. Remove any sugar crystals from sides of pan with wet cheesecloth wound around the prongs of a fork. Remove from heat and pour gradually over stiffly beaten egg whites. Then add vanilla and candied cherries and pour the mixture into a greased or oiled pan, 9" x 9" x 2". When cool cut into squares. This mixture will make about 1½ lbs. If preferred, drop by teaspoonfuls on waxed paper.

Real English Toffee

Two cups granulated sugar, 1½ cups corn syrup, 1½ cups cream or rich milk, ½ teaspoon salt. Mix all together, stir on stove until sugar is dissolved. Boil steadily to soft ball stage or 238 deg. Fahr. Add 3 teaspoons butter and cook to hard ball stage or 250 deg. Fahr. stirring frequently, as the toffee tends to burn at this stage. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and pour into a buttered pan. Mark in squares when cool and allow to harden.

Cream Caramels

Mix together in a saucepan 2 cupfuls sugar, 2 cups pale corn syrup, ½ cup butter, ¼ teaspoon salt. Place over heat and slowly bring to boiling point, stirring frequently. Add 2 cups evaporated milk very slowly so the mixture does not go off the boil. Cook to firm ball stage or 242 deg. Fahr. stirring constantly. Unless well stirred the candy will burn easily at this stage. Add one teaspoon vanilla and pour in buttered pans. When slightly cool mark in squares—when cold—cut and wrap in wax paper.

Peanut Brittle

One and one-half cups golden syrup, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 6 tablespoons peanut butter, ¾ teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1½ cups peanuts with skins on. (If peanuts are salted, salt content in recipe may be reduced to 1¼ teaspoons). Stir together the syrup and the sugar and heat to 290 deg. Fahr. Have ready the soda, salt and peanut butter mixed together. Also have ready a pan 8" x 16" or a flat pan of similar area, well buttered, and covered with one layer of peanuts very close together. As soon as desired temperature is reached remove syrup from heat and add soda, salt and peanut butter, stir quickly to mix well and immediately pour over peanuts in pan. Pour the syrup so that it covers all the peanuts without disturbing them. Let harden until thoroughly cold. Break into pieces right size for eating with handle of butcher knife or candy hammer.

If you want recipes for Sponge Candy, Turkish Delight, Fondant and Fudge let me know as soon as possible.

What's Right?

You are telephoning to invite friends to come to your house for cocktails so that a house guest can meet them.

WRONG: Don't mention when you invite them that you are having them in to meet an out-of-town guest.

RIGHT: Say that you want them to meet your house guest—and tell them a little about the guest. (This will make it easier for your friends to get acquainted.)

Fashion Flashes

The big success color in handbags, as well as in clothes and other accessories, is gray. It looks new and different in both suede and calfskin, and is perfectly beautiful in alligator. Gray suede is used for a triangular pouch with the closing flap placed to one side, and a rigid handle of shell.

✧ ✧ ✧

Match up that wool jersey dress, or contrast its color, with good-looking wool jersey gloves. Longies, shorties and in-betweens in various colors, as well as the popular grays, all appear in a new line of well-made wool jersey gloves.

Her thoughts were all so full of us,

Please, God, just let her know
That we, down here, do not forget
We love and miss her so.
—Ever remembered by Emma Johnston.

Liberals, PCs Not Friends Of Labor-Grant

The Libreal and Conservative parties only act in the workers' interest when organized labor and the CCF party forces them to do so, W. C. Grant told a meeting of CCFers Saturday night.

Mr. Grant, the CCF candidate in the Nov. 22 election, was speaking to an audience of 30 men and women in the party's committee rooms, Charlotte St.

Premier Frost and Walter C. Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, are not the friends of labor they claim to be, said Mr. Grant.

Never forget that the Liberals and Conservatives broke up outdoor CCF meetings back in the '30s by sending in motorcycle police, armed with whips, said Mr. Grant. The meetings were being held to help the workers.

"In 1937 the Liberals recruited special police during the General Motors strike in Oshawa to try and drive the CIO from Ontario," he said. They were unsuccessful.

Remember Record

"We must remember their record. Neither party likes labor, and they only act in the workers' interest when organized labor and the CCF force action on them."

"The CCF helped to establish unions—including the UE in Peterborough," said Mr. Grant. "We allowed unions the free use of our club room and assisted in other ways to the best of our ability.

"The CCF knew that UE leaders consistently supported the communist line but felt that to oppose their efforts would retard the growth and lessen the effectiveness of the unions. We had confidence that after the unions were firmly established the membership — in the vast majority non-communist — would remedy the evil of communist leadership. We still have confidence that this will be done."

"In the first years there were some communists associated with the CCF," said Mr. Grant. "And many of the members of our party thought they could co-operate with them, but they soon learned that any type of unified activity with the communist party could only be carried out on communist terms.

"We were not prepared to accept these terms," said Mr. Grant. "Later this became plain to the communist element and they tried and were almost successful in ruining a CCF election campaign."

Co-operated

Mr. Grant said that since it was first organized the CCF has co-operated with organized labor. And the Peterborough Association has done its share. Here in Peterborough they assisted the UE in its early days and it also gave considerable support to the United Packinghouse Workers of America. (CIO-CCL).

The CCF candidate said both the two old-line parties are sailing along under false colors and their policies are almost indistinguishable.

"People should realize that a party serves the people who support it and these parties are supported by the wealthy interests they represent. The CCF party receives its support from the working people and the unions."

Rash Of Crashes

down as he neared the intersection Ross E. Dettman, 409 Wolfe St., travelling behind said he tried to slow down also but could not stop on account of the icy pavement before colliding with the rear of Hotston's car.

Damage to Hotston's car was estimated at $65 by Constable William G. Scott who investigated.

A minor accident occurred in front of a hotel on the north side of Simcoe St., at 4.30 Saturday afternoon.

H. F. Doxsee, 525 Homewood Ave., said he stopped and pulled into the curb to pick up a passenger when a truck struck his left rear fender. The driver of the truck, Wilfred MacDonald, RR 1, Ida, told police he was driving east on Simcoe St., and while going slowly to get between Doxsee's car and a truck which was double parked on the other side of Simcoe St., he said he managed to get the front end of his vehicle through but caught the rear fender of Doxsee's car.

A motorcycle rider was uninjured when his motorcycle and a car were involved in a collision at Water and Brock Sts. at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

Allan Phillipps, 76 Sophia St., said he was driving his motorcycle through the intersection, and just as he reached the centre, collided with a northbound Water St. car driven by E. W. Faux, 226 Brock St., who was making a left hand turn on to Brock St.

No Headway In Oil Talks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP) — Gloomy Iranian negotiators look for a collapse by Wednesday of current American efforts to mediate the bitter anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

Prime Minister Mossadegh plans to leave for Teheran Thursday unless Britain backs down in its determination to retain the billion dollar British company in Iran. He has scheduled a farefell blast at the British for Wednesday when he will address a luncheon meeting of the National Press Club.

Mossadegh, who has been in the capital since Oct. 23, showed no sign of backing down on his country's decision to boot anglo-Iranian out of Iran and run its vast oil properties.

The driver of the other car, Garnet Forsyth, 217 London St., said he was slowing down to turn into a roadside restaurant when the accident ocurred. Slight damage resulted to both vehicles. Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Few Skiers Out On Local Slopes

Only a few skiers took advantage of the good skiing conditions at Kemp's Hill on the Warsaw Road and at Peterborough Ski Club site at Bethany over the weekend. But the early opening broke all previous records.

Mrs. Mollie Craig, Ontario chairman of the women's section, and instructor for the Peterborough club, reported that the skiing Saturday at Kemp's was "wonderful" on good skiing conditions.

"Only a few were out. I guess no one wants to ski in November," she said.

Mrs. Craig said there was about six inches of snow, the bottom layer quite firm, the thin top layer soft, and the sun just melting enough to provide a good turning surface.

Tow Operating

For the first time this year the tow was operating, quickly carrying the few skiers to the top of the slope. On Thursday night club members erected the tow for the season.

Conditions for Sunday were the same as Saturday and again only a few were there to open the season.

At Bethany on Sunday, 20 club members held a combined work and pleasure session. Before they tried the slopes, the men put up the two tow ropes and readid them for the season's action. Meanwhile other workers were busy preparing the chalet for the season.

After the work was done, the big tow was operated for an hour as the skiers zoomed down the hills. There the conditions were described as "excellent."

Providing there is no rain or extra mild weather, there will be skiing Tuesday night under the lights at Kemp's Hill to record the earliest night skiing in Peterborough's skiing history.

US Ambassador For Austria

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP). —The United States today promoted its envoy to Austria from the rank of minister to ambassador in a new gesture of support for the anti-Communist Austrian regime.

At the same time Under-Secretary of State James Webb called on Soviet Russia to live up to its wartime 1943 pledge to withdraw all occupation troops and restore full freedom and independence to Austria.

The boost in the rank of the envoy to Austria was announced by making public an exchange of notes between Webb and Dr. Ludwig Kelinwaechter, Austrian envoy here.

Career diplomat Walter J. Donnelly, now at Vienna, becomes ambassador and high commissioner. Dr. Ludwig Kelinwaechter, now Austrian envoy here, likewise becomes an ambassador, the top ranking foreign representative of a government.

Britain and France are still represented at Vienna by ministers, but presumably will follow suit.

Church In Van In Promoting World Peace

"Peace" was the theme of the address given by the Rev. W. J. Gilling of St. Luke's Anglican Church Saturday night at the Elizabeth Smellie Branch 452 Canadian Legion remembrance dinner.

The dinner was held in the green room of the YWCA.

Mr. Gilling said that an accusation had been made by the red front world peace council that the church had lost its initiative for peace to Communism.

He answered this accusation by outlining the efforts of the church for peace since before The First World War until the present time. This included Lambeth conferences of the World Council of Churches and the encyclicals issued by the Pope.

Mr. Gilling concluded with the statement that there will be peace in world only when people find peace in themselves.

The speaker, who is the padre for branches 452 and 52 of the Canadian Legion, was introduced by Comrade Grace Simpson.

Chairman at the dinner was Comrade Irma Allen, president of the branch. Miss Allen stressed service through self in her remarks. She explained that the men who had served in the two world wars had set the example of this service in their daily life. She asked that their sacrifices not be made in vain.

P. J. Burke, president of branch 52 thanked the members of branch 452 for their co-operation and commended them on their activities.

Special music for the dinner was provided by Miss Joan Wilson, Whitby vocalist,, who sang "Come to the Fair" and "Angus McDonald." She was accompanied by Miss Eileen Jackson, Pickering.

During the dinner, two minutes silence was followed by the singing of The Lord's Prayer by Miss Wilson.

This was the first time that branch 452 had held a separate remembrance dinner and it was decided to make it an annual event.

Canadians Across Canada Pay Tribute To War Dead

By The Canadian Press

Canadians from British Columbia to Newfoundland, and even on the high seas, joined Sunday in paying tribute to Canada's war dead.

Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh placed a wreath on the war memorial in St. John's, Nfld., as their tour drew to a close. The Governor-General, Viscount Alexander, took part in a service at the national war memorial in Ottawa. And aboard the liner Canberra, 500 Canadian soldiers of the 27th brigade observed a two-minute silence.

A cold wind laced with snow-flurries swept round 10,000 persons who watched Viscount Alexander place a wreath at the base of the national war memorial in the capital's Confederation Square.

A second wreath was placed by Mrs. E. C. Rochon of Ottawa, mother of Maj. Robert (Spike) Rochon, a company commander in the Chaudiere Regiment, killed in action in Germany after winning the Military Cross. Her youngest son, 23-year-old Sergeant Pierre, is in Korea with the Royal 22nd Regiment.

Sees No Relief

At Windsor, on the eve of Remembrance Day, Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, Canada's chief of staff, told Canadian Legion members he feels there is no prospect of permanent agreement between the democracies and the Communist world. The present cold war could last 40 to 50 years.

In Vancouver, Lieut. Alfred S. Wagstaff, 29, first member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry wounded in Korea, placed the main Remembrance Day wreath on the cenotaph.

A memorial to the officers and airmen who trained at Camp Borden, during two world wars and to those who gave their lives in defence of Canada was dedicated at the RCAF station, birthplace of this country's air force in 1917.

New Brunswick declared Monday a public holiday for Remembrance Day observance.

In Halifax Lieutenant-Governor J. A. D. McCurdy of Nova Scotia took the salute of marching veterans.

Mother-In-Law Factor

BELGRADE. — (Reuters) — A Hungarian farmer, Miklos Milnar, fled to Yugoslavia with his family because, he said, he was victimized in Hungary through having a Yugoslav mother-in-law.

BULLETS FLYING AROUND THEM—A rifleman and a Bren gunner head for the reverse slope safety of a friendly ridge while another soldier of a Royal 22nd Regiment section crouches low. As this dramatic scene was being recorded on film in Korean combat, the area was literally alive with flying bullets.

Arrives In City Broke But Finds He's Heir

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12 (CP)—John Seeley, 58-year-old camp cook, arrived here Friday broke, but he wasn't worried.

He is one of the heirs to the estate of his brother, Earl Seeley, who died Sept. 28 in Iroquois, Ont.

John Seeley reported to police after reading a missing persons advertisement in a Vancouver newspaper. It told him that his sister, Mrs. Hilda Jennings, of Niagara Falls, Ont., sought him and his brother Eric.

Seeley doesn't know how much will be shared but recalled that "my brother had a lot of mining claims around Timmins, and was well fixed."

Police are trying to locate Eric, believed working at a Vancouver Island lumber camp.

Council Backs Board Of Trade

MILLBROOK, Nov. 12—(ENS)—Because of unsatisfactory shipping conditions in and out of Millbrook, villagers have formed a Board of Trade and Transportation.

Two members of Millbrook council form a part of the organizaztion, and other members are village businessmen. Council representatives are the reeve, Dr. J. H. Wright, and councillor Weldon Coulter.

I. L. H. Gray and Alex Gilbert were present at the last council meeting and suggested organization of the board. Council gave its full approval.

The treasurer and tax collector reported taxes collected so far: current year, $14,000.21, arrears, $2,799.38, penalty and interest, $99.22, taxes still outstanding, $1,817.22.

Accounts totalling $1,437.18 were ordered paid. Larger items were $621.10 for gravel, $110.10 to the Millbrook hydro company, and $100 as assesor's salary for 1951.

2 Cows Airborne

BRISBANE, Australia, Nov. 12—(Reuters)—Two cows Sunday were swept up into the air by a tornado which struck the small town of Kenmore, 10 miles from here. One of them sailed along for 50 yards before being dropped unharmed into a gully. The other turned up on the farm 8½ hours later. The only visible signs that she had been airborne were a few cuts and scratches.

Club Hears About Air Defence

Twenty-six members and guests attended the Friday Night Club meeting in the YMCA. During supper Bill Davis acted as master-at-arms.

The chairman announced that the next meeting would be devoted to the initiation of new members, induction of present members, and the installation of officers. Five new members were admitted to the club.

Remembrance of those who gave their lives in the World War was observed by two minutes silence after which Bob Oliver sang the hymn, "Abide With Me".

Joe Whetung introduced the guest speaker, Lt-Col. M. E. Clarke, commanding officer of the 50th HAA Regiment. The subject of his speech was "Air Defence of Canada".

Lt.-Col. Clarke explained that radar stations are established at various places across the continent to detect the approach of enemy planes. In case of an air attack, warning would be sent from these stations to the nearest air force headquarters, to civilian defence headquarters and to anti-aircraft operations rooms. The anti-aircraft rooms would then give instructions to the gun sites in the area under attack.

The gun sites would also use radar equipment in order to aim the guns accurately. Either light or heavy ack-ack guns would be used, depending largely on the altitude of the target. Guided misisles might also be used in the counter attack. Lt.-Col. Clarke concluded by pointing out that young men could contribute to the defence of the country by joining the reserve force to train for such an emergency. He stated that the army needs young men and that it can do a lot for them.

The speaker was thanked by Bob Jamison.

Jane Wyman Displays Her Versatility

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12 (AP)—Jane Wyman, currently starring in two hit movies—one a farce and the other a weeping drama—has further shown her versatility by becoming a singing star on records.

Jane has been called back for a repeat picture with Bing Crosby. Attempting to learn some secrets for her success, I asked:

"Could it be that long apprenticeship you served at Warners?"

"What else?" she replied. "That sort of thing pays off, you know. Why, do you realize, that since Bette Davis left the lot, I am the oldest gal left there? I started there in 1935."

Tried Them All

In those days Jane did everything, from musicals to westerns.

"Man, those old pictures were something! I was laughing the other day about something that happened in a picture with Frank McHugh . . . I had a scene in which I was supposed to run through the room. Those pictures couldn't even afford rugs; they just painted the floor to look like rugs. Well, I came running in, slipped and slid the length of the room."

"Famous"

Her current film is reminiscent of her earlier days, since she plays a musical star and displays her legs in a modified strip tease.

Jane's new career as a recording artist happened by accident. "It was Bing's doing," she explained. "He asked me if I wanted to come over to Decca and cut a disc of 'In the Cool, Cool, Cool of the Evening.' I said, 'Are you kidding.' But he wasn't and so we did the thing together."

One record led to another, and now she's being hailed as a "Dinah Shore of tomorrow."

"Well, let's say 'the Dinah Shore of the day before yesterday,'" she corrected.

Criticizes Censorship

CHATHAM, Nov. 12 (CP)—E. C. Phelan, news editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said Saturday in an address to the Kent Press Club that newspapermen must constantly be vigilant against all forms of censorship. He singled out closed meetings of school boards and off-the-blotter handling of police events as examples of local level blackouts on news coverage. "The need for such censorship is false and newspapermen by one method or another must stamp it out."

Change To Buses

SASKATOON, Nov. 12 (CP) — After 39 years and 35,000,000 miles, Saskatoon's street-car era ended Sunday as the city's transit system switched to 30 trolly coaches and 14 motor buses. They will cost about $1,750,000.

28 Die In Bus

GUAYQUIL, Ecuador, Nov. 12 (AP) — Twenty-eight persons were killed and 23 injured Sunday when a passenger bus plunged off the road and fell into a 30-foot ravine near Alausi, about 100 miles east of here.

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (CP)—Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, Saturday night announced receipt of a gift of $500,000 for a new library from Dr. Sigmund Samuel, president of a Toronto sheet metal firm. It will cost $2,000,000.

Frenzied Armament Boom Under Way Along Rhine

By DANIEL DE LUCE

KAISERSLAUTERN, Germany, Nov. 12—(AP)—A frenzied armament boom in under way in a once sleepy, pastoral region of Germany on the west bank of the Rhine.

A multi-million dollar defence program is going full speed ahead in this strategic area, which straddles old invasion routes to Lorraine and Luxembourg.

Here, in a triangle roughly marked by the bomb-scarred cities of Kaiserslautern, Mainz, and Trier, Gen. Eizenhower's Atlantic command is toughening its protective grip on Western Europe.

More than 300,000 new United States troops have poured in here in the last few months. Hundreds of US tanks have arrived.

They have come into what is still the French occupation zone. But under cold-war pressure, the allies have agreed to disregard zonal barriers for the sake of military effectiveness.

Secure Control

This new base west of the Rhine, if Eisenhower's calculations prove right, will secure allied control over the middle stretches of that vital river in case of a sudden Russian onslaught.

It can also function as the springboard for a quick, powerful counter-attack.

In manoeuvres by more than 300,000 allied soldiers in Germany this year, Eisenhower's field commanders stressed two tactical points: roll with the Red army's first punch, but keep your armored fist cocked to strike back at once.

Until recently, this area was dormant. Controlled by France since the war, its economy lagged far behind the bustling recovery which the US and Britain promoted elsewhere in West Germany.

Now the countryside echoes to the roar of bulldozers, steam shovels and heavy trucks. New military installations dot the region.

German contractors who helped build Hitler's west wall (known to allied songsmiths as the Siegfried line) are back on the job. They are rushing to completion new barracks, depots, warehouses, air fields and strategic roads.

"West wall fever" is the name Germans give the startling boom.

It has attracted thousands of skilled and unskilled workers.

Hotels and boarding houses are jampacked. Private householders gouge itinerant workers with sky-high prices for a room. Many have to sleep in tents.

Head Of Order Dies In Hospital

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Nov. 12 —AP)—The 71-year-old world head of the Roman Catholic order of Brothers of the Poor of St. Francis died Saturday following a severe beating by two thugs in near-by Hoboken.

Brother General Selisius Klein, whose headquarters were in Aachen, Germany, died at St. Francis Hospital of injuries suffered Thursday afternoon.

Brother Selisius was robbed of $90 and a holy medal while strolling in Church Square Park, Hoboken. He had been visiting the United States and was waiting return passage to Germany.

Brother Selisius had been head of the order for 18 years. He fled Germany during the Nazi regime, and lived in Holland until the Nazis invaded the country. Then he went to Brazil, where he remained until 1949, when he returned to Germany.

Police have not yet arrested the thugs.

Swimming Lessons Save Girl In Well

BRADFORD, Nov. 12—(CP)—Swimming lessons taken last summer probably saved the life of Harriet Sargeant, 12, Sunday, when she fell into an abandonded well in the garden of her home.

She managed to stay afloat in water 21 feet deep and grasp a water pipe until her father, Leslie Sargeant, and a neighbor, the Rev. C. E. McClarron, a Presbyterian minister, pulled her out.

Three In Family Die In Accident

GLENCOE, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP) —A Windsor man, his wife and seven-year-old daughter were killed instantly Sunday when their automobile careened off No. 2 Highway, overturned and slammed against a telephone pole.

Dead are John Frena, 48, the driver, his wife, Anne, 46, and daughter Anne, seven.

Only surviving member of the family is 19-year-old son John, who drove from Windsor to identify the bodies.

Police said the Frena car had been westbound when for some reason it swerved out of control on to the soft earth shoulder of the road.

The car tipped on its side and crashed against the telephone pole, snapping the pole in two. Impact drove the roof of the car down on the steering wheel and front seat.

Egypt Seething With Unrest

Fear Demonstration May Set Off Explosion In Stormy Crisis

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 13. (AP)—An estimated 100,000 Egyptians paraded today, under government orders to keep silent but carrying anti-British slogans, in celebration of the 31st anniversary of Egypt's bid for independence from Britain. Government, religious and labor leaders were among those heading the parade, which passed through streets thronged with specators and guarded by heavy detachments of police.

The nervous Egyptian government had relaxed its ban on demonstrations to permit the parade today. Another was sanctioned in Cairo Wednesday as a giant mourning demonstration for Egyptians killed in the last month of strife with the British over the Suez Canal zone. Women and young girls, members of the Bint El Nil Feminist Organization seeking women's right in this Moslem country—formed one part of the giant parade.

Large police units were stationed all along the three-mile parade route from downtown Alexandria to King Farouk's Ras El Tin summer palace. Demonstrations had been banned since violence was touched off a month ago by Britain's refusal to get out of the canal zone and the Sudan.

Ready For Trouble

(Reuters News Agency said British forces had warned several ships in the Mediterranean to stand by in case of trouble. One hundred sailors were on the alert on the cruiser Gambia off Port Said, and about 4,000 infantrymen of the 3rd Infantry Division were at the ready in Cyprus. Prime Minister Nahas El Pasha in Cairo launched the huge demonstration in a speech condemning the proposed Middle-East defence pact as "worse than colonization," Reuters said.)

Western observers looked on the government's authorization of the demonstrations as a calculated risk in view of the highly-explosive atmosphere. They believed the government hesitated to ban the parade for fear of violent popular reaction.

Soviet Union Rebuffed By UN Voting

Russia Loses Out On Three Issues In General Assembly

PARIS, Nov. 13. (AP)—The Soviet Union today ran into a series of rebuffs in the United Nations general assembly. The assembly refused to consider giving China's seat to the Peiping Communists, agreed to take up a Western plan designed as a first step in reuniting Germany, and decided to consider a Yugoslav complaint of hostile Soviet actions.

The vote against considering the Chinese representation question was 37 to 11, with four abstaining. It followed a sharp clash between Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, and Foreign Minister Vishinsky of Russia.

Acheson told the 60-state assembly "our minds revolt" at the thought of giving China's seat to a regime "now engaged in killing the countrymen of at least a score of the nations seated here."

He said the Chinese Communist government was "under indictment" as an aggressor in Korea and urged the delegates to vote postponement of the question for this session to "enable us to go on with our business without further obstruction."

Vishinsky Opens Fire

Vishinsky who spoke first, insisted that the Nationalist Chinese had no right to represent China and, moreover, the assembly had no right to decide not to discuss the issue this year.

The assembly, moving for adoption of its agenda, also:

1. Agreed, without dissent, to consider diverse disarmament plans presented by the western big three and the Soviet union. The western plan includes a census of atomic weapons under UN supervision. The Russian plan calls for a disarmament conference outside the United Nations.
2. Defeated a Russian attempt to force off the agenda a long-standing charge by Nationalist China that the Soviet Union is guilty of aggression in China.

The vote on the German question was 47 to 6 with two abstentions. The assembly rejected the contention of Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, that the German problem was none of the assembly's business.

Bitter Attack

Soviet delegate A. A. Sobiev made a bitter attack on the Yugoslav item, but was voted down, 44 to 5, the Soviet bloc voting in opposition and four members abstaining.

Sobolev charged Yugoslavia had "sold out to the American capitalists and imperialists."

Assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico interrupted and urged the Soviet delegate to stick to the procedural issue: whether the Yugoslav accusation should go on the agenda. He asked Sobolev to avoid "qualifying adjectives and immoderate language."

A Sad Plight

TOLEDO, Ont., Nov. 13. (CP)—Parents in this community 20 miles north of Brockville, who took their children out of school last Friday in protest of allegedly unsanitary conditions in the building, told a special school board meeting Monday night that the children will be kept away until the situation is corrected. The board was told that every child in Toledo, which has some 200 residents, is infected with lice.

Canada To Try For New UK Food Pacts

OTTAWA, Nov. 13 (CP—The possibility arose today of fresh Anglo-Canadian negotiations for the sale of Canadian farm products to the food-short United Kingdom.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner indicated this in the Commons Monday night when he disclosed that he plans to discuss food sales with officials of the United Kingdom and other countries at an international agricultural gathering in Rome.

He plans to leave for Rome Monday next and return about Nov. 29, stopping off in London on the way back.

Mr. Gardiner, speaking in the Throne Speech debate, made it clear the change of government in the UK had influenced him to attend the Rome gathering, the annual meeting of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization. He understood the new British ministers of food and agriculture would be there and he felt it would be well to meet them.

Only Few Contracts

Canada now has only a few food agreements with Britain, compared with the big contracts of the war and early post-war years. Present sales cover cheese, wheat and apples. There are none for pork, beef, eggs and poultry, all major commodities in the contracts of a few years ago.

Mr. Gardiner made his announcement in response to a suggestion by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, the Canadian farmers be told how the British austerity program, with its possible reduction in purchases from Canada, might affect production plans.

The Progressive Conservative leader also urged the government to call a conference of prairie farm leaders, including the western ministers of agriculture, to consider what should be done to help western producers. They faced "very real disaster" because of the slow movement of grain.

Mr. Gardiner said that problem will be discussed when he attends a meeting of western wheat pools in Regina this Friday. It also will come before the annual Federal-Provincial Conference here early in December.

Hinting at some federal assistance for the west, he said the government is considering western crop conditions, though he could not say just now what might be done.

Plan Talks During Stay In Capital

Demands For NATO Likely Topic With Prime Minister

OTTAWA, Nov. 13. (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill will visit Ottawa for two or three days after his talks with President Truman in Washington early in January, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today.

In a brief announcement, Mr. St. Laurent said Mr. Churchill had "accepted an invitation from the government of Canada to visit Canada when he is on this side of the Atlantic in January. Mr. Churchill hopes to spend two or three days in Ottawa after his visit to the United States."

The length of the Prime Minister's stay in North America is still to be announced. So far it is known only that he will leave Britain in the first days of January.

May Address Congress

Authoritative quarters here could not say tonight whether Churchill will address a joint session of Congress during his Washington visit. They merely commented he would naturally be anxious to meet any wishes which Congress might express.

Churchill's visit to Ottawa will give him an opportunity to discuss with Prime Minister St. Laurent a wide range of subjects of common interest to Britain and Canada.

These include the responsibilities of both countries under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Many of the problems to be discussed by Churchill and Truman at Washington — including the British economic crisis—may also have an important bearing upon the subsequent Ottawa talks.

2 Flyers Collide 20 Passengers Die In US Wreck

EVANSTON, Wyo., Nov. 13. (AP)—Searchers today removed two bodies from the shredded steel of two wrecked streamlined passenger trains then dug for three more seen in the debris. There was no change in the death toll, known to be at least 20. Two persons still were missing but their bodies may be among the three sighted in the wreckage. The Union Pacific's streamlined City of San Francisco crashed into the rear of the halted City of Los Angeles three miles west of thi ssouthwestern Wyoming city Monday.

Eight persons remained in serious condition in Uinta County Memorial hospital here. Thirteen more remained in a makeshift hospital ward in the American Legion hall. Attendants said all 13 likely will be able to continue on their way today.

Fifteen bodies were at the improvised morgue at the city hall. All have been identified. None is Canadian.

The impact crumpled portions of the two trains into what looked like a huge tomato can squashed almost flat, with bodies and parts of bodies just "lying around."

The San Francisco was thundering across the snowswept desert about three miles west of this small southwest Wyoming town, 80 miles northeast of Salt Lake City. It plowed its way through a storm which already had dumped eight inches of snow on the ground. Ten minutes ahead ran the City of Los Angeles. Both were behind schedule.

Hits Last Car

Then the Los Angeles halted on the line for a block signal. At 11:32 am MST the San Francisco hit the last car of the Los Angeles with a thunderous rending of metal. The three-unit Diesel power plant of the second train went through the last car like a plowshare and crushed four other cars. All cars of the second train leaped off the tracks but remained upright.

Thomas E. Sharp, radio station owner from San Diego was sitting in a compartment of the City of San Francisco drinking coffee.

"The coffee flew out of my hand and the conductor flew into the room," Sharp reported.

Alex Henetz of Cheyenne, Wyo., said he rushed outside and helped a woman from the top of the shattered wreckage. "How she was thrown out I'll never know," he said.

The snow let up as rescue operations began. It was a foot deep near the wreck.

Violence Flares On Philippine Election Day

MANILA, Nov. 13 (AP).—Nine Filipinos were killed today in flaring election-day violence.

A total of 104 have been killed since mid-September, when campaigning started for the election of nine Senators, all provincial governors and municipal officials.

More than 66,000 army regulars and reserves joined police in guarding against attempts by Communist-led Huk rebels to keep voters from the polls. Clashes between troops and Huks broke out in widely-scattered spots on Luzon, main island of the Philippines.

Rivalry between candidates and political factions contributed to the gunplay.

Heavy Balloting

Heavy balloting was reported in Manila, which is electing its mayor for the first time. Heretofore Manila's mayor has been appointed.

Few reports were received from other islands. Only scattered returns were expected before midnight.

Dr. Jose P. Laurel, puppet president during the Japanese occupation, was generally conceded election to the Senate. Laurel is leader of the anti-administration Nacionalista party. He charged the administration of President Elpidio Quirino, who defeated him in the 1949 presidential election, is wasteful and corrupt.

Huk raids delayed balloting by the 4,600,000 registered voters at spots. The Huks had warned voters to stay away from the polls or face death.

In Laguna province raiding Huks burned three bridges near Calamba. An army patrol caught a Huk band attempting to block a highway at another point in the province. The army said two Huks were killed.

Refuse Request For Dismissal In Ayrhart Case

A request for a dismissal by E. A. Richardson, defending Ernest Ayrhart, Mayor of Campbellford on a charge of dangerous driving was refused by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court just after noon today.

After the crown had presented its case in the charge which was laid against Ayrhart following an accident July 14 in which John Meincinger, 20, Indian River, was killed. Mr. Richardson said the defence had "no evidence to submit."

The accident occurred one mile north of Norwood at the boundary road of Dummer and Asphodel townships and the county road. The Ayrhart car was travelling east on the county road. The Meincinger truck was going north on the boundary road between the two townships. The two vehicles collided in the centre of the intersection. Meincinger was fatally injured in the crash.

Today, Arthur Andrews, RR 1 Norwood testified that the "yellow car" involved in the accident passed a car in which he was riding about 500 yards west of the scene of the crash at a speed of between "60 and 65 miles per hour."

Stresses Speed

Another witness, Ross E. Legge also of RR 1 Norwood who lives near the crash, testified that he saw Meincinger's truck coming

Churchill Government Wins First Test On Steel Vote

LONDON, Nov. 13. (AP)—The House of Commons Monday night gave Winston Churchill's new Conservative regime its first vote of confidence, beating down by a 39-vote margin a Labor atempt to halt repeal of steel nationalization. The House, voting 320 to 281, rejected an opposition amendment regretting that the speech from the throne opening parliament had promised an end to government ownership of the steel industry, which the previous Labor-controlled house had voted.

The throne speech is written by the cabinet in power and outlines its program. Return of steel to private enterprise was a major pledge of the Conservatives in the Oct. 25 general election.

The Tory regime disclosed during Monday's debate that it plans to introduce by Feb. 1 a bill denationalizing steel. The former supply minister, George Strauss, said Labor will fight the bill at every stage. If the Conservatives do take the industry out from under government control, "we shall seek to restore it at the earliest possible moment," Strauss added.

Approval of the Labor amendment would have forced the resignation of Churchill's government which took office Oct. 26.

Larger Than Expected

The Conservative's 39-vote margin was larger than had been expected, since the government has an over-all majority of only 16 voting members of the full house. Churchill received the promised support of the six Liberal party MP's, however, and several Labor members were absent.

The defeated amendment also deplored the Conservatives' announced intention of removing certain restrictions from the nationalized trucking industry.

The Labor government nationalized Britain's steel industry last February after a long fight in Commons. Although ownership of the companies has been vested in the government, little has been done to bring the industry under actual state control.

UN Troops Halt Red Attacks

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Nov. 13 (AP)—United Nations' troops today stopped a series of co-ordinated Communist attacks along the muddy east coast of Korea.

The Reds attacked along a three-mile front in the Kosong sector. The attacks began before midnight. Shouting Reds kept coming through the darkness until 5 am. By 7 am, the Eighth Army said, the last Communist soldier had been driven back.

The Kosong sector is 45 miles north of the 38th parallel, and the northernmost point of the front.

It was the only action aside from patrol clashes, reported in the evening communique.

Sixty miles northwest of Kosong, UN warships carried their siege of Wonsan into the 271st day. Destroyer guns set a big Wonsan supply dump aflame on Monday.

Skies cleared Tuesday and US Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers cut North Korean rail lines in more than 100 places.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, US Air Forces chief of staff who left Tokyo for Washington Tuesday, said allied planes have done such a thorough job there isn't a single target left worthy of attack by a mass flight of B-29s.

Suggest Canada Bargain More

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (CP).—The Canadian Exporters' Association today passed a resolution recommending that Canada use her position "as a supplier of essential and scarce materials and products" to bargain for the sale of other of her products.

Members also recommended that the government enter into negotiations with the governments of other Dominions "to the end that two-way trade within the Commonwealth may be restored and increased and that consideration be given to establishment of a Dominions dollar-sterling trade board to explore all means by which the sister Dominions might increase their exports to Canada and in turn, our exports to them."

Two Youths Dodge Police Fire, Escape

OAKVILLE, Nov. 13 (CP) — Two youths escaped early today though police fired at them as they ran across fields from a car reported stolen in Hamilton.

Police picked up the trail of the car when it roared through here at 2 am. It failed to take a turn just west of here and crashed into a telephone pole. The youths fled.

Rifle Change To Be Delayed

LONDON, Nov. 13 —(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill hinted today he will pigeonhole plans by the British army to adopt a .280-calibre rifle as its standard infantry weapon.

The United States has sought to persuade Britain that it would be better to standardize on a .30-calibre gun such as the American army uses. This would permit each country to produce ammunition readily for the others. The US rifle is the .30 calibre Garand.

Present standard British army rifle is the bolt action .303-calibre Lee Enfield.

Churchill told the House of Commons today he would give a full statement of his views on the new .280 rifle — "a matter on which I hold very strong convictions"—before the House begins its Christmas recess Dec. 7.

Racing Against Time To Meet Deadline

GREENOCK, Scotland, Nov. 13 — (CP) — The aircraft carrier Magnificent arrived from Canada today with men and planes to staff the Dominion's newest air base.

Aboard the Canadian carrier were Sabre jet fighters and officers and men of the RCAF's No. 410 (Cougar) Squadron, heading for new quarters at North Luffenham, Rutland.

The Magnificent is to dock at Glasgow Wednesday and then will start a race against time. The planes, and the men who fly them, are supposed to be in North Luffenham by noon Thursday to take part in a ceremonial fly-past marking the transfer of the station to the RCAF.

The planes will be taken off by crane, rushed to an airport just outside Glasgow and flown to North Luffenham, formerly an RAF base.

In London, a Canadian military spokesman said it seems impossible that the planes will reach their destination by Thursday—"but then impossible is a word the armed forces don't recognize."

Finland Reduces Taxes To Bring Halt To Inflation

HELSINKI, Nov. 13—(Reuters)—Finland's coalition government is trying a cure for inflation which usually leads to bankruptcy.

But many neutral observers here believe the unorthodox medicine will work.

The cost-of-living index is more than 10 times as high as before the Second World War. Instead of increasing taxes to mop up surplus money chasing too few goods—as other countries have done—Finland is reducing them.

Instead of increasing food subsidies to keep prices down, the Finns are abolishing the subsidies, confident that food will nevertheless become no more expensive.

Whereas other inflation-stricken countries increase the bank rate to encourage saving and check spending, the Finns have lowered theirs.

The experiment is officially described as the stabilization plan.

An economic truce was declared last May to allow the Agrarian-Social Democrat coalition government and the labor organizations to draw up the stabilization plan.

Its great advantage is that it stops with a jerk the mad race of rising wages chasing rising prices.

Starting this month, wages are tied to a new cost-of-living index so that they go up only as prices rise. Wages paid during the economic truce are considered as basic. The basic cost-of-living figure is calculated from current prices.

The People's Democrats, a merger of Communists and left-wing Socialists, attack the plan as a swindle. They argue that current prices are higher than those pertaining during the truce, and that the workers therefore have actually received a cut in their real wages.

To compensate for this, the government has reduced taxes and lowered the maximum prices which dealers may charge for some goods such as clothing, fuel, rubber and cattle fodder.

Rents have been frozen and children's allowances increased.

Bolton Youth Wins 4 Awards

TORONTO, Nov. 13 —(CP)—Bertram Stewart, 19, of Bolton, won four awards in judging competitions for contestants under 26 at the Royal Winter Fair today.

He was a member of the Peel County team which won the Jeffrey Bull Memorial Trophy. The team had the highest standing in heavy horse, beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and swine judging with a score of 2,603 in a possible 3,000. Other members of the team were Ralph Dunton of Brampton and Hilliard Stewart of Bolton.

Stewart also took first prize for individual judging with a score of 987 in a possible 1,000. His individual score earned him the F. K. Morrow scholarship.

The Robert Graham Memorial Trophy for highest marks in judging two classes of heavy horses and two classes of light horses was won by Herb Norry of the Ontario Agriculture College at Guelph. He had a score of 355 in a possible 400.

Security Violation Charged By Reds

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 13 — (AP)—An Allied spokesman said Communist truce negotiations "made it even more clear today" that they want to create a buffer zone across Korea to end the shooting now.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols said this "repudiates their earlier statement" that fighting would not end until an armistice is signed. The United Nations' command wants to create a cease-fire buffer zone only after other terms of an armistice are agreed upon.

The Reds outlined their position in a five-hour session at Panmunjom while Allied artillery shells burst on hills less than two miles away. The white phosphorus and high-explosive shells bracketed the town.

Another UN spokesman said the Reds complained an Allied plane violated the Panmunjom neutral area Saturday. He conceded there was some truth in the complaint.

Lt.- Col. Norman B. Edwards, Allied liaison officer, said a propeller-driven plane flew over the edge of the 1,000-yard security area surrounding the village, but turned away immediately.

First Planes Ready For US

TORONTO, Nov. 13 — (CP).—Production Minister Howe today turned over to the United States the first of three of 109 Beaver aircraft ordered by the US Air Force. He announced that a bigger and better plane is in the making.

In a ceremony at the De Havilland aircraft plant, where the Beaver is under production, Mr. Howe said the success of the utility aircraft has set the government, in co-operation with De Havilland, to work "on a bigger and better plane of similar design."

"The prototype of this new King Beaver is nearing completion," he said in a speech prepared for delivery at the plant.

He praised the talents and the ability of Canada's aircraft designers and builders and observed that both the Beaver and the CF-10 jet fighter "are the result of aeronautical experience and background not generally appreciated outside Canada."

But he noted, too, that the US is considering making greater use of Canada's aircraft-building talents. The US order for 109 Beavers soon will be doubled and increased again beyond that.

Imperials Will Play At Hamilton Or Ottawa

SARNIA, Nov. 13 (CP)—Sarnia Imperials have agreed to play the Eastern Canada football final in either Hamilton or Ottawa Nov. 21.

Red Douglas, coach of Imperials who meet either Hamilton Tiger-cats or Ottawa Rough Riders in the playoff, said today his club has agreed to play in a Big Four park away from home, although this is the ORFU's year to have the choice of a home game.

"Money talks," said Douglas. He said 3,000 spectators were at last Saturday's Sarnia game but only 1,800 paid.

"I guess our fence is too low."

Italy's Devastating Storms Near End, Leave 148 Dead

ROME, Nov. 13 — (Reuters).—Devastating storms which have killed 148 persons in the last month today showed signs of reaching an end.

Unparalleled in recent Italian history, the storms and floods spread from the south to cover the entire country. In the last week, 50 were killed in Northern Italy.

In the north's industrial Po Valley, floods still cover large areas and threaten to invade the twin cities of Piacenzo and Cremona.

The Po River burst its banks at Pavia, near Milan, Monday night, killing three and burying almost 1,000 acres of cultivated land.

The government was expected to set aside a $40,000,000 relief fund to get the stricken areas throughout Italy and Sardinia back on their feet.

A married couple were killed near the east coast Monday night when a howling gale sent the bell tower of a church crashing through the roof of a house.

Seven persons were missing after their truck was swept away by flood currents near Pavia.

A landslide near Domodossola on the Swiss border blocked the international Simplon railroad and main road. Other landslides cut the international route from Como to Chiasso.

In neighboring Switzerland, flood waters from Lake Maggiore were reported rising today, with parts of Locarno under more than six feet of water.

In nearby Lugano, flood waters from Lake Lugano were three feet deep in the city's centre.

Hunters Get Rude Awakening

COPPER CLIFF, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—Walter Rutherbird of Canton, O., met a buck deer head-on in the bush 15 miles west of here. He grabbed his rifle and fired.

"It staggered, then lowered its head and charged me," he said today. "One antler scraped my side . . . the animal plowed right on through my tent and carried it about 30 feet into the bush."

In the tent, in sleeping bags, were Rutherbird's hunting companions, Clayton Harrow and William Sand, both of Canton.

Said Harrow: "Walter's shot wakened us. He heard him shout and then a hurricane hit the tent."

When the tent snagged in a tree, the buck tripped, shook himself clear and crashed away into the bush.

Spend $162,000,000 For Children's Care

PARIS, Nov. 13 —(AP)—The United Nations Emergency Fund for children's care is down now to less than $30,000 after four years' expenditure of budgets totalling $162,000,000.

Maurice Pate, executive director of the UN International Children's Emergency Fund, said the US congress is expected to complete approval of a contribution of $12,000,000 next year to help replenish the fund, but it will still be far short of its $30,000,000 yearly target budget.

The fund's executive board has just finished allocating $10,000,000 including an emergency $524,000 for aiding Arab refugee children and mothers in the Middle East, $715,000 for Korean children's aid, and the remainder for long-range health and welfare programs in 24 countries.

Mrs. O. B. Sinclair of Ottawa has been re-elected chairman of the board.

17,000 Entries Listed At Winter Fair

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (CP)—The Royal Agricultural Winter Fair opens today and from now until Nov. 21 blue ribbon livestock and top-grade farm produce will hold the spotlight.

Farmers, stock breeders and agricultural experts from many parts of Canada and from neighboring sections of the United States will throng the Coliseum on the exhibition grounds on Toronto's western waterfront. Mingling with the throngs will be hundreds of city folk, many of whom grew up on farms.

For the top-hat crowd and for the ordinary lover of good horseflesh, the horse shows will be staged in their usual magnificence, with afternoon and evening performances most days.

Other attractions include a flower show, a display of tropical fish, exhibits of latest-type farm machinery, a cat show and various special displays.

17,000 Entries

On the eve of the opening, officials announced that some 3,000 exhibitors had sent 17,000 entries altogether to compete for upwards of $142,000 in prize money.

Production Minister Howe will address more than 1,000 persons tonight at the annual dinner and later in the evening will formally open the fair.

As in past years, crack teams of international horsemen will provide much of the horse show color. The feature this year will be the Cadre Noir, all-officer cavalry unit from the French Military Academy at Saumur with a history dating from the days of Louis XI.

60 PC Of World Lacks Food FAO Meet Told

ROME, Nov. 13 (AP). — The Food and Agricultural Organization of the UN reported Monday that three-fifths of the world has insufficient nutrition and food supplies per person have dropped four per cent below prewar level.

This summary of world food situation was placed before the 18-nation guiding council of FAO at its opening session. The council put the report onto the agenda of the sixth world conference of the 66 members here for Nov. 19 to Dec. 7. The food report said.

"Aggregate production of principal food crops in all countries was nine per cent above prewar. However since 1936 the world population has increased by 13 per cent. Therefore, supplies per capita in 1950-51 were still four per cent below prewar levels which were themselves insufficient.

"Nutritional levels were still very far from satisfactory in vast regions of the world, such as the Far East, Near East and Africa, containing three-fifths of the world's peoples. . . .

Not Much Improvement

"While total food output in 1951-52 is expected to expand, the prospect for supplies in many deficit areas shows no improvement."

The report said the world shipping shortage, together with increased freight rates, has handicapped world exchange of food and agricultural products.

The report was a last-minute addition to the agenda for action by the world FAO conference. Another addition to the agenda was a report calling for FAO action to help relieve the increasing world shortage of wood pulp for newsprint manufacture.

On the agenda are plans for further land reform in European countries, new measures for locust control in the Middle East, Africa and Central America, establishing a South American fisheries centre, and the admission to FAO of Argentina, Japan, Nepal and Laos.

Bevan Cohorts Reject Cabinet

LONDON, Nov. 13 — (CP) — Supporters of Aneurin Bevan—critics of Britain's heavy spending on arms—refused to let their names stand for election today to the Labor Party's "shadow cabinet."

Bevan is the leader of a left-wing rebel Labor group whose breach with Clement Attlee came to a head when Bevan quit as labor minister in the Socialist government earlier this year in protest against the scale of rearmament.

The "shadow cabinet" is a group of opposition members set up to plot strategy in debating Conservative government policies.

Dr. Edith Summerskill, former health minister, is the only woman in the "shadow cabinet", member of which qualify for front benches on the opposition side of the Commons.

The other members are headed by Attlee and Herbert Morrison, leader and deputy leader of the opposition and include:

Hugh Dalton, former minister of local government and planning; Chuter Ede, former home secretary; James Griffiths, former colonial secretary; Philip Noel-Baker, former minister of fuel and power; Hugh Gaitskell, former chancellor of the exchequer; Alfred Robens, former minister of labor; Glenvil Hall, chairman of the parliamentary labor party; Emanuel Shinwell, former defence minister; Richard Stokes, former supply minister; James Callaghan, former parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, and Anthony Greenwood.

Introduce Bill On War Pensions

OTTAWA, Nov. 13 — (CP).—Veterans Minister Lapointe today gave notice of a Bill to increase the rates of pension for war pensioners.

In a notice on the Commons Order Paper, he said that Wednesday he will move a resolution preliminary to a Bill increasing pensions for disability and death.

The resolution did not specify the amount of the increases, but it has been reported they will be at least 20 per cent for the 160,000 war disability pensioners and perhaps more than that for the 20,000 war widows drawing pension.

The maximum pensions now for ranks up to captain are $94 a month for single men and $125 for childless married couples. The children's rates scale down from $19 to $12 each. Widows get $75 a month plus double rates for dependent children.

The pensions now cost the Treasury about $100,000,000 a year.

The pension increases will not extend to war veterans' allowances. Mr. Lapointe told the Commons Monday that the government does not intend to bring up at this session the question of increasing war veterans' allowances.

Hospital Given Cobalt Bomb

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—About six more cobalt bombs will be constructed by Eldorado Mining and Refining next year for use in Canadian and American hospitals.

Production of the bombs—the latest weapon in the world's fight against cancer—will be speeded up. More are planned for 1953.

The first such bomb was officially turned over to the Ontario Cancer Foundation at Victoria Hospital here Monday. It was developed at the Canadian government atomic laboratories at Chalk River.

Basically, the cobalt bomb will be used for cancer treatment in the same manner as X-ray and radium. Its radiations, aimed at the root of the disease, will be used to destroy cancer cells. These cells are more sensitive to radiation and grow far more rapidly than healthy tissue, and hence, are the first to be destroyed.

The bomb itself is a small portion of the isotope cobalt 60 enclosed in a massive lead case. Cost of installation was $50,000. And X-ray installation to do comparable work would cost $120,000 to $150,000 while an equally effective amount of radium would cost many millions of dollars.

Construction of the radio-active unit was limited because Canada's atomic pile at Chalk River was the only one "at this side of the Iron Curtain" capable of producing radio-active cobalt, and only a few pieces of cobalt could be made radio-active each year.

Admiral Given Tough Assignment

NAPLES, Nov. 13 (AP) — A tough admiral is trying to build an international defence force in the vital Mediterranean amid political and military complexities.

Admiral Robert B. Carney of the United States, a veteran of the Pacific war, has started the job with a demand for full buildup of atomic weapons in this second European front.

He has surrounded himself with officers who look to the future when, they say, they will have Europe's biggest potential ground force, backed by heavy air and seapower.

At the moment Carney can count only upon the 70-ship United States sixth fleet for important offensive power. His command area is a jigsaw with obvious gaps of responsibility and authority.

He is charged with defending the western Mediterranean and Italy. At sea, his boundary runs from an eastern line slanting between Cape Madapan in southern Greece to the Tunis-Tripoli border in North Africa. On the west, the boundary is the Atlantic south of Spain.

Malta and Gibraltar are specifically excluded. No integrated blue-print has been evolved yet for international protection of the eastern Mediterranean where the Russians eye the Dardanelles.

Want Commission

The big-three plan, as explained by State Secretary Dean Acheson of the US and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, calls for the establishment of an impartial international commission to investigate whether conditions in both West Germany and Communist-ruled East Germany are suitable for holding elections.

Both Acheson and Eden said it is designed to lead to eventual unity of Germany, and was introduced at the request of the West German Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer.

"I beg to differ," Vishinsky said in a slashing attack on the plan. France, Britain and the United States want "first and foremost to perpetuate the dismemberment of Germany," he said.

Work In Snow

The snow began again at nightfall. Workmen rigged floodlights and continued work in sub-freezing temperatures.

Reports of the dead began coming out of Wyuta, the Wyoming-Utah border community which was the site of the wreck. Five were reported dead; then eight, then 12. All the dead were aboard the City of Los Angeles.

Two hours after the wreck, two Union Pacific freights collided north of Laramie Wyo. No reports of injuries were received.

A rush call went out to Evanston and Ogden for cutting torches to slice into the twisted metal and free the trapped injured, dead and dying. Later Diesel oil began to leak, and the torches had to be put out and the tedious hacking done with steel saws.

A large number of doctors was aboard the two trains, returning from a medical convention in San Francisco. They assisted local doctors. Dr. Anthony F. Ippolito, Chicago, prominent orthopedic surgeon, was killed in the wreck with his wife.

down the road which runs near his house, at an "excessive rate of speed." He said he heard a horn blow, then a thud and then hurried to the scene of the acident.

In submitting the crown's case, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said that whatever speed the truck was going at the time of the impact, Andrews had testified that the accused was "going 60 to 65 miles an hour just before the crash and was only out of sight for a few seconds. Mr. Bradshaw said that the evidence was such that the accused could not have braked to any appreciable extent, in that time.

Mr. Bradshaw maintained that the crux of the case was that the truck had the right-of-way.

Arguing that there was no evidence to substantiate the charge, Mr. Richardson asked for a dismissal. He discounted the evidence of Andrews as "no evidence at all."

Magistrate Philp said that from what Andrews saw plus the damage to the accused's car, and the speed of the truck, shouldn't any court find that the accused was going very fast.

Going 35 MPH

Testifying on his own behalf, Ayrhart swore he was only going about 35 miles an hour when he passed the car Andrews was riding in. He said he was only going about 20 miles an hour as he entered the intersection.

Under cross examination, Mr. Bradshaw claimed that if this was so, the speed of the truck (judging by the distance it covered) must have been going six times as fast.

Ayrhart replied it was going "four times as fast."

After hearing the evidence of William S. Edwards, a passenger in Ayrhart's car, Mr. Bradshaw asked for a recess before making his reply so another crown witness could be obtained.

TORONTO, Nov. 13—(CP)—The Ontario Property Owners Association Monday night called for legislation to allow government property to pay municipal taxes.

A resolution, one of several passed at the OPOA'S 15th annual conference, said: "Resolved that all exemptions from real property taxation enjoyed by the Crown, by Corporations directly or indirectly controlled by the Crown, or by any other institutions or organizations be abolished."

The property owners also called on the Provincial government to "relieve real property of the burden of payment for any part of the cost of education." They asked also for "progressive and rapid decontrol" of rents "to encourage private enterprise to supply the normal demand for rental housing."

Disarmament Proposal No Joke

There are two good and sufficient reasons for limiting armament. The first is that the present rate of re-armament is atrociously costly; hard on the taxpayers of Canada, for instance, and crippling to Britons who now face further shortages as a result of it. The second reason is, in Churchill's phrase, that "mighty forces armed with fearful weapons are baying at each other across a gulf which . . . neither wishes and both fear to cross, but into which they may tumble or drag each other to their common ruin." Speaking for Russia, Mr. Vishinsky in Paris has contemptuously rejected the three-power proposal to limit armaments. He 'can't get to sleep at night for laughing over it.' The 'three-act comedy,' chiefly fathered by the United States, is not a cynical joke. Canada's Minister of External Affairs, at the U.N. Assembly in Paris, is on the side of mankind when he strongly urged Russia to reconsider her rejection.

* * *

The American-British-French plan was seriously put forward. It was not a piece of bluff, a propaganda move—although the American preparatory noises off-stage were loud enough, beginning with well-publicized atom bomb tests and ending with President Truman's take-it-or-leave-it tone in his broadcast: "We will do it the hard way if we must . . . But we will never give up trying for another way to peace—the way of reducing the armaments which make aggression possible." There is every reason to believe that the United States was fully prepared to carry out the inventory and limitation of armaments, under U.N., if Russia would accept it too. The Three-Power statement was free from hostile propaganda, and the opportunity in Paris was good for close personal conference and continuous clarification of the Plan. But Russia rejected it out of hand. The Russian delegates did not even take a couple of days to study it, or to ask for clarification of any points.

* * *

There are great inherent technical difficulties in disarmament, especially since the appearance of atomic weapons, and there is a growing mass of political difficulties. But these could have been overcome or reduced to the relatively simple international situation of 1946 when the Baruch Plan for the international control of atomic energy was proposed. There is the further difficulty that the United States is now quite heavily engaged in a war. Any counting of weapons would be out of the question until the war in Korea is settled; but agreement on the major issue of disarmament could bring the Korean war to a close. Disarmament is not impossible; but it is not possible without the United States and Russia both taking part in it.

* * *

Russia has made a counter-proposal, perhaps thereby hoping to get credit as a peace-maker, or at least to ward off the inference that she does not want the gap bridged between East and West. Vishinsky has proposed that a disarmament conference be held next June. If nothing comes of the present three-power proposal, the West could take the terms to it. Any chance to lessen the tensions should not be missed.

$64 and $64,000 Peterborough Question

Peterborough now has a new three-quarter million dollar city hall. The old city buildings are vacant, except for the Utilities Commission quarters. The Commission will be moving out as soon as its new office building is ready at the corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets. One of the fancy questions facing the present Council, and with which the new Council will have to deal, is: What's to be done with the old city buildings? The obvious answer is to sell the place. It is one of the most valuable and central sites in the city. But that begs the question: Who will be the right buyer and what will be the right price? $64, $64,000 or $164,000.

The answer which the City Plan gives is to raze the building, keep the site, and turn it into a parking area. That scheme, however, is outdated because it postulates a large new commercial building where the market hall, shops underneath it and part of the present new market parking lot are.

Is the market parking lot to remain forever a parking area? What will happen to the market hall, if the indoor market there is abandoned?

Another civic item for sale is the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital. Buyers do not seem to be rushing to snap it up.
